Why Neglect the Negro Churches?

Overlooked when 'crisis' funds are allocated, they should be able to look to their fellow congregations for support.

DAVID E. WITHERIDGE

+ MANY white church leaders and predominantly white denominational and interchurch agencies are behaving these days as if they believe in the church, but not in the Negro church; as if they believe in Negroes' ability, but not in their ability as churchmen. Is this a subtle form of white racism, or does it suggest a lack of belief in the church?

We make a strong case for establishing and maintaining strong churches with well trained staff and adequate buildings in white communities, but when it comes to black communities we tend not only to ignore their church leaders and congregations, but to resist attempts to give them greater consideration and support. We seem ready to listen more sympathetically to the militant, antireligious black leaders than to black churchmen.

Not that the strong stand white church leaders have taken in favor of listening to black voices in this day of revolution is not commendable. We have berated government and private social agencies for failing to establish structures within which the minority communities can make their own decisions and run their own affairs. Yet in far too many instances we have acted as if black churchmen are incapable of seeing it "like it is" and responding creatively.

Anomalous Situations

In the wake of the assassination of Martin Luther King, Jr., several national denominational bodies established "crisis" funds for the alleviation of poverty and the eradication of discrimination in the ghettos, but from those funds little if anything will be available for predominantly Negro congregations in their struggle to serve the whole man — body, mind and spirit. One denomination is raising a multimillion-dollar fund to help the poor organize and obtain power. When asked if some portion of the fund could go to help struggling black denominations, the national official responsible replied that because of the announced purpose of the fund, "we would have difficulty justifying support to local black churches."

In Minnesota one denominational body has raised an emergency fund for the benefit of the black ghetto. The major recipient will be a corporation organized to aid black businessmen and improve economic conditions in the ghetto. The same denominational body has turned a deaf ear to a plea from a local black clergy group for financial assistance to the churches its members serve. Meanwhile, millions of dollars have been poured into Minneapolis' needy near north side area for physical, social, educational and economic rehabilitation. Most of the money has come from government and business sources and from the United Fund, which as a matter of principle are unwilling or unable to contribute to religious causes. If anyone is going to help the Negro churches in the area fulfill their mission of service to their neighbors, it will have to be their sister churches elsewhere in the community.

We can be glad that church bodies have finally awakened to their responsibility to help meet the social and economic needs of fellow human beings in the ghettos and elsewhere, that at long last they have begun to put their purses where their mouths are. But why should the black churches be excluded from the benefits of the new altruism? Of all groups in the ghetto, their needs would seem to be the first consideration when priorities are established. Yet they seem to have ended up at the bottom of the priority list when church "crisis" funds are being allocated. Tax and United Fund money never reaches them: if they are to be helped the necessary funds must come from their sister churches. It is time to reverse the trend, to launch a massive campaign in all denominations so that black ministers and their congregations can have an even break, can be enabled to meet their people's physical, mental and spiritual needs. These ministers can be trusted to know those needs better than anyone else, but they cannot be expected to function effectively without help.

Why Not Building Loan Funds?

Such help can take many different forms. Consider, for instance, what it will mean to the black churches when all about them schools, homes and places of business have been rebuilt or rehabilitated by virtue of the crisis funds now available, while they must continue operating in dilapidated storefronts or hand-me-down buildings. Their only hope for rehabilitation lies in loans from church agencies. Those agencies should immediately lower the requirements for obtaining such loans — in line with the call by the churches for secular lenders to take more risks in the ghetto. Along with that action should come removal of restrictions against lending to any but congregations of the lending denomination; most of the needy churches are members of predominantly Negro denominations whose building loan funds are meager or nonexistent.

It has been done. One Baptist congregation in Pennsylvania voted to mortgage its building to obtain a $100,000 fund to alleviate inadequacies in ghetto housing, education and employment. It is nothing new for established congregations to mortgage their property in order to help establish new white churches in suburban or rural areas; why not apply the same principle to enable black congregations to worship, study and serve their neighbors in decent, serviceable buildings? Do we believe in decent buildings for white congregations, but not for black ones?

'Making Do' with Little

To ask why black pastors and their churches are not doing a better job is extremely unfair. Few laymen. even ministers, in white churches are aware that countless black churches are served by part-time ministers who must earn their living by working at one or more secular jobs. Who would expect white congregations to prosper under such circumstances? To expect more production with less investment is a subtle form of white racism.

Even those black ministers who have had college or seminary training and who serve their churches full time earn considerably less than their white colleagues with similar preparation. How could it be otherwise? Members of their churches earn on the average no more than half of what white church members earn; they would have to give almost twice as much to their churches if their pastors were to be paid what white pastors in similar situations receive. Some way must be found to subsidize the salaries of ministers and other greatly needed staff members in our Negro churches. Meanwhile, as opportunities for employment in secular occupations — particularly in the social agency field — open to Negroes many able ministers of black churches are leaving their posts for more lucrative positions where their training and talents make them welcome.

Thousands of black congregations have "dreamed up" creative and practical methods of attacking problems in their own neighborhoods — problems stemming from delinquency, inferior education, poverty and indifference. All they lack to make those dreams reality is money. Where is it to come from? Certainly not from their own meager budgets. Certainly not from tax collections or United Fund budgets, probably not from businesses or foundations. The one possible source is contributions from predominantly white churches — and just now the projects benefiting from those contributions are mainly in the secular field. Certainly those secular projects deserve to be forwarded by the churches — but not to the exclusion of worthy black church enterprises.

Channel for Mission

I believe in the church. And I believe that in a critical period when black churches are struggling to fulfill their mission with the meager resources at hand they deserve sacrificial support from the rest of us. We are being hypocritical when we urge the business community to "give Negroes a better than even break" and at the same time fail to do the same for our colleagues in the Negro churches.

In urging such attention to the black churches' needs I would not contend that all of those churches are equally worthy of support. They are no better, no worse, than white congregations. The potential of each should be critically appraised, preferably by Negroes themselves. That will not be an easy task, but it should not be permitted to deter us from our goal.

The effort I call for must be interdenominational. Few major denominations have in their ranks black congregations proportionate in number to the blacks in our population. Let us ignore denominational lines and resolve to offer help to black congregations strictly on the basis of mission. After all, that is what we are talking about: the mission of the church. And there is no more important channel for that mission than our fellow Christians in the predominantly black churches.

Cards Noses Rings

+ INFORMING people whether they exist
(in this old telling game of programmed cards) does anyone prefer punched cards, and noses counted, over nostrils pierced for rings?

The universal factories make cards,
the factual universities count noses,
the prestidigitators conjure rings of ash: "We automate; hence we exist."

But how the digital garbage of these cards suggests disposal lest the smells persist without retrieving man from reptile rings and fishscale! Should we only hold our noses?

What is humane in any of these cards?
ID or even Credit may not ring love's bell; it takes spirits of roseblood nose-gays to revive one's ghost that just exists.

Crown individuals with the radiant ring.
Punch uniformity right on the nose.
Adore whatever shadow makes sans card a vita and discovers who he is.

No Freedom of Religion for American Indians

DAVID E. WITHERIDGE

The first Wounded Knee—the massacre of 1890—was basically a tragic example of the denial of religious freedom to American Indians. If the Indians had been allowed to conduct their religious ceremonies without military interference, the events at Wounded Knee would probably have been much different.

Even today there is not complete religious freedom for native Indian religions. Although the severest form of oppression was ended in 1934, discrimination and restrictive measures have lingered on.

Amazingly, this long history of the religious oppression of Indians has been ignored by almost everyone, including those who are usually perturbed about the smallest amount of interference by government in religion.

In this Bicentennial era every phase of United States history is being reviewed. American Indians see nothing in this history to celebrate, and they have clearly announced that they will take no part in the Bicentennial.

The denial of religious liberty to American Indians, as described here, is a striking example of the destructive treatment given to these original inhabitants of America.

I

The Europeans who first came to America had virtually no conception of religious freedom as present-day Americans know it. The American colonies were established at a time when it was taken for granted that one of the prerogatives of government was to determine the religion of its people. Thus it was only natural that the kings who sent out expeditions to discover, expropriate, and colonize new territory would insist that the religion of the homeland be adopted. There was no intention of allowing the natives to worship in their own way. The force and financial resources of the government were used to convert the Indians.

One of the purposes of colonization, as expressed in the first Virginia charter of 1606, was the propagation of the Christian religion among the heathen. Governmental officials were to see that the Christian faith was "preached, planted, and used, not only within . . . the . . . colonies, but alsoe . . . amongst the savage people . . . according to the . . . religion now professed and established within our realme of England."[1]

The Massachusetts charter of 1629 gave the governor and freemen of the colony the power to make laws regarding religion, so that the natives could come to the knowledge and obedience of God and the Christian faith. This, in fact, was proclaimed as a principal end of the colony.[2]

Connecticut had the same provision in its charter, but all the authorities did there was to pass laws compelling the Indians to keep the Sabbath. Indians who worked or played on the Sabbath were fined five shillings or made to sit in the stocks for an hour.[3]

In the colony of New York missionary activity was undertaken at the request of the government and for political reasons. The colonial administrators feared the adherence of the Iroquois nations to the French in Canada. They suspected that this was the work of Jesuit missionaries and sought to overcome this with Protestant missions, supported in part by government funds.[4]

In 1646 the General Court in Massachusetts decreed the death penalty for any Indian who might blaspheme God or the Christian religion, and it prohibited Indians from performing worship to false gods. The General Court instituted the religious instruction of the Indians at public expense. The law provided that gifts would be given to all Indians willing to receive such instruction.[5] Christian missions to the Indians continued to receive public support in Massachusetts on a rather small scale. Most of the support during the early period came from England, from a missionary society known as the Company for Propagation of the Gospel in New England and the Parts Adjacent in America. But the private enterprise soon became public, as the officers in London needed someone in the colonies to manage their business with the missionaries. They asked the commissioners of the United Colonies of Massachusetts, Plymouth, and Connecticut to serve as their local board. So officers of the government became the actual field directors of the mission. Missionary business was handled along with state affairs at the regular meetings. The governor of Massachusetts was chairman of the commissioners and thus chairman of the missionary enterprise.[6]

Even in Pennsylvania, where there apparently were no governmental funds disbursed for missions, one purpose of the colony was declared to be the conversion of the poor Indians to Christ's kingdom " 'by just and lenient measures.' "[7]

Roger Williams of Rhode Island has been called the founder of "the first successful establishment for complete religious freedom in all history."[8] He proclaimed in 1644: "It is the will and command of God, that . . . a permission of the most Paganish, Jewish, Turkish, or Antichristian consciences and worships, bee granted to all men . . . ."[9] Such a position would seem to embrace even the traditional Indian religions.

The Baptist followers of Williams, however, did not go that far. William G. McLoughlin has concluded that "the Baptists were not committed to what most Americans today consider separation of church and state. Their aim . . . was to establish a 'righteous government' in a Christian (Protestant) nation."[10]

> 1636, the pietistic position on separation in New England was on the whole a very conservative one. It not only was willing to permit a "sweet harmony" between church and state, but it also vehemently demanded such cooperation in the interests of achieving and maintaining a Protestant-Christian social order . . . .[11]

So it must be concluded that throughout the nearly 170 years of the colonial period the intention of both government and church leaders was to convert the Indians from their tribal religions to Christianity, using whatever influence and power the government could muster. Toleration applied only to the various Christian groups and in some cases to Jews.

II

During the American Revolution and the early national period the colonial pattern of cooperation between church and state in the conversion of Indians to Christianity continued. The new government wanted to assure friendly relations with the Indians, and it felt that the missionaries would be a strong influence in that direction.

One of the missionaries was Samuel Kirkland at Oneida, known to be a vigorous supporter of the Revolution. During the war he was able to pass along valuable information for the army, and the Continental Congress paid some of his expenses for this purpose. He was attached to General Sullivan's army in the campaign against the Six Nations and received a salary of $444 as missionary to the Indians and $300 as chaplain of the army and interpreter.[12]

A resolution passed by the Continental Congress on 5 February 1776 declared that "a friendly commerce between the people of the United Colonies and the Indians, and the propagation of the Gospel, and the cultivation of the civil arts among the latter, may produce many and inestimable advantages to both." Congress therefore asked the commissioners for Indian affairs to find suitable places for ministers and schoolmasters to be located and to report to Congress.[13]

The leaders of the New England Company, which maintained missions to the Indians, mostly with funds from England, wrote to the president of Congress in August 1776 asking for financial assistance, since the missionaries had not been paid for a year and thus were in dire straits. These missionaries were Samuel Kirkland at Oneida, John Sargeant at Stockbridge, and a Mr. Crosby at Onohoquaga. The point made was that their work was necessary to keep the Indians from joining the enemy. This request for missionary salaries was granted. The Continental Congress was merely following the precedent set by the colonial governments.[14]

President Thomas Jefferson occasionally made small financial contributions for the support of Indian missions from the same fund used for providing agricultural implements to the Indians. This fund was established by Congress in 1802 for civilizing the Indians. Later administrations continued this procedure. The missionary boards of the several denominations willingly accepted these grants for missionary work.[15]

Another example of public funds being used for Indian missions is found in a treaty signed in 1803 by William Henry Harrison, then governor of the Indian Territory, and the chiefs of the Kaskaskia Indians representing all the Illinois tribes: "And whereas the greater part of the said tribe have been baptised and received into the Catholic church, . . . the United States will give, annually, for seven years, one hundred dollars towards the support of a priest of that religion . . . . And the United States will further give the sum of three hundred dollars, to assist the said tribe in the erection of a church. . . ."[16]

III

In 1819 a formal partnership was set up between the federal government and denominational mission boards to provide Christian schools for the Indian tribes. This partnership lasted approximately eighty years. In other words, the federal government was subsidizing what are now called parochial schools on the reservations for all those years.

The policy was expressed in 1789 by Henry Knox, the first secretary of war, who was responsible for shaping the Indian policy of the new nation. He envisioned a program of civilization carried on primarily by Christian missions combined with agricultural training. He said that the expense of such a system would be less in the long run than a system of coercion.[17] The first attempt at such a program failed to materialize because it was discovered that Knox would not fund a project that involved the teaching of Christianity to Indians who were not already converted. No teachers or farmers would consider such work except those with a strong missionary motive; hence the scheme remained dormant for nearly three decades.

Then in 1816 a proposal was made by Cyrus Kingsbury on behalf of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions. He suggested a school for the Cherokees in which the government would provide and own the buildings and equipment, but the American Board would provide the personnel. He sold President Madison on the plan and established the Cherokee mission.[18] In March 1819, "a permanent 'Civilization Fund' was established with an appropriation of $10,000." The president was authorized not merely to provide buildings but to employ persons "of good moral character" to teach the Indians agriculture and to teach their children reading, writing, and arithmetic. The mission boards were not mentioned, but they happened to be the only groups ready and able to implement the program.[19]

The accepted pattern was that outlined by the board of the United Foreign Missionary Society. The object was to promote among the Indians "not only the knowledge of Christianity, but also of the arts of civilized life. . . . In every establishment there shall be a superintendent and an assistant, who shall be Ministers of the Gospel, a schoolmaster, a farmer, a blacksmith, a carpenter, . . . all of whom come under the general denomination of MISSIONARY."[20] The government soon changed the plan to provide only two-thirds of the cost of the buildings, requiring the missions to secure the other third from other sources.[21]

By 1826 thirty-eight schools were being supported from the fund. These included Congregational, Presbyterian, Baptist, Methodist, Moravian, Roman Catholic, and Episcopal schools.[22] "If the churches had any qualms of conscience about so intimate a relationship between church and state," wrote R. Pierce Beaver, "one would expect to find the expression of such sentiments most evident among the Baptists. However, no other denomination except the Methodists was so ready throughout the 19th century to rely principally on government support of Indian mission work and do relatively little to get adequate money from the churches."[23]

These denominational missions and schools not only were an infringement on the principle of the separation of church and state but also were a massive system set up with the force of government to do away with the ancient tribal religions against the will of the Indians. Participation in them was compulsory, not voluntary. Robert F. Berkhofer, Jr.,[24] has pointed out that the boarding schools often suffered from the arbitrary removal of the children by their parents. So the missionaries depended on contracts backed by legal force to secure steady attendance. The superintendent of the Mackinaw Mission of the American Board "relied upon an act of the Michigan Legislative Council which provided for binding the children to him by legal indenture so that they could not be removed before coming of age or their education completed."[25]

Such was truly a partnership between church and state to force the Indians to give up their traditional culture and religion and adopt Western European culture and the Christian religion.

IV

The next period involved what is known as Grant's Peace Policy of the 1870s. There were two perplexing problems in regard to the Indian people in the United States. One was the constant friction, hostility, and even warfare between the native tribes and the invading people. The other was the gross corruption and fraud that characterized the Indian agents and their administration. Protestant Episcopal Bishop Henry B. Whipple told President Abraham Lincoln in 1862 that "there is a tradition on the border that an Indian agent with fifteen hundred dollars a year can retire upon an ample fortune in four years."[26] General Sherman discovered that a politician who had been appointed to an agency "saved" $50,000 within three years out of his salary of $1,500 per year![27]

In an effort to deal with both problems in a new way, President U. S. Grant took two steps. He replaced the old agents and superintendents on the reservations and set up a civilian board called the Board of Indian Commissioners to supervise Indian affairs.

The Board of Indian Commissioners was considered to be church-related or church-dominated, but in fact it was merely made up of prominent Christian laymen. It did some good in preventing fraud and instances of conflict, but the members soon discovered they had little real power; all but one member of the board resigned in 1874. Nevertheless, the board did continue in existence until 1933 and represented a stabilizing influence in a difficult situation.[28]

After dismissing the Indian agents, Grant first appointed army officers in their place. Congress objected, however, and on the advice of the Board of Indian Commissioners Grant requested church mission boards to nominate agents for most of the reservations.[29] The idea for this procedure came from the success of the Friends in managing a few reservations. In his message to Congress in 1870, President Grant said:

> The experiment of making it [that is, the management of the reservations] a missionary work was tried with a few agencies given to the denomination of Friends, and has been found to work most advantageously. . . . Indian agencies being civil offices, I determined to give all the agencies to such religious denominations as had heretofore established missionaries among the Indians, and perhaps to some other denominations who would undertake the work on the same terms, i.e., as a missionary work. The societies selected are allowed to name their own agents, subject to the approval of the Executive, and are expected to watch over them and aid them as missionaries, to Christianize and civilize the Indian, and to train him in the arts of peace.[30]

The secretary of the Board of Indian Commissioners and the secretary of the interior worked out a plan to allocate agencies to the various mission groups. The list of denominations and their agencies is an amazing document. It included Friends, Methodist, Roman Catholic, Baptist, Presbyterian, Congregational, Reformed, Protestant Episcopal, Unitarian, Free-Will Baptist, and United Presbyterian denominations and later the Evangelical Lutheran and Disciple denominations.[31]

First of all, the mission board that was assigned an agency was supposed to nominate the agent and keep watch over him in some supervisory way. Secondly, the denomination was expected to use its own funds to establish a denominational mission on the reservation, if it did not already have one. Thirdly, the board was to maintain a school for the children with some financial assistance from the federal government.

Truly this was a complex operation with governmental and church efforts so merged as to be indistinguishable. According to Anson Phelps Stokes, "There is no more striking evidence in American history of cooperation between Church and State than is indicated by this list [of agencies], which shows the great religious bodies assuming important tasks as representatives of the government, and at its request."[32] "Perhaps the most serious issue was that of religious liberty, a fundamental right of all American citizens," wrote R. Pierce Beaver. "Was it [religious liberty] the right of the Indian wards of the government as well? Neither the Protestant nor the Roman Catholic missionaries and officials were really concerned about the Indian's right to maintain and defend his own religion, and they were fighting more for freedom of action by the missionary agencies."[33]

Such a system of denominational control of the reservations was bound to produce problems of jealousy and competition. Catholic-Protestant relations in those days were far from cordial, but so were relations among the Protestant groups. Eventually the churches themselves began to question the whole philosophy of government-supported missions and mission schools.

At the same time political and business interests were trying to bring discredit on the system of church nominations and were looking for ways to return to power on the reservations. Finally, in 1882, H. M. Teller, President Chester A. Arthur's secretary of the interior, terminated the whole Peace Policy of President Grant, and the participation of the missionary societies in the administration of the Indian agencies ceased.[34]

Collaboration between church and state in Indian education, however, continued for another decade. What actually happened was that the Protestant denominations began to realize how much more money the Catholic schools were getting than they were. In the eight years preceding 1893 the Catholic schools had received $2,355,416, while all eight Protestant denominations had received only $938,977. One by one the Protestant denominations passed resolutions calling for an end to the subsidies.[35] The Appropriations Act of 1895 decreed that financial aid would be cut to 80 percent of the previous amount, and by 1899 it was affirmed that Congress had made the "final appropriation for sectarian schools."[36] After eighty years the official partnership between the federal government and the Christian churches was ended.

V

The removal of governmental subsidy for Christian schools, however, did not bring religious freedom to the Indians. In the meantime, the period of the greatest opposition to Indian religions had begun. This was from about 1880 to 1934.

What restrictions were actually imposed, or who imposed them, is not clear; but many experts agree that the repression was severe. Vine Deloria, Jr., has written in God Is Red:

> By the time of the Allotment Act [1887], almost every form of Indian religion was banned on the reservations. In the schools the children were punished for speaking their own language. Anglo-Saxon customs were made the norm for Indian people; . . . and stern measures were taken to discourage them from continuing tribal customs. Even Indian funeral ceremonies were declared to be illegal, and drumming and any form of dancing had to be held for the most artificial of reasons. The Lummi Indians from western Washington, for example, continued some of their tribal dances under the guise of celebrating the signing of their treaty.[37]

Stephen Ferara wrote in his study of Sioux religious beliefs: "Dances, of all types, were officially banned by the government, whether religious or not. . . . Shamans and herbalists often practiced secretly, and were sometimes arrested. The Sun Dance was officially banned in 1881 . . . [and] the last of the torture [sacrificial] dances were actually held in 1883."[38]

The authorities and the army officers thought every Indian dance was a war dance, endangering the peace of the frontier. This was the issue leading up to the Wounded Knee Massacre of 1890. The background was a Messiah religion developed by a Paiute named Wovoka. He proclaimed that following his way > would bring about the restoration to the Indians of their hunting grounds, the return of their buffalo, and other blessings. The so-called ghost dances . . . were a feature of the excitement . . . . The Sioux in South Dakota became so affected that the Indian agent wired for troops, and many settlers left their homes, fearing a major Indian uprising. General Nelson A. Miles . . . ordered the seizure of Chief Sitting Bull . . . ; and he and six Indian police and eight of his followers were killed while resisting.[39]

In the massacre that followed two hundred or more Indians and twenty-nine whites were killed. One expert has contended: "Mainly because they misunderstood the meaning of the Ghost Dance religion, the Government's policy makers who ran the reservations from Washington decided to stamp it out. If they had taken the trouble to examine its basic tenets, they would have found that in its original form the religion was opposed to all forms of violence, self-mutilation, theft, and falsehood. As one Army officer observed: 'Wovoka has given these people a better religion than they ever had before.' "[40]

Before the battle, while the situation was becoming tense, a former Indian agent, Dr. Valentine McGillicuddy, who had been sent to resolve the trouble, said: "I should let the dance continue. The coming of the troops has frightened the Indians. If the Seventh-Day Adventists prepare their ascension robes for the second coming of the Savior, the United States Army is not put in motion to prevent them. Why should not the Indians have the same privilege? If the troops remain, trouble is sure to come."[41] Nobody listened to him, however, and the massacre occurred. Undoubtedly the tragedy developed even more fears of Indian religious ceremonies, and the restrictions continued for a generation or two.

At last there came on the scene the commissioner of Indian affairs in President Franklin D. Roosevelt's administration, John Collier. He was greatly interested in preserving Indian art and religion. He believed in religious freedom and felt the missionary schools had become too dominant. In 1934 he issued an order under the title, "Indian Religious Freedom and Indian Culture." The statement declared: "No interference with Indian religious life or ceremonial expression will hereafter be tolerated . . . . The fullest constitutional liberty, in all matters affecting religion, conscience and culture, is insisted on for all Indians."[42] In explanation Commissioner Collier stated:

> Secretary Ickes and I felt compelled to issue the order . . . because we discovered that the Indian religions and the free choice of the Indians in religious matters were not given this Constitutional protection. We found, for example, that Indian children in the Government schools were subjected to compulsory denominational instruction, not through parental choice but by official coercion. School teachers were required to exact attendance and to maintain discipline at purely religious meetings. Physical persecution against the Indian religions has been indulged in from time to time, down to very recent years. Our present policy is to give to the Indians the same rights that other people in the country have, and have had, without question.[43]

The churches were generally opposed to Collier not merely because their missions were being criticized and given a more difficult task under the new policies but also because they opposed any move that tended to restore the older tribal ways and retard integration of Indians into the majority culture. However, in the 1940s the churches began to concede that neither the government nor other organizations "had the right to make unilateral decisions about the Indian's present and future but that his consent was needed."[44]

In spite of Collier's decree of 1934, Indians still do not enjoy complete religious freedom. One familiar example is the legal restriction in various states and even on some reservations against the use of peyote in Indian worship. The federal government has now legalized its use in religious services by the approximately two hundred thousand members who are claimed by the Native American Church. But the Indians are still apprehensive lest their rights in this regard be taken away again.

Another strange anomaly exists regarding freedom of religion for Indians on the reservations. This is the fact that the Fourteenth Amendment extends the Bill of Rights, including religious liberty, specifically to the states; but the Supreme Court has consistently ruled that an Indian reservation is not a state. "Therefore, the amendment's protective features do not apply. In fact, unless the tribal council has established a bill of rights, no such guarantee of individual rights exists for the reservation Indian." Congress by statute could extend the guarantee of religious freedom to the reservation, but it has not chosen to do so. The tribal governments can establish local bills of rights, including freedom of religion, and many have done so. But it appears that a majority of the reservation Indians "do not live under any bill of rights at all."[45]

A typical case in which this would make a difference was in the Jemez Pueblo, where six Protestants claimed religious discrimination in an overwhelmingly Catholic pueblo. They "charged that the Pueblo had refused their right to bury their dead in the community cemetery," "build a church of their own on Pueblo land," "use their homes for church purposes," and "permit Protestant missionaries freely to enter the Pueblo at reasonable times."[46]

The point here is that as a matter of fact Indians on reservations still do not have the constitutional guarantee of religious freedom which the rest of the population enjoys.

The most perplexing and pervasive violation of Indian religious rights is just now beginning to be understood by non-Indians. This is the repeated and insensitive removal of the tribes from their sacred land and shrines. Vine Deloria, Jr., has said that "[t]he primary thesis of tribal religions" is "the relationship of a particular people with a particular land."[47] Yet the entire treatment of the Indians in the United States has violated this religious principle of theirs.

On this score the greatest victory for the Indians thus far has been the restoration of the sacred Blue Lake area to the people of Taos Pueblo in New Mexico. Deloria tells the story:

> Theodore Roosevelt, on a great conservation trip in 1906, decided that the timberlands in northern New Mexico should be placed in a national forest for their protection. . . . [W]hen the government surveyors had finished laying out the boundaries, the sacred Blue Lake, central to the practice of the Pueblo religion, was safely within the forest. The people of the Pueblo immediately petitioned the government for the lake's restoration. They explained that it was their major religious shrine and that the Pueblo would die without its sanctuary for the perpetuation of its religion. The Interior Department sided with the Pueblo in 1912, supporting a return of the lake to them.[48]

The Department of Agriculture objected, and the struggle continued for more than sixty years.

> In 1965 the Indian Claims Commission . . . admitted that the United States had illegally taken the Blue Lake area and offered a substantial sum as compensation. The commissioners were astounded when the Indians refused the money. They wanted the Blue Lake area returned to them. If the commission would not do that, the Indians did not want it said that they had sold their sacred shrine . . . .
> It seemed that for someone in America to turn down a dollar was unusual. When it was a little group of Indians living on the edge of starvation, it presented a more profound and difficult moral question than is usually raised in government circles . . . .

[48] Ibid., pp. 7-8.

> In November of 1970 President Nixon took a hand in the matter, and the White House began to apply pressure on its friends in Congress to get Blue Lake returned to the Taos people . . . .
> In December 1970 President Nixon signed into law the bill that restored 44,000 acres surrounding the sacred Blue Lake to the people of the Taos Pueblo. The significance of the law could not be underestimated [overstated]. It was the first clear sign, as Senator Charles Percy noted in his speech on the bill, that the Indian religious practices would be given equal respect along with Christian ceremonies.[49]

Most of the recent confrontations of the American Indian Movement and other Indian groups with the government have had religious overtones in relation to the sacred land and shrines of the tribes involved. This is just now registering on the consciousness of the rest of the country.

In a historical sense Americans must remember the total disruption that occurred to the religious life of a tribe every time it was separated from its sacred places. To the Western European and Christian mind, a change of location was primarily a matter of finding a new way of supporting one's family. To the Indian it was a religious disruption. Moreover, as long as tribes are even now separated from their sacred places by governmental action, they are still deprived of religious freedom, the same as Christians and Jews would be if they were prohibited from gathering for corporate worship.

The essence of the essay, then, is this. From the arrival of the white man on these shores to this year 1976 the Native Americans have never had freedom to worship as they chose, without governmental interference or compulsion. At first, many others also lacked that freedom. Now the rest of the country has achieved it, and in this Bicentennial period we should see that our Indian brothers and sisters also achieve religious freedom.

ELIZABETH WITHERIDGE - an appreciation of a remarkable lady

by Kim Cook

Elizabeth Witheridge, wife of the Rev. David Witheridge of Minneapolis, and mother of Jim and Tom, died peacefully in the Walker Methodist Health Centre in Minneapolis on 8th August, 1995. Her long and remarkable life was one of tremendous achievement in the most quiet and unassuming way, and I hope, through this article, to be able to share with those of you who did not know Elizabeth, something of her life and character.

Elizabeth was raised in Saginaw, Michigan, where she spent most of her childhood in the care of her grandparents on their farm. From her earliest days she had a strong Christian faith and a great love and concern for children two attributes that were to be the markers of her life.

After leaving school Elizabeth trained as a kindergarten (primary school) teacher, graduating from Central Michigan University. She taught for 13 years in Saginaw. In 1941 she married David, whom she had known since childhood, as they were both members of the same church. At the time of their marriage, David was a heating, ventilation and air conditioning engineer.

Later, when David gave up engineering to train as a Baptist minister, Elizabeth also took courses at Colgate Rochester Divinity School. After graduating from divinity college, David became a pastor in Illinois, where they lived for nine years before, in 1951, moving to Minneapolis where David became Executive Director of the Greater Minneapolis Council of Churches.

As well as bringing up their two sons, Jim and Tom, Elizabeth fulfilled all the duties expected of a pastor's wife - and more. Her rapport with children made her a natural Sunday School teacher. She led the children's choir, and served on many church committees involved in caring for the disadvantaged. In particular, she had a great concern for the plight of the American Indians, being heavily involved with the Division of Indian Work of the Greater Minneapolis Council of Churches. In everything she did, she showed great concern for the welfare of others.

In addition to all this, Elizabeth somehow found time to write a succession of books for children. The first 'Mara of Old Babylon' published in 1955, was the story of a child in Biblical times. This was followed by 'Mara Journeys Home' and, in complete contrast, 'Jim Penney's Golden Nugget', based on the life of one of her ancestors in the days of the gold rush.

All Elizabeth's books were based on fact, and many recounted events that she had experienced herself, or circumstances she had encountered in her welfare work. Throughout her writings, Elizabeth tackled real social issues in a way that children could understand and relate to, and her books are full of her gentle wisdom. All her books were meticulously researched, and in an interview after the publication of one of them, she insisted that "books for children should be historically accurate. Such great harm can be done by giving them wrong information" .

'Dead End Bluff', which recounted the experiences of a blind boy, won a national award. Much of Elizabeth's own childhood is recalled in 'Never Younger, Jeannie', (published in 1963), a book she dedicated to the memory of her grandparents, while 'Just One Indian Boy', (published in 1974) was based on the lives of young Native Americans (as they now prefer to be called) on a reservation in northern Minnesota. I treasure the copies of these two books given me by Elizabeth.

On the fly-leaf of 'Just One Indian Boy', Elizabeth wrote the following inscription:

> 'One Indian boy growing up read this book and said to his mother, "I've read this book three times, and it's the best book I have ever read!" As its author, I am pleased beyond words that it has fulfilled the purpose that I dreamed for it!'

Even though she was no longer in full-time teaching, Elizabeth continued to be involved with children's education. She travelled widely, visiting schools to speak about her books, and to encourage children both to think carefully about the issues they raised, and to consider writing their own experiences. Her visits to schools were greeted with enormous enthusiasm by the young pupils, who loved her dearly, and would string banners of welcome across the school entrance. Such tokens of esteem always surprised and delighted Elizabeth, who never saw herself as anyone special, even when others did.

Elizabeth's care and concern for others was always very practical, and she campaigned for many causes in support of the disadvantaged, particularly among ethnic minorities. Without succumbing to the aggression so prevalent among the campaigners of today, Elizabeth quietly and firmly stood her ground on issues of injustice and inequality.

Elizabeth's ancestry was predominantly English (Plumb, Gilbert, Kendall and Baldwin featured in her family tree) and her ancestors had been among the very earliest American colonists. Some had fought for freedom in the American War of Independence in 1776. This ancestry entitled Elizabeth to the highly prized accolade of membership of the prestigious organisation 'Daughters of the American Revolution'. But when the DAR refused to allow the renowned black singer Marion Anderson to sing in their august halls, Elizabeth did what to many people was unthinkable - she resigned her membership. She was not alone, however, because Eleanor Roosevelt did likewise. The political climate has, thankfully, changed considerably since then, but in those days Elizabeth's action was a bold and courageous step.

Our family's first contact with David and Elizabeth came in the 1960s, when David wrote to all the Witheridges he could find in the UK telephone directories. One of these was my aunt Dorothy. Unable to get up to London herself, and knowing that I had already done some work on the family tree, she commissioned me to do some further research so that we could answer David's questions about our branch of the family. From my reply to that letter grew a correspondence and a friendship that continue to this day.

In the early days, most of the letters were about family history and were written by David. However, when our elder son, Jason was born in 1968, he was diagnosed as having a rare digestive problem for which the prognosis was not good. During Jason's illness there were long gaps between my letters, and eventually I wrote and explained the situation. By return of post we received two lovely letters, one from David, the other from Elizabeth. In her letter, Elizabeth explained that their son Tom had also been born with a similar condition, so she knew and understood our anxieties. Her letter was full of practical sympathy, warmth and above all encouragement, and it lightened those dark days. Thereafter, Elizabeth would always add her own personal messages to David's letters, and we felt that they were both our dearest friends, even though at that stage we had never met.

We eventually met for the first time when David and Elizabeth first came to the UK in June 1976. They arrived just in time to be guests of honour at our church's supper to celebrate the American Bicentenary. It was only after the supper that I learned how appropriate the occasion was for Elizabeth! Later, we celebrated the Fourth of July with tea in an English garden, ending with what was then, to us, the novelty of water ice. Elizabeth was thrilled for (unknown to us) water ice had been a traditional ingredient of her childhood Fourth of July celebrations!

On that first visit, David and Elizabeth stayed in the UK for three months, combining visits to British Councils of Churches with family history research and holiday. They met many Witheridges in their travels, and I particularly remember a wonderful day we all spent with Anthony and Francoise Witheridge and their four young children together with Anthony's father, George and his wife Gwen, at their home on an Army base in Kent. As always, Elizabeth took great pleasure in having so many youngsters around her.

As David and Elizabeth shared our interests in history, and in plants and flowers, Hampton Court and Kew Gardens were on the agenda. We were disappointed with Kew, looking (as we thought) very sad and brown in that famous 'summer of the drought' (so like this one!) but Elizabeth loved it. Throughout their travels and visits, Elizabeth, despite being nearly 70, never flagged. All through that heat, however busy she was, however tight their schedule, Elizabeth remained calm and unflappable. I often wished I could emulate her easy efficiency and even temperament. And every evening she wrote up her journal, recording the experiences of their visit. I wondered if she might find the ingredients for another book in that journal.

David and Elizabeth made two further visits to the UK, in 1980 and 1988, and then in 1990 welcomed us most warmly to their home in Minneapolis, where we got to know the whole family. With her continuing love of children, it was natural that Elizabeth was particularly devoted to her grand-daughter Rebecca, daughter of Tom and his wife Virginia. Even though by then we could see the early signs of the Alzheimer's disease that was to develop during those last five years, her natural rapport with children was still very evident.

Here we also saw further evidence of the love of plants that David and Elizabeth shared. In the house, Elizabeth had a wonderful collection of African violets, which she grew and tended herself. In the garden we enjoyed their beautiful rose bed - a delight of colour and scent. Nothing unusual in that you may think - until you remember that after summer temperatures in the high eighties and a warm autumn, Minneapolis has two or three months a year under snow, when temperatures can be down to minus 20 degrees or more!

In November, 1991, on one of those cold, snowbound days, Elizabeth injured her hip in a fall. Although the injury eventually healed reasonably well, the shock precipitated an acceleration of her Alzheimer's disease. For over three years David nursed her devotedly at home, even when, in his exhaustion, he fell and broke his own ankle, earlier this year. However as Elizabeth's illness progressed, the need for round-the-clock nursing in a specialist centre was inescapable, and her last weeks were spent in the Walker Methodist Health Centre near their home in Minneapolis, where she received the very best of care.

Even in thost last days, when memory and co-ordination had failed, and she was unable to speak even the names of those she loved, her delight in children never dimmed, and she would greet nine-year-old Rebecca with open arms and a beaming smile.

During the funeral service in Grace Trinity Church in Minneapolis, the congregation sang Elizabeth's favourite hymn - Eleanor Farjeon's 'Morning has broken' - one she had taught to her own children, and to generations of Sunday School children.

Elizabeth's quiet, steadfast faith has surely secured for her a place where she can truly sing

'Mine is the sunlight! Mine is the morning
Born of the one light Eden saw play!'

Elizabeth was a talented, gracious and generous person, greatly loved by all who knew her. I'm sure all Witheridge Society members will join with me in sending our condolences to David, to Tom, Virginia and Rebecca, and to Jim and David. Elizabeth will be sorely missed, but her influence, through her family, her faith and witness, her works and her writings, lives on.

1914-2008

It was with great sadness that we learned, in December 2008, of the death of David Witheridge of Minneapolis, the first Honorary Vice-President of the Witheridge Family History Society.

David Edward Witheridge was born on 15 August 1914, in Bay City, near Saginaw, Michigan. David was the third of four children born to William Allen Witheridge and Edith Sophia Nemitz, his siblings being William Nemits Witheridge, Louise Alice Witheridge, and John Meredith Witheridge, all of whom pre-deceased him.

David's grandfather, William Witheridge, had been born in Combmartin, Devon, in 1856, but by the late 1870s the family had moved to Glamorgan, South Wales. In 1887/88 William, with his wife Mary Jane Allen and four surviving children, including David's father, moved to the USA, where three further children were born.

David grew up in the Saginaw area, and initially trained as a heating and ventilating engineer, working for his father's business. However, his true vocation was to the Christian ministry, and he left the family business to train as a Baptist minister.

On 5 September 1941 David married Elizabeth Helen Kendall Plumb, a teacher and Sunday School teacher, who had also been born and raised in the Saginaw area. The family soon grew, with son James (Jim), born in 1946, and Thomas (Tom) in 1947.

David's first ministry posting took them to Illinois, where they remained until 1951, when David was appointed Executive Director of the Greater Minneapolis Council of Churches. Here David's superb administrative and organisational skills came to the fore, co-ordinating Christian work in a city packed with churches of every denomination.

David and Elizabeth shared a strong belief in justice and equality for all, at a time when to be Native American or black meant adverse discrimination at almost every turn. David was never one to make a fuss, or display any anger he felt, which would waste time and energy. Expletives were certainly never on his agenda. Instead, he would say 'Oh my!' in any one of a dozen different ways; with compassion at bad news, with enthusiasm at exciting news, with joy at good news, with a querying upward inflection when he wanted to hear more, and with determination when he heard of a situation where he could make a difference. Afterwards, he would think and pray, and then work quietly and efficiently to lobby those who had the means and opportunity to change things.

David had long had a passion for family history, and in 1967 he found copies of London telephone directories in a Minnesota library, and wrote to all the Witheridges listed! One of these was my aunt, Dorothy Witheridge who, knowing that I'd been researching our family for some years, passed David's letter to me. Thus began a friendship that lasted over 40 years, and which has been a great blessing.

David was always generous in sharing his research, and taking on research for others, and his support and encouragement were instrumental in enabling the dream of a Witheridge one-name society to come to fruition. In my tribute, sent to his memorial service in June 2009 (see page 24), I recorded the love and gratitude for David felt not only by my own family, but by all in the Witheridge FHS, whether or not they had ever met him.

Our thoughts and prayers are with his family, particularly Jim and David, Tom, and Rebecca, who have lost a dearly-loved father, grandfather and friend.

Tribute to David Witheridge

This tribute to David Witheridge was sent to his memorial service by Kim Cook, on behalf of both the Cook family, and the Witheridge FHS. The memorial service was delayed until June 2009, to avoid travelling difficulties inevitable in a Minneapolis winter, and was held on what would have been David's 95th birthday. Some photos have been added.

David was a very special and truly remarkable man, and all the more so because he was genuinely unaware of just how special he was. Totally without any sense of self-importance, he was perceptive, astute and above all, loving and caring. How could you not love him?

I first came in to contact with David and his late wife Elizabeth in 1968, when he wrote to an aunt of mine in London, England, about Witheridge family history, and I dealt with the correspondence. It was such a relief simply to find someone else who was researching the Witheridge families, and who didn't think the whole business of family history was a touch weird!

The joy of finding a fellow family history researcher soon widened to an even greater delight as family history turned simply into family. Despite the lack of evidence of any blood ties, we soon felt that David and Elizabeth were family, and they regarded Roy and me as family, for we shared many other important aspects of our lives, not least a deep Christian faith. Soon this family bond grew to embrace Jim and 'young' David (Torborg), Tom and his family, and our sons Jason and Adam and their families.

The geographical distance wasn't an obstacle, even in those pre-computer, pre-internet days. The letters flew back and forth, sometimes erratically as either David or I encountered other pressing matters, but always we picked up as though there had been no break. Soon research news was more than matched by family news, often with photos enclosed. It became routine for us to exchange phone calls on birthdays and Christmas, and we also phoned on Thanksgiving, even though this isn't a holiday in the UK.

Shortly after our first exchange of letters, Roy and I were disconcerted to learn that our son, Jason, then an infant, was very ill. As soon as David and Elizabeth learned of this, they sent wonderful letters of encouragement, assuring us of their love and prayer support. This support was always there for us, and we in turn gave them all the love and prayer support we could.

June 1976: David and Elizabeth in Sutton, Surrey, shortly after arriving for their first visit to the UK.

The Atlantic gap was bridged five times – three times when David came to England and twice when Roy and I visited Minneapolis. David's first visit, with Elizabeth, was for three months in 1976, partly holiday, and partly research into the work of Councils of Churches in the UK. We were delighted when they made our home, then on the outskirts of London, their base, and after each foray further afield, we rejoiced in their return. We had great fun, particularly over the quirky language differences in words like lift (elevator), waistcoat (vest), boot (trunk), and flat (apartment), and over differences in food and menus. Jason (then just seven years old, and now nudging 41!) was fascinated by David's penchant for vinegar on his baked beans, and still eats them that way. A little 'Davidism' lives on in England!

Our first visit to Minnesota, in 1990, was a revelation! We had thought our hospitality was pretty good, but Minnesota hospitality far exceeded ours! The wonderfully warm welcome we had, not only from David and Elizabeth, but from Tom and his family, from Jim and David and the Torborg family, from others of the Witheridge clan, and from the Heltsleys, the Irving Avenue neighbours, and from the many churches we visited, was overwhelming.

For the first time we became fully aware of the extent, practicality and impact of David's quiet yet efficient determination to bring people of all cultures and denominations together, to acknowledge the intrinsic worth of each person and give them the respect and social justice that all deserve. And everywhere we went, from elegant neighbourhoods to less affluent areas, from magnificent churches to tin chapels, from back-yard barbecues to Chippewa pow-wows and feasts, there was clearly so much affection for David and Elizabeth. The love and respect in which they were held opened so many doors for us, and we learned so much. It was at once heart-warming and humbling.

Ever since 1961, when I had first started researching the Witheridge name, I had dreamed that one day there would be a one-name group enabling Witheridges to share their research, being instrumental in reuniting different branches of the family, and restoring the sense of family throughout the world. Although David wasn't able to help set up such a group in the UK, his support and encouragement kept the dream alive until, with the enthusiastic support of Annette Witheridge, the dream came true in 1987.

Not only was David our first overseas member, but he was also a stalwart and very generous contributor to the Society's research, providing material for family trees and articles on so many branches of his Combmartin family tree. His research was, like everything else David did, thorough, meticulous, accurate and reliable. Such was our appreciation of his enormous contribution to the Society that in May 1996 he was elected unanimously by the membership as the Society's Honorary Vice President for life.

However, the minutes recording this decision weren't published immediately, as a few weeks later Roy and I were winging our way across the Atlantic for a second visit with David.

This visit was to include the first-ever Witheridge Day in the USA, held on 8 June in the Minnesota History Center. David, his family and friends, organised a wonderful day, bringing together Witheridges from many parts of the USA, as well as from Canada, Australia and the UK.

What his family knew, but David didn't, was that Roy and I had brought with us an illuminated citation on vellum, commissioned specially from an artist, recording his appointment as the Witheridge Society's Honorary Vice-President, and recognising David's 'many years of meticulous research, faithfully recorded and generously shared'.

I know some here today will remember that wonderful occasion, when temperatures in the upper 80s were exceeded only by the warmth, love and fun of a very memorable day.

In his grace before the meal, David gave thanks not only for the food, but also for the fellowship of friends and families, which was always very close to his heart .

Surprised and moved by the unexpected presentation after lunch, David was temporarily lost for words, but his acceptance speech again emphasised the joy and friendship that his Witheridge research had brought him. It didn't seem to have occurred to David, always such a modest man, that the joy he had gained had been given out many times over, and had blessed those who had had the privilege of coming to know him as a result of his research.

The following year David came to England for the 10th Anniversary Reunion of the Witheridge Society, held in Devon, close to the village of Witheridge. Many members who had never met David were delighted to meet up with the man whose support and encouragement had been such a key factor in the founding of the Society and its subsequent success. After the reunion we were able to fulfil David's wish to visit many of his cousins still living in Devon, before returning to our home for a quieter time together.

We have so many more memories of David, all of them filled with love. Recapping on the characteristics we found in him, he was perceptive, astute, caring, encouraging, supportive, fun, hospitable, practical, determined, a man of deep faith and social justice, meticulous, accurate, reliable, generous, modest, and above all a man of peace, love and reconciliation. In the words of our young grandson, Ethan 'truly remarkable'.

Roy and I are so very sad that we can't be with you in person today to honour this lovely man. Indeed, we're doubly sad – sad because we miss David, and sad because we shall miss being with the family, sharing your memories of him, renewing old friendships and making new ones, something David loved to see. And tonight we shall miss the phone call that would have marked his 95th birthday.

But we can also rejoice that death has not separated David from the love of God, a love which overflowed from him into the lives of so many. David is now 'with Christ, which is far better', and our loss is heaven's gain.

The Rector or Vicar
Church of England Parish South Molton, Devonshire England

Dear Sir:

I am trying to locate information about my great grandfather, John Witheridge, and his brother, William. I understand that William Witheridge lived in South Molton, and that is why I am writing you.

The name of William Witheridge's wife was either Elizabeth or Mary, and they had two children, John and Mary. I have no dates in connection with this family, but William's brother John was born in Devonshire in 1828 and died in Glamorganshire in 1905.

I hope you may be able to help me discover some specific records on William Witheridge and his family. Of course, I shall pay the customary fee for your assistance.

If you happen to know of any Witheridge descendants living in or near South Molton, I should be happy to have you give me their addresses, so that I could correspond with them.

Perhaps there are Witheridges buried in the parish cemetery. If so, I should like to have the information on the tombstone or burial record.

Do your parish records show any births, deaths, or marriages of any Witheridges during the approximate period mentioned above? I realize that South Molton is not too far from the town of Witheridge and that there may be a great many Witheridges in that region. If so, perhaps the best thing would be to put me in touch with some of them.

Is there a newspaper in South Molton that has been published for a long time? If so, please give me the name and address.

Thank you very much for any assistance you can give.

Yours sincerely,

David E. Witheridge

Dear Mr. Witteridge,

Your letter has been passed to me for action. In response to your request I have begun to search, but with no success so far. I have searched the Baptism Registers for the years 1806 to 1836, but during that period no surname Witteridge appears.

Before proceeding further with my searching, & in view of the complexity & length of time involved, I have been told to acquaint you with the expense involved. As requests are frequently received for searching registers, particularly from U.S.A, Australia & South Africa, it is apparent that the scale of fees are not known.

The normal fee payable is 3/6 plus 1/- per year searched for each type of Register (Baptism, marriage, burial, etc.) In your particular instance this could prove quite considerable, unless you can be more explicit as regards the years in which you are interested. I should therefore be grateful for your comments before proceeding further.

There are one or two families surnamed Witteridge in this area, although not in the town. I will look into this further on your behalf. There is no newspaper published in South Molton, but our "local" paper comes from Tiverton, & this is of fairly long standing. Do you require the publisher's address?

It is unpleasant to appear mercenary, but circumstances compel us to ask for the enquirer to give definite instructions once the fee question is understood. I'm sure that you will appreciate my position.

Awaiting your reply,

Yours sincerely,

O.R. Tennant
Curate.

Dear Mr. Tennant:

Thank you very much for your reply to my inquiry about my Witheridge ancestors or relatives. I appreciate your explanation of the fees and the problems involved.

First, I should like very much to have you secure the names and addresses of the families in your area by the name of Witheridge. They may not be related to me, but I should like to correspond with them.

Second, I should also like the address of the newspaper published in Tiverton.

Third, I am sending you a remittance of 2/-/- to reimburse you for the search you have already made on my behalf. I agree that I should try to pin down the likely dates before you proceed any further. I shall let you know later what to do next.

Again, let me thank you for your help. I shall look forward to receiving these addresses.

Yours sincerely,

David E. Witheridge

Incidentally I have searched the register of Churchyard Monuments, and it seems that no tombstone bearing your name has been erected in the Parish Churchyard.

I hope this is of interest to you & that you will be enabled to go a little further in your efforts to trace your ancestors,

Dear Elizabith and David.
You will have to for give your old aunt for not ans. your letter sooner. There for awhile
I just couldn't make my self do the things I should Then befor I knew it Christmas was a pound us. and a few card to send out.
I had a card from a dear friend of mine Ruth Shepard who lives in Sag, Willse – and she enclosed the death notice of Cousin Leo Rushlow death Dec. 10, 81
It mention Margaret name & their 2 sons.
I also sent cards to two of my old School chums and both came back said not there so they to may be gone unless I hear latter on from them they could have moved.

I better try and ans- your question I tell you what I heard my Father say yrs + yrs ago-
By your letter you seem to know more than I do in regard to my Parents religion.
Both my Parents so I was told where members of the Church of England. and I remember my Father saying that when he came to American he would not join the Episcopal Church to much like Church of England and also Catholic.
Uncle Elijah had no influence of our Father going Baptist Church he Made his own Choice that was in Sherodville Ohio- so Father said- He + Mother took an active part in the

The same way in St. Charles Mother was active in women activities + Dad became a deacon, So we have alway way been Baptist since their coming to Ohio.
I have no idea where you got your information,
I ~~I~~ shall save your letter in regard to back ground of my Parent religion.

I am going to listen to Grove
Robert Schuller from Garden land)- Cal. He believe in postive thinking. it nearly time
7.30 AM. and about 10 AM a friend of mine is coming to bring me a gift on her way to Church + I have one for her,,
I just cant seem to get a pen that write hardier, my writ still bothers me ← when I try to write.

I am glad you folks will have your family home for Christmas
I know forgit the wonderfull times we all had having Christmas with our parents.
Oh are we having rain & some flooding in the northern part of State.
about noon rain let up so I hurried and got car out and went to market had not been all wk on account rain.
I just got home & put car in garage & what a down pour!
So you see I know very little about my parents religion in England,
I guess you say I was born a Baptist & alway stayed a Baptist. But now I am not able to get to Church
Sun AM so get it on T.V.

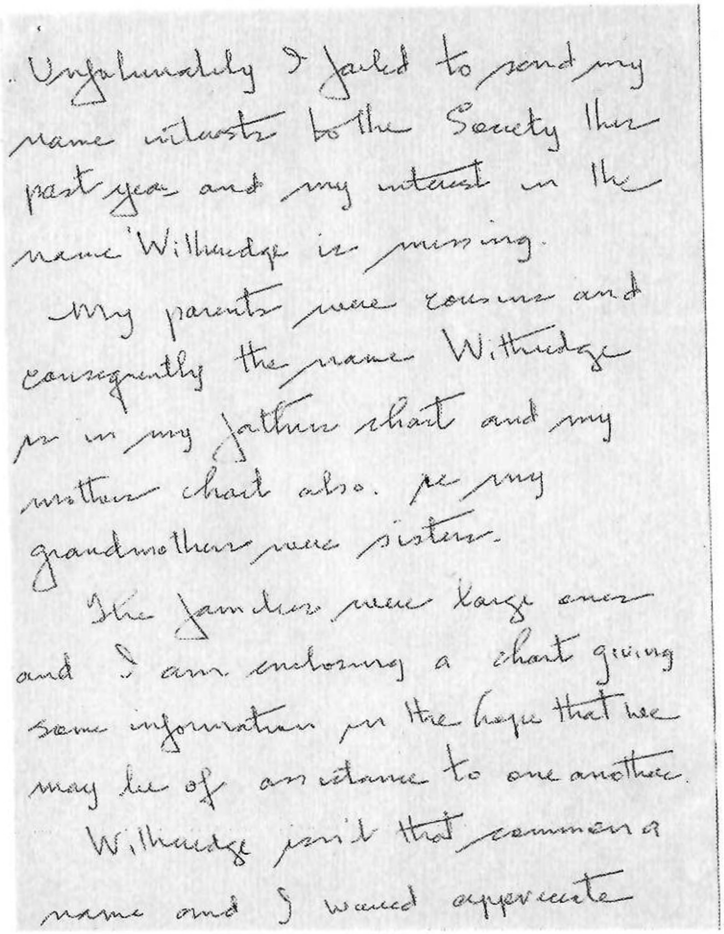
Dear Rev. Witheridge,

I have just been looking through the new copy of 'Directory of Members Interests of the Cornwall Family History Society and noticed the name Witheridge on the membership lists



Unfortunately I failed to send my name interests to the Society this past year and my interest in the name Witheridge is missing.

My parents were cousins and consequently the name Witheridge is in my fathers chart and my mothers chart also. ie my grandmothers were sisters.

The families were large ones and I am enclosing a chart giving some information in the hope that we may be of assistance to one another.

Witheridge isn't that common a name and I would appreciate

Dear Cousin John,

Yes, according to my records you are my sixth cousin twice removed. That is, I am a sixth cousin of your two grandmothers, Martha and Annie. I was greatly fascinated to get your letter and to find a new relative in Canada.

As you can see by the enclosed ancestral charts, I have traced my Witheridge line back to 1555 in Berrynarbor, and I have shown how your great-great grandfather, Thomas Witheridge, ties into this.

Our common ancestry begins with Thomas Witheridge (b. 1650) and Mary Sherman. You descend from their son John, and I descend from another son, William. Of course, I have a lot more information on other children and relatives of these ancestors, but this is all I can send you at this time.

My wife Elizabeth and I have visited Britain twice — in 1976 and 1980 — and have met another of our Witheridge relatives in Combe Martin — Miss Una Parsons. We also met her mother and father. Una's father Herbert is your fourth cousin, and she is your fourth cousin once removed. They descend from Martin Witheridge (b. 1798) who was a brother of Francis, your great-great-great grandfather.

Even more intriguing is the fact that I think in Scotland we met your second cousin once removed — Neil Witheridge — and his nephew, your third cousin, Robin Witheridge, in London.

I have traced their ancestry back to a Jacob Thomas Witheridge, whose marriage certificate gave his birth date as about 1851 and his father's name as Thomas. As I look your material over, I feel sure this is the Jacob, born in Ilfracombe, who was a brother of your great grandfather Robert. The marriage certificate said that Thomas Witheridge worked in the Coast Guard, which would account for the birth of his children in five different coastal towns. (I'm not sure if Pitsdeep is near the ocean, but I suppose so. Do you know what larger place it is near?)

Furthermore, Robin's late father was Dr. Edmund Witheridge, and the doctor's father (Jacob's son) was also named Edmond. Jacob and Robert had a brother Edmund, and they both apparently named sons after this brother. Dr. Edmund Witheridge's wife Jean once told me his grandfather came from Marazion in Cornwall, which, of course, isn't very far from Porthleven. So it all seems to fit together.

I'm going to order Jacob's birth certificate from St. Catherine's house, and this should settle the matter.

One last thing. A few days ago I got the address of a Malcolm Witheridge who lives in Marazion. I plan to write to him soon to find out what he knows about his ancestry. It could be that he also descends from the Porthleven Witheridges, in which case he would also be related to both you and me — as well as to Neil and Robin. Gradually the pieces begin to fit together!

Thank you for writing to me. I look forward to hearing from you again.

Yours sincerely,
David E. Witheridge

Dear Sir:

A distant relative of mine, Jacob Witheridge, was born in North Devon in 1850, presumably in Ilfracombe. I understand that you can provide the information from the record of his birth, either in the form of a birth certificate or in some other form.

Although I do not know the cost of providing such information, I am enclosing a £5.00 note, hopefully avoiding the time involved in additional correspondence. I am also sending a 22 p. stamp for an airmail reply.

One of my cousins in London sent me a list of entries from the index of births at St. Catherine's House in which the following appears.

1850 - 3rd quarter

Witheridge, Jacob Barnstaple X 42

I trust this is sufficient identification for you to send the information I am looking for. At the same time please tell me the proper procedures for securing birth, marriage, and death certificates from your office. Thank you for your kind assistance. Yours sincerely, David E. Witheridge

Mr. Malcolm Witheridge
"Penjona"
Plain-an-Gwarry
Marazion, Penzance
Cornwall, England

Dear Mr. Witheridge:

I know you have heard through Peter King that I am interested in corresponding with you about your Witheridge ancestry and mine. For many years I have been working on genealogy, both my own and my wife's, and I have traced my Witheridge line back to 1555 in Berrynarbor, Devon.

In the process I have accumulated a great deal of information on the Witheridge family and have been in contact with several branches of the family in Britain. In 1976 and in 1980 my wife Elizabeth and I spent several weeks there and met a number of Witheridge descendants, including many whom we know to be relatives.

One of my correspondents was a Dr. Edmund Witheridge of Stony Stratford, Bucks. He died before we went to England, but we met his wife Jean, and she told us his family had come from Marazion. I searched that parish register at the Cornwall Record Office in Truro, but didn't find any Witheridges during the proper time period.

Later I traced that line back to a Jacob Thomas Witheridge and found from his marriage certificate that his father was Thomas, who worked for the Coast Guard. So I assumed that he may have been in Marazion with the Coast Guard, but that none of his children were baptized there.

This week I got a letter from a John James, a Witheridge descendant who lives in Canada. I rather quickly identified him as my sixth cousin twice removed. All the children of his great grandparents, Robert Witheridge and Elizabeth Kitchen, were born in Porthleven, Cornwall, and now I believe they are related to Dr. Edmund Witheridge's family.

John James's great grandfather Robert had a brother Jacob and another brother Edmund, and their father's name was Thomas. The children of Thomas were born in widely separated coastal cities in southwest England, which makes it sound like a Coast Guard family. When I get Jacob's birth certificate, which I'll be ordering soon, I'll know for sure if we're all related.

Now I'm hoping that you'll be able to tell me about your own Witheridge ancestry. Please give me all the information you can, and I'll try to tie it in to my records. Did your family by any chance come from the Witheridges in Porthleven? If so, I feel sure that you and I are distant cousins.

Just a bit about myself and my family. I grew up in Saginaw, Michigan, and began as a heating and ventilating engineer, graduating from the University of Michigan. After designing heating and ventilating systems for four years with my father in Saginaw, I decided to enter the ministry (Baptist) and graduated from a seminary in Rochester, New York. Then I got a master's degree at the University of Chicago Divinity School, during which time I also served as assistant minister of a church in Chicago. After a few years as minister of a church in a small town in Illinois, I came to Minneapolis and served 29 years as executive director of the Greater Minneapolis Council of Churches until my retirement two years ago.

My wife is a former kindergarten teacher who more recently has been the author of seven books for children and young people. We have two grown sons: James, who works in a store in Minneapolis and lives in an apartment about four blocks from us; and Thomas, who is a psychiatric social worker in Chicago and is working on a Ph.D. at Northwestern University. Tom will be married on June 5th. I'll conduct the ceremony, and Jim will be his "best man."

I look forward to hearing from you and trying to fit your ancestry into my records.

Yours sincerely,
David E. Witheridge

Dear Rev. Witheridge,

I enjoyed your talk and pictures at the English Interest Group last Saturday. I told you a little about our family history. Most of my information on the early Norman family comes from a book published in 1976, by William E. Norman, titled- NORMAN GENEALOGY. I helped a little with this book in that I helped get the material ~~for~~ about the Minnesota branch of the family.

A paragraph on the family prior to their journey to Canada in 1833 reads thus:

> "George Norman and Joan Leigh were married and settled on a farm at Quarme for nine years and where four children were born to them - George, Robert, John (who died while young). Maria and Eliza. When Eliza was six weeks old, the family moved to Witheridge (Exton?) and here remained on a fine large farm of 200 acres for 14 years. The old farmhouse was large, having been the residence of a land owner. The rooms were large and the parlour boasted a wooden floor, the only one downstairs in the country around. The hall, dining-room and kitchen, pantry and dairy had stone floors. Each room contained a fireplace and the large bedrooms upstairs had fireplaces. At the back was another building having a kitchen downstairs and bedrooms upstairs where the servants, 4 men and 3 women, had their rooms. Eighteen cows were kept and butter and cheese made every day. Small beer was made every two weeks. This was not intoxicating and was used as a drink at meals as we use tea. Hogsheads of cider were made each year, there being a cider mill on the place."

Exton is 1 [illegible] from Witheridge + 2½ [illegible] from Combe Martin

Our son, Jim, had been there severals before us, and met the family so we stayed at the home They had a B & B, of Mr. and Mrs. David Norman at Cupworthy Farm near Wheddon Cross. Mrs. Norman was kind enought to drive us around and show us the country. She took us to the church at Winsford--as that was supposed to be the family church. From there we went to Witheridge Farm. Neither my husband or I can remember just where it was from the church, but it couldn't have been very far. We would guess 10 or 15 miles. I am telling you these names in case you have a map that would give you some idea of where we were.

To get to the farmyard, we drove down a narrow lane into the yard. The house was a two-story stone building. The lady who lived there said it was about 300 years old. The walls were 18 to 20 ~~feet~~ inches thick at the bottom, and about 8 inches at the top. She was sure it had originially been a thatched roof. None of the doorways were square, but were all round at the top. The stone floors were large stones ~~set/////~~ of slate color and set into sort of a cement. The upstairs doorways were only about 5 feet high so you really had to stoop to enter them. The front door was made of slabs of wood and was about 4 inches thick. The big iron straps and the bolts in those iron pieces were very obviously hand-made.

I hope this is of interest to you. I am wondering if the original owners of the Farm our family lived on were named Witheridge. I also wonder when farms were given names.

Sincerely,

Beth Norman

Dear Mrs. Norman,

Thank you for your interesting letter about the Witheridge Farm in Somerset where your husband's ancestors lived many years ago. That must have been quite a thrill to visit there and to see other places in that area.

I certainly want to see a copy of the 1976 book, Norman Genealogy, by William E. Norman. Who was the publisher? Do you know if there is a copy at the Minnesota Historical Society in St. Paul or in some other nearby library? I think I told you that one of my Witheridge ancestors, John Witheridge, married a Jane Norman in 1617. That was in Berrynarbor, Devon, which is less than 25 miles from Exton, where your Witheridge Farm was located. In fact, Jane Norman's father was a George Norman.

I have a good large-scale map that shows all the towns you mentioned: Exton, Quarme (that is, N. Quarme and S. Quarme), Wheddon Cross, and Winsford.

Some day I hope to check the parish registers of this vicinity and try to locate any Witheridges who might have lived there.

In the meantime, I hope to find a copy of William Norman's book and see if I can discover any connection with my own Norman ancestry.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Rev. Witheridge,

You can get the Norman Genealogy by writing to the author, William E. Norman, 6157 Westwood Terrace, Norfolk, Virginia 23508. They were $15.00. Also it wouldn't hurt to memtion your names, as he has quite a bit more info than he had at the time he published his book, I understand.

It is interesting that you have a George Norman. That was our ancestors' name--also his father, and his son. Jane Norman is also quite common back then. I think you would find the book very interest~~s~~ing. I have no idea as to whether it is in any libraries in the Cities or not.

If you write to him, you could also mention that you have talked to me, if you wish.

Sincerely yours,

Beth Norman

D.F.H.S. No. 1177

Dear Mr. Witheridge,

Having been to the Exeter Records Office for Devon + Cornwall looking for my Gregory family we found a marriage between John Gregorie + Katherine Witheridge 8.1.1627 at Littleham (North Devon). Time was running out by then so we weren't able to find out more than that there were Witheridges going back to 1543.

As this is yet another name to add to my family tree I looked in the Devon Family History book + found that you were interested in all Witheridges. Obviously this isn't very much that I have told you, but we shall no doubt be visiting Exeter again + Witheridge will be added to our list of names for research.

If you feel this is of any interest to you I'll keep you informed with anything else I find.

Yours Sincerely

Barbara Popplestone (Mrs).

Dear Mrs. Popplestone,

Thank you for your letter with the information about the marriage of John Gregorie and Katherine Witheridge in Littleham in January, 1627. It so happens that I had known about Witheridges in Littleham, though I have not yet connected them up with my family, which came from Berrynarbor and Combe Martin.

You say that this is another name to add to your family tree. Is this John Gregorie of Littleham an ancestor of yours, or just a possible relative at this point?

Last year through the local Mormon branch library I used a microfilm of the Littleham Parish Register looking for Witheridges and Causeys. I took down a lot of data but haven't been able to fit it into my records yet. I thought Littleham was the place of origin of the William Witheridge and Fanny Causey who were ancestors of the Witheridges we know in Albury Heath, Surrey, whose origins we are trying to trace.

However, in the Bideford census of 1851 I happened onto the entry of that family and find that this William Witheridge was born in North Tauton about 1797 and Fanny Causey was born in Landcross about 1797. When you are next in Exeter, I'd be very grateful if you could check the parish registers of North Tauton (Tawton?) and Landcross and see if these births show up.

I'd certainly appreciate anything further you find on the family relationships of John Gregorie and Katherine Witheridge in Fittleham.

Thank you again for writing. I hope to hear from you in the future.

Yours sincerely,

David E. Witheridge

Dear Mr. Witheridge.

Thank you for your letter, we decided to go to Exeter today to do some more research before we go off for a few days to York.

You ask if John Gregorie who married Katherine Witheridge is an ancestor of mine. Yes, he is in direct line through my father Henry Gregory, + is my 8th great grand father. ✓ Five came from Littleham + must have worked on the land - the next four were mariners - (3 from Appledore + 1 from Bristol - my grandfather), so I really feel I have my roots in Devon!

I found a William Witheridge son of John ✓ baptised 7. Feb 1799 at North Tawton, but no others. Also I found in Landcross ✓ Mary d. of John + Elizabeth Causey bap 27. Apr. 1792, Elizabeth ✓ same parents b. 9. Nov 1794. ✓ Ann, same parents b. 19 Mar 1797 John, s. b. 31. Oct 1802 (same parents)

Could Ann be Fanny do you think? Often names + ages change over the years don't they?

You are correct - it is TAWTON. in fact that is another name I'm looking for. because the Appledore Gregorys seemed to marry Tawtons, but so far I've not discovered them before 1794 in Appledore.

I found several marriages of Witheridges in Littleham, but not the baptism of Katherine I expect you have these but just in case you haven't here they are.

✓ 25 Nov 1543 William Witheridge + Joan Pogiory? servant of Richard Witheridge ✓ 22 Nov 1550 William W. the elder + Margaret Walter.
✓ 5 Oct 1551 .. .. the younger + Ebutt? Myell
✓ 10 Feb 1562 .. .. " .. + Jone Saunders
✓ 9 Nov 1562 .. .. the elder + Elizabeth Snowe
2 Sept 1562 .. .. no name given for wife

Not having time to check the burials I can only hope that W. the younger + W. the elder were widowers at the

p. 2 of 4

p. 3 of 4

✓ 15 June 1568 William W the elder + Emett Marcomb
✓ 7 May 1607 Giles " + Emett Locke
✓ 27 Nov 1616 John ------ + Garthrud ? Palmer
✓ 31 Jan 1791 John " + Ann Lee

As you can imagine it's rather hard to be sure of some of the names with some of the old documents

These were the following old ones which may be ✓ of interest to you. William Tawton m. Sara Causey Littleham 19. June 1689
✓ Henry s of Henry (occupation Butcher) + Elizabeth Causey b 27.1.1841. this was North Tawton

✓ Elizabeth d of George (Butcher) + Katherine Causey 28 Apr 1841 also N. Tawton

✓ Elizabeth d of Thomas + Hanah Causey (Farmer) 2 June 1841 this was a place called TOSSELS which I haven't yet found, but it came in the Northam Parish.

I hope this will be of some help to you - I seem to have so many names I find ~~[illegible]~~ it hard [redacted] to get my thoughts clear - as I've just proved!

Whether or not my Witheridge is yours also remains to be seen, but I'll continue looking

Yours sincerely

Dear David.

I was so excited and pleased to receive your letter and data regarding our common ancestors. I expect that this is the blessing in searching a name which is somewhat unusual. Your research must have taken years of work.

I started researching my family as a result of a visit to England in 1966. I then had two aunts living in Porthleven (since deceased) and they introduced me to family who I never knew existed. I have enjoyed the satisfaction it brings although I must admit my enthusiasm is like the tide (high & low).

The last of mother family died in 1980 and I went home (home even if I wasn't born there) with mother to look after funeral arrangements. A sad but heartwarming occasion in that I met with so much kindness by many distant relatives. We stayed with a distant Witheridge relative.

I have enclosed a chart which I have put together drawing on your information and mine. You noted that you planned to send for Jacob's birth certificate. If I can find my copy I will send it along.

Today (Sun) after church my wife Pat and myself visited my mother and interestingly she recalled Jacob staying with her family twice when she was a girl. The last visit he made was just after mother married and at that time she recalls her mother carrying Stanley (my brother) down at the quay and meeting him there. I expect he was about seventy at the time A fine gentleman he was & greatly respected. During our visit to Porthleven in 1980 which I referred to, we brought home several articles from the family home and one was a small chest which Jacob had made and given to mothers mother. I find this all fascinating. Mother is less interested and my brother who lives with mother couldn't care less.

I have had little success in tracing my great grandfather birth at Pitsdeep. It is very near Boldre (a suburb I expect). Robert Witheridge died at sea (fisherman) and I have never been able to tie this down. He left a large family. Mother commented today how simple their lives were when she was a girl. I expect they knew virtually nothing of the world outside their village and the surrounding few miles.

Do you have an address for Jacob's family. His home when she was a girl was London which you referred to.

London

I was pleased to note your church background. I wondered if there would ever be a 'ministerial connection' (a good phrase). Pat and I are very active in our church. We have both been Elders for years and this year Pat is chairlady of the Official Board. My main interest as an Elder is the Worship Committee. You may find it interesting that at today's Service the preacher was the Canadian Minister for External affairs. He was speaking to a United Nations meeting here in Vancouver + while in Van. we enjoyed having him speak to us. He is a dedicated Catholic layman and speaks to congregations as he is able. He spoke on 'A Christian Perspective on International affairs.' The sermon was interrupted by a woman concerned by the conditions in Salvador + Chile. The organist overrode her impromptu interruptions and after she was ushered out he continued. He has had a difficult time during her visit in Van as many feel he isn't taking a strong enough position regarding the opressive regimes in these countries. The T.V people were out but not allowed ~~to~~ into the church. His sermon was a very fine one.

Well I must close now but once again many thanks for your kindness and I look forward to hearing from you again

Sincerely

John

Dear John, James

Your letter of March 26 arrived at a very busy time, and it was put aside for later response, but it got lost under a pile of other unfinished business. Now we are preparing for a 3-week trip east, so I can't write more than a brief reply.

The family chart you drew and sent me is very attractive, and it contains some information I didn't have. Thank you very much. I think I delayed answering your letter because I knew I should Xerox quite a few sheets of family information for you. But so far I just haven't found the time. Now that will have to wait until we return from our trip.

When I got the birth certificate of Jacob Wetheridge, it confirmed the fact that he definitely was born in Ilfracombe and was the son of Thomas Wetheridge and Jane Thomas. So you are not only my sixth cousin twice removed, but you are also Neil Wetheridge's second cousin once removed and Robin's third cousin.

You asked for the address of Jacob's family. The only one whose address I have is Neil. He teaches in a boys school in Aberdeen Scotland, but he lives about fifteen miles away in the old family home in Stonehaven. We met him briefly one afternoon when we were touring Britain in 1980. Neil is unmarried. His address is 31 Victoria St., Stonehaven, Grampian, Scotland.

By the way, Mrs Parsons' address is Marine Cottage, Combe Martin, Devon EX34 0DH.

We were greatly interested in your description of your church activities, and we were pleased to hear how active both you and Pat are. Your church bulletin was very impressive.

As I said, I can't take time to write more now, but I hope to send you more information later.

Yours sincerely,
David + Elizabeth

Dear David

Just a quick note to thank you for your note and — ask for a favour. It's only coincidence that you can help.

I have been given the responsibility of arranging for our Bulletin supply at church. We usually use the type I sent you but for Advent, Lent & Xmas we use something different. Some, supplied through various sources, leave something to be desired artistically. The ones we find most acceptable are by Sacred Design Assoc.

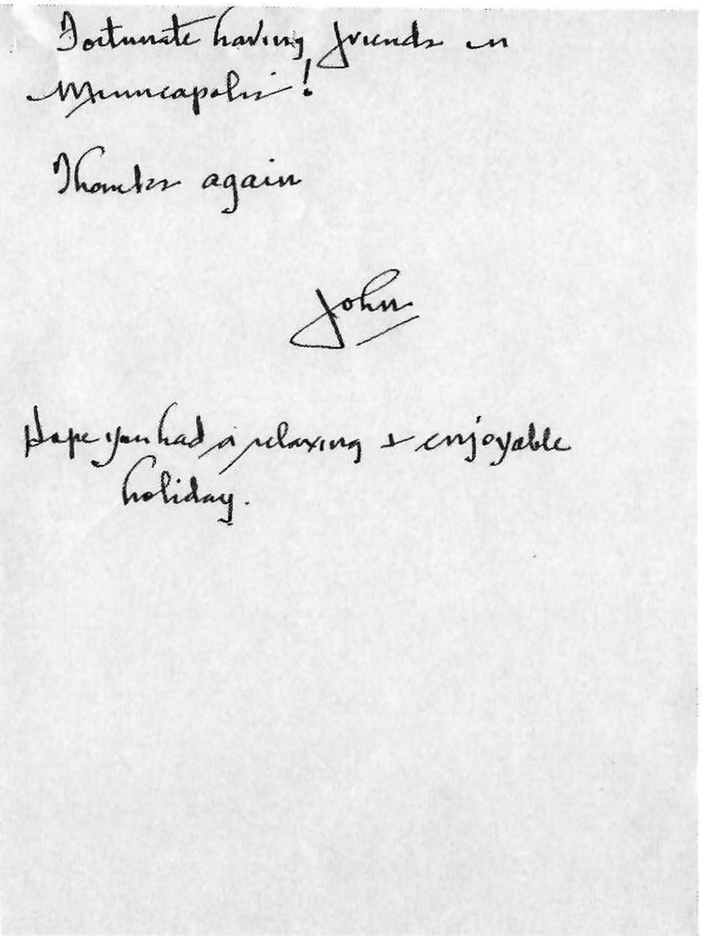
840 Colorado Avenue
S. Minneapolis.

They have now changed their name — added another name to Sacred Design.

I wrote them a second time after finding the name & address change at our Public Library but have had no reply. I've misplaced the new address & name but thought while I think of it I would drop you a note and ask you to give them a phone call and ask them to send me a brochure showing current designs. I'm sure you can find them in the phone book.

Their designs are far better than most. Our family made a large cloth Banner 3'x6' based on one and it was most impressive. It still hangs in church.

Many thanks for your help. This is but a hurried note but I thought I'd get it off while I was inspired. Inspiration is the word —



Fortunate having friends in Minneapolis!

Thanks again

John

Hope you had a relaxing & enjoyable holiday.

Dear Barbara: Popplestone

The reason you haven't heard from me before this, is that my wife Elizabeth and I were on a 3½-week trip east as far as New England. We had a marvelous time, including visiting relatives and finding a lot of new genealogical information--mostly about Elizabeth's lines that go way back to early Colonial days.

On our return home we found a great deal to do to get back to normal, and now I am working on all the genealogical material we amassed, as well as letters and information, like yours, that came in the mail during our absence.

I was delighted to get your letter. Although it doesn't tie your Witheridge ancestry and mine together, it provided me with information about the William Witheridge and Fanny Cawsey I am working on. And now I find that in return I can identify the family connection of your Katherine Witheridge. (But more of that later) As you see, I am enclosing family group sheets for the families involved.

First, regarding your help to me: The William Witheridge whose baptism you found in North Tawton is certainly the one I was looking for--the ancestor of George and Harry Witheridge of Surrey. You can see how it fits into the enclosed sheet. Now we'll have to determine who his father, John, was and how he happened to have his child baptized in North Tawton, since you could find no other Witheridges there.

I'm still wondering if this is the same John who earlier married Ann Evans and had a son William (bapt. Nov. 6, 1791, in Littleham). Ann was buried Mar. 10, 1793, in Littleham. Did William die as a child, after which John married again and had another son William? Why did this William end up in Northam marrying Fanny Cawsey, who for some reason was baptized in Littleham, though she was born in Landcross? What were the connections between Littleham, Landcross, Northam, and North Tawton in these two families?

On the other hand, the John Witheridge who had a son William in North Tawton may have come from an entirely different part of Devon than the Bideford-Northam-Littleham area, so we'll just have to keep looking.

Now, regarding Fanny Cawsey: The John and Elizabeth Cawsey whose children you found baptized in Landcross are definitely the parents of Fanny, as the date of her baptism fits right into the others. Although Fanny was born in Landcross (as the 1851 Census of Bideford said) like her sisters and brother, she, for some reason, was baptised in Littleham. Perhaps there was no clergyman in Landcross at the time. Later, Fanny moved to Northam with her family, where she met and married William Witheridge. Thank you for sending me all this information.

Now to your Katherine Witheridge, who married John Gregorie in 1627. I am happy to report that I have found her family connections as shown on the enclosed sheets.

Before our trip, I didn't have time to go over all my Witheridge data in Littleham. When we got back, I started putting it all together, and I found that some time last year I had recorded the baptism of Katherine in 1591, along with many other Witheridge entries in Littleham.

I'm wondering why the baptism of Katherine didn't show up in the records you saw. What I used was a Latter Day Saints (Mormon) microfilm of a printed transcript of the Littleham Parish Register, 1538-1875. Perhaps the Devon Record Office didn't have a copy of the Parish Register, and what you used was the Bishop's Transcript.

For awhile I was bothered by the names of Tybot Witheridge and Tyball Witheridge, though I assumed they must be the same person. Then I looked in a dictionary and found the masculine name Tybalt, so I know the others were just variant spellings of that.

So now we have your Witheridge ancestry back to William the younger. I have a similar group of family sheets going back to William the elder, but the dates are so early--before the start of the parish register--that it will be difficult to tie them together.

Before I close, I'll tell you a little about our family. My wife and I were both born in Michigan, and I started out as a heating and ventilating engineer before deciding to become a minister. I attended seminary in Rochester, N.Y., then became an assistant minister in a Baptist church on the campus of the University of Chicago while I was doing graduate work there. After a few years as minister of a church in an Illinois town, I became the executive director of the Greater Minneapolis Council of Churches, which position I held for nearly thirty years before retiring over two years ago.

Elizabeth was a kindergarten teacher before we were married, and more recently she has been the author of seven books for children and young people. We have two sons: Jim, 35, who lives in Minneapolis andis unmarried; and Tom, 34, who lives in Chicago and was just married in June.

Elizabeth and I have had two wonderful trips to England, Scotland, and Wales--one for nearly three months in 1976, and the other for two months in 1980. We met many lovely friends and relatives there, and now we maintain quite an active correspondence with many of them. My father was born in Wales and came to this country as a child with his parents. They were English, however, as his father's family was from Devon and his mother's from Cornwall. Elizabeth's ancestors all came to America in Colonial days, so we have located only one branch of her family in England--the Plumes in Essex. Fortunately, however, we have found and visited three houses where her ancestors once lived, and a library in Maldon that was founded and endowed in 1704 by one of her distant relatives, Dr. Thomas Plume.

Once again, let me thank you for writing in the first place and for your genealogical assistance. Best wishes to you in your continued searching.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Bill, Roberts

There's something you could do for me in connection with my father's birthplace. I think I mentioned to you that he always said he was born in Porth, but the birth certificate I got from Somerset House some years ago gave his birthplace as "Eirw Road, Llantrisaint, Ystradyfodwg, U.S.D."

Could you call some government office and find out if there was or is an Eirw Road in Porth, as well as in Llantrisaint, and whether anyone in Porth would have given Llantrisaint as part of his address?

There's no hurry, of course, but some day I'd like to have this matter clarified, so that my records will be correct - Thanks!

Dave

Dear David,

I have at long last managed to get some details about EIRW ROAD! After several false starts I got to the Glamorgan Record Office at Cardiff and I found the staff there very helpful. The following points will I think be of interest to you. ——.

Firstly YSTRADYFODWG is the name of an old parish area which included the Rhondda valley

The following details are taken from KELLY'S DIRECTORY OF SOUTH WALES for the year 1914.

1. Ystryfodwg, Llandaff and Llantrisaint were combined for the then Joint Burial Committee.
2. CYMMER and PORTH were linked on 2nd February 1894 to form a new ecclesiastical parish from Llantrisaint and the Rhondda.
3. Several people and businesses are listed with addresses in EIRW ROAD, BRITANNIA in 1914. It would appear that Britannia was a very small district of Porth (only a few streets are mentioned). The Britannia Post Office in Eirw Road is said to be half a mile from the main post office at Porth. The Ynyshir and Wattstown Cooperative Society Ltd occupied numbers 53 and 54 Eirw Road and these are the highest numbers mentioned in the entries

So it would appear that the copy of the Birth Certificate is correct (if a little cryptic) and supports your father's claim to have been born in Porth.

He was presumably born in EIRW ROAD, BRITANNIA, PORTH and the birth was registered at LLANTRISAINT OR LLANTRISSAINT (OR as it is now spelt LLANTRISANT.) as taking place in the YSTRADYFODWG, URBAN SANITARY DISTRICT.

It seems more than likely that the Registrar of Births and Deaths would have his office at Llantrisaint in the 1880's — it's only six miles from Porth to Llantrisant.

Sincerely,
Bill

P.S. Tom and Virginia certainly look a happy couple

Dear David,

How kind of you to send such a lot of information, thank you very much. I agree it would be hard to prove a relationship that far back. but Littleham + Landcross + Northam are all very close. as you may already know.

About the fact that Fanny was baptised at Littleham, at the moment, it, Landcross, Monkleigh, + Weare Giffard are all four covered by one vicar, so that may have always been as you thought.

We had a trip to Littleham some weeks ago just for the day + I took some photos. I am enclosing copies of them for you just in case you've not been there. If you have you'll know it's difficult to get a good view of this beautiful church.

We shall no doubt be going to Exeter again sometime this year + will look out for John Witheridge. I am still trying to find where some of my Tawstons + Sloley's originated.

Whilst looking in the 1860 Lloyds Register to-day I found the following:—
- Causey, master of Mary (Brigantine) built in Bideford 1832 + she was a Bideford coaster.

Unfortunately there was no initial or other name, but I thought you might know of a Causey who was a mariner, + Bideford is in your area. Also did you know there is a place called Witheridge about 22 miles from Bideford? My husband, Reg stayed there many years ago.

It was interesting to read of your family + I am curious to know where in Wales your father was born. I too have roots in Wales, possibly Carmarthen on my mother's side, + Reg's family come from South Devon around Kingsbridge.

Reg retired 3 yrs ago when he was 57, the opportunity arose + he felt it could be the right thing to do + this has proved correct. We both worked at W.D.+H.O. Wills the cigarette people, Reg was a buyer for packaging + I was in the wages office until I left 28 yrs ago. We have one son Richard who is 27 + he lives in Scotland. I don't know if you got to the North coast to Thurso, (near John O'Groats) but that is where he has his home. He is getting married next July + we have the problem of sorting out the best way to get every one there. We have been back a week now from our last visit + still aren't sure of the easiest route.

On our way back (by road) this time we got talking to two Americans who came from Los ~~Angeles~~ Angeles. They asked if we would take a photo of them (father + son) together + offered to do the same for us.

I will let you know if we turn up anything else of interest to you, thank you very much once more, I was so pleased to have your letter + notes.

Yours sincerely.
Barbara. (Popplestone)

P.S. I have also enclosed a snap of an old barn at Littleham. In the 1851 census return a farm called Furlong at Littleham employed a William Gregory of Northam. I made a note of this + when we went to Littleham found a farm house called East Furlong, but the barn looked very old to me + I felt sure must have been there when my Gregory's lived there in the 1700's. The house was old but not like the barn. I had to take it from the car as it was difficult to stop, but it gives you some idea of the

Dear Sir,

I have recently joined the Devon FHS. and they have notified me that you are researching Witheridge, is this the place or the surname?.

My family came from Witheridge and I have managed to trace them back to Robert Thomas born 1752, I have also been trying to discover the local history of the village. but without much success, If you have been tracing the history of the village I would appreciate any help you may be able to offer.

Yours Faithfully

Dear Miss Thomas,

I appreciated receiving your letter, and I wish I could be of more help to you than I can be. My interest is in the surname Witheridge, rather than the Town, and I keep track of every Witheridge I can find, any place, any time!

When I first began my research, I wrote to the vicar or rector at Witheridge, and he checked the registers but couldn't find any Witheridge baptized, married, or buried there since the start of the registers. All the books say our name comes from the place name, but obviously all the Witheridges left Witheridge before the registers began.

If, in your study of the early history of Witheridge, you come across any persons by that name, I'd be very happy to hear from you.

Have you seen the Devon Lay Subsidy Rolls, 1524-7, Ed. by T. L. Stoate, 1979? By that time there were already Witheridges in a half dozen parishes in Devon, but none in the parish of Witheridge. There were Thomases in over 30 parishes of Devon at that time, one of whom, John Thomas, lived in Witheridge.

Good Luck in your further search for your earlier Thomas ancestors!

Yours sincerely,
David E. Witheridge

Dear Sir:

The marriage of George Witheridge and Fanny Parkhurst is listed in the Combe Martin Parish Register as February 19, 1860. Please send me a copy of their marriage certificate.

In the 1861 Census of Combe Martin they have two sons: William, aged 4, and John, aged 7 mos. Please send me their birth certificates.

I'm assuming that William may be the one indexed at St. Catherine's House as Barnstaple 5b 443 in the 4th Quarter of 1856. He may have been George's son by a previous marriage. However, he may have been the illegitimate son of Fanny and registered under the name of William Parkhurst.

I do not have the Witheridge birth records of St. Catherine's House for 1861, but I assume John's birth will be easy to locate.

Enclosed is £15.00 to pay for the certificates and airmail postage. If there is any balance, you may remit in British stamps, which I use for return postage from England.

Yours sincerely,

David E. Witheridge

Dear Miss June Thomas:

I was greatly intrigued by the notation after your name in the July, 1983, issue of The Devon Family Historian indicating that your interest was "Seeking Thomas Witheridge".

For many years I have been tracing my father's family, and I have the record back to Combe Martin and from there to Berrynarbor to a Thomas Witheridge, baptized Feb. 12, 1554/5.

I have been in touch with another Witheridge descendant in England, Mrs Roy Cook, 18 Hawkhurst Way, West Wickham, Kent BR4 9PF, whose mother's maiden name was Witheridge. In fact my wife Elizabeth and I stayed with Mrs. Cook (Kim) and her family several days in 1976 and again in 1980 when we visited England. Her Witheridge family comes from Wembury in the far south of Devon, and we haven't figured out the connection between our two branches.

Between the two of us we have been trying to pull together the information on all the Witheridges, which is a massive undertaking. I may have more on the Witheridges from North Devon, but she certainly has more than I do on the Witheridges from South Devon.

I am looking forward to hearing from you and learning all you know about your Witheridge connection. From there it may be possible to tie our two lines together, at least some day in the future. I know Mrs Cook would love to hear from you, too, and help in any way she can.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Rev Witheridge,

Thank you for your letter, unfortunately, I cannot be of any assistance to you as I am tracing the Thomas Family from Witheridge and not Thomas Witheridge.

Sorry I cannot be of any help but wish you good 'hunting'

Yours Sincerely

Dear David & Elizabeth,

I hope you are keeping well and enjoying a lovely spring as we are. It's a lovely time of the year. The garden gets ahead of me a little bit however.

I've just had a note from an acquaintance in S. Australia who, during some research in the archives in Adelaide, came across the following entry.

Number 5294 Embarkation #3019
Shipping Agent Samuel Gilbert Date 24/6/1839.
Emma Witheridge 19 years.
Occupation House Servant.
Address 27 Love St
Plymouth.

I thought this information might be of interest to you – "the Witheridge Expert". It will be interesting to know if you can fit it in.

Pat & I are as busy as ever. Giving some thought at present to the B.C. Conference of the United Church which is being held in our church this year. Pat is busy with Committee work in connection with it.

v/ Her immediate comment after some meetings is 'Ministers are a strange breed (no reflection — present company excepted!) I think she is struck with the varying degrees of expertise, skills, gifts intellect etc. She took the committee work as a part of being chairlady of our Official Board.

We have been assigned our various duties with respect to the World Council of Churches meetings at the University this summer. We have volunteered as receptionists and hosting. We are acting in the receptionist-tent and hosting a delegate from Australia. A young man of 22. We don't have to provide accomodation, only show him around, meet the plane and generally be helpful. We will offer accomodation if he wishes to stay for a few days after the meetings. All of the delegates stay at UBC. We are also singing in the choir at the opening Service.

I mentioned to our three girls, 20, 21, 22, with a sly grin that a good looking Australian may be visiting — No response? They aren't generally in to the 'church type' whatever that means. I told them he might be a 'Greek God' type but still no response.

3/ In connection with my interest in worship I subscribe to 'Worship' which was originally a Lutheran publication but now is, I believe a joint Lutheran and R.C. publication. I recently wrote the editor commending her on one of her articles and commented that there are few Worship Conferences in the west. She wrote back with information on a large conference in Minneapolis this summer. Are you familiar with it and do you plan to attend. I'm not sure of your denomination & perhaps you aren't too interested in the Liturgical Movement. There are excellent speakers. Martin Marty for one.

St. AW where we attend has a somewhat formal Service but not what I would call extremely liturgical. Some confuse formality with liturgical.

I prepared a service for Maundy Thursday this year (Communion Service) and included 'The Way of the Cross' by Clarence Enzler. Do you know it. It's a lovely set of readings and an extremely sensitive work. I only used ten of the fourteen sections. and interpolated a congregational response following each section. We extinguished a candle ~~of~~ following each reading ending with the Christ candle.

Our new organist arranged the music. — no organ only one cello. even for the one hymn. The cellist played a Bach Partita. It added much to the Service and complimented it well. The Way of the Cross would perhaps have been more suitable for Good Friday but it addressed itself well to the season.

How I do rattle on when wound up but then how often does one find a ministerial / genealogical / distant relation / correspondent.

We have just booked for a cruise in the Mediterranean in late September. — a week in London to begin with. We travel from Athens to Lisbon with various stops along the way. How fortunate we are.

I'll close now. Drop a line if you have a minute. Hope the Australian info is of interest.

On the east wall of St Andrew's-Wesley there looks down on worshipers a huge compellingly beautiful window of Christ. Each piece in the window is different, ordered to contribute a certain colour, shape or background to the whole design.

So with each of us. We are to react to the light of God's grace so as to reflect Christ, to reflect him not only to the world to the sight of God himself.

†Wellsprings

There are ordinary periods of joy and consolation together with periods of darkness and boredom.

There are also flashes of insight or illumination when one comes to understand some words of scripture or of revelation, times of momentous change when conversion is likely to occur. There are crossroads when the human psyche demands conversion in it's process of growth.

What about breakdown?

What about counter conversion?

One aspect of breakdown is simply refusal to grow. the refusal to allow the true personality to emerge, the refusal to be born.

To some extent this is the fate of us all; we shrink from the suffering entailed in conversion; we run away from the hound of heaven and so we are never fully born; we never realize our full potential.

Dear Mr. White:

I see from The Devon Family Historian that you are in charge of the "strays" entries that have been reported from other counties.

For some years I have been trying to locate and tie together all the Witheridges, as they all appear to have originated in Devon.

I should be very grateful if you would send me the information on any stray Witheridges (or Wetheridges) that may appear in your file. Thank you very much for your assistance.

Yours sincerely,

David E. Witheridge

Dear Member,

I thank you for your enquiry. of 10th. February, received today

I have pleasure in offering you the following from the index.

1851. CENSUS : COWBRIDGE HILL, MALMESBURY, WILTSHIRE.
RICHARD WITHYBRIDGE, MARRIED, AGE 50, A SERVANT, born STOURCROSSE.
No. COUNTY OF BIRTH GIVEN. THERE IS NO READILY IDENTIFIABLE STOURCROSSE IN ENGLAND THOUGH THERE ARE SEVERAL PLACE NAMES THROUGHOUT ENGLAND ASSOCIATED WITH THE RIVER STOUR but STARCROSS a PARISH NEAR DAWLISH, DEVON SEEMS A VERY REASONABLE POSSIBILITY

~~I regret there is nothing in the index to date.~~

WITHYBRIDGE/WITHERIDGE is a not unlikely dialect alliteration. my search has included a seperate index of COAST GUARDS who are DEVON "STRAYS"

Yours sincerely,

C. White.

Dear Mrs. Gubb:

You may remember that many years ago I wrote to your sister Susannah Argust trying to find out more about our Witheridge family background. At that time she said she sent my letter on to you for more information. I am a grandson of your Uncle William Witheridge, who married Mary Jane Allen.

The reason I am writing to you now is that my wife Elizabeth and I are coming to Britain this summer, and we certainly hope we can visit you. I have been the Executive Director of the Greater Minneapolis Council of Churches for twenty-five years, and I've been granted a 12-week study leave. I'll be spending several weeks in university libraries, but for about a month from July 8 to August 7 we'll be renting a car and traveling through England, Scotland, and Wales conferring with the leaders of local councils of churches. We also hope to meet as many relatives as possible.

I believe we could be in Staffordshire and Leicestershire between July 8 and 10, and we hope it will be possible to visit you some day during that period. Of course, we would not expect to stay with you, but would find other accommodations nearby.

Since we want to look up as many relatives as possible, I'd greatly appreciate your giving me the addresses of Gladwyn Adams and her children, especially her daughter Irene and her husband, Rev. Neville Birdsall.

Particularly since we'll be spending some time in Surrey, could you give us the names and addresses of your nieces and nephews, the children of Mary and John Norris? Perhaps some of them are still living near there.

Our address in England after June 16 will be in care of Mrs. Roy Cook, 81 Ash Road, Sutton, Surrey SM3 9LA. She will be able to forward our mail at all times. She is also a Witheridge descendant, but we haven't yet determined just how we are related.

Where do your sons live? If they are not near you, we might be near them on our travels and would like to look them up. We can hardly wait to come to England, and we do hope you'll be home in early July. If not, perhaps we could work it out at some other time.

Your cousin,

David E. Witheridge

Dear Cousin Elizabeth & David,

I am sorry to tell you that my Mother & Father, Lilly & Charlie Gubb have passed away, I am their elder son Kenneth.

My annual summer holiday starts on Friday July 2nd for two weeks ending on the 18th July, but on Friday 9th July we shall be spending a week at Lynmouth Somerset returning home July 17th.

My wife & I will be very pleased to see you both.

Your cousin

Kenneth John Adams Gubb.

Editor's Note

The next three documents (W119, followed by two unnumbered documents) pertain to the Gubb family of Berrynarbor and Combe Martin, Devon, England, and their descendants in South Africa.

As you will see in the third document (a 1984 handwritten letter by DEW and its typed transcription), the Gubbs connected to the Witheridges through the marriage of William Gubb (bapt. 1778) and Mary Witheridge (bapt. 1777). This marriage is shown in the "Pedigree of Witheridge, Of Berry Narbor and Combe Martin in North Devon. [sic] Shewing descent of Gubb Family from the Same"; see document W135(a), folder ~~1.63d.~~ 1.63e.

Dad considered the discovery of the Gubb connection to be a breakthrough in his work, because it expanded his Witheridge focus to a whole new continent. I actually don't know how important his work on the Gubb connection was to the entire body of everyone's work on the Witheridge family. (That's for others to decide, and after all, once he had "found" the Gubbs, he relied on a pedigree compiled by someone else.) But I do know it was important to Dad.

The work summarized in his brief letter to "Harry, Toots, and Robert" must have taken hours of work over a period of weeks, even months — one more example of how damnably time consuming it was to search for ancestors and other relatives before the Internet was born and became routinely used as a genealogical tool.

Because of the semi-legible reproduction quality, I have transcribed DEW's letter on the page immediately following it. Yes, the quality was positively SCARY.

Happy Halloween!

Tom Witheridge

Dear Elizabeth and David,

We were delighted to receive your Christmas greetings, with so much news about yourselves and the family. We hope that Elizabeth's sciatica is less bothersome and that, except for that, you are both fit and well.

Toots, who has quite an eagle eye for spotting bits of information, noticed this obituary notice in our daily newspaper a couple of days ago. A Thomas Witheridge Grubb, who presumably lived in Cape Town. As it was his second "given" name, it might have been his mother's maiden name. Have you any trace of Witheridges in South Africa?

P.T.O. (to save paper)

I think I told you I also am now retired - so all 4 brothers are now pensioners. As Robert, my son, said, of the 4 of us I was the first to go out to work and the last to finish. How lucky I have been to have been able to do that - how fortunate we all have been.

I am really enjoying my retirement. I feel a sense of freedom, and it is a pleasure to do what I want to do, and when I want to do it. The greatest pleasure, however, is to be more at home with Toots, and to do more things together.

I don't think John has officially taken up his position of Curate to the Archbishop yet, but we saw him in the procession with the Arch. on a recent visit to Uganda. Anthony is still in Lisbon. His eldest son, Simon, has just started school at Harrow, the much loved school of Winston Churchill. Either George or I have him home on his Sunday Exeats. Our love to you both and all your family.

Sincerely Yours,
Harry, Toots and Robert.

Dec. 8 1984

Dear Harry, Toots, & Robert,

You must have wondered why you never heard from me after you sent the clipping about the death of the widow of Thomas Witheridge Gubb in South Africa. The truth is, I have had great success in tracking down the family and finding that they are indeed distant relatives who stem back to Combe Martin where my family originated.

Our University of Minnesota Library has many newspapers from all over the world and they had Johannesburg, but not Cape Town. However, they had a book that lists all the public libraries in the world. So I wrote to the library in Cape Town, and they sent me a copy of the death notice there, which gave one of the survivors as Nick Gubb. They also gave me the address of N. Gubb from the telephone directory.

I wrote and got a long reply from Margaret Gubb, widow of Noel Gubb, a ~~nephew~~ cousin of Thomas Witheridge Gubb. It seems that the original Thomas Witheridge Gubb was born in Combe Martin about 1839, the son of William Gubb and Mary Witheridge. There were three Thomas Witheridge Gubbs. The first had a fleet of ships that went between England and South Africa. The second one was a millionaire on three occasions and lost his money each time by extravagance and wild living. The third was the one whose widow died in February.

Margaret Gubb also sent me a pedigree of the Combe Martin Witheridges showing the descent of the Gubb family from them. This also shows how my family ties in. It is interesting that Margaret and her husband still returned to Combe Martin almost every year, and she will be visiting there for three months in 1985.

So, you see, I am very grateful to you for passing on this death notice to me and enabling me to find this new part of our family.

We have had a good year and hope you have had, too. Best wishes to you all for Christmas and the New Year.

Love,
David + Elizabeth

Dear Sirs:

A relative in London, England, sent me the following death notice from a London paper:

"GUBB. - On Feb. 8, 1984, Eileen (Betty), widow of THOMAS WITHERIDGE GUBB. Passed away peacefully in Cape Town. Deeply mourned by all her family."

I should be very grateful if you would look for an obituary of Mrs. Gubb in a Cape Town newspaper and send me a copy.

If surviving relatives are named, could you find the address of one or more for me in your city directory or telephone directory? What I really want to do is to correspond with one of Mrs. Gubb's relatives.

If this information does not appear in an obituary, would you please tell me where to write for civil death records in Cape Town?

Thank you very much for your help. Enclosed is a check for $5.00, which I hope will cover your costs.

Yours sincerely,

David E. Witheridge

Dear Kenneth,

You remember that Elizabeth and I had hoped to visit you on our trip to Britain in 1976, but our dates didn't work out because of your holiday. Perhaps you heard that we did get a chance to meet Irene and Neville Birdsall, as well as Pearline and Sidney Fryer and Jean August.

Now an interesting discovery has turned up. A distant relative of mine in Surrey, Harry Witheridge, sent me a copy of a death notice in the London Daily Telegraph for February 20, 1984:

"GUBB. - On Feb. 8, 1984, Eileen (Betty), widow of THOMAS WITHERIDGE GUBB. Passed away peacefully in Cape Town. Deeply mourned by all her family."

I'm wondering if this is perhaps some relative of yours (and mine). Do you know any Gubb relative of yours who married a Witheridge? These are both North Devon names, so there could be a connection. Could you give me your Gubb ancestry back a few generations into Devon?

I have written to the Cape Town City Library asking if they can identify any surviving relatives through an obituary in a Cape Town newspaper. If so, I'll write to them and see what they know of their ancestry and family.

We look forward to hearing from you.

Yours sincerely,
David E. Witheridge

Dear Sir

Enclosed are the death notices for Mrs Gubb which appeared in the local newspapers.

There are three Gubbs listed in our local telephone directory:

|---|---|
| GUBB, B. | 426 Ecklenburg, Rondebosch 7700. |
| GUBB, N. | 103 Clairwood, Kenilworth 7700. |
| GUBB, N. | 12 Lincuden, Wynberg 7700. |

I would assume that one of the N. Gubbs is the Nick referred to in the death notice.

I hope this information will satisfy your request but if you need anything further we will be happy to assist you.

Enclosed please find your cheque value $5.00.

Editor's Note

The first Witheridge-related documents in this folder, including some numbers in the "De" (Devon) series and one in the "W" (Witheridge) series, pertain to Anne and David Stratton. After document De31(b) there are three one-family records made by DEW, followed by document W285. (Note that there is an additional W285 elsewhere in the Witheridge documents, pertaining to the New Jersey Witheridge branch. This use of the same number twice appears to have been an error by DEW — the only time I have run across an error of this particular type.)

After the Stratton material, the regularly numbered documents in the "W" (Witheridge) series resume, starting with W122.

Dear Mr Witheridge,

One of the most rewarding occupations, I, find, is re-reading old family history magazines after a successful sleuthing holiday.

I came back from Devon with several new names added to my family tree, & on re-reading the October 1980 edition of the Devon Family Historian, five of your family names fairly leaped from the page at me.

My mother's maiden name was Kidwell, & after a lengthy search I found her grandfather's family in Shirwell, N. Devon. I have been tracing all the lines back, where I could find them, and they now include the names Witheridge (or Woothridg) Muggeridge, Ley, Blackmore & Symons.

As you will see from my enclosed family tree they are "early" names, the Witheridges coming from Hartland, the Ley's from East Devon, the Blackmore's from Kentisbury (& 'my' branch migrated to Shirwell) and the Symons & Muggeridges were in Shirwell.

I have added the dates of the earliest marriage in each line as a guide — and as a convenience the months are numbered from January in spite of the fact that all the dates given are before the calendar change in 1751.

Coming up to date, David & I were married in Rugby in 1960, & our children Cynthia (Cindy) & Chris are 20 years & 18 years respectively.

I enclose international reply coupons & an addressed envelope, & hope in due course to hear from you. I do hope that at least one of the lines of my family will coincide with one of yours. If we do happen to be cousins, and it would interest you, I will let you have the tree in greater detail.

With best wishes,

Yours sincerely,

Anne Stratton.

Dear "Cousin" Anne:

I was greatly intrigued to receive your letter with all its information about your ancestry and the family lines through which we might be connected.

Your letter arrived while we were away on a 3½-week trip, so I have just now had time to consider it. So far my investigation has turned up only one of the lines — Lay — where we seem quite likely to be related.

As you see, I am sending you copies of my family group sheets that show where I think your Lay ancestry and mine tie together. Suzanna Lay, b. Sept 10, 1578, seems to be the Susan, daughter of Richard of East Down, you show on your chart. Do you agree?

My own line back to this Richard Lay is somewhat ambiguous, but I think that eventually I'll be able to establish it. My 5-great grandfather, William Withridge, married Rebecca Lay in Combe Martin on July 20, 1723. Rebecca was baptized July 2, 1696, in Combe Martin and was the daughter of William and Joan Lay.

The Combe Martin Parish Registers are missing from 1636 to 1667, so I am going to have to hunt elsewhere for evidence, but I believe this William Lay was the 2-great grandson of Richard and Margaret (Jule) Lay of East Down. If my assumptions are correct, you are the 10th cousin of my father and my 10th cousin once removed.

As I said, there doesn't seem to be an obvious connection between us in any of the other lines, but further work by both of us may uncover such a tie.

My Witheridge ancestry goes back to Thomas Witheridge, who was baptized in Berrynarbor on Feb. 12, 1555. He was probably the son of Nicholas and Mary (Gover) Witheridge. On Oct. 8, 1580, in Berrynarbor Thomas married Johan Mogridge, but I have no further information about her parentage.

My 4-great grandparents were William and Mary (Symons) Witheridge. They were married July 10, 1749, in Combe Martin. Mary, the daughter of George and Eleanor Symons, was baptized in Combe Martin July 19, 1727.

Another of my 4-great grandfathers was Robert Blackmore, who was baptized in Combe Martin on Aug. 21, 1715. His father, Robert, however, was baptized in East Down Aug 27, 1675, and he was the son of Nicholas and Elizabeth Blackmore. It's possible, of course, that Nicholas was related in some way to your Blackmore family in Kentisbury.

I can't take the time now to give you more information about my own family tree, but perhaps some time in the future I can do so. I am a Baptist minister, but before my retirement 2½ years ago, I was the full-time executive director of the Greater Minneapolis Council of Churches for 29 years. My wife Elizabeth was a teacher before our marriage, but more recently has been the author of seven books for children and young people. We have two sons: Jim, 35, and Tom, 34. Elizabeth and I have had two wonderful trips to Britain — the first for nearly three months in 1976 and the second for two months in 1980.

Thank you for writing. I hope to hear from you again.

Yours sincerely,

David E. Witheridge

25-9-1982.

Dear Cousin David,

Thank you very much for your letter, and for the family charts you so kindly enclosed with it. The delay in my reply is due in part to my summer holiday, and to the fact that I rather wished the world would stop & let me get off for a bit. The annual summer chaos of having our children & their friends coming & going throughout the school holidays, (they were both at boarding school), & our friends visiting from far & near, as well as my part time job as an Occupational Therapist having banished all thoughts of genealogy until now.

Regarding the Ley family; your Susanna, daughter of Richard & Margaret sounds like my Susan, her fathers will of 1628, & the date of your Richards death in 1629/30 sounds about right. The discovery of my Susan came with a ready made pedigree chart of the Luttrell family. I had worked my way back through the Kentisbury regs. & B.Ts and got stuck with the Andrew Luttrell who married Wilmott Popham; the earliest register of Kentisbury having been lost, & the B.T's very fragmentary. A member of the Exeter R.O. staff noticing the name Luttrell in my note book helpfully told me that it was the name of the Dunster Castle people. I was able to look them up in Burkes Landed Gentry once I got home, and noted a "younger son" who was described as being the "ancestor of the Kentisbury branch of the family." This I chased, & I enclose a copy of the relevant sheet showing the Luttrell/Ley marriage & descent to my Andrew in the Kentisbury marriage register.

I am hoping to establish an annual one weeks holiday in Devon with frequent visits to the R.O. However my genealogical progress is slow, the Luttrell pedigree being in the nature of a bonanza, most of my family revealing themselves reluctantly, & after much effort on my part! You have made so much progress with your family & I wonder if you have had incredible luck, or whether it was through dogged single-minded dedication? Also, you having arrived well back into the C16, I would be interested to know if you have managed to do your research solely by using parish registers or if you have tackled the more obscure records, such as the Manor Court Rolls, & the various tax returns, it is an area that I am approaching, with much trepidation, I might say.

I agree that the Wittridge lines are probably unconnected, but it is possible that there might be links with the Blackmores & Symons, & even the Mogridges — they were not in Shirwell for long, & must have come from somewhere in the area. You may have noticed that Combe Martin, Berrynarbo, Kentisbury, East Down & Shirwell are all on — or only just off — the same road.

My Blackmores — (Richard) Robert & Honour had their children baptised in Kentisbury, but their marriage was not in the register — nor either of their baptisms. By sheer chance I looked through some old notes I took about a couple of years ago in the Society of Genealogists in London & found their marriage in East Down in 1717. The date is wrong for your Robert, whose son was baptised in 1715 — which is a pity — but they may have been cousins. I had spent some time copying Blackmore entries in any N. Devon parishes I came across, & wondered at the time if I would ever make use of them; it obviously was worth while.

The Symons were a very prolific family thorought (thats the second time I've misspelt that word!) throughout N. Devon, & I shall look for links between our families there too. A pattern is emerging in my family of a drift south over the years, and the locations of your family in Berrynarbo & Combe Martin gives me a clue as to where to continue my search.

My family has been Church of England on all lines except perhaps one. I have had abysmal luck tracing one branch of my fathers family in South Wales, & hope to look at the chaple records on my next visit. I met the minister there on the last day of my last holiday in the area, & he remembers a family who could be the one I am looking for.

Please give my salutations to Elizabeth, and to my eleventh cousins Jim & Tom. I note that you haven't been to England for 2 years, & wonder if you are planning another visit, if so, there will be a welcome for you & Elizabeth if you would care to spend a few days with us.

10th cousin twice removed

With best wishes to you all,

Yours sincerely,

Anne Stratton.

Dear Anne, STRATTON

I have just discovered a fifth cousin of yours, Philip J. Nicholas of West Glamorgan. As you see from his letter and chart enclosed, he is a descendant of Thomas Bond and Grace Witheridge. He wrote me asking if I knew anything about Grace's family, so I assume he has not been in touch with you. I sent him your address and a copy of the chart you sent me, so he will probably write to you.

As his address is on his letter, perhaps you will want to write to him and tell him what you know about the family. I would imagine that each of you knows much that the other would like to know.

I notice that I never answered your second letter of September, 1982. Apparently, I had nothing more to add at that time, and then I got involved in the many other lines I am working on — both mine and my wife's.

There are several items in your letter I'd like to refer to. You mention the 1628 will of Richard Fry, Susan's father. It is also mentioned in the page you sent of Luttrell information from the Visitations of Devon. Have you ever tried to get a copy of that will? I'd very much like to see it if it is still in existence.

Regarding the Blackmores of Kentisbury, I had a letter last November from Mrs. Christine Vialls, whose husband has an ancestor, Sally Blackmore, born in Kentisbury in 1811. Her parents were Robert and Betty (Fry) Blackmore. Mrs. Vialls has done a great deal of work on the Blackmores of Kentisbury and nearby towns, and she might know how her husband's family ties into yours. Her address is 30 Red Post Hill, London SE24 9JQ.

My main good fortune in tracing my ancestry back so far is that my father's family lived for 300 years in the neighboring towns of Berrynarbor and Combe Martin. I began some twenty years ago with information from the Combe Martin Parish Register through correspondence with the rector. Then on each of our two trips to England we spent several days at the Devon Record Office using primarily the Combe Martin and Berrynarbor Bishop's Transcripts. More recently I've been able to use the Mormon microfilm copies of the Berrynarbor, East Down, and other Parish Registers, as well as the International Genealogical Index of the Mormons.

Over the years I've used many other kinds of records and have been lucky to find a few relatives here and there, like you, who could add important bits of information. I now have identified 19 family lines in that small part of Devon from which I am descended. Those 19 families married into 113 other families in that vicinity, with whom I am thus related in some way or another.

I would love to be able to use the Manor Court Rolls, but I understand they are hard to locate, and I am too far away anyway. If you can give me any advice on this, I'd be very grateful. Devon wills also seem to be few and far between because of the bombing of Exeter in the war. And I don't seem to know how to find and use land records as we can over here. So I keep hoping that more and more records will come to light and be made available for genealogists.

Now I must close, and I hope to hear from you again.

Yours sincerely,

David

Dear David,

It was nice to hear from you again, thank you for your letter, and for sending on Philip Nicholas' letter & family tree. His letter to me arrived hot-foot the day after I got yours.

I've written to him with the tree as I envisage it & passed on the problems too, together with the information I have gleaned so far. It will be interesting to hear his comments.

It is encouraging to find a cousin who is interested in the family - most of my parents cousins are a little on the secretive side & cannot understand why I want to rake up the past - it makes me wonder what there is to hide!

Please don't apologise for not answering my last letter. I know only too well how one can become side tracked & swept full Tilt into another branch of the family. I have to admit that I've quite neglected my N. Devon family recently - & haven't chased up Richard Ley's will. I will write to the Devon R.O. & if it is in existence, or if they have recorded the main facts, I'll let you have a copy.

My husband, David, & I have both corresponded with Christine Vialls, David about his family of Viall, & I about the Blackmores — & we have established a link, and have also found a mutual cousin who lives in Bristol & whom David & I have met on several occasions — a real bonus to our hobby in this instance.

Having ancestors who stayed put is undoubtedly an advantage as David appreciates. Mine had itchy feet, & moved about quite irratically with no concideration at all for their descendant who is trying to locate them.

When Davids Aunt died 6 years ago as the last remaining child of her generation, the house was cleared & we were given a big box of documents that were found at the last minute in the hay loft over the stables. They were nearly thrown away but rescued as perhaps being of interest to us. They consisted of over 200 parchment sheets of tenants copies of the local Manor Court Roll, dated from the 1640's to 1850's! mostly the transfer of copyhold land, either by inheritance or sale. In the case of inheritance the will of the defceaced tenant was quoted & some genealogical details appended. The land concerned was minutely identified. i.e. "that meadow bounded on the north by land tenanted by Joe Bloggs, the South by Little Brook, & East by the meadow called long furlong owned by A.N. Other esq, & on the west by High Wood." etc. They all concerned the family, often coming down through the women on their marriage. We extracted the information, & have deposited, all but 2 small documents in the Aylesbury RO on permanent loan. We had the two we kept framed & they are on the wall in the morning room; they mention a Robert Stratton & are both dated in the 1640's.

Generally, Manor Court Rolls are in private hands, but some are gradually being deposited in R.Os. One of my "source" books quotes the "Register of Manorial Records in public & private hands," kept at the National Register of Archives, Quality House, Quality Court, Chancery Lane, ~~W~~ London W.C.2. If you know which manors are concerned in the areas where your ancestors lived it might be worth an enquiry there.

I'm a bit out of my depth with land records. The Manor Court Rolls seem an obvious source, tho difficult, but there were regular land taxes from 1692-1831 which list the houses, owners & tenants & the tax paid. They should be in the RO's, or one of the London repositories, but I imagine that many of them may have been lost. I believe the only extant records of Devon wills are the extracts which were published before the war. Lets hope Richard Leigh was amongst them.

I don't know if they are available in American genealogical societies or libraries, but the "Victoria County Histories" are a good source for historical details, including local aristocracy & gentry, though they are pretty wordy — Warwickshire's are contained in 6 big volumes! I'm sure you will be familiar with the other records, probably you know much more about them than I do, I've only been at it in anything more than a casual way for about 7 or 8 years.

With my best wishes,
Yours sincerely,
Anne.

Dear Anne, STRATTON

Just a note to acknowledge your letter, so this time it won't be a year and a half before I answer it.

How wonderful it was for you and David to receive those documents going back to the 1640's! That's the kind of discovery we all dream of but hardly ever achieve.

Thank you for the name of the "Register of Manorial Records in Public and Private Hands" at the National Register of Archives. It so happens that at this point there is a specific manor, the records of which I want to investigate if they are extant.

One of my ancestors was Mary Pine, who married Nicholas Gear in Combe Martin in 1767, but I haven't located Mary's baptismal record. The main seat of the Pine/Pyne family at that time was the Manor of East Down, and I'm hoping that the manorial records might turn up some information about the parents of my Mary. At least it's worth a try.

Yes, I have read the Victoria County Histories and found the Essex history especially helpful regarding one of my wife Elizabeth's family lines: Plume/Plumb. My recollection is that the Victoria history of Devon at the University of Minnesota Library did not include all the volumes or for some other reason was not very useful. I'll have to check this again.

I hope you're lucky with the 1628 will of Richard Ley, but I guess I shouldn't hold out much hope for Devon wills.

Best wishes in your ancestor hunting!

Sincerely,

David

I owe you a letter & will write in the new year. We meet Philip Nicholas regularly & enjoy his company very much. Do hope you both keep well.

Dear Anne and David, Stratton

I think I told you at Christmas time that we are planning a trip to Britain starting about the middle of May. Things are coming together now, and we expect to arrive in London on Saturday, May 14. After about a week in the London area, we'll be hiring a car for three weeks and driving through England, Wales, and Scotland.

First, we'll go to Essex for about three days, where Elizabeth has her Plumb roots. Then we'll visit some Witheridge relatives near Guildford and arrive in Exeter on Wednesday, May 25. On Thursday we'll go to the Record Office and visit the cathedral. On Friday we plan to go to the North Devon Athenaeum at Barnstaple. I understand many North Devon records are being transferred from Exeter to a new building in Barnstaple, but I don't know whether this has actually been accomplished or not. Then, we'll be in the Combe Martin area on Saturday and Sunday.

On Monday, May 30 (the Bank Holiday), we plan to drive to Swindon to stay overnight with my third cousin in the Blackmore line, Marjorie Parker, and her husband Ted. On our way there we might be able to see our friend Dr. Colin Chapman (a genealogist and scientist) at Dursley, about 20 miles north of Bristol.

On Tuesday, May 31, we are driving to Wales to be with my third cousin, Bill Roberts. I don't know yet whether we'll be staying with him in Ynysybwl (near Pontypridd) or in a hotel in Cardiff. We'd like to drop in to see you on the way, if you can arrange to be home that day. We'd probably arrive about 10:30 a.m., and we should leave by about 1:30. We know this is a short visit, but you can see that we are on a very tight schedule to include so many stops in a three-week drive around the country.

Tel. call 2/15/88 - The date of May 31 is OK.
They would like us to stay overnight with them if we can't be with Bill Roberts on May 31.

Please let us know if May 31 will work out all right for you. If it won't, we can try to adjust our itinerary in some way, as we'd certainly like to meet you.

Yours very sincerely,
David & Elizabeth

March 5, 1988

Dear Anne + David,

It was a surprise and a delight to have you telephone us to confirm the date of our visit to Penallt on Tuesday, May 31. We appreciate your prompt response and the warm welcome you conveyed.

Now I want to give you a minor change in our schedule — not in the day, but in the time of our arrival. Due to some other changes I won't go into, we won't be going to Swindon on Monday, May 30, but will be continuing on to Ruthin in North Wales. There we'll spend the night in Ruthin Castle, which has been converted into a hotel. They also have medieval banquets every evening most of the year. One of Elizabeth's ancestors was the Lord Grey of Ruthin, so we'll enjoy the overnight stay.

Unfortunately, the connection to Ruthin Castle turned out to be unfounded.
T.F.W.
Nov. 13, 2021

On Tuesday, May 31, we'll leave Ruthin about 9:00 a.m. and arrive at Penallt about noon. At 2:30 or 3:00 o'clock we'll leave for Cardiff, where we have a reservation at Churchills Hotel. Bill Roberts writes that he expects to have a serious operation shortly, and he is not sure how he will be at the end of May. So we decided to stay in Cardiff where we'll be close and able to visit him without any strain on him.

On Wednesday we'll visit some Witheridge relatives in Llanelli, west of Swansea, then back to Nuneaton, (Hampton Magna) east of Birmingham, for the night. And so our whole trip goes, visiting many relatives and friends and ancestral localities.

Just so I won't forget to tell you, Kim Cook (Mrs. Roy) and her husband will be picking us up at the airport and also returning us there as they did in 1976 and 1980. Her mother was a Witheridge, and Kim is an expert genealogist. We'll be staying with the Cooks a couple of days at the beginning and at the end of our stay, and they will always know where we are in case you need to reach us while we're in Britain. Their address is 18 Hawkhurst Way, West Wickham, Kent BR4 9PF; Ph. 01-777 6072.

Best wishes,
David + Elizabeth

Dear Elizabeth & David,

Thank you so much for your letter & the revised time of arrival. I shall have a light lunch ready for you both, & Philip is arranging to come for the day. Coming from Ruthin, whether you come via Abergavenny or Hereford you will have to use/cross the A40. If via Abergavenny, take the A40 to Monmouth & leave it immediately after the tunnel (signpost Monmouth, Rockfield, Trelleck.) Turn L at the garage & go over the top of the tunnel you've just gone under. If from Hereford get on to the A40 at Dixton roundabout (SE of Monmouth) just & turn R to S. Wales ~~signpost~~ go straight on at the traffic lights (in 700 yards approx) & leave the A40 just before the tunnel which will be in view, signpost Rockfield & Trelleck. From then on the 2 routes merge.

follow signpost to Trelleck until you've climbed the hill and passed the Z bend - carry on climbing & you'll see a small lay-by beside the road on your L, & immediately after take a L fork which is signposted to Penallt, but the post isn't very obvious, follow the road, still climbing, & take the steep bend to the L in a few 100 yards. You are now on what we call the causeway. Continue until you pass the village sign (on the L of the road) which nevertheless is in the middle of the country - you'll see no houses yet. Take the next L turn opposite Whitehouse Farm & follow the narrow lane until it doubles in width. You will then see in about 50 yards a green painted house on the L which is the old P.O. We look forward very much to meeting you both.

I hope you both had a happy Easter. Were your family with you? We had both our children here, plus Cindy's husband Gary & their 6 month old Thomas. It was a great joy to us tho' a bit of a squash & poor Christopher had to sleep on a camp bed downstairs. I'm in the Church choir & we sang a hymn as an anthem - very simple as most of the choir are children - but we coopted a bass, a male tenor & his daughter who sang tenor also, & with 3 altos & the children we felt we'd achieved our aim. We also acquired a new member of the family on Easter Sunday - a small springer spaniel cross, who had been abandoned but dumped in the garden of a couple who run an animal shelter. She's gorgeous & was so good with Thomas, they both lay on the floor & looked at each other! We've called her Sark, & she is already one of the family & most anxious to please us.

We've had such a mild winter this year, & all the hedges & plants are coming into leaf very early & without checks. The birds are nesting & our new nest box is occupied by a couple of very active blue-tits. I have about half my seeds planted, but the other half must be got in fairly soon. Visitors at Easter & last weekend, plus a bad cold don't help much, but the visitors have gone & the cold is going!

(David has just told me to tell you that the "A40" is a dual carriage-way road, but I expect that you will already know that & will be quite familiar with English motoring terminology!)

It just remains to say that we hope you will have a good flight from the U.S.A. & that England (& Wales) will put on a show of really good weather for you. I've noted the address & phone number of the Cooks in Kent so we will contact you there if there is any necessity.

With all good wishes until we meet.

David & Anne

September 1, 1988

Dear Anne & David,

You're probably wondering why you haven't heard from us since our trip to Britain. The truth is, we're far behind in everything. We arrived home with very bad colds, which lasted several weeks. Then we found they were in the midst of a severe drought and heat wave here, and that continued until very recently. So with our colds and the excessive heat our energy level has been very low. As a result we still haven't finished everything needing to be done after our trip, including a great many letters.

We had a most wonderful time in Britain and accomplished almost everything we had planned. We drove 3,000 miles without a bit of car trouble, and we enjoyed seeing our many relatives and friends. Thank you again for the lovely time we had at your home, including the delicious lunch. We only wish we could have stayed longer. It was especially nice to be able to meet Philip at the same time. We hope these pictures will serve as a pleasant reminder of our visit. I'm sending copies to Philip also.

We hope you are in good health and have had a relaxing summer. We are both fine, now that we are over our colds.

Most sincerely,
David & Elizabeth

Dear Sir,

I read in the Devon F.H.S. Members' Interests' Index that you are interested in researching the surname WITHERIDGE in the Devonshire area.

My 5x great grandmother was a Grace Witheridge before her marriage in 1727 to Thomas Bond at HARTLAND, in the north of the county.

I was wondering whether in your research you may have come across a family by the same name in the parishes of Hartland or Clovelly? As yet, I have no record of Grace's parents or even of her baptism, but any information you would care to impart would be most warmly welcomed.

Please find enclosed a skeleton outline of my pedigree and an International Coupon for your kind reply.

Yours sincerely,

Philip J. Nicholas.

Dear Mr. Nicholas,

When your interesting letter arrived, I looked in my Witheridge genealogical materials and was delighted to find that I have just what you are looking for.

You will see on the enclosed family record sheets that I have both the parents and the paternal grandparents of your Grace Witheridge of Hartland.

I had come across the Witheridge family of Hartland through the Mormon records, which I am able to get on loan at our L.D.S. branch library. I have not been able to tie this family in with my Witheridge ancestors in Berrynarbor and Combe Martin, though I have no doubt they are related farther back than we have the records.

Then a couple of years ago I got a letter from Anne Stratton of Warwickshire, who is a descendant of the Hartland Witheridges, and thus a relative of yours (5th cousin). She sent the enclosed chart showing how her line goes back to Thomas Bond and Grace Witheridge, as yours does. She was trying to see if she and I are related through either the Witheridge, Mogridge, Symons, Tey, or Blackmore lines. So far, the only connection we have found is through the Tey family.

I believe you will want to correspond with Anne. Her address is Mrs. David P. Stratton, Hill Farm, Brinklow, Nr. Rugby, Warwickshire CV23 0LB.

I am happy to have been able to help you, and I hope some day we may be able to discover how you and I are related.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Philip,

It was a delightful experience this spring to meet you at the home of Anne and David Stratton. We greatly enjoyed our trip through England, Wales, and Scotland, as we were able to be with many relatives and friends. Although we haven't figured it out yet, I'm sure we are related somehow in the distant past.

We arrived home with bad colds and found they were having a drought and very hot temperatures here. The result was our energy level was very low for several weeks, and we've never really caught up with all our jobs. However, we're fine now, and the climate has returned to normal again.

We thought you'd like to receive these pictures as a reminder of our visit. I've also sent copies to Anne and David, of course.

Best wishes to you in the coming months.

Sincerely,
David + Elizabeth

My dear David and Elizabeth,

You cannot know what a thrill it was to receive your kind letter and copies of the photos early yesterday morning.

I don't know whether you are aware that we have suffered a Postal strike for over a fortnight in the U.K. Things are getting better already and the Post Office hopes to have the backlog of mail sorted out in a week or so.

1988 will be certainly remembered by me particularly as "Family Tree" year. From May to Sept I have had the very great pleasure of making the acquaintance of 6 new distant cousins, including yourselves, and all warm, friendly and Christian people.

It was a treat to be invited by Anne and David to share their meeting with you, and I can only thank you again for putting us into contact. Over the past 3 or 4 years they have become much more than distant relatives, and I regard them both as very dear and special friends. I visit them every 2/3 months, when and if time allows, and really enjoy their company. Perhaps on your next visit you will be able to stay with them and come to know them as the lovely couple they are.

I hope the rest of your trip to our shores was enjoyable. I'm afraid the great British summer was its dismal and damp best!! I really was quite depressed with the continuous weather reports of "scattered showers in the West" being broadcast every evening! Still, I shouldn't complain. It's the rain that keeps the grass green!!

After our meeting I wrote to the lady who is collecting information about the Witheridge families, but unfortunately I have received no reply - that was, 3 months ago now. Perhaps I'll write again, to jog her memory.

School term started on the 1st Sept., so already I am busy preparing plenty of work for my pupils - have to keep them busy!

Thank you again for the photos.
Hope the coming months will be pleasant, and drought-free for you.

With every good wish,
Philip

THE STRATTON NEWSLETTER. 1988 EDITION.

Cindy and Gary are still at the Dragon school and finding life very enjoyable with young Thomas Gary who grows apace and finds life one long adventure. Cindy is a registered child minder and started her business with Thomas and two others on a regular basis. She has now branched out and employs a YTS girl full time and has expanded to 5 children including Thomas. The stimulation of other youngsters has been very good for Thomas who walks and talks (Well, Dad-dy and Mum-my is talking, isn't it?) and plays well with the others, sharing his toys and probably his dinner. In the wider family, Thomas has a new third cousin, Jason Obermeyer in South Africa.

Christopher, having finished college during the summer of 1987, took up an appointment with Howkins & Harrison, the Land Agents and Auctioneers, in Rugby. He rented a house in Bilton where he looked after himself. His efforts did not altogether earn his parents' approval as the house tended to become reminiscent of his bedroom in Brinklow - untidy. Anyway, the experience that he was getting in Rugby did not contain the variety that he needed for his career and in October this year he moved to Strutt & Parker's office in Lewes, Sussex. After a mammoth upheavel he settled in at No 2, New Cottages, Cooksbridge, Lewes.

Anne and David have come to roost in Penallt very comfortably and have made many new friends. Much time has been spent decorating and in the garden. Big plans are afoot to reduce the present kitchen garden, which is immediately outside the french doors, to lawn and shrubs. At the same time we have acquired an extra piece of land behind the house which we have partly rotovated and manured. It is already growing fruit trees, fruit bushes and raspberry canes. Next year it should be in full production and we hope we shall have sufficient to give away to placate our neighbours who had to suffer the presence of two tons of manure! We took our caravan to Norfolk and had almost two weeks in it although we had a break in the middle when Cindy and Gary (+Thomas) had it for a week. Very wet, Norfolk. In October we had a full fortnight in West Glamorgan. Very windy, Glamorgan. We had a dog staying with us for the summer. She arrived from an Animal Shelter on Easter Day and was to be a permenant member of the family. However, she had boundless energy and an irrepressible desire to play which together made her increasingly frustrated with two old people's inability to romp continuously. A mixture of Springer Spaniel and Whippet (?) was highly explosive and could, in no degree, be de-fused with 2 hours walking each day. So, in November, the Shelter found her a new home where there was another young dog wanting a playmate.

David's distant cousins, Robert and Barbara (Stratton) Flynn, from North Carolina came for a stimulating couple of days. Anne's distant cousins, David and Elizabeth Witheridge, from Minneapolis called in for lunch one day. Anne's 5th cousin, Philip Nicholas, who was introduced to us by the Witheridges some years ago and who lives just down the road in Port Talbot visited several times, and while we were in Gower (Glamogan) we renewed acquaintance with more of Anne's cousins - Averil and Ernie Grove, Averil's brother William and his wife, and cousin Rene Beynon.

It just remains for us to wish you a very happy Christmas and a prosperous 1989.

From the Strattons.

Dear David & Elizabeth,

Thank you so much for your nice letter - oh, so long ago, in September, with the two photos, you included. You are not the only ones to be behind with letters - and you both have very good reasons, I have none, & yet my correspondance is, as you see, all behind. I'm now trying hard to catch up, but it is still a daunting task, tho' enjoyable as I'm writing to good friends! We remember your visit with great pleasure, & hope to see you again on your next visit, hopefully for a little longer if you can spare us the time, tho' I know how hard it is to get everything in.

We have just said goodbye to Philip, this morning as he has been here for 2 days during his ½ term holiday. Our genealogy is no further forward, but we've enjoyed talking it over, & he has accompanied us on one long walk while we delivered notes round the village asking the residents to protest about the re'opening of an old quarry. We hear the man applying wants to use it as a dump because he operates a skip-hire, & has no where to put the rubbish!

You seem to have had extraordinary weather - a heat-wave - when you wrote - we are having the most odd winter. The weather has until the last 2 days been more like April than February! All the snowdrops are out - as usual, but at the same time all the primroses, crocus & even daffodils are coming out, I'm afraid they might be in for a nasty shock if it turns cold, or even snows now. I've managed to get right round the garden & expect any day to find the summer flowers coming up. I've decided that one or two of the rather elderly & battered trees need a face lift, so I plan to buy some climbing roses — the old fashioned kind — to climb up into the branches & change the old trees' image. We have already in the last fortnight planted 150 beech bushes (sprigs) to make a hedge round our new vegetable garden.

David sends his kindest regards, and we both hope that, having got over the 'flu you are both quite fit & looking forward to next spring & summer.

With best wishes to you both,
Yours very sincerely,
David & Anne.

Dear Lyn, Prust

It's over a year since our correspondence about my North Devon ancestry and the Blackmore information you had turned up in your research. I appreciated your ideas and your interest in my background and genealogical efforts.

You were very kind to say you would try to help me some day with a problem that might be answered at the North Devon Atheneum. It so happens that I do have such a problem, and I'd like to have you visit the Atheneum on my behalf.

This is what I have found. Way back in 1622 John Witheridge, a mariner from Barnstaple, sailed a ship to Maine in America. As far as I can tell, he never settled here permanently, but he returned at least in 1623, 1624, and 1625. This is a quotation from a book, Pioneers on Maine Rivers, by Wilbur D. Spencer, 1973:

"In 1624, John Witheridge, master of the Eagle, a Barnstaple ship owned by Melchard Bennett, had established himself at Pemaquid Harbor. . . While forbidden by the council to truck with the Indians, he had been licensed to fish on the coast. . . Witheridge was then so popular with the Indians that they reserved their furs and traveled long distances to seek his trade. Their preference for him was manifest as far west as Casco Bay, although other shipmasters in the vicinity were as well supplied with attractive commodities." p. 310

"March 27, 1625, when Charles First was crowned, the new name (New England) had been approved for nine years, but Virginians still continued to regard the coast of Maine and its outlying islands as a part of Canada. Since all early mariners were traders, their fishing stages on the islands were summer marts for the storage of English and Indian commodities, which in turn were exchanged for southern tobacco.

"Some credit was allowed, but in 1625 Edward Nevell, as agent for Weston, refused to deliver a consignment of tobacco to Thomas Crisp, a merchant from Virginia, unless Captain Witheridge, the Dorchester factor, would assume the responsibility for deferred payments. The merchandise had reached Damariscove in the Swan, of which Nevell was master, and the fact that Witheridge returned to England at the end of the season without undertaking the obligation, proves conclusively the (seasonal) nature of his business." pp. 312-3.

Would it be possible for you to go to the Atheneum and see if they have any record of a John Witheridge from Barnstaple who was master of a ship at that time? Perhaps they would have some information that would identify him and distinguish him from a few other John Witheridges then living in North Devon, such as his wife, children, or abode.

In particular there was a John Witheridge who was baptized Dec. 29, 1572, in Barnstaple and seems to have had eight children there between 1606 and 1619. I wonder if he was the one.

I know it may be difficult to find a record of this mariner John Witheridge, but I'd be very grateful if you would discuss this with the staff at the Atheneum. If you have to pay a daily registration fee to work there, please let me know, and I'll reimburse you. Enclosed is some postage.

* Permanently settled; all others were abandoned at the end of the period indicated; most of the eastern settlements were deserted during the later Indian wars.

land were assigned by agreement to proprietors of the Grand Patent. The names of the patentees were engrossed on the earliest reproduction of Smith's map to indicate the respective divisions. Council records do not mention Damariscove nor Pemaquid during this year, but two large islands near the mouth of Sagadahoc River, corresponding to Arrowsic and Georgetown, had been reserved for a public plantation.

In 1624, John Witheridge, master of the Eagle, a Barnstable ship owned by Melchard Bennett, had established himself at Pemaquid Harbor, where he was located by Levett. While forbidden by the council to truck with the Indians, he had been licensed to fish on the coast. According to the pioneer at Quacke, Witheridge was then so popular with the Indians that they reserved their furs and traveled long distances to seek his trade. Their preference for him was manifest as far west as Casco Bay although other shipmasters in the vicinity were as well supplied with attractive commodities.

At that time the statement of Levett, that he had heard that Pemaquid, Cape Newagen and Monhegan had been granted previously to others, must have referred to the proprietorship of the Earl of Arundel. No settlement by Europeans in any locality from Pascataqua to Cape Newagen was mentioned by him during his sojourn.‡

About the first of March, 1624, Plymouth Colony dispatched the new English pinnace, called the Little James and commanded by John Bridges, to a station near Damariscove, in which it was "well harbored" at "a place wher ships used to ride." Posterity is indebted to Levett for a definite location of this ship at Pemaquid instead of Damariscove. The latter place was better known to Bradford as the site of the third plantation in New England, although later in his history he alluded to the former several times by name.§

When the Little James arrived at its destination there were other vessels in the vicinity which had just come from England, and previous customary usage of Pemaquid Harbor must have included its occupation by ships of Sir Francis Popham, John Witheridge and other Barnstable fishermen.

Not long after its arrival a violent storm arose and "broak over such places in ye harbor as was never seene before," and drove the Little James upon great rocks where it sank with its cargo of provisions and salt. The account, which follows, indicated that the pinnace had been anchored beside the shore ledges and not near any wharf or fishing stage. The narrative is that of Altham.

"Upon the 10th of Aprill, 1624, hapned a greate storme and some of our cables that we were mored withall gave way and slip of on the place they were made fast to ashore and soe the winde and sea being very high drave our ship a shore upon rockes where she beate. In the mean time being night the master and Company arose and every man shifted for them selves to save life, but the master going in to his cabin to fetch his whishell could not get in to any boate aboute the ship the sea brake soe over the ship and soe by that meanes before a boat could come the ship overset and drowned him and the other two and the rest that were got into our shallops that hung about the ship had much a doe to recover the shore your cosin for one for the ship oversettinge pich her maineyard in to one boate where were 6 or 7 of our men and soe sunke her for thoes that could then swim got to the shore with much hurt the rest that could not swim were drowned, and soe before the next morninge our ship was quite under water sunke and nothing to be sene save only the tops of her masts some times for the sea did rake her to and fro upon the rocks."

In this casualty the master and two of his crew, Peter Morrett and John Vow, went down with their ship. The ship's boat and four shallops or fishing dories, one of which had been borrowed, were destroyed, and the season's catch was reduced to 1000 fish.

Later in the summer, at the expense of the colony, Emanuel Altham, Captain Cook of Barnstable and the masters of English fishing vessels in the vicinity salvaged the hull and rebuilt the pinnace, but it was then too late to accomplish anything at the Eastward. The Little James returned to England where it was libelled for debts.*

If, as claimed by Levett, Witheridge enjoyed a monopoly of the Indian trade at Pemaquid as early as 1624, he appears to have supplanted Captain Williams, the agent of Popham, in the esteem of the natives, for he had no local competition as far as Sagadahoc.

* Bradford, 2-198, 129; Mass. Hist. Proc., 11-182.

As for Richard Williams, alias Cornish, then captain of the Ambrose, his fate was sealed in Virginia, late that year, when he was tried and executed by local authorities. The following spring the captain's brother "Jeffery" Cornish boarded the Swan at Damariscove to ascertain the particulars from members of that vessel's crew who had been present at the trial and execution. For disclosures made to him on that occasion Edward Nevell and another seaman later lost their ears before the southern tribunal.

Cornish declared that he would be the death of the governor of Virginia "yf ever he came for England." The presence of this sailor at the Eastward at that early date, and within sight of Pemaquid Harbor, warrants the belief that he had visited the locality in company with his brother on previous voyages. Ten years later this same individual was put ashore at Milford Haven, where he had been engaged in a quarrel with other seamen.†

For a long period after its discovery all of Northern New England was known by such names as Norumbega, Virginia, Canada, Muscongus and Pemaquid. Captain Smith claimed the credit for restoring a large part of Canada to his sovereign and suggesting its present name. He asserted that visitors had "obscured it, and shadowed it, with the title of Canada; till at my humble suit, it pleased our most Royall King Charles * * * then Prince of Wales, to confirme it with my map and booke, by the title of New England."‡

March 27, 1625, when Charles First was crowned, the new name had been approved for nine years, but Virginians still continued to regard the coast of Maine and its outlying islands as a part of Canada. Since all early mariners were traders, their fishing stages on the islands were summer marts for the storage of English and Indian commodities, which in turn were exchanged for southern tobacco.

Some credit was allowed, but in 1625 Edward Nevell, as agent for Weston, refused to deliver a consignment of tobacco to Thomas Crisp, a merchant from Virginia, unless Captain Witheridge, the Dorchester factor at Pemaquid, would assume the responsibility for deferred payments. The merchandise had reached Damariscove in the Swan, of which Nevell was master, and the fact, that Witheridge returned to England at the end of the season without undertaking the obligation, proves conclusively the seasonable nature of his business.

Thomas Morton claimed that, during the years 1626 and 1627, he had "spoiled" the Kennebec trade for New Plymouth, which pretended to have a monopoly of that district by discovery. Bradford admitted the claim and complained that employes of the colony "had like to have been cut off by the Indians, after the fishermen were gone." Neither Pemaquid nor any other eastern plantation presented any grievance.

In the spring of the latter year the plantations at Damariscove and Monhegan were discontinued and the goods sold on the premises. David Thompson, formerly of Pascataqua, and Plymouth Colony were the only bidders at the auction and they combined and purchased the whole rather than compete with each other. Such a combination would have been futile if there had been other buyers.

These two islands may be regarded as the outposts of Pemaquid during that decade, but such a conclusion does not warrant the belief that the mainland was occupied throughout each year. Shurt, the pioneer of Pemaquid, took prior possession at Monhegan, for Thomas Jenner, a contemporary of veracity, declared that the first places occupied by the English, in that vicinity, were the islands.

In June, 1628, all plantations "wher any English were seated" combined to deport Morton. Since none of these was located east of Pascataqua River, such a statement implied that there were no English settlers in Maine on that exact date. The explanation is that Saco and Casco had been deserted, and Richmond Island and Castine had not been occupied by Bagnall and Ashley until later in the season.

During that year Plymouth Colony forwarded furs to Bristol in the Marmaduke, Pleasure and White Angel, of which the masters were John Gibbs, William Peters and Christopher Burkett, respectively. The last ship belonged to Aldworth and Elbridge, the merchants of Bristol who had acquired Monhegan the previous year; the latter collected freight and port fees from the colony.§

The Aldworth family, to which Elbridge was related, had

In 1672, Elbridge removed from Pemaquid to Marblehead, Massachusetts, and three years later to Barbadoes, leaving his family, consisting of five children, in the custody of the eldest daughter at Marblehead.

SKETCH MAP OF PEMAQUID

He died in Spring Plantation, Barbadoes, in 1682.

At the beginning of the Indian Wars of 1675, a contemporary writer remarked that "There have been for a long Time seven or eight considerable Dwellings about Pemmaquid, which is well accomodated with Pasture Land about the Haven for feeding Cattel, and some Fields also for Tillage."*

* Hubbard's Wars, 2-7.

to Casco and built his fortified house on the island in Portland Harbor.

Gorges, however, returned to Massachusetts before spring and restored the Swan to Weston with compensation for its detention. With reference to the settlement at Wessaguscus Bradford said, "This was in effect ye end of a 2. plantation in that place"; some of the colonists returned to England with Gorges, by way of Virginia, some settled in the South and a few remained for a time at Wessaguscus, where they were supplied subsequently by the Southern Colony.

In the parliamentary debate relating to free fishery, southern planters argued that their colony could not survive without the exercise of that privilege within the limits of the Northern Colony. There was no fishing south of Cape Cod, and when all other resources failed the early shipmasters relied upon the "catch" at Monhegan to ensure a profitable western voyage.

Consequently, lists of ships sent to the Southern Colony in 1623 and 1624 include many that, either on the outward or return passage, or both, fished upon the Maine coast. In this way some of the thirty vessels, which were reported to have been harbored at or near Monhegan during the former year, may be accounted for.§

While Levett was living at Casco, in the early part of 1624, Pemaquid Harbor was occupied by John Witheridge from Barnstable and Emanuel Altham from New Plymouth. Both were engaged in fishing and trading. During the same season other English fishermen were stationed at Sagadahoc, Cape Newagen and Damariscove.

At Monhegan a trading mart was maintained for the sale or exchange of commodities proffered by fishing masters. The deposition of Thomas Piddock, taken in an admiralty case, affords a glimpse of the nature and extent of the principal business at the island. The statement was made in 1628, when the witness was only twenty-seven years of age.

The testimony in these cases consists of questions and answers, but in the case of Piddock, who hailed from London, the statement has been reduced to the following abstract:

"In June and July, 1624, he and Edmund Dockett and William Pomfrett being then at Menhegen in New England as factors of Abraham Jennings of Plymouth and Ambrose Jennings and William Crosse of London, merchants, did lade at Mendhegen, in the ship called the Jacob of (Nore)kham in Freezeland, whereof one Thomas Neeson was then master, from the ship Prosperous, Robert Bennett, master, 39,600 of dry fish containing 615 quintalls, from the Golden Catt, Mr. John Corben (master) 51,800 of the like fish weighing 893 quintalls, and from one William Vengam, who was planted upon that island, 82,300 of the like fish containing 1534 quintalls, which makes in all 173,700 weighing 3042 quintalls; one third of which fish did belong to the company of fishermen, for which one third the said Edmund Dockett gave the said Robert Bennett, John Corbyn and William Vangham bills of exchange on the said Abraham Jennings & Company; which fish when it was laden was all dry and well conditioned, and was consigned by the said Edmund Dockett to George Backlar then a merchant at Bordeaux."

More than half of the 150 tons of freight furnished for the lading of the Jacob was provided by Vengham who had been fishing on the island during the preceding winter. The name of Dockett, who later was interested in Virginia and made subsequent voyages with Vengham, was spelled "Doggett" in other connections.*

The disastrous sequel to this season's toil and hardships was disclosed by the same witness. He said that "after he came to England he met the steersman of the ship Jacob at Plymouth who told him that a Turkes man of war meeting with that ship about 30 leagues from the Polehead of Bordeaux, boarded and took that ship and the fish in her which they carried to the 'barr of Sally,' but the ship being of such draught that she could not go over that bar then the said Turkes took out of her what fish they pleased and gave the rest to the skipper for his freight."†

Salli is a seaport of Morrocco. At Bordeaux the cargo of the Jacob would have sold for more than $10,000.

In 1627, Jennings and Company who had acquired title to Monhegan, probably from the Earl of Arundel, sold the island and their entire stock in trade. The premises were bought by Abraham Shurt for Aldworth and Elbridge, all merchants of Bristol. Since funds were not available in this country to meet Patent. In 1630, which was the year when the grant was made, Roger Conant, Anthony Dike, Francis Johnson and Peter Palfrey formed a partnership at Salem for the purpose of "trading to the Eastward." Johnson was chosen manager and Dike master of their vessel.

SAINT GEORGE'S RIVER ABOVE PORT CLYDE

A plantation was begun on the west side of the river at Saquid Point, where Johnson was engaged in fishing, planting and trading with the Indians and English fishermen. An account of their property specified a "house with the debts due from the Indians" and "swine, boat, skiff, canoe, housall stuff and trading goods."‡

In 1632, according to the narrative of Roger Clap, the vessel of Anthony Dike and its master were captured by Dixie Bull and his confederates at the Eastward, after they had pillaged Pemaquid. The pirates insisted upon transportation to Virginia, but Dike declined to undertake the voyage on the ground that he was not familiar with the southern coast.§

April 15, 1633, Richard Foxwell, who had lived formerly at Dorchester, Massachusetts, returned to Pascataqua from Plymouth, England, in the fishing vessel of John Corbin, and July 16, following, acquired the plantation at Saint George's River.

§ Young's Mass. Chron., 362.

He complained subsequently that when he bought the premises at Saquid Point he had been guaranteed a confirmation of title from the Massachusetts government.

At the time of Waymouth's voyage to Saint George, Rosier had reported that among other commodities on the islands about Pentecost Harbor he found "spruce trees of excellent timber and height, able to mast ships of great burthen." Oak was mentioned as one of the products, but not pine, and it is still a fir country, where annual harvests of Christmas trees supply western market. Upon the hills on the mainland he observed "notable high timber trees, masts for ships of 400 tun."

The first allusion to the mast industry at the Eastward was made by Winthrop who mentioned a ship of Barnstable and the Hercules of Dover, which in the summer of 1634 "returned by St. George's to cut masts to carry to England."*

This statement disclosed that the English navy was being supplied with masts from Central Maine two years before shipbuilding was contemplated at Richmond Island or Saco. The timber may have been cut by the crews of the vessels or by some of the planters who were then occupying the trading house at Saquid Point.

The French seized the Plymouth trading post at Machabitticus about the first of August, 1635. The nearest English settlement was the house of Foxwell at Saquid Point, which was situated "about three score myles" westward.†

Saint George's Harbor was not molested by the enemy that year because it was occupied by English fishing vessels. Winthrop asserted that during the great storm of August 15, 1635, when the Angel Gabriel was destroyed at Pemaquid, John Witheridge, of Barnstable, and ships from Dartmouth were forced to cut their masts at Saint George's River. After the fishing vessels were gone Foxwell was at the mercy of the French and withdrew to Saco. The next year he visited Castine to confer with them in relation to future occupation of his premises at Saquid Point.‡

In 1701, Sylvanus Davis asserted that Foxwell had been a settler at Saquid Point as early as 1641. John Brown, of Pemaquid, also claimed "Lands at a place called Sawk Head" (Saquid)

Dear Rev. Witheridge,

I'm sure you will be wondering what the enclosed invitation is all about so let me explain!

Firstly I will introduce myself - I am the daughter-in-law of Ken & May Gubb, married to their eldest son Vernon. I know you were in England a couple of years ago tracing your ancestry and unfortunately didn't meet my in-laws as they were away on holiday. We saw your latest correspondence and Ken is still looking into it. Now the enclosed invitation is for a party the children of Ken & May are arranging to celebrate 40 years of Marriage (Ruby). As you will see from the wording they know nothing about it - it is a surprise party.

As it is in July we thought we would let you know about it just in case you were planning on visiting England this summer, and it would give you the chance of meeting a few more Gubbs!

Also could you tell us anything about the "Thomas" you mentioned in your last letter to Ken - is he related to the Gubbs? If so we would be pleased to have his address.

into it. Now the enclosed invitation is for a party the children of Ken & May are arranging to celebrate 40 years of Marriage (Ruby). As you will see from the wording they know nothing about it - it is a surprise party.

As it is in July we thought we would let you know about it just in case you were planning on visiting England this summer, and it would give you the chance of meeting a few more Gubbs!

Also could you tell us anything about the "Thomas" you mentioned in your last letter to Ken - is he related to the Gubbs? If so we would be pleased to have his address.

Dear Pat,

That was so thoughtful of you to send us a copy of the invitation to Ken and May's 40th anniversary surprise party. Elizabeth and I would enjoy being there and meeting all of you, but alas! we are not coming to England this year. We hope to return some day, but on my retirement income it takes quite a while to save up enough money for such a trip.

I'm sure you had figured out that we wouldn't be coming from the fact that I hadn't answered your letter. I must apologize for being so slow in doing so. It came at a time when we were entertaining house guests on two separate occasions, and I had gathered up all my correspondence and genealogical materials and put them out of sight. So they promptly went out of mind for several weeks.

Now, about the Thomas I mentioned in my last letter to Ken. His name was Thomas Witheridge Lobb, and he lived in Cape Town, South Africa. However, he died some time ago, since last February there was an obituary in the London Daily Telegraph saying that his widow, Eileen (Betty) had just died in Cape Town.

Since Lobb and Witheridge are both common names in North Devon, and since Ken is descended from both family lines, wondered whether he had any clue as to who this Thomas Witheridge Lobb was.

I have now heard from the Cape Town Library with the address of an N. Gubb who is possibly the son of Thomas, I expect to write and find out what he knows about his ancestry.

Enclosed is a card for you to give to Ken and Mary on July 28th. We wish you all the grandest of celebrations on that day, and we wish we could be there, too.

Yours sincerely,
David Witheridge

Dear Mr. Gubb:

I am writing to you as a result of the notice that appeared February 20, 1984, in the London (England) Daily Telegraph reporting the death of Eileen (Betty) Gubb, widow of Thomas Witheridge Gubb, on February 8th in Cape Town.

This was sent to me by a distant relative of mine who lives in the London area. We are naturally interested in knowing how Thomas Witheridge Gubb was related to the Witheridge family. This is not a very common name, and it is likely that all the Witheridges stem back to the town of Witheridge in Devon. I have been working for some years on how the various branches of the family tie together.

I wrote to the Cape Town City Libraries for a copy of the death notices about Mrs. Gubb that appeared in Cape Town newspapers. I also asked if they could find the addresses of any survivors who might be mentioned in the notices. As you see, one of the librarians did send me your address with the speculation that you might be the Nick Gubb mentioned in the death notice.

I'd be very happy if you would write and let me know if you are in fact related to the late Thomas Witheridge Gubb. I'd like to know as much as you know about the ancestry of Thomas Witheridge Gubb--both Witheridge and Gubb.

It so happens that my grandfather, William Witheridge, had a sister, Susanna Witheridge, who married John Adams, and one of their daughters, Lily Beatrice, married Charles William Gubb. So, you see, I have a number of second cousins by the name of Gubb, who also have Witheridge ancestry. I do not know, however, the background of Charles William Gubb.

My grandfather was born in 1856 in Combe Martin, Devon. His family had lived in that vicinity for over 300 years. I have an idea that the Witheridge ancestors of Thomas Witheridge Gubb came originally from Devon. Perhaps his Gubb ancestors also did, and I'd like to know what you know about that. There were many Gubbs in Combe Martin and other parts of Devon.

I look forward to hearing from you in the coming weeks. Enclosed are a self-addressed envelope and two postal coupons for your reply. Thank you very much.

Yours sincerely,

David E. Witheridge

28th July, 1984

My dear Rev. Witheridge,

Your letter received here on the 23rd July and could not be better timed as I returned from a visit to Britain on the 21st. Now you have really started a long story which I shall endeavour to answer in some degree here - just to let you know that you have arrived at the right source of information on Gubb's & Witheridge but I will use your stamp coupons to send you the more explicit details.

My husband was Noel Gubb who died on the 24th February and whose ashes I have just taken over for interment in the churchyard of Combe Martin. The notice you saw was of Betty Gubb second wife of Thomas Gubb who was my husband's cousin. He had only a son Nicholas by his first wife (incidently American, whom I think he met serving in Europe during War II) The other names mentioned in the notice as children were Betty Gubb's children (2 girls) by her previous marriage & not Gubbs. Practically every Gubb is a "Witheridge Gubb" stemming back to 1586. The Witheridges did not come from the village of Witheridge but Berrynabor - a small village about 2½ miles from Combe Martin. A family tree titled "Pedigree of Witheridge of Berrynabor & Combe Martin in North Devon showing descent of Gubb Family from the same" is in our possession & as my husband had had a negative of it made for each of our children, I will in due course get it developed & printed & send you a copy.

As far as I can see you may stem from "William Witheridge - living Combe Martin 1791 Died July 1792 - miller" who had also a son William Witheridge who beyond being mentioned in his grandfather's will - John Witheridge Buried 1740 at Berrynabor - As our line is traced directly down - yours may thus disappear as a side issue for this branch.

As my husband and I did go back Combe Martin yearly (now as a widow my finances are a bit shaky) we were well versed in the history. The actual

South African branch started here by Thomas Witheridge Gubb, second son of William Gubb & Mary Witheridge born ± 1809 When you receive the Pedigree you will see William Witheridge married Abigail Clogg so Cloggs somewhere became cousins & my husband stayed with the Cloggs in the house Eastcotts in Combe Martin when released from the Russian border after the defeat of Germany, and it is in Richard Cloggs grave he is buried as the line of Clogg & Gubb in Combe Martin is now extinct. Old Mrs Clogg told my husband that the Gubbs still there were no relations but I have a sneaking feeling they may all be 45th cousins. I should be eager to learn of any facts you have at your disposal as it is so interesting. I had no luck in tracing any Witheridge in Berrynarbor of Combe Martin. 103 Clairwood is also an address so dont expect a reply there.

Dear Margaret,

Receiving your letter was a great thrill, and I know I am somehow related to your husband, though I can't tell exactly how until I see the pedigree you will be sending. The only person I can identify whose name you mentioned is the William Witheridge who married Abigail Clogg in 1779. He was the brother of my great-great-grandfather, George Witheridge. They were the sons of William Witheridge and Mary Symons.

I mentioned in my first letter that my grandfather, William Witheridge, was born in 1856 in Combe Martin. He was the son of John Witheridge and Clara Blackmore. John was the son of Edward Witheridge and Mary Gear, and Edward was the son of George Witheridge and Mary Norcott.

Over many years I have been working on genealogy--both my own and my wife's--and I have traced my ancestry back to Thomas Witheridge, who was baptized Feb. 12, 1554/5 in Berrynarbor and married Johan Logridge Oct. 8, 1580, also in Berrynarbor. I'm anxious to see how my records compare with your pedigree.

My wife Elizabeth and I have had two lovely visits to Britain--the first for nearly three months in 1976, and the second for two months in 1980. Each time we hired a car and drove 4,000 miles through England, Scotland, and Wales visiting relatives and friends, as well as sight seeing and doing genealogical research in libraries.

My father was born in Wales and came to this country with his family at the age of seven. His father had gone to Wales from Devon to work in the mines, and when he came to America, he left many relatives in England and Wales. So I have second and third cousins there whom we met and still correspond with.

Elizabeth's ancestors all came to this country from England way back in Colonial days. So, although we have located some of her ancestral family homes, we haven't actually met or identified any of her living relatives in Britain.

We liked Combe Martin and Berrynarbor very much. In 1980 we stayed several nights at The Lodge in Berrynarbor, and it was one of our favorite inns. We also met several relatives in Combe Martin--none by the name of Witheridge, but at least three who are Witheridge descendants: Una Parsons and her father, Herbert Parsons (his mother was a Witheridge); and Douglas Stock (his great-great-grandmother was a Witheridge). We did meet a John Witheridge and his son George on a farm not too far away at West Buckland. John is my father's second cousin.

As I said, I have worked a great deal on the genealogy of my ancestors in Berrynarbor and Combe Martin and have identified 19 family lines in that area from which I am descended. I have also found 113 other families (like Gubb and Clogg) into which these 19 families married over 300 years time. So I suppose I am related to almost everyone whose family lived there over a long period of time.

I can hardly wait until I get the Witheridge-Gubb pedigree, and I want you to know that I expect to pay you for the cost of making my copy, as well as the postage. Please let me know what this is, either in your currency or in American dollars.

We were fascinated by the fact that you and Noel went back to Combe Martin every year. How long did you stay? Probably some of the people you know there are relatives of mine. The next time you go you should look up Una Parsons and her parents in their lovely old home, Marine Cottage. (Douglas Stock has died since we were there.)

I think that's about enough for now. Later I'll give you more information about our family, and I'll want to know more about yours. Thank you very much for responding as you did.

Yours sincerely,

David S. Witheridge

My dear David and Elizabeth

'Well I suppose it is exciting finding more and more relatives'. I wish I had known earlier as my younger daughter Margaret and her husband Andre are at present travelling around America with their 2 children but will be due back next week, otherwise, who knows, they might have called on you.

I am afraid you have done a great deal of delving into records whereas we merely inherited a family pedigree somehow or other. The original is held now by one of Noel's sisters. I also know that there is a family Bible somewhere here in existence but which mysteriously disappeared, when after his parents deaths, Noel showed interest and desire in acquiring it. As he was the youngest, he truly came off very sadly as far as inheritance was concerned and throughout the years maintained that as a matter of pride, he would not ask for anything again.

To give you a short account of the most direct line concerning us.
Thomas Witheridge Gubb B. 1852 married Mary Kitchingham 1874
" Florence Barry 1894 was a real character. The Thomas Witheridge Gubb - his father - was the owner of a fleet of ships plying between England and South Africa
Hence his son was far from poor and he in his turn became a millionaire on 3 occasions. I am not sure how he lost each one in turn but he lived in grand style.
He also set up the "Gubb wool washing industry" in Uitenhage - on his death became Gubb & Inggs and of recent years bought over by an American Company and lastly by the South African Government. He had only 2 sons but left his estate to the 9 grandchildren — that is what was
to Florence Barry was a real disaster

She had two failings, a fast good social life and plenty of liquor. The fast life meant a home in South Africa a villa in Switzerland and another in Sweden, a child - Kate Witheridge Gubb who was believed to be the child of a Swedish Count acquaintance. Kate in turn resembled her mother and equally grew up to maintain a profligate lifestyle and successfully killed herself in a car crash whilst inebriated. In the meanwhile Florence Barry when liquor was not available found methylated spirits a good substitute and eventually burnt the home down and destroyed herself but in the process reduced the Gubb fortunes and silver, antiques etc to a shadow of its former glory. I think the decline set in there and we are no longer affluent. I doubt if any of this generation will make their mark in the world market. My son Andrew has chosen a field which may make him well-known but is probably the poorest paying in the country. He has a doctorate in Botany, writes articles, books

4/ etc and is the botanist for the North Western Cape. stationed at Kimberley. In fact all the Gubb men have gone in for strange means of livelihoods.

By now I am digressing badly. I do not know of any Witheridge relations as such for the Gubbs have seemed to keep up a steady friendship with the Cloggs only in Combe Martin as they appeared to consider the Gubb side had died out there and it is an embarrassment to say that any Gubbs in Combe Martin were not considered relatives.

On our trips to Combe Martin, my husband and I always had a feeling that a lot was being withheld as they are very "clannish" in their own way. I think there are a few flamboyant characters whose idiosyncrasies we are not being told about.

The Clogg home is Easticotts, a lovely place now sadly neglected, beyond the Roman Catholic Church. The Gubbs owned several homes and farms and at one stage a good deal of the village. Richard Clogg was the Squire of the village I am told. I wonder if you have a source of information in Combe Martin. We have a very good friend whose parents were retainers in the Clogg and Gubb homes and he is a tremendous source of information on the tribes of Combe Martin etc. His son Gerald has an interest in tracing family trees and I will send a copy of your two letters to them to see what else we can glean but it gets very complicated.

Unfortunately I will not be returning to Combe Martin until May 1985 when I hope to stay 3 months. Noel and I had planned to spend 6 months there this year when he retired but he died without achieving the pleasure of a very long stay. As I have just come home after a long trip "educating" two of my grandsons, I only managed 12 days there this visit. Unfortunately my own future is now in some jeopardy as on my return, I decided to have a physical checkup and the specialists have discovered I have cancer and start intensive radium treatment in two days time and after six weeks will have an operation. They tell me it is in early stages - I trust so because I have never had any illnesses in my life and would have considered myself a hundred percent healthy - but then so did Noel - who only complained of a backache. Anyway I am determined to be positive thinking - will have to bear with the next 3 months - and will then return to my most active life

Before I end - I must warn you that the Gubb and Clogg families are all characters - extroverts, determined, dogged, adventurous, have their own set of rules, probably eccentric, flamboyant and tremendous fun, born leaders to victory & disaster etc etc.

With regards,

Yours sincerely

Margaret Gubb

This document is a transcription made Nov. 6, 2021, by the editor (TFW) of the faint carbon copies of two Christmas letters from DEW to Witheridge/Ley descendant Una Parsons (q.v.).

The first letter is addressed to Una, her mother, Esther (Daisy), and her father, Herbert (Bert). Starting in paragraph 3, DEW recounts the story of Margaret Gubb in South Africa.

Dec. 14, 1984

Dear Una, Daisy, and Bert,

I know I've been remiss in not writing to you this year, so I'll just write a little extra with this [Christmas] card. We have both been fairly healthy, but exceedingly busy. I won't try to go into everything, but will just mention church, genealogy, work around the house and yard, house guests, and a long trip to the East Coast in the spring.

We've had two house guests from England this fall. The first was an expert genealogist, Colin R. Chapman, who was speaking in several U.S. and Canadian cities. He prefers to stay in homes rather than hotels, and we were delighted to have him for two days and nights. The second was the Rev. Eric Allen, who visited us in 1976, and with whom we stayed in Leeds in 1976 and also in 1980. He has moved to a church in an interracial area in London. He was with us for Thanksgiving dinner, when Tom and Virginia were with us from Chicago and Jim was with us, of course. A great time of reunion!

A distant relative in Surrey, [Henry] Harry Witheridge [q.v.], sent us a death notice from a London newspaper that told of the death of the widow of a Thomas Witheridge Gubb [q.v.] in Cape Town, South Africa. Through an address given to me by the Cape Town public library I was able to contact a Mrs. Margaret Gubb [q.v.], widow of a Noel Gubb, who was a cousin of this Thomas Witheridge Gubb, the third one by that name. She told me a most fascinating story about that story.

The first Thomas Witheridge Gubb had a fleet of ships that traveled between England South Africa. He was born in Combe Martin in 1809, the son of William Gubb (a mariner) and Mary How Witheridge. The second Thomas Witheridge Gubb became a millionaire three times and lost his fortune each time through extravagance and wild living.

Margaret Gubb sent me a photocopy of a "Pedigree of Witheridge of Berry Narbor and Combe Martin in North Devon, Shewing Descent of Gubb Family from the Same." This ties right into our Witheridge line. If you are interested I can send you a copy of this pedigree.

Margaret and her husband Noel made trips to Combe Martin every few years, and she expects to visit there for three months starting in May, 1985. Their main tie there has been to the Clogg family [q.v.], who are some kind of relatives by marriage. She said "The Clogg home is Easticotts, a lovely place now sadly neglected, beyond the Roman Catholic church. Richard Clogg was the Squire of the village I am told. I must warn you that the Gubb and Clogg families are all characters — extroverts, determined, dogged, adventurous."

I have much more to find out about this family connection, but I thought you'd be fascinated by this discovery this year.

Now I must close and wish you all a very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. We do hope your health is reasonably good and that all is going well.

All our love,
David & Elizabeth

This second Christmas letter, addressed just to Una, follows up on the Margaret Gubb story. It was even more difficult to decipher than the previous faint carbon copy, and some educated guesswork was needed, especially in the second half. Fortunately, my first of two cataract operations last week made it easier than expected to slog through!

Dec. 12, 1985

Dear Una,

We were so glad to get your Christmas greeting and letter, and we wish you a memorable Christmas season and a pleasant year ahead. Our health has been generally good, and we keep very busy with many activities at home, at church, and in the community.

It was interesting to hear about your mother's participation in the exhibition of Combe Martin memorabilia. Yes, we would greatly have enjoyed being there.

As you see, I am enclosing a copy of my letter of May 3rd. I had forgotten what I had said, and so I looked it up. What I want most are the names and addresses of Margaret Gubb's son and daughter, so I can write to them. Margaret's letters were so friendly and interesting that I want to continue my contact with her family. I [assume?] Gerald Walters [q.v.] can give you their addresses.

Speaking of Gerald, I wonder if he has my letter and the pedigree charts I enclosed. When Norah [Gregory, q.v.] wrote in September, she said, "I saw your Witheridge chart with the Gubb connections, and I believe it is now with the family with whom Mr. and Mrs. Gubb stayed when they visited Combe Martin." I assume she meant Gerald and [Eva? Eve?] Walters.

We are looking forward to a delightful time at Christmas. Jim lives in Minneapolis and will be with us, of course. Tom and Virginia are in Chicago, and this is their year to come here for Christmas. (In alternate years they go to her parents in [downstate?] Illinois and come here for Thanksgiving in November.) In April, if all goes well, Tom and Virginia will be presenting us with a grandchild, and we are all very happy about that. [Alas, it didn't go well, because of a miscarriage.]

The weather here has been very cold — right now it's below zero Fahrenheit — and we've had 33 in. of snow, which is more than we've ever had this early in the season. The city is very beautiful, especially around the fourteen lakes we have within the city limits of Minneapolis.

Our warmest love to you all!
David & Elizabeth

[NOTE. The above Pedigree has been compiled chiefly from evidence supplied from Wills proved in the Court of the Archdeaconry of Barnstaple and from the Parish Registers of Berry Narbor and Combe Martin, indicated in the chart by the letters B.-N and C.-M respectively. The particulars of the descendants of Thomas Witheridge Gubb (1809-1871) are supplied by living members of the Family.]

*This heirloom, described in Thos. W.'s Will (1626) as "one stoning jug covered with silver;" by John W. (1665), in leaving it to his son Thomas, as "one stoning jug covered with silver, etc., which my late deceased father willed me to leave unto him;" and by Thomas W. (1697) as "my stoning jug tipt with silver and the cover thereto," was evidently an Elizabethan stoneware or "tiger-ware" jug with silver rim and lid, of the type which now sells at from £30 to £350 in the London Auction Rooms. Genealogically the incident is of great interest, as showing how the description of an heirloom in the Wills of three consecutive generations enables a pedigree to be corroborated and the identities of individuals with common Christian names to be established.

* This heirloom, described in Thos. W.'s Will (1626) as "one stoning jug covered with silver;" by John W. (1658), in leaving it to his son Thomas, as "one stoning jug covered with silver, etc., which my late deceased father willed me to leave unto him;" and by Thomas W. (1695) as "my stoning jug tipt with silver and the cover thereto," was evidently an Elizabethan stoneware or "tiger-ware" jug with silver rim and lid, of the type which now sells at from £250 to £350 in the London Auction Rooms. Genealogically the incident is of great interest, as shewing how the description of an heirloom in the Wills of three consecutive generations enables a pedigree to be corroborated and the identities of individuals with common Christian names to be established.

Editor's Note

The next chart, document W135(c), was in my father's Witheridge files, located among several other ancestor/descendant charts — W135(a), W135(b), and W137 — pertaining to the Witheridges, Gubbs, and related families hailing from Berrynarbor and Combe Martin, Devon, England, and later from South Africa. However, the provenance of document W135(c) remains a mystery, because it didn't have Dad's customary document and log numbers, nor was it included in any of Dad's document calendars; see also another issue in parentheses, two paragraphs down. I made up the number "W135(c)" myself, because it facilitates searching for the chart in the index and the document collection.

Entitled "The Combmartin and Berrynarbor Family Tree," the chart is mostly typed, by a person unknown; the compiler didn't sign it (but see the last paragraph here). The chart also includes three lines inserted by Dad in his own distinctive engineer's printing style.

On the righthand side of the chart, the descendants culminate with Dad and his siblings. I spent the better part of an afternoon trying to figure out why in the world he would draw a vertical line showing "Nicholas (b 1663) = Prudence" as the parents of the William Witheridge who married Rebecca Ley in 1723, when he knew perfectly well that William's parents were Thomas Witheridge (bapt. 1650) and Mary Sherman (bapt. 1656/7); see, for example, what Dad printed on p. 18 of his first ancestor chart in folder 1.1a. (This mistaken "begat" line is why I'm so skeptical that Dad was the chart's compiler.) Moreover, for the longest time I couldn't find a "Nicholas" paired with a "Prudence" anywhere in the "Pedigree of Witheridge, of Berry Narbor and Combe Martin [etc.]" (document W135[a], folder 1.63e), even though my eyes are practically brand new after double cataract surgery several weeks ago. That pedigree was Dad's main source for the Witheridge-Gubb link.

Then I happened to notice Dad's faintly printed note, "= Prudence," on an enlarged copy of W135(a) made at a copy shop; see the "Nicholas" to the left of "Henry Witheridge. = Elizabeth," just over halfway down the chart. That discovery made me realize two things: first, the unknown compiler of the pedigree had bent the line containing the offspring of "Nicholas Witheridge. = Wilmot Watts" like a pretzel, shoving the three youngest kids down two lines, where they were well hidden; and second, my beloved father had led me astray in the mystery chart (document W135[c]), by allowing the portrayal of Nicholas and Prudence as the parents of William Witheridge (bapt. 1690) to stand unchallenged.

So I made an executive decision to correct the error in document W135(c) by creating a new version of the document, which I'm calling "W135(d)" and placing directly after W135(c). In this new document, William (bapt. 1690) is moved to his correct position underneath his real parents, Thomas Witheridge and Mary Sherman, and to his correct birth order among his real siblings, with the descendants of William and his wife, Rebecca Ley, flowing properly downward to Dad and his sibs. Problem solved!

It so happens that today the same basic document (this version also having William [bapt. 1690] in his correct position) showed up again, this time in Kim Cook's (q.v.) article, "The Combmartin & Berrynarbor Family," in The Witheridge Times (q.v.), Vol. 2, No. 2, Summer 1988 (see document W264, folder 1.63h). The chart's provenance is still a bit of a mystery, although the fact that Kim used it in her article shortens the list of probable creators to Kim and Dad (I lean toward Kim). At least they must have collaborated on the issue of where William (bapt. 1690) belonged.

Editor's Note

The descendant chart on the next four pages (document W137), entitled "Witheridge Pedigree — Berrynarbor and Combe Martin," was made by DEW on May 1, 1985. He added the label "Latest" in a penciled note under the document number (see below). DEW clearly benefited from his knowledge of the data on document W135(a), the first one in this folder, which he had received in August of 1984 from Margaret (Mrs. Noel) Gubb (q.v.).

We were all so pleased to receive your letter at Christmas – thank you for it, and all the family news & interesting information it contained! I do hope our Christmas card wasn't late – we've been VERY busy with work indoors & outside on the house, and until the 3rd week in December, the (reconstructed) kitchen was in a state of chaos – so Elizabeth will I'm sure understand that routine was somewhat disrupted!

With regard to the Cape Town Gubb family, it now transpires that we've been hearing about them for quite a long time, from our neighbours (also friends) Gerald* & Ena Walters. When visiting C. Martin, the Gubbs rented one of their flats (just a few yards from Marine Cottage). Mrs Gubb was planning to come again, as you mention in your letter, but according to Gerald & Ena, she died (cancer) just before Christmas; her daughter says she hopes to bring her ashes to C-Martin; there is a nice seat, with a plaque bearing the name & dates of birth & death of Noel Gubb, in the Parish Churchyard.

I can remember Mr. Richard Clogg, & of course, my parents remember him well. He was a bachelor, and employed a housekeeper who was a most elegant lady. He was not a 'squire', but a Justice of the Peace (lay magistrate), and was also chairman of the Parish Council for very many years. You will be interested to know that he attended the Baptist Church

We have at long last very nearly completed all the renovations etc to the house — from a new roof + outside redecoration, to major work inside it has been quite an undertaking, and at times I've been concerned that it would be too much for my parents — but we've tried to go at their pace, and I'm thankful to say that we've all survived, more or less unscathed. Having said that though, both of them are receiving medical attention, principally for fibrillation of the heart.

[* Gerald came to the Ambulance Room to meet you]

Mother was in hospital in August, and she has taken a long time to 'pick up', but she is much more her old self again now.

Our church life continues to deepen + develop, and the ecumenical movement in the village is growing strongly. On Dec 23rd the Parish Church overflowed for a united Carol Service — it was really thrilling.

Norah + Myrtle are both well + busy, and I've joined an Art Class at Ilfracombe on Tuesday ams. — am very much a novice, but enjoy trying to paint (pastel + watercolour). Keep well! Very best wishes for health + happiness in 1985, + love from us all, Una

Dear Una and All,

Thank you for your wonderful letter with family and community news. We are especially glad to hear that, in spite of some serious health problems, things are somewhat better now. We hope the improvement continues. With all the renovation, your house must be even more charming than we remember it. How we would love to see you all again!

We are so happy to know that you have heard about the Cape Town Gubb family and that Gerald and Eva Walters know them. I do remember Gerald. I think he was the one who brought an old book of land tax records or assessments. I wonder if he is the person Margaret Gubb said was interested in Combe Martin family history.

Margaret wrote: "I wonder if you have a source of information in Combe Martin. We have a very good friend whose parents were retainers in the Clogg and Gubb homes, and he is a tremendous source of information on the tribes of Combe Martin, etc. His son Gerald has an interest in tracing family trees, and I will send a copy of your two letters to them to see what else we can glean, but it gets very complicated."

We were very sorry to hear of Margaret Gubb's death. She had told me of her cancer diagnosis, but was hopeful her treatment would be effective. She had told me a little about her son and her daughters, and I now want to establish contact with them and continue the correspondence begun with their mother.

I am writing this now and sending these pedigree charts in the hope that they might reach you before Margaret Gubb's daughter comes to Combe Martin. Margaret, I know, had intended to come there in May, but that may not be the date her daughter is able to come.

In recent weeks I have spent much time in carefully going over every entry on the "Pedigree of Witheridge. . ." that Margaret sent me and trying to reconcile everything with my information. I have found a great deal of valuable new material, especially from wills that the compiler of this pedigree had access to but were destroyed in the bombing of Exeter in World War II. On the other hand, I have also been able to add and correct other items on the basis of information I had found elsewhere, mainly in parish registers.

I have drawn my own preliminary version of the Witheridge pedigree, which differs in some ways from the one developed about 1914 and sent to me from South Africa. Because of the difficulty of finding corroborating evidence, there are still, no doubt, some errors; but this chart lays out my present view of the Witheridge connections in Berrynarbor and Combe Martin. (Those underlined in red are my direct ancestors.) I didn't want to take the time to include all my sources and details, so I'll have to send these later when it is all put together in complete shape.

I have a feeling that Norah and Gerald will want to go over this very carefully and will probably have some further information or at least questions.

If you do see the Gubb daughter, please give her a copy of my letter and of these two pedigree charts. I know you will want a copy of each chart in Combe Martin. Whether or not you see her, I hope Gerald will give me her name and address, as I want to write to her. If you aren't able to give her copies of these charts, I'll send them to her from here, and you can keep the extra set there.

Now I want to close, as I want to get this into the mail. Best wishes, as always.

Love,

David + Elizabeth

Dear Friend — and Relative —

Don't quite know what to call you! My sister, Winnie, gave me your name and address so I could ask you about our family.

I am the youngest child of George Reaburn and Elizabeth Mary Chivers. I believe you met my mother and talked to her, many years ago. It is my understanding you have done extensive research into the Witheridge Family, and I am extremely interested in tracing the lineage especially as it pertains to my mother. I assume your relationship is connected with my Grandmother Elizabeth Witheridge. Anything you could send me would be appreciated very much.

My husband and I have just recently revived our interest in genealogy (does this happen at a particular age ?!) Anyway, one of his ancestors was a Potter, and we have been fortunate enough to have information from the State Library here in Lansing that traces our line of the Potters back to the first one in the US, Nathaniel, landing in Rhode Island in 1638. This has given us a real boost (this was an accidental find) so we would like to pursue any/all of our lineage as much as possible. If you have to copy anything to send me I will be more than happy to re-pay you.

If I should chance to have any info that you would be interested in I will, of course, be happy to share! Doubtful, I know! My family consists of me - Joyce Virginia, my husband Bruce Duane Aldrich, our children dau 31 yrs Luanne Fellows, husband Robert, child Tara; my daughter Fadra Kennedy, 28 yrs husband James M., son Matthew B. and daughter Jennifer; son Eric 25 yrs Bruce (not married) and Ray 22 yrs Duane (not married). We live outside of East Lansing on 80 acres of land.

I will be anxiously awaiting a reply from you - I would like to know about you - as well as our common ancestors.

Thanking you in advance,

Joyce (Jo) Redburn Aldrich

Dear David,

I have since lerned your name - my sister, Jean Tomlinson, wrote to me with your address as I had mentioned wanting to contact you. She also included a picture you gave her of Betsy Witheridge Chivers - and I intend to get some copies made for myself and my children. Another thing Jean told me was that you were formerly Executive Director of the Minneapolis Council of Churches. I have been office manager/administrative assistant here at the Disciple regional office (that is why I wrote to you on this stationary) for going on 12 years. Earle Van Slyck, regional minister here, is now in Russia under the sponsorship of the National Council of Churches. Where were you located and in what capacity before you were with the Council of Churches? I suspect you are an ordained minister - if so, what denomination?

To get on with the purpose of my letter - other than to thank you for your postcard and the message it conveyed. I was giving some thought to your dilemma as to how and in what form to send me information on the Witheridges. Would it be of any help for you to tape, in narrative form, the information and then I could transcribe it to paper and put it in the form that I want in our book? This is just a thought, but I could transcribe from any tape - micro, mini or regular cassette. It might be nice to have any of your "stories" on tape, too - especially those you must have in gleaning this information - and especially gathering it out of the U.S.! Of course I will be delighted with any information in whatever form you would choose, but taping it would be very acceptable to me.

The Redburns had a reunion last weekend - that is our family of Redburns. Of the 7 of us "children" there were 4 there with spouses, and many of the children and grandchildren of my parents - probably close to 50 of us. There was a picture taken and if it is any good at all I will send you a copy. One of the family had a wide angle lens on his camera and took a few shots. I have offered to get them reproduced and copies made for everyone. Incidently, I will be more than happy to pay you for any tapes you use, if you should decide to take that route.

Family histories are certainly fun, albeit time consuming! My husband and I are "working" on his family - which were located basically in the central Michigan area after about 1840. We are lucky to have the State Library close at hand and many of my lunch hours are spent there. I have recently uncovered an obituary of one of his great-grandfathers in one of the papers that was on micro film. And I also uncovered some information in a published book on the Potters which took the line, directly, back to Rhode Island in 1638 when Nathanial Potter landed there from Leicestershire, England. Interesting past time! I think that gives my grandchildren knowledge of their "great to the 13th power" grandparents! I only wish I could find something out about the ancestors of my father. I know his father's first name and that is about all. I know my father grew up in Hindly, England, and some day hope to visit there. Perhaps I could get a few pointers on how to go about that from you one day.

Thank you again, David, for whatever information in whatever form you can convey to me. I really appreciate it.

Fond regards from your cousin (?),

Joyce (or Jo, as some of my family call me)

Joyce Aldrich

Dear Jo,

Here at last is the information about your Witheridge ancestry and mine. As I probably said on the postcard, I was delighted to hear from you and to find a relative who is also interested in genealogy. Elizabeth and I had a lovely visit with your mother many years ago, and we fell in love with her immediately. At the same time we also talked to your cousin Ada briefly, and later we enjoyed our contacts with Jean and Neal.

Over the last twenty years or so I have done a great deal of research and have arrived at the ancestral charts enclosed, which carry our Witheridge line back to 1553, as you can see, and other lines into the 1600's and 1700's. For over 300 years our ancestral families lived in the two parishes (or townships, as we would call them) of Berrynarbor and Combe Martin. The ancestral charts start with my grandfather, William Witheridge, but the ancestry would be identical for your grandmother, Betsy Chivers (as I always remember hearing her called by my family). I should have mentioned that Berrynarbor and Combe Martin are adjacent parishes in Devon.

In addition to the ancestral charts I am enclosing family group sheets starting with your family and going back to John Witheridge and Clara Blackmore. If you are getting into genealogy seriously, you have probably discovered that using these family group sheets is the most satisfactory way to record all the information you discover. I also strongly advise that you record the source of every single bit of information for future reference (and file the documents so you can find them!). I didn't do that meticulously at first, and I am still trying to back-track on that phase of my work.

If you can add to or correct any of my information, I'd appreciate your assistance. In particular, I know you can complete the sheets on your own family, and I hope you will return them to me at your convenience.

Now, let me tell you a little about our family. Elizabeth and I both grew up in Saginaw and were active in the First Baptist Church there. Elizabeth graduated from Central Michigan University at Mt. Pleasant and taught kindergarten in Saginaw for many years. I graduated from the University of Michigan in mechanical engineering and worked in Saginaw with my father for several years as a heating and ventilating engineer. Then I felt a call to enter the ministry and went to Colgate-Rochester Divinity School in Rochester, N.Y. Elizabeth and I were married just before my final year there.

After graduating from seminary, I became assistant minister of the Hyde Park Baptist Church in Chicago and also completed an additional graduate degree at the University of Chicago Divinity School. After a short pastorate in Marengo, Ill., I became the executive director of the Greater Minneapolis Council of Churches and continued in that position for 29 years until my retirement at the end of 1979.

Elizabeth and I have two sons. Jim, who is 38, lives in Minneapolis a few blocks from us and works in a furniture store. He is unmarried.

Ancestry charts: JPW 8, 128, 129, 130, 131, 132, 136, 137, 138, 2048, 2049
Family Group Sheets: JPW16, 16-2, 16-26, 16-267, 16-2671, 16-2672

Tom, who is 37, lives in Chicago and is married to Virginia Selleck, but they have no children as yet. They are both full-time psychiatric social workers and, in addition, are both working on their Ph.D.'s at Northwestern.

After both boys were in school, Elizabeth began another career as an author of books for children and young people. She has had seven published. She isn't writing at present, but she does a lot of volunteer speaking in schools about how to write books.

We were interested to see that you are employed by the Disciples regional office. We have many good friends in the Disciples denomination, and as Baptists feel very close to them. In fact, the one who succeeded me at the Council is a Disciple, Rev. Thomas H. Quigley. Perhaps Earle Van Slyck knows him.

That's about all for now. Enclosed is a picture of us taken last January. We look forward to hearing from you again after you have had a chance to go over the enclosed information.

Yours sincerely,

25 September 1985

Dear David,

I am writing to you with the help of my computer (the office's computer, that is) simply because it is so much faster. Some seem to think it is not the way to do a personal letter; however sometimes time is too valuable for that opinion to worry me!

I really do not know how I can adequately thank you for what you have done for me and my family. To share the information you have shows a generosity that is very rare. I have some inkling of how much time and effort went in to the gathering of this information - and know that I will come to appreciate it even more if/as we continue with our search. I say "if" but with both Bruce and I having an interest in this I assume it will go on for some time. You have given us a real boost - and it means a lot to me. Thank you.

I am not sending, at this time, the papers you asked me to fill out as I do not have all of the information for one son-in-law. I will make copies and send the originals back to you. I have noted several ommissions (middle names etc) and a few mis-spellings (Laingsburg is where my mother died, not Lainsburgh). These are minor, but I think it is necessary to be as correct as possible. I will note all of these on your sheets. I think I had a cram course on record keeping just by studying your family record sheets and the geneological charts. We have not been doing this - we have been searching and compiling information, but not in an orderly way. We have changed our habits! Thank you for that help, too.

I am enclosing with this letter a print-out of Redburn family information that I have gathered over the past several months. When you have a family as large as we do it is hard to keep up with just the simplest of information. I started the whole thing as a simple address list and, like Topsey, it just grew. If you can glean any information from this I will be happy. As you can see it is just of myself and my siblings and their children. There is some info missing, but someone is always either on the move or something! At least the dates don't change! Some dates are missing, but when you ask for information and don't get it.....I put all of this in the computer but I cannot print it out all on one sheet as the information is too "wide" to fit on one sheet of paper - so part of the information is repeated. I have underlined myself and my siblings. When I listed under "children" I put the married names of the girls and then they also have a listing. I am sure you can figure it out - but it may be misleading to you. If it is, just ask if you need anything cleared up.

Again I want to say thank you for all of your help. I have so many things I want to ask you and talk about. For instance, I have had an order in to the local book store for any books by Elizabeth Witheridge. I had heard, well over a year ago that I had a relative that had authored some children's books. As my daughter, Luanne, is interested in writing children's stories I thought it would be nice if she had some "encouragement" from a "family" member. So it was a delightful surprise to know just who that author is! Luanne has had one short story published so far. I will send you a copy of it when I remember to bring one to the office. I know we will be communicating many times.

My fond regards to you and yours, Jo

[This printout was provided to DEW by Joyce Aldrich, who maintained the records.]

Dear David,

Finally am getting around to mailing back these family record forms. It is surprising the info that you assume you know - and then don't really know when you go to put it to paper!

I made up a form, very much like the ones you sent, and have proceeded to make out approximately ten million (or so it seems!) of them - I guess it would be closer to a hundred or so. Anyway, I am having a great time - but now the problem comes to keep track of them, and for the life of me I cannot figure out a numbering system! At noon today I bought a book that may give me some clues - I am anxious to read it after choir practice tonight. Bruce and I are members of the People's Church of East Lansing, an Interdenominational Church serving the University and the surrounding towns. My mother was in on the very beginnings of that church.* She belonged, at that time and until her death, to the First Methodist Church of Lansing. Bruce and I were married in the First Methodist Church, but it moved its location to so far away that after we settled in East Lansing we joined the People's Church. We just installed a new minister - a Presbyterian - last weekend. We have about 1300 members, so the choir is a joy to belong to - a lot of talent from the University doesn't do any harm, either!

* - several denominations were in on it - mainly Baptist, Presbyterian, Methodist & U.C.C.

To get back to my mailing...I am also sending you a copy of Luanne's article - published in a small magazine out of Omaha, Nebraska - written about a well-worn subject, but well done I think. I am also sending a picture of my two daughters and their children. I have searched for an appropriate picture to send to you of myself and of my husband and the other children, but they all seem to be not quite right, but I will work on it!

I want to thank you again for all of your information on our families. It has given me a real boost in my search - and I surely would love to know how to go about it in the event that I could ever get going on the Chivers family and the Redburns. I did find, yesterday, in the State Library a very small obituary of my grandmother, Sophia Redburn who died in St. Charles 18 March 1927. The dates we had for her were different than the paper. I don't know if you are interested in any info on them (John and Sophia) or not. Let me know if you are and I will give you a copy. I can't go any further back than my grand parents on my dad's side. He still has one sister living in Lansing (Grand Ledge, actually) - Mabel - but she has no memory of anything now, nor did she several years ago. Oh, by the way, that obituary that I found yesterday was in the Saginaw News Courier. It mentioned, also, that John and Sophia came to America in 1907 and settled in Saginaw.

I don't believe that I ever thanked you for the picture of the two of you, either. It sits on my desk right now, but will find a place of prominence in my home as well as my heart. Thank you.

Did my sister, Jean, ever relay the story of my mother breaking her back about 1948? I will write you about it if she didn't - it might be of interest to you.

Anything else I can do for you I hope you will ask.

My fond regards to you both,

Jo

P.S. I wished to make a copy of the family record of John Redburn. As you can see it leaves much to be desired! But it's a start.

Dear David,

Was making a copy of my mother's and my father's obit for my daughter and thought I would make an extra for you. I am sure that you have all of the information they contain, but thought you might like a copy. Do I remember that I read that the info you have (some of it) came from an obit in the Mt. Pleasant paper? If possible, I would like a copy of that, too some time. No hurry.

Also, is it possible that you have anything on the Chivers family? That is probably for another time - my searching their history - but wondered if you have anything at all. I do have pertinent dates for some - probably what you have, but would like to double check. When I found the obituary in the State Journal for my grandfather, Albert Wm. Chivers, it mentioned a sister of whom I never remember hearing. It said he had one brother and one sister still in England.

Every day (almost) I go to the library in Lansing - today I was looking for some trace of Bruce's Great Grandfather Baker. We saw a copy of his marriage license and it mentioned a county in Ohio - so it started a whole new "chase". I do this on my lunch "hour".

I am so glad to get myself organized (somewhat) - and never would have been able to do it without your help. I will really be forever grateful to you. I stay up late every night making out the family record sheets. I really have made out hundreds in the past few weeks. Did you branch out to the siblings of any of the relatives you traced? If so, your book must be in 30 volumes! Bruce's mother is with us for a few more days - she lives the winters in Florida - and so I have been picking her memory for details of her ancestors. Bruce and I each have a 3 ring binder notebook - and they are getting packed full. Mother is 80 now, the last of our parents as Bruce's father died just a few weeks before my father passed away. She doesn't remember too well - not to any great extent. Let me tell you that my mother's memory was better than mine up to the day she died! She was a remarkable lady in many respects, and I am glad to say that she and I were "friends" and had many, many happy hours together - after she was confined to a wheelchair she really looked forward to visits from us all. At one time we had a schedule worked up so every hour of the day was pretty much taken care of. We thought it was good to do after my father had a few of the "little" strokes that preceded the larger ones. I would go in the morning before work, and most often take their supper to them at night. We had many opportunities to talk about many things - wish there was more family information included in those talks!

My very best to you and Elizabeth, Love, Jo

The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.

He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters.

He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.

Yea, tho I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for Thou art with me; Thy rod and Thy staff they comfort me.

Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: Thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.

Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever.

Dear David,

In one of my visits to the library last week I found a wealth of information - not sure of exactly what use! - in the City Directories of various cities. I went through the Saginaw Directory to glean any information about the Chivers, the Redburns and the Witheridges. I am sending you a copy of what I found on the Witheridges through 1941. Since the rest is current history anyway I did not bother to go further. They are available from before 1900 (I think the earliest was 1867) and they have most years up to 1983. There was no information on any Witheridge before 1906. I am not positive how this information was obtained and, like most published works, leave something to be desired as far as accuracy is concerned. But I copied [sic] away for a few days and have at least names and, with the addresses also, can put families in better groupings than I could before. We did not do a lot of visiting to Saginaw when I was young - and consequently all of my Redburn cousins are very unfamiliar to me. (I rather think that my mother was not too tolerant of my dad's brothers, if you want the truth!) In any case, I now have many names that I can slowly add to my growing file.

For what it is worth to you, the directory of 1906 and 1908 listed George W. Chivers (my mother's oldest brother) in Saginaw, boarding at 1111 Holland Ave. There are no more Chivers listed until 1932 when George's son, Frank, shows up and then in 1936 when Gladys apparently worked in Saginaw for awhile. Your record shows George going back to Wales and getting married and then, I suppose, they settled in Auburn and, unfortunately, there is no Directory for Auburn in the Lansing library. (Also, "bds" means, of course, boards)

Another interesting thing that turned up for us was the fact that in 1922 your father, (I assume) was employed at the J.D. Swarthout Co. Much earlier than this, in the late 1800's, one of Bruce's relatives by the name of Potter, was in business with a Mr. Swarthout in Ovid, Michigan. This partnership continued into the 1900's. The business was a dry goods store, I believe. Have not pursued this information yet to see if there is a connection with the two Swarthouts.

If there are any other bits of information that I could glean for you from any source that is available to me I hope you will ask. I would be so happy to be able to do something for you.

This morning had hints of winter in the air - I really love this time of the year, but not especially the really cold that is due us. I guess a person in Michigan should not talk about cold and snow to someone in Minnesota, should they!

Hope you are both staying well and enjoying life. My fond regards to you both.

Jo

Dear David,

I hope you don't get tired of my writing to you! — but I just have to tell you what happened Saturday evening. Comes under the category of "Small World".

While at a party I was talking to Sarah Stoppel, a friend from People's Church. We have known each other for about 3 years. She and I are in a support group for women over 40 and we were at a party given for one of our members. Anyway, during the course of our conversation I mentioned my activities — spending lunch hours at the library — she asked why — one thing led to another and I mentioned the monumental generosity of one of my relatives - how I had first written to a D. E. Witheridge and she said, "David Witheridge who married Elizabeth"?

To make a long story even longer — she is one of the daughters of Donald Grey of Saginaw — the minister who married you and Elizabeth. She remembered it was at "Miss Plum's house". Today, after church, I had a chance to talk to Mrs. Grey and she is such a lovely lady. She said, "Elizabeth is a wonderful person," and she remembers you as a "real gentleman." She said, "We saw them through their courtship" — told me about your adopting a child and then having one of your own.

This genealogy search is slow, but exceedingly rewarding!

3/ Back to the genealogy — I would like any info you care to give me on your brothers/sisters — or the Witheridges from your grandfather forward — The details of this are mind boggling, aren't they? It's surely a case for one step at a time!

Lovely fall day today. My son, Roy, and his girl, wanted to do some pheasant hunting, so we walked about 20 acres — very refreshing! We have corn planted and the pheasants are very numerous this year. Saw many deer tracks, too.

Hope you are enjoying the autumn — or is it now winter in Minn?

Love and regards, Jo

Dear Jo,

We have enjoyed your warm and friendly letters and feel we almost know you and Bruce, even though we haven't met. You will discover that my letters are always farther apart than yours. I'm working on so many family lines--both Elizabeth's and mine--that I'm usually far behind in answering my correspondence. It sounds as though your genealogical research has really taken a spurt forward, and I'm pleased to have had a part in this development.

Thank you very much for the helpful documents you have been sending. I have finally had time to record your information on my family group sheets, and many new names, dates, and places have appeared, as you can well imagine.

Let me immediately mention my numbering system, because I am enclosing a copy of my longhand description of it. I worked this out gradually in an effort to find a system by which I could assign a distinctive number to everyone of my ancestors and relatives. By starting the numbering with one of our sons, I was also able to include all of Elizabeth's ancestors and relatives.

I can't reconstruct what I may have read or heard that started me off, but I have since found that my system is essentially based on the Stradonitz numbering system. Somewhere I have a reference to where this is written up, and I should probably look it up and compare it with mine, but I haven't taken the time to do so, at least not in recent years.

As you can see, it all ties into the numbers on the ancestor charts I sent you. I decided that each person's number in my records should begin with the three initials of our older son, Jim (JPW), so the numbers could never be confused with anyone else's family numbers. If you adopted this system, for example, you could precede each number with the initials LA (unless Luanne has a middle initial). Your numbers, therefore, for the same ancestors or relatives would be different from mine. If Luanne eventually got interested in genealogy, she could have a numbering system beginning with TBF, that would include all of Robert's family, as well as your own.

Having used this system now for many years, I am well satisfied with it for my record-keeping purposes. Because of its complexity, however, it may not be the best system to use in a published family history. Unfortunately, I haven't had to face that problem yet, as I haven't begun to write or publish anything. I've added a few other features to the numbering system that I haven't written up yet--in particular, a way of numbering those who are not blood relatives, but only relatives by marriage. I'll leave the description of this to a later time if you are interested. One almost has to be a mathematician to understand it!

There are only a couple of problems I might point out. Every once in a while there will be a relationship that appears to be correct, but may not be well documented. In such a case I write the number down in pencil and add a question mark. At other times you will discover errors or new information requiring a change of numbers. Then there is nothing to do but correct the number and all the others affected by the change. It takes a little time, but it's important to keep the numbers accurate. By the way, I used to write my information in pencil on the family group sheets until I was sure of it. Now I write it in ink and make frequent corrections by using 1-line self-adhesive correction tape, as used in typing. I hand print all my information, as I find that more convenient than typing for the way I work.

Speaking of the ancestor charts, I designed the sheets I use after studying and trying a number of others I had seen. I began by using typed-in numbers going up to 31 on each sheet. To extend the information, I would start a new similar sheet, stating that #1 is the same as #16, for example, on the previous sheet. I soon gave this up and took the typed numbers off all the sheets except the first, so I could write in my own numbers, which continued on up in the pattern of the first sheet--namely, each person's number is doubled to get his or her father's number, and his mother's number is one more than his father's. Thus, the numbers only have to be filled in for the names that are known, and these numbers are very easy to determine. I am enclosing blank copies of each sheet, in case you want to Xerox some to try out. I'm also sending a sample blank copy of my family group sheet you might want to Xerox to try before you finally settle on one.

Next, I want to thank you for sending the copy of Luanne's article or story about Teddy Bears. Both Elizabeth and I enjoyed it, and we think she writes very well. We're delighted that she likes to write, and we know she will do more and more writing as time goes on. You didn't say much about this publication, but because of the last sentence of the article, we assume it was written for older young people or possibly adults. If it were a story for young children, it would probably have ended after about five paragraphs in the second column. It's a very interesting story with lots of action, and Luanne has written it beautifully.

We hope you'll be able to locate some of Elizabeth's books through your local library, possibly on interlibrary loan. Unfortunately, practically all of them are out of print. The only one you might be able to get on special order through a bookstore is Just One Indian Boy, published by Atheneum. One of the books, Never Younger, Jeannie, was based on Elizabeth's childhood on her grandfather's farm at the edge of Saginaw. That is, it's a fictionalized account of certain events, but the overall situation and story were made made up as a vehicle to carry these various episodes. The enclosed list will give the titles you can look for.

We were pleased to get the picturd of Fadra and Luanne and their children. The more we look at them, the more we love them. Now we're looking forward to more pictures when you can find the right ones. No, Jean didn't tell us about your mother breaking her back in 1948, so we'd like to hear the story.

Now, I'll go through your several letters and respond to some of the items and enclosures in them. Your print-out of the Redburn family is a remarkable and fascinating compilation, and it enabled me to fill out my records in short order. I'm glad you work with a computer and have one available. If I were younger, I would probably try to put all my genealogical material on a computer, but for several reasons I can't see myself starting out on that road now. The Minnesota Genealogical Society, of which I am a member, has a Computer Interest Group, and Elizabeth has a distant relative here who has put his information on a computer and recently transferred it to a new program after being dissatisfied with the first one he tried.

I was glad to get the information about John and Sophia Redburn and their children. Although I really can't undertake to expand my data on the Redburn ancestry, I can probably give you some suggestions on how to pursue your search in England. So I'll be glad to have reports from time to time on your efforts and results.

For example, I think your next step should be to write to The Rector, Church of England Parish, Hindley, Lancashire, England (each item on a separate line). Tell him your father was born there 22 Nov. 1890, the son of John Redburn and Sophia Hill. Ask if he would send you the full baptismal record from the parish register, as well as all the other Redburn baptisms, marriages, and burials for a period of time before and after that date. Enclose some money to cover his time plus return postage. Tell him to let you know if this requires a more extensive search, and you will send more money. You might send him a $10.00 bill; or preferably, if you have a local bank where you can get British pounds at a reasonable fee, you could send a £5.00 bill. (At one local bank here we can get British pounds at the current exchange rate with no additional fee.)

I'm sorry to say that I don't have anything further on the Chivers family, so I guess you'll just have to defer that to a later time. I can probably help with some ideas when you get around to it.

Concerning the information from Mt. Pleasant about your mother--it wasn't an obituary; it was just a notation in the "Centralite," the publication of Central Michigan University, reporting your mother's death. So I don't have anything about her that you wouldn't have.

I appreciated receiving the list of Witheridge entries from the Saginaw City Directories. It included many bits of information I had not known, such as addresses and places of employment. In regard to the Swartwouts, I don't know whether there was a connection with the family in Ovid or not. When we were children, I remember going out to a farm owned by J. D. Swartwout at Otisville (N.E. of Flint), but I don't know if his family had lived there a long time. You will notice that he spelled his name with a "w" after the "t", not the way the directory had it. J. D. Swartwout was a brother of a man in Cleveland who manufactured Swartwout ventilators, spelled the same way. The second "w" was not pronouncdd. We've since learned that in England the "w" in suchaa position is silent in most cases (as in Greenwich; also Norwich).

You wondered if I had branched out to the siblings of the ancestors I have traced. Yes, whenever possible, I fill in family group sheets for the ancestors I have identified, and I continue tracing their descendants and relatives as far as possible. As you can see, the whole thing gets bigger and bigger, and at this point I really can't keep up with it. How I wish I could miraculously copy everything I have relating to the Witheridge line and instantly transmit it all to you! But perhaps that would be just too much to absorb at one time. All I can promise is to keep sending you what I can from time to time.

In the same way that you are delighted to have found a relative who has been working on genealogy and can give you a boost now and then, I am delighted to have found one with whom I can share my work and who can help extend our knowledge both now and into the future. I know that I'll be calling on you for assistance many times in the coming days, though I don't have anything specific to ask at this time.

Elizabeth and I were quite intrigued to learn that you and Bruce are members of the People's Church in East Lansing. We have known about it since our days in Saginaw and have thought very highly of it. Elizabeth had a good friend, Ruth Perry, who was a member there for a while many years ago. Actually, she was a sister of Elizabeth's best friend and maid of honor at our wedding--Grace Perry. Ruth was an expert in child psychology and the education of young children, and she later was head of the nursery school and pre-school education at Riverside Church in New York City.

We are members of a very liberal Baptist church here--Trinity Community Church--and our church is in the process of merging with Grace Presbyterian Church to form Grace-Trinity Community Church. I am on the committee that is doing the planning for the merger. We have secured the By-Laws of about a dozen united churches that include both Baptists and Presbyterians, and the People's Church is one that we have been studying.

This has turned into quite a long epistle, but I'm really answering three letters. Once again I want to thank you for writing that first letter back in July and for opening up what promises to be a very enjoyable and fruitful relationship.

Much love to you and your family!

P.S. Your letter of October 20th just arrived, so I'll respond to it before mailing this. Elizabeth and I were amazed and thrilled to hear that you know Sarah Stoppel and suddenly discovered that she knows us. We haven't seen her for a long time, of course, but she and her sister Barbara were lovely young ladies, and great favorites of Elizabeth. In later years, though I remained in First Baptist, Elizabeth had joined Michigan Avenue Baptist where Donald Grey was minister, and became very close to the Greys. On the day of our wedding Mrs. Grey spent all morning at Elizabeth's house helping to make dozens of little open-faced sandwiches. When you see Mrs. Grey again, please give her our love and best wishes. She was an ideal minister's wife and was a beautiful role-model for Elizabeth as we were starting out in the ministry. And, of course, tell Sarah how pleased we were to hear about her through you.

Some day I'll give you the information about our family back to Grandfather Witheridge, but I can't go into that now, as I said earlier. Your mention of corn planting and pheasant hunting reminded me that we want to know more about your farm when you have time. Does Bruce just take care of the farm as a sideline, or is this a full-time endeavor for him? As I said, Elizabeth grew up on a farm, and still remembers those days fondly.

Love,

Editor's Note

The next document, W152, is a transcription by DEW of a tombstone inscription in the churchyard at Combe Martin, Devon, England. The text was copied in person, either longhand or in a photograph, by Combe Martin resident Norah Gregory (q.v.), who assisted DEW in many ways over the years.

In document calendar 134, DEW summarizes the document thusly: "Letter from Norah Gregory with tombstone inscription about Thos. Witheridge Gubb in Combe Martin churchyard." The log number is 831, dated 11/28/85.

Unfortunately, the letter from Norah has been lost, but DEW's preliminary and final (typed) versions of the inscription are included here as document W152.

31 December 1985

Dear David and Elizabeth,

This is my third attempt at starting this letter. I find I have so much to say to you that I don't know where to begin. I want to tell you all of the details of my life - you are turning into that kind of people to me - and there is just not time to do so. I do want to thank you for your last letter and am determined to write to you this year!

Your letter and its inclusions were very helpful to me and I used your forms almost exactly. I did add "interred" to some of the forms as we are interested in where burial is in many instances. I have the numbering system all figured out and it was very helpful to me to know what to do in the cases of multiple marriages - we don't have many, but a few. I still have a small, surmountable I am sure, problem in that I have some double cousins. You probably are aware that my mother's brother Edgar married my father's sister Mable and hence have created some number problems for me. I don't know whether just to simply duplicate the pages or double number them and put them under my father's section. No biggie, as I said, but a defugalty nevertheless. I have over 100 family record sheets for my side of the family to say nothing of Bruce's side. Neither of us has done much work on this in several weeks.

One of the last, most informative and rewarding, things that we did was to contact my cousin Sidney Redburn in St. Charles and go up there for a visit. Sidney is the oldest son of my father's brother Ralph - 81 years old. I now have all of the information filled in as to the wives/husbands of all of the children of my grandfather Redburn (John). One interesting thing we learned is that my grandfather had a brother who changed his name to Abbott - for what exact reason nobody seems to remember - probably did not want to serve in Her Majesty's Navy! or something like that. In any event he is buried in St. Charles and one of his children became the wife of another of my father's brothers - and so on and so on. I was able to give a picture of my grandfather and grandmother Redburn to my cousin Sidney - for which he is very happy. We also went on to Saginaw and drove all around - seeing where you lived and where some of my relatives on my father's side grew up. We visited the cemetery there and tromped around in the snow one day - and in the rain another. Bruce drove my sister, Winnie, and I there and we made a day of it.

As far as the ancestor charts are concerned I am using yours exactly and although I started typing on the numbers I found, as did you, that it made more sense not to. Thank you.

I have located one of Elizabeth's books, "And What of You Josephine Charlotte" but was not able to check it out of the State Library as it is in the Michigan Collection. I will read it there one day when I have the time. I have given a copy of the bibliography to many people and told them to keep an eye out. One of the people I gave it to is Louise Sause - would you, by any chance, know of Louise? She was a professor at Michigan State University in the field of child development/education and has been all over the world, spending time in Australia, South America, etc. Very interesting lady that I met a year or so ago - lives now in East Lansing and still very active.

Let me mention a few changes on my family record sheet that I sent to you - the computer print-out. Luanne was given the name Joyce as a second name but it is not on her birth certificate for some reason and she does not use one. Also I have my sister Jean's birthdate as April 3 as it is on her birth certificate, but my mother said it was the 4th and I guess she should know! Jean set me straight on that one. And my sister-in-law Doris, wife of George, died on November 22 in Los Vegas, buried in Deepdale Cemetery in Lansing. They lived in Arizona but she had an anurism and simply did not get through the surgery. She is one of identical twins (Dorothy Paskvan is her twin) and it was very hard to get through that service. She is the first of my siblings' generation to pass away.

I must not forget your Christmas postcard and its fantastic news! I am so glad for you - grandparenthood cannot be duplicated by anything of which I am aware - there is a special bond there. I hope and pray that all will go well and you will soon enjoy that special blessing in your lives. Bruce and I are sitting with Matthew and Jennifer tonight. Fadra and Jim have a New Years Eve party to go to and so we will entertain them (or is it the other way around!).

I am enclosing a few items that may be of interest to you. First there is a picture of my mother and father taken many years ago - about the time of their 50th wedding anniversary in 1969. It is the way I remember my mother mostly - although before she died many years later she was very bent. The gesture of my father with his hands is a very familiar one! He was deaf and I think that was an "I can't hear you" message! Both of my parents were deaf and I smile at the time I took them both for a hearing test and the doctor told me that although my father's hearing loss was significant my mother's was much worse. When I said that she could hear much better than he, he let me know that it was because she wanted to hear and he was just as happy letting her hear for him. Isn't that interesting - and it does reflect much about my father. He simply lived for my mother - adored her - and when he knew she had died so did he. My mother died in November and my father and she lived with my sister, Winnie, at that time. His mind was rather vague and he did not really know that she died even though we talked about it and he was there after the funeral and saw all of the relatives. But in March, when Winnie and her husband removed the empty bed from his room and he was told once again that Elizabeth had passed away it sunk in. He died in early April.

I am also enclosing a copy (bad one) from the two State Journals that had the articles of my brother Roy's "death" and "revival", and a photocopy of the funeral remembrance of John and Clara Witheridge in the event that you do not have that. My cousin Ada sent me many things on our family and I copied them all - but mostly they are of the Redburn side.

I am including a couple of bulletins from People's Church just for your interest. One of them is not really a bulletin but something from our stewardship program. The bulletin is of the form that we now use with the inside schedule there for everyone and even a layout of the floorplan which for such a large church is almost a necessity! Give them a toss after you look at them.

I have down in my notes to send you a copy of the family record sheets for the families of Ada Martin and Alvina Ward, daughters of Edgar Chivers. Do you want these? They are quite complete and I will be happy to send you copies if you want them. Let me know.

Bruce and I have been members of People's Church for many years (20+) and I have sung in the choir for several. I have not been overly involved in the program - but do enjoy the music. We both thought so much of Dr. Robertson who was pastor there when we joined and for many years. He is now Pastor Emeritus along with Julius Fischbach. I wish you and your committee much luck in the merger you are working on.

I don't remember what I have told you about our farm - but you mentioned in your last letter of Elizabeth's interest in that way of life. We have 80 acres here on the outskirts of East Lansing and have lived here since 1959. We built our house of lumber from our woods - of which there is about 14-15 acres - which we cut down in 1956-57 and had a portable saw mill in to cut the actual lumber. Bruce and his father farmed for several years as a sideline and then when his dad retired he did more. But we only have the land because we love it - and use it as others use a summer cottage or winter lodge - we just enjoy the land, farm a little, garden a little, chop a few trees for the fireplaces, do a little hunting now and then. Bruce graduated from Michigan State with an engineering degree and has been in business for himself at times and most recently with High Performance Machines in Troy. About 16 months ago he resigned from HPM and decided to strike out on his own again - doing the same thing but being out of manufacturing. Actually he is a manufacturer's representative for robot systems and we are now discussing the pros and cons of incorporating our company. He has an office in Birmingham and, as I said, at our home. He finds much satisfaction in his line of endeavor.

When the children were young we had ponies and horses for them and have since raised beef, a few pigs now and then, and up to this year had chickens - as many as 75 at one time. Right now we don't even have a dog as our black lab contacted heart worms and had to be put to sleep this past summer. He was the 4th lab we have had and no doubt we will have another.

Roy, our youngest son, is now living in our other house on this 80 acres. He is the one that will marry Annette. We are hoping that they will want to keep the house as it was another built from the ground up by Bruce and his father. It is about one-half mile from us. Roy is very interested in hunting and would be one to do the farming, I think. Annette has a horse, Jesse, and so it just seems to follow that they will stay there and raise little horses! We shall see. I will include a picture of Annette and Jesse with Tara riding (Luanne's daughter). They try to get Tara in at least one of the many horse shows that Annette is in each summer and we have a multitude of pictures of them, but most of them in motion!

We are thinking seriously of putting up a barn this summer. We now have a small shed-like place that has been adequate up to now, but Bruce bought an International M and it is now displacing one car in our garage! We also have a truck and some other equipment that needs housing, so...

Forgot to tell you about my mother and her broken back - it happened when I was 16 (1948). She was carrying laundry into the basement and somehow caught her foot and landed on her knees about 4 steps down on the cement. She called out to me for help - I was the only one left home and was getting ready to go to school - and I managed to get her to the davenport and then she insisted I go on to school. She was scheduled to speak for the Women's Society of the First Methodist Church of which she was President at a meeting somewhere in Michigan (Lake Odessa, I think) a couple of days later and although in much pain she was determined to speak at this meeting. She rode down there in a car, sitting on the edge of the seat as she could not sit back, gave her speech and somehow got back home. We finally convinced her that she should see a doctor and she agreed - and when they took x-rays they were startled to find that she had actually broken her back! The doctor could not believe the activities of the past few days and told here that she had to be in bed for many weeks and immediately - and if she were lucky she would not be permanently paralized. The x-rays also showed a couple of broken ribs that had healed themselves which she never had treated! The doctor wanted her to be hospitalized but she would not hear of it - so we got a hospital bed, removed the dining room table and had the telephone put in a better spot and from there she could see all of the downstairs and simply gave orders! My sister, Elaine, who had an infant at that time took care of her during the day and I took care of her, along with my father, in the evening. That is when I learned to cook! My mother was a very strong, very proud, very loved lady. I think of her almost every day and she has been gone now for 8 years.

Well, my friends, I think I shall bring this letter to a close. As I said we are babysitting tonight and the children will be here soon. Bruce has brought in some wood for a fire and we will, no doubt, re-read some of the well loved books that Matthew likes. They are lovely children, and we do enjoy them. I am knitting some sweaters for them and some hats - but don't get much knitting done while they are here!

I hope your holidays were good ones. We had all of the children here - even my son, Eric, who is rather scarce to us right now. He lives in East Lansing but is having a little trouble getting his life going in the right direction. It is difficult, I think, for young people these days. He is not lucky, as is Roy, to have a wonderful girl - we just hope he can find some measure of peace in his life and find someone or something to give to.

Our very best to you both in the coming year. I hope to hear from you when you find time and promise not to wait 3 months to answer the next time!

Love, and God's richest blessings,

Jo

Governor Bricker's—and that disappeared after the second night. The financial saving resulting from elimination of fancy trimmings is inestimable. And yet the Republicans were able to do the job for which they came together.

It will be interesting to see whether or not the Democrats will leave out the traditional ballyhoo. It is probable that they will, for it may not be smart politics to stage a Roman holiday in the present world crisis. Should they follow the opposition's example with no bad effects, the reform might take.

Farley

LOUIS BROMFIELD, the famous novelist and anti-Roosevelt farmer from Ohio, tells a good yarn about how he was scooped on his story at the Chicago convention.

Except for James A. Farley and Mrs. Farley, the noted author was presumably the only person who knew in advance that the former Democratic national chairman's wife planned to attend and to announce publicly that she intended to vote against her hubby's old boss—Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Mr. Bromfield, who was covering the meeting for a series of newspapers, imparted his exclusive information to two feminine journalists—Inez Robb of a national press service and Marcia Winn of the Chicago Tribune. They immediately tracked for Mrs. Farley's suite at the Blackstone. She was not at all loath to make her anti-Roosevelt sentiments generally known. She was the dearth of "hot headline stuff" at the moment that it was one of the better stories of the convention.

Mrs. Farley took pains to explain that her unexpected presence at an enemy shindig should not be interpreted as a hint that her distinguished husband meant to follow her example at the voting booth next November. But it is understood that she talked the trip over with him in some detail, and that he was willing to let her surprise appearance be regarded as a tip on how he felt about the 1944 political war.

WOUNDS ARE FATAL TO LANSING MARINE

Think Pfc. Robert Redburn, 23, in Saipan Fight; Was On Guadalcanal, Tarawa

Pfc. Robert "Roy" Redburn, 23, who had been serving with the Second marines in the Southwest Pacific area, died of wounds received in action and was given a military burial at sea, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Redburn, 1900 Maryland avenue, were informed in a telegram from Lieut. Gen. A. A. Vandegrift, United States marine corps commandant, they revealed Wednesday. The telegram, received Monday, gave no information as to when or where Private Redburn died but it was believed by his parents to have been within the last six weeks and probably in the invasion of Saipan. Their last letter from him was received May 15.

Redburn

Private Redburn graduated from Eastern high school in June, 1939. He had played on the school golf team for three years. He enlisted with the marines in March, 1942, and received his basic training in San Diego, Calif., leaving for overseas in October, 1942. He served on Guadalcanal and was then hospitalized in New Zealand after contracting malaria. He later served in the battle of Tarawa, after which he was transferred to Hawaii for advanced training.

Besides the parents, the young marine is survived by four sisters, Jean, Joyce, Winifred and Mrs. Clarence Hoffmier, all of Lansing, and two brothers, Dale Redburn of Lansing and George Redburn, an air cadet in Texas.

BREST LITOVSK FALLS AS REDS RACE WESTWARD

Removes Last Obstacle to Attack on Warsaw: Soviet Drive Undiminished

GERMANS FALLING BACK

(By the Associated Press)

LONDON, July 28—Brest Litovsk last great fortress position before Warsaw, was abandoned to the onrushing Russian armies today along with Kaunas in Lithuania, Berlin announced.

Soviet troops charged within 30 miles of the Polish capital. In a 17-mile advance beyond the San river, they penetrated to a point 128 miles from German Silesia.

Brest Litovsk and Kaunas gave the Russians 10 major triumphs in 24 hours as they whipped through the Baltic states, Poland and the Carpathian foothills toward East Prussia, German Silesia and Czechoslovakia.

The German high command announced the evacuation of Brest Litovsk in its daily communique, and soon afterward the Transocean agency admitted the loss of Kaunas, the old capital of Lithuania.

Nearest Russian troops were within 340 miles of Berlin itself with the capture of Garwolin, 30 miles southeast of Warsaw.

Other Triumphs

Other Russian triumphs were announced in a record splurge of orders of the day by Marshal Stalin coloring Moscow's skies with many-colored flares for five hours until midnight.

These were the victories:

1—Brest Litovsk, historic city of 50,000 on the western Bug river, 112 miles east of Warsaw. Moscow has not yet confirmed its capture but it virtually was surrounded last

'Dead' Soldier Writes Family; Wound Minor

Heartache had given way to joy Friday for the George Redburn family of 1200 Marston avenue when a letter from their son, Pfc. Robert "Roy" Redburn, 23, proved beyond doubt that an earlier war department telegram reporting his death from wounds on Saipan was erroneous. The telegram had been received July 3, notifying the parents that Private Redburn had died June 23 and had been buried at sea. The letter, however, dated July 19 and postmarked July 20, revealed that the young man was only slightly wounded, had been evacuated in a hospital ship and later removed to a rest camp where he now is convalescing.

Redburn

The latest letter was the second received from Private Redburn since the word of his death but the other arrived only two days after the telegram and gave the family slight hope as they thought it had been written before he died. Another telegram from the navy department was received a few days later, confirming the first message and giving the exact date of his death.

Private Redburn, who had been serving with the Second marines, entered the service in March, 1942, and left for overseas in October, 1942. He served on Guadalcanal and then was hospitalized in New Zealand after contracting malaria. He later served in the battle of Tarawa, after which he was transferred to Hawaii for advanced training.

Dear Jo,

Your year-end letter was a great joy to receive, and we thank you for all the information and enclosures. I think I now have time to do an adequate job of replying!

First of all, we loved all the pictures, especially the one of your mother and father. They certainly were special people, and we enjoyed having you tell us more about them.

We can see that you are a proud and happy grandmother, and you have every reason to be. Matthew, Jennifer, and Tara are all charmers, and so are Annette and Jesse. Although we have never done any riding nor owned any horses ourselves, we have gone to many horse shows at the Minnesota State Fair. Elizabeth grew up with horses and understands them better than I do, as you will recognize when you locate a copy of Never Younger, Jeannie.

Thank you for the two folders from the People's Church. I'm going to take them to the next meeting of our Review Committee, the one that's working on the merger of our two churches. We may get a few new ideas. By the way, we were greatly interested to learn that Dr. Fisbbach had been on your staff and is now an emeritus pastor. He was an interim minister of our church, Trinity Community Church, many years ago, and we still remember him with great appreciation. If you see him sometime, please say hello for us and the Trinity congregation. He may not remember me, but then again he might, since I was the Executive Director of the Greater Minneapolis Council of Churches.

Regarding my numbering system, whenever I have individuals with double relationships, I put both numbers on all the sheets involved and often duplicate the sheets in the appropriate places. So far, I haven't been perfectly consistent, but I sometimes place duplicate sheets under two families and then mark one of them, "Continued under - - - - -."

Although I don't use "interred" on my sheets, I add a footnote if I know the cemetery and feel it is important to be noted.

I'm sorry to say that we do not know Louise Sause. She sounds like a very accomplished person and an interesting one to know.

The name Perham on the remembrance folders you sent is completely unfamiliar to me. I looked through my sheets for the Witheridge families in Wales, but no one by that name turned up.

Thank you for the changes you sent for my family group sheets; I have duly recorded them. We, too, were very sorry to hear that Doris had died at such an early age. The two articles about Roy's presumed death are certainly astounding, and it's fortunate the outcome was so happy. We were also pleased to receive copies of the memorial folders for John and Clara Witheridge. The one new thing I learned was that they were buried at Aberdare Cemetery. Elizabeth and I had the rare privilege of seeing the house they lived in at 13 Bedlwyn Row, Cwmaman, when we visited Wales in 1976. There's a long and interesting story I should tell you about this some time--but not now.

Yes, I should very much like to have copies of the family group sheets for Ada and Alvina and their families. What I have is incomplete, and I have nothing about their grandchildren.

I'm interested in the fact that Bruce is an engineer and is now a manufacturer's representative as I was, in partnership with my father in the late 1930's. We represented many heating and ventilating lines, such as Kewanee boilers, Warren Webster heating specialties, Swartwout ventilators and power plant equipment, American Marsh pumps, and so on. However, this is probably not the type of equipment Bruce would be familiar with. My brother John still carries on the business in Saginaw.

We enjoyed hearing all about the farm and the animals, but we were sorry you lost your black lab to heart worms. We love dogs, too, but our breed is Norwegian Elkhound. We now have our third one, Rokk, who is six years old and a beautiful, intelligent, and loving dog. For several years we have been giving him heart worm medicine all summer during the mosquito season. (We often joke that the mosquito is our state bird.) He gets Filaribits every night after supper and gobbles them up as if they were candy.

The genealogy collection at the Library of Michigan sounds marvelous, and I appreciate having the descriptive folder you sent. We also have an excellent genealogy and local history collection for both America and England at our Minnesota Historical Society library, but it wouldn't have nearly so many Michigan resources. Some day I may ask for your help on some of our other family lines located in Michigan.

Christmas was very pleasant for us, of course, with our whole family together--Tom and Virginia home from Chicago, and Jim with us, too. Virginia and the baby have been doing quite well, though the last time we talked to them on the phone, she said the doctor was insisting on more rest for her, as her blood pressure was higher than it should be.

Now I must close and send you all our love and best wishes for the months ahead.

Fondly,

Invasive medical details
redacted here.

We must await the production of these lists but I'm now pessimistic that many of the oldest MIs especially those pre-1837, will not have been recorded or not recorded properly. I do hope I'm wrong.

DEVON EMIGRANTS TO NORTH AMERICA (1618—1660)

This article is based upon a transcript of Port Book material made by Peter Wilson Coldham, a professional genealogist from 16 Foxley Hill Road, Purley, Surrey. Mr. Coldham has extracted all entries from the Port Books that refer to sailings to the American colonies between 1618 and 1668. A copy of this transcript can be seen at the PRO, Chancery Lane. I have myself copied out, with Mr. Coldham's permission, all references to sailings from Devon and Cornish ports, and this list is appended to the end of the article.

Port Books are generally a little-used source by people searching for emigrant ancestors. They were basically Customs records referring to amounts of duty paid on goods shipped out of England. They tend to be voluminous and difficult to read, and so were avoided by the first researchers into early American colonisation.

Only those emigrants exporting dutiable goods were recorded in the Port Books, so the names shown in these records are merely a fraction of the number of passengers on board most of these ships. Indeed, some of these exporters were quite obviously merchants who never left English shores but who were sending their goods overseas to be sold by their contacts in the colonies. These merchants can be detected by the appearance of the same name several times during a short period of time. One classic example of this is William Palmer of Barnstaple who exported haberdashery and groceries to New England on five ships during 1628, 1631, 1633 and 1636. William Palmer was a well known figure in early 17th century Barnstaple. He became mayor in 1631 and 1642, and was apparently a Parliamentarian leader in the town during the Civil War years. Several Palmer had sailed to America before the Civil War, and William was possibly shipping his goods to a relative in the colonies.

Another example of a home-bound merchant was Walter Tucker of Barnstaple who exported groceries to New England in 1636. This was almost certainly the Walter Tucker who became Mayor of Barnstaple in 1639 and whose magnificent monument can still be seen inside the church of Barnstaple St. Peter.*

John Delbridge of Barnstaple was another famous name on this list of exporters. He was recorded in 1628 shipping cottons to Virginia. This man was mayor of the town several times and served as an MP for Barnstaple more than once. He held a strong interest in tobacco imports from Virginia. In 1632 he tried to evade a decree ordering that all tobacco should be landed at London by asking permission to unload a cargo at Barnstaple because the ship had sprung a leak! He was suspected of trying to avoid paying duty and his plea was refused.

Many of the other exporters shown on the list were, however, colonists actually sailing to or already living in America. Some of these names can be identified with those of known colonists. Isaac Allerton who shipped iron and fishing nets to New England during 1628 became a deputy governor of the Plymouth colony. He first sailed to New England on board the "Mayflower" in 1620, and had originated from Scrooby in Lincolnshire. William and Elizabeth Poole who shipped cattle from Dartmouth to New England in 1637 were a brother and sister from Tetacott in Somerset who had settled at Teticutt in Massachussetts. Another known emigrant was Roger Gard of Bideford, who in 1636 was recorded exporting canvas to New England.

*a photograph of this monument can be seen in my booklet "The Tucker Family of Devon".

At least half of the ships listed here were recorded as having sailed from Barnstaple, altogether 34 out of the 68 ships recorded between 1618 and 1660. Ships sailing from the neighbouring North Devon ports of Bideford and Appledore were probably listed amongst these Barnstaple ships. This illustrates the importance of Barnstaple and Bideford in the 17th century transatlantic trade, both for imports and exports. Bideford and Barnstaple reached their heights of prosperity during the late 17th and early 18th centuries, mainly due to their tobacco imports from Maryland and Virginia. They also played a major role, together with the South Devon ports, in the fish and timber trade with Newfoundland. Eighteen of these 68 ships sailed to Newfoundland between 1618 and 1660, although there were many more engaged in this trade not recorded in the Port Books. Presumably they were either not carrying dutiable goods or evaded paying duty. Four of these Newfoundland ships were recorded with cargoes of salt, obviously for the fish trade.

The next port after Barnstaple was Plymouth which sent out at least 15 ships across the Atlantic between 1618 and 1660. Another 8 ships sailed from the Exeter ports and 6 from Dartmouth. Newfoundland, New England and Virginia were given almost equal prominence as ports of destination for these 68 ships. New England received 25 ships, Virginia 23, Newfoundland 18 and Bermuda 1 ship.

The most interesting commodity exported across the Atlantic between 1618 and 1660 was probably the cattle referred to in 1636, 1637 and 1640. Devon cattle was highly prized by the early colonists as draught animals as well as for value as milk and beef producers. These references from the Port Books are probably the earliest offical records of the export of these beasts to America.

The appearance of groceries and woollen goods is understandable in view of the basic needs of the early colonists. Devon was, of course, a primary cloth-producing county at this time. However, the complete absence of the earthenware goods exported from the Barnstaple and Bideford area can only be explained by their classification as non-dutiable items. This trade was first referred to in 1635 when forty dozen pots were sent from Barnstaple to New England. Excavations at Jamestown and Plymouth in America have revealed large quantities of shards from North Devon earthenware.

Some of these ships that braved the Atlantic crossing were tiny vessels, scarcely larger than a modern yacht. The smallest ship shown here must be the "Merlyn" of Barnstaple, weighing 20 tons. Altogether 36 of these ships (where the tonnage is shown) weighed 100 tons or less, and only ll amounted to more than 100 tons. One does need to treat these tonnage figures with a certain amount of caution, however, since they do not correspond with modern measurements. They refer to the carrying capacity of each ship and not to its actual size. To gain a rough idea of size, it is know that the "Mayflower" that carried the Pilgrim Fathers in 1620 amounted to about 180 tons and measured some 104 feet in length. The masters who sailed these ships must have been brave and hardy men. Most of the masters' names shown here occur only once, but a few crossed the Atlantic at least twice. These men were John Dennis of Barnstaple who sailed in 1631 and 1638, William Ellyott of Barnstaple who sailed in 1628 and 1631, and George Luxon of Bideford who sailed in 1631 and 1638.

"ST. ANDREWS"
GORSE HILL ROAD
VIRGINIA WATER, SURREY
WENTWORTH 3056

8th Aug. 1986.

Dear David and Elizabeth,

Here is something, David, for your geneological records, [W161] an extract from the Parish Records of St. Botolphs, a well known church in the City of London, near where I worked for some 50 years. It was "discovered" by a friend of mine, who was with me in the prisoner of war camp in Germany and who helped in founding the Brunswick Boys club (we were at Brunswig) and of which we are both Trustees. He was investigating his own family tree, his name is Peyton, hence the initials "DCWS P."

With his connection with the sea this John Witheridge could well have been one of our forbears. The date goes well back – 1617. Have you anything prior to that?

What a barbarous lot they were in those days. Fiftie of the companie being sold into slavery into Barberie (Barbary is, I believe, the old name of North Africa.)

I am sending a copy also to the present John Witheridge, my nephew. You probably know he is chaplain to the archbishop of Canterbury and accompanies him on his world wide travels. John took quite a prominent part, behind the archbishop, in the recent Royal Wedding.

Another nephew, Anthony, George's son (like John with 4 children) is now a Colonel in the Army and is shortly going out to Brasilia as the British Military attaché to Brazil.

Frank, my brother, is quite sickly with emphasaemia. He is 73 and has always had bad lungs.

Otherwise we are all in good health and enjoying life.

The other brother,* Stan, who was in New Zealand, has moved up to Queensland where the semi-tropical climate will be better for his wife Ethne who suffers from arthritis.

I hope you are enjoying your retirement, David, and that you are both well - and the family also. We send our affectionate greetings to you all.

Harry.

* Must mention of course George, the eldest, who is his usual robust and rumbunctious self.

Dear Harry & Toots,

As Christmas approaches, I'm frantically trying to do some things I need to do before writing a few letters like yours. When your letter came in August, I was fascinated with the information about the ship master, John Witheridge. What an interesting story about his ship and crew being taken by pirates and a collection being taken for them in 1617 in London!

I didn't reply right away because there were some things I had to look up. Several years ago I had come across a reference to a John Witheridge, master of a ship from Barnstaple, who sailed back and forth to Maine in New England. I have now looked that up, and I find it was in 1623, 1624, and 1625, so it was probably the same person.

Here is the quotation from Pioneers on Maine Rivers, by Wilbur D. Spencer, 1973:

"In 1624, John Witheridge, master of the Eagle, a Barnstaple ship owned by Melchard Bennett, had established himself at Pemaquid Harbor. . . While forbidden by the council to truck with the Indians, he had been licensed to fish on the coast. . . Witheridge was then so popular with the Indians that they reserved their furs and traveled long distances to seek his trade. Their preference for him was manifest as far west as Casco Bay, although other shipmasters in the vicinity were as well supplied with attractive commodities." (p. 310)

"Since all early mariners were traders, their fishing stages on the islands were summer marts for the storage of English and Indian commodities, which in turn were exchanged for southern tobacco.

"Some credit was allowed, but in 1625 Edward Nevell, an agent for Weston, refused to deliver a consignment of tobacco to Thomas Crisp, a merchant from Virginia, unless Captain Witheridge, the Dorchester factor, would assume the responsibility for the deferred payments. The merchandise had reached Damariscove in the Swan, of which Nevell was master, and the fact that Witheridge returned to England at the end of the season without undertaking the obligation, proves conclusively the (~~seasonal~~) nature of his business." (pp. 312-3)

At one time I tried to identify this John Witheridge in Barnstaple, but didn't discover any John referred to as a mariner, though I did find one who could have been the right age (born in 1572). Of course, this John could have been from a different town and still have been the captain of a ship from Barnstaple.

I do have the record of many Witheridges in North Devon in the 1500's, including my own line back to 1554 in Berrynarbor. Unfortunately, I haven't been able to trace your line back behind George Causey Witheridge in the 1800's. However, I have an idea his ancestors were the Causey family in Northam, because there were two George Causeys there — one born in 1813, and the other in 1833. Some day we'll make the connection. In any event, I'm sure we're somehow related to the ship captain, because all the North Devon Witheridges in those days were cousins of some sort.

I appreciate your bringing me up-to-date on the other members of your family. Do you suppose your nephew, John Witheridge, is at all interested in genealogy? I'd be very pleased to correspond with him about what I know of his ancestors. In his position and location he might be able to help with the process. You might suggest that he write to me; or, if you'll send his address, I'll be happy to write to him.

Our year has had both sorrows and joys. In February the baby our son Tom and his wife Virginia in Chicago were expecting had to be taken two months early because Virginia had developed a serious condition known as pre-eclampsia. The baby only weighed 2 lbs. 10 oz. and had lung and heart problems and only lived 18 days. It was a dreadful experience for us all.

However, just a few weeks ago Tom finished all the requirements for his Ph.D., so life will be a little easier for him now. Virginia is also working on her Ph. D. and hopes to be finished in the spring.

Our other son, Jim, lives and works here in Minneapolis, so we see him often. A year ago he got a new job in a furniture store, and he seems to be liking it better as time goes on. He is unmarried.

Our health has been good, and we hope yours has been, too. Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year!

Love,

David + Elizabeth

Dear Elizabeth & David

Well here I am again delighted to be able to write a few lines this Christmas, My relatives abroad seem to increase each year. I am trying to catch up the Mail. to remember each one. when you last wrote, you mentioned. you were to be grandparents. Well I hope everything went well, either it be a Boy or a Girl. one or other would have been Gods gift. a year now. Henry passed away. I gave you the news. I wonder if any of the family wrote & told you. that Lily May the eldest Sister died JUNE 2nd of this year 1986. She was 75 yrs old, & never Complained much about her illness, She was admitted to Hospital for a week, where she detiorated, rapidly. Elizabeth her other Sister looked after her for a week after she collapsed outside her Home. I had promised her faithfully I would took after her during an illness, but it was not to be. Elizabeth has had a strenuors time herself this last Year. Her youngest daughter Marlene had a nasty operation, & must now take great care of herself. She is in full time Nursing, carer & Liz eldest daughter Julia, had been home from work for Some time, with a back ailment, it proved very Severe & she had an operation, on the nerves She is slowly recovering, but will take a long time to cure it. Well here it goes again. Elizabeth is now a Great Grandmother. Marlenes daughter's Baby named Jamie Lee. Yes our Liz was also a Great Granny. Davids daughter Mandy had a little girl named Kirsty. Well would you believe it. Jamie Lee is hopeing to have a brother or Sister, early in April. I cant tell you who will be next. There have been some weddings, Births & Christenings in that family in the last Year. it has kept the family together, as weve had some nice gatherings. Nellie the youngest Sister has been down Llanelli very often for these particular occassions. Deaths. marriages. & Births

My own Grandaughter is 16 yrs old + now works. one day a week, at our Local Stores, saving all her extra Cash, to enable her go with the Youth Choir, to Boston next April. It cost a lot of money. So many Concerts are held to boost up the Funds. It is a wonderful opportunity for her. Now then there's something about myself. My niece is getting married end of January out in Canada, so I Winnifred Jane have been invited to the wedding + by now I have made my mind up to go out for 3 wks. I will travel out with my Brother + Sister in law. I would dearly love to have my daughter Jean to come along, as Elaine will be going in April, I guess its such a short visit + time of the Year, they havent quite considered altho the invitation is open. I do hope you are keeping fit + well. Only wish that some of the family would write to you, I doubt whether the Hookway Son would know about Lil. as the family didnt let anyone know. The funeral was very private + I didnt know his address. We receive a Sunday Newspaper, & were discovered that an article has been written in the name of Annette Witheridge. I have been considering writing in to The News of The World, to get some. information regarding the Unusual Name. Should I at any time ~~here~~ hear of her I shall drop you a line perhaps it will be of interest, she is surely a desendant of the clan. Well dears this is all the. news I have at the moment. I did ring up Elizabeth but she was out & Julia, was feeling better or recuperating. I sincerly hope that some or one of the family will write to you failing me to do so. I can mention it that Lil's Home is now occupied by her grandaughter, & great grandaughter, They moved in with everything left as it was. She lived only 2 doors from Lil's house with her parents (David & Jean Can you fathom this out hope it is not to much of. a Jumble, at least it is an effort.

With Fond Love
From Winnie. Jean & Elaine.

Dear Elizabeth & David,

We do hope you are both fit and well, and that all the members of the family are flourishing. A very happy Christmas, and peaceful and healthful new year to you all!

Last evening, Gerald Walters arrived with the address you have been seeking for so long! It is:-

- so we do hope you will be able to make successful contact.

Some time ago, you also enquired whether Robyn (my neice) would be able to undertake research at Exeter; she is going to New Zealand to visit her maternal grandfather in February-March, but says she could undertake some limited research next summer. She is:

My parents are mentally very fit, but increasingly more frail; fortunately, I'm blessed with excellent support from the Health service, but caring is now a full-time, 365 day a year, task. I know the truth of 'My grace is sufficient'.

With love and best wishes, Una.

Dear Jo and Bruce,

I'm going to start right out by telling you about these genealogical materials I'm enclosing. First, as you see, are the family group sheets of my own family back to my grandparents. These will tie into the other ones I sent of my great-grandparents (and yours), John Witheridge and Clara Blackmore, which [sic]

The other materials all relate to our Witheridge (Gubb) relatives in South Africa. I don't think I have mentioned them to you so far. This kind of discovery is the kind of thing that happens to Elizabeth and me all the time because of our genealogical efforts. We have gradually discovered that we are in some way tied into almost every part of the world and almost all of history through our ancestors and relatives, distant though they may be. This makes everything we read about current events and history so much more meaningful and personal to us. We hope that you have been finding this, too, and that this new discovery will add to your excitement about genealogy.

It all came about because one of my (our) distant relatives in the London area sent me a clipping his wife had found in a London newspaper. I say "distant relative" because his ancestors came from North Devon; but so far I haven't been able to tie his family into ours. His name is Harry Witheridge, and he is a retired banker. I learned about him and his brother George, a retired civil servant, from the British telephone directories I checked through many years ago at the New York Public Library. Then we were fortunate enough to meet them on our two trips to England in 1976 and 1980, and we just fell in love with them and their wives. So now we correspond with each other at least once a year.

The rest of the story I'll let you pick up from the enclosed correspondence with Margaret Gubb, the widow of Noel Gubb, a descendant of the original Thomas Witheridge Gubb. It's just too long to repeat, and anyway I think you'll enjoy trying to make out Margaret's writing. If you have any trouble figuring it all out, let me know.

I'm sorry to say that Margaret died from cancer not many months after her last letter, and so far I have had no further contact with her family. I tried to get the address of one of her children through our relatives in Combe Martin; but I didn't hear from the one who really knew her and saw her every year or so, until he finally came up with the address this last Christmas time. Now that I have her daughter's address, I'll be writing her soon to reestablish contact with the family.

When the pedigree arrived from South Africa, I was overjoyed. It tied right back into our ancestry that I had worked out mainly through the parish registers. So I carefully combined what I had with the wonderful additions from the printed pedigree and constructed the other pedigree I am enclosing. As you see, I had to make one important correction to the printed pedigree, but it was mostly a case of combining the two sets of information. Mine goes back a little further because I have included in tentative fashion the names found in the Devon Lay Subsidy Rolls of 1524-27, edited by T. L. Stoate, 1979.

Now I'll switch over to current family matters. You knew that Tom finished his Ph.D. last fall. Just a week ago we heard that Virginia has also completed hers; so now they'll have a more normal and relaxdd existence. It's been a long and difficult struggle.

Unfortunately, Jim has recently been laid off from his job at the furniture store, so he's looking for a new job. He really wasn't thrilled with that job, anyway, so maybe he can find something more to his liking.

Our church union to form Grace-Trinity Community Church has recently been approved by the Presbytery, and we are very happy about that. It still has to be approved by the Presbyterian General Assembly in June, but there doesn't seem to be much doubt that they will approve. The Baptist denomination doesn't have to vote officially on it, but the Area Minister has sent a letter of commendation and agreement. So now we are working on By-Laws and hope to be incorporated some time this fall.

That's wonderful news about the forthcoming wedding of Roy and Annette. The picture you sent of her in her riding habit was just darling, and we're glad you like her so much. We're also pleased that Fadra is expecting a new child and is feeling fine. Probably Virginia and Tom will try to have another child now that their lives are a little less strenuous.

We hope that your brother George is getting along a little better and that he is not suffering. We also hope that Jean's operation was successful and that she is recovering well. We're glad to report that our own health has been good this winter, except for colds and sniffles. This has been the warmest winter anyone can remember, with absolutely no snow during January and February and none at all on the ground. Our 70-degree day a week or so ago was the earliest ever in the records.

I guess that's all for this time. Best wishes to all of you, and lots of love!

Dear David & Elizabeth,

Enjoyed hearing from you over the Xmas and now here it is spring or at least we are having a very early one. No snow this year and the flowering trees are all out in bloom. It's just beautiful this Sunday morning — yes I (we) played hookey from the kirk today.

Pat hasn't been well this past month. Off work and I can see another two weeks of rest. Doctors say it has the characteristics of hepatitis but they aren't sure that it is. Enlarged liver and general weakness. The medication is rest and 3000 calories a day. She has gained about 30 lbs which doesn't please her at all as she has always prided herself on a trim figure. She is feeling much better for which we are thankful

Last month we had a new tracker organ dedicated and it sounds just lovely but I'm afraid it is a little dominant in the chapel which isn't to everyones taste. We had a resource person come in and discuss 'worship areas' and the talk has firmed up the resolve of some of us to make some worthwhile changes in the area. Her presentation went beyond that which an architect would recommend as she has a strong church background and committment. She gave a seminar which consisted of a video produced by our local United Church Presbytery, then she spoke giving her approach to the creation of a suitable worship space. She is an artist who works beautifully in fabrics but treats them not as an end in themselves but as part of an ~~#~~ adjunct to worship. The Lutheran Church has a wonderful magazine "Liturgy" which deals with this. The specific copy is called "Dressing the Church" if you're interested. Obviously my enthusiasm causes me to rattle on and on! Anyway the group of twelve or fifteen then went to the chapel - entered from the back with the attitude that we had never been there before. Wrote and discussed both the pluses and the negative aspects. It was a very positive experience and we all agreed where changes were needed.

We also dedicated the last of our clerestory windows last month. A local artist created the window on the theme Pentecost. I'm chairman of the Committee which handled it. Very satisfying to see something like this come to fruition. We had eight Canadian artists submit designs and then chose, as it happens, a local man Lutz Haufschild.

Genealogy - yes I have my hand at it again. Several years ago I wrote a Mrs Eileen Stage who had some knowledge and material ~~of~~ on Coast Guard Service. She apparently had a reference on Thomas Witheridge (1808). Sent a pound - never heard - sent a reminder. never heard. This past week, ~~$~~ two years later I had a note from a Mr H.A Payne who is a friend of Mrs Stage, and had met her by accident in Oxford and mentioned that he was beginning some research on his wife's family. She recalled that she had some info including that which I had sent. To make a long story short it turns out she is Neil Witheridge's cousin. I think they had no knowledge of each other

So out of it all perhaps may come good things. I am enclosing a chart for your information. The information he supplied ties in very well

He included some info which I never had – marriages etc in addition to Coast Guard info. Have you ever worked with Coast Guard information. I note they mention HMS Active and wonder what type of boat it was. There is also note re Court of Enquiry that might be an interesting reference to follow up.

I don't know if I mentioned in the past that I had a very nice letter from Neil Wilbridge and he sent along a picture of his grandfather Jacob which I was pleased to have. Looking at the date of the letter 1983 makes one realize that we would all do well to get as much information from the living as the years go by so fast and sources vanish. He is 66 now probably retired now and possibly the contact lost if he has moved. I sent him a chart to the address I have anyway.

I'll close now – hope you are keeping well and both looking forward to spring (are there hints that it is on the way? The east has had an awful year weather wise hasn't it.

We both send best wishes

John + Pat

Dear John and Pat,

You will be surprized to hear from me so soon after your last letter. I'm afraid I've written only Christmas cards to you lately. I greatly appreciate your notes from time to time, and I know you understand and forgive me when I fail to respond promptly.

I'll begin by answering your welcome and interesting letter. We're sorry to hear that Pat has not been well lately, but we hope she is now gaining back her usual strength. Fortunately, we have had reasonably good health this winter, due in part, no doubt, to the fact that we, too, have had a very mild winter with practically no snow.

We rejoice with you in the completion of your new tracker organ and hope it continues to enhance your worship. We were also interested in your consultation with the resource person regarding your worship area, as well as the dedication of your clerestory windows, and we appreciate the involvement both of you have had in all of this.

Your mention of Eileen Stage reminded me that I had written to her some time ago. So I looked up that correspondence and found that it was in regard to my Blackmore ancestry in Devon. I'm distantly related to R. D. Blackmore, the author of Lorna Doone. I've tracked down the approximate connection, but still lack a few specifics. Another correspondent had told me Mrs. Stage could send a copy of a little book about R. D. Blackmore. She did so and also sent some information about her family's connection with the Blackmores. It only took her six weeks to answer, so I feel quite honored!

Anyway, she did put you in touch with H. A. Payne and his wife's relationship with Neil Witheridge and you. Thank you very much for your new Witheridge chart. I've added all the new information to my record sheets. Like you, I assume that Neil is now retired; but his address may still be the same, as that was his family's home for a long time, I believe. I haven't been in touch with Neil or his nephew Robin for several years.

Now I'll explain all this material I'm sending. I won't go into detail, but will let the material speak for itself in the main. Harry Witheridge, a retired banker who lives in Surrey near London, sent me a clipping of a death notice discovered by his wife in the London Daily Telegraph. From there you can follow the story by reading my letters and Margaret Gubb's replies. Instead of repeating everything, I thought you'd enjoy trying to decipher Margaret's writing and wording. (You may also have a little trouble with some faint spots in my carbon copies.)

It was a great thrill finally to receive the printed pedigree chart, and I carefully compared everything with what I had developed on my own, mainly from parish registers. The compiler of this pedigree obviously had reference to wills that were destroyed in the bombing of Exeter Cathedral during World War II and are now unavailable. On the other hand, I had some things that He didn't have, including references to early Witheridges of North Devon in the Devon Lay Subsidy Rolls, 1524-7, T. L. Stoate, and then I drew up my own chart, which is also enclosed. The names underlined in red, of course, are my own ancestors. Your ancestor, Francis Witheridge, was a brother of Mary How Witheridge, who married William Gubb, so you are more closely related to the South Africa family than I am.

Unfortunatäly, Margaret Gubb died from her cancer not long after her last letter to me, and I heard about her death from another relative in Combe Martin. I tried to get the address of Margaret's daughter, but only recently received this and will now try to re-extablish contact.

This discovery of relatives in South Africa is the kind of thing that happens to Elizabeth and me all the time because of our genealogical efforts. We have gradually discovered that we are in some way tied into almost every part of the world and almost all of history through our ancestors and relatives, distant though they may be. This makes everything we read about current events and history so much more meaningful and personal to us. We hope that you have been finding this, too, and that this new discovery will add to your genealogical excitement.

Very sincerely yours,

Dear Sir,

I have recently undertaken some research with respect to my family and have been fortunate to have traced my grandparents (both maternal and paternal) under the name of Witheridge back to about 1550 at Berrynarbor, Dev.

Yesterday it was brought to my attention that there is a Withridge Parish. — A pleasant surprise!

The name is not too common and I wonder if you have any information of a historical nature which might fill in the bones on an otherwise bare names and dates chart. I would be interested in the origins of the Withridge parish name etc.

Any information you might have would be so much appreciated.

I look forward to hearing from you

Sincerely

John James

Dear Mrs Witheridge, (Winnie)

How lovely to receive your letter - I'm always interested to track down any Witheridges because, as you say, there are so few of us. And, yes, I'd love to hear from your relative in America too.

I'm passing your letter on to Kim Cook (nee Witheridge), an incredible lady who has been tracing the family history for years. She has an amazing cross-referenced index and when I met her for the first time a year ago she already had me on file! Her address is 18, Hawkhurst Way, West Wickham, Kent, BR4 98F.

There is a village in Devon called Witheridge, which was mentioned in the Doomesday Book and is famous for being the only English village with two squares. According to Kim's painstaking research, we all appear to have invaded the rest of the world from there!

John Galsworthy, the author of the Forsyte Saga, is a Witheridge. Kim also has some facinating facts on an Edmund Witheridge, a Victorian worthy from Kingston-upon2Thames who made a vast fortune - later lost by his children.

At Penn, in Buckinghamshire, there is a Witheridge Lane and a couple of large houses with the same name. I made a few enquiries and was told that Lord Penn, the first governor of Pennsylvania, had called his house in the state Witheridge too. But to date I haven't managed to find out any more on that.

As for my own family, we're from Birmingham. My late father Dennis had a twin sister, Eileen, and three brothers, Leslie, William and Norman. Only Leslie and William are still alive but they never married. Norman has a daughter Susan and I have a sister Yvonne. So unfortuneately it looks as though our line of Witheridges are dying out.

I have tracked down an elderly cousin of my father's called George Witheridge, still living in Birmingham. He also had two daughters! And according to his memory my father's father was Arthur, his brothers were James (George's father), Fred, an Army officer who died in India, and sisters were Lizzie and Amy. George doesn't know his grandparents names but says they lived in Wellington Street, Winson Green, Birmingham.

The difficulty I have is that my father, who died in 1979, rarely talked of his own childhood. From what I can gather, his mother Florence, died young and when he returned on leave during the last war his father had remarried a woman with another SEVEN children. Dad then went to live with his uncle James, who I only vaguely remember.

Still, I'm sure most Witheridges are related as there are so few. I do hope this will help the Rev. Witheridge, if you send me his address I'll drop him a line.

Kind regards.

Annette . Witheridge

Editor's Note

What follows are two separate items written by Kim Cook (q.v.), and clipped together by Dad, with document number W172 and log number 977 printed by him (and me) in the upper righthand corner. The two items are:

- The last page (p. 9) of what Kim described in the closing paragraph as "this marathon epistle." The main topic discussed is Kim's "theory that there was, in addition to the town of Witheridge, another location of the same name, probably in South Devon."
- A short article by Kim for the very first issue of The Witheridge Times (q.,v.), Vol. 1, No. 1, Spring 1987. The title of the article is "Witheridge Origins." It discusses both the name Witheridge itself and the locations where it arose.

As a general rule, Kim's handwriting is quite legible (I'd give it an 8 or 9 on a ten-point scale where 1 = "yikes!" and 10 = "as good as it gets"), but in the first segment of this document (p. 9 of the letter) she was — as she herself admitted — eager to finish "to make sure it goes in tomorrow's post." So it's a struggle to understand every word, and since the topic is so fascinating and important, I've decided to attempt a transcription (which immediately follows her handwritten original). When I simply can't be sure what she said, I'll enter either alternatives or question marks [in brackets, like this] in place of her word(s). If you don't like my word choices, feel free to go with your own; I won't be offended.

Finally, let me say that I'm sorry I can't find the other pages of the letter; if they turn up, I'll scan the whole thing and toss the fragment you see here.

P.S. Regarding the choice between "willow" and "castrated ram" (see the Times article), if I get a vote, I hereby cast it for the former — and to heck with Kim's (undoubtedly quite scholarly) three reasons for choosing the latter. Of course, as a male I can't remain totally dispassionate on the subject, right?

One other really exciting piece of Witheridge news concerns my theory that there was, in addition to the town of Witheridge, another location of the same name, probably in South Devon. An Old English Place-Name Society book, published some 75 years ago, listed 'the Domesday manor of Witheridge, in Plympton Hundred' but added that the location had been entirely lost. With the help of the Local Studies Dept at Plymouth Library, Witheridge has now been found! Over the years, its name has changed to Withyhedge, but comparing later maps with the Doomsday reports, it does seem to be a correct identification. Benjamin Donn's 1765 map of Devon shows Withyhedge clearly marked in Plympton Hundred. ~~[illegible]~~ It doesn't show on the current 1:50,000 Ordnance Survey, but on the 1:10,000 map (1982) there is a field called Withyhedge Brake, exactly corresponding to the position shown in 1765! The OS reference is 490 516, on the land between the footpath + the cliff, immediately south of the borough boundary. If you don't have an OS map, it's between Jennycliff Bay + Staddon Point, west of Staddon Heights. As you will see, it is very close to Wembury, + is presumably the place from which the South Devon Witheridges take their name.

In my next letter (yes, I really will try to make it soon!) I hope I will be able to include photocopies of the Domesday entries + the 1765 map, as well as some photos of us, our home + our Jeannie. We have your last photo in a frame on the book case in our sitting room, where you are in full view every day.

But now I will close this marathon epistle to make sure it goes into tomorrow's post, + hope that you will have it by Monday, bringing very much love to you from all of us, and a strong hope that somehow, somewhere, we can soon get together again. Meanwhile, take care – God bless you, + lots of love,

One of the really exciting pieces [Kim wrote piece but obviously meant pieces] of Witheridge news concerns my theory that there was, in addition to the town of Witheridge, another location of the same name, probably in South Devon. * A Dec. 9, 2021, Google search by the editor (TFW) for "What is a brake in England?" yielded this answer: "Archaic term for bracken. The word brake or bracken is one of the many plant names from which some of our English surnames are derived, as Brack, Breck, Brackenridge, etc."

Witheridge Origins

by Kim Cook

Although I've never owned the name Witheridge myself (it was my mother's maiden name), I've always thought it must be among the best of British surnames. Distinguished but not pompous, down-to-earth but not crude, uncommon enough to be interesting, but not rare enough to be odd, it's a good, sound English name. And it's ideal from a research point of view too, as the outline is readily spotted in even the most illegible of old documents.

But where does the name come from, what does it mean, and how do our families come to bear this fascinating name?

The word itself is Anglo-Saxon, but there has been some dispute about its meaning. Ridge presents no problems, coming from hrycg, meaning back, hump, or elevation, as in raised land or the pitch of a roof. The first part of the word has been said to mean either willow or castrated ram -quite a difference there!

So which is correct? Willows are certainly more elegant, but I believe the ram is more accurate, for three reasons.

Firstly, the Anglo-Saxon alphabet differed from ours in a number of ways. Instead of using the letters th, it had two distinct ways of showing that sound. One was the þ, often incorrectly read as a y, and still seen today in ye olde Englishe! The other was the letter ð, which also gave a th sound, although phonetically slightly different. In all the old Devonshire documents, Witheridge appears either as Weðerige or, more rarely Wiðerige. The word for ram was always written weðer, while that for willow was wiþig.

Secondly, for hundreds of years the spellings of Witheridge and Wetheridge were completely interchangeable, and in earlier times the Wetheridge spelling was slightly more common. While the Anglo-Saxon word for ram could also be spelled either way, I have never seen any example of wiþig, or withy, spelled any other way.

Thirdly, both the Devonshire locations bearing this name are in areas where sheep farming was common, and where it was common practice to emasculate rams to prevent them from straying, leaving only a few entire for breeding.

There are in fact three locations linked with the name Witheridge. One is near the Berkshire/Buckinghamshire border, where there is still a Witheridge Hill. But in old documents this name is spelled Wiþeridge, and apart from one isolated instance in the 13th century does not appear to have given its name to any family.

One of the Devon locations is the mid-Devon town that still bears our name, and where most of us have, at one time or other, stood by the signpost to have our photos taken! Originally, this was believed to have been the home of all the Witheridge families, who took the name of their home village with them when they migrated to other towns and villages.

However, looking at the map showing where Witheridges had settled, it seemed unlikely that people would have moved across Dartmoor to reach places like Wembury, Ermington, Kingsbridge and Plymouth. I then began to wonder whether there had been another place called Witheridge somewhere in South Devon.

The story of that hunch, and the subsequent search for a missing Domesday manor is too long to be told here, but I now know that the manor of Witheridge stood on the cliffs above Jennycliff Bay, between Plymouth and Wembury. The manor has long since gone and, ironically, the original Anglo-Saxon Weðerige has changed over the years to the more elegant Withyhedge. But if you look at the 6-inch OS map of the area, you can still see a field bearing the name Withyhedge Brake.

So there we have the two sources for our surname, which suggest that we come from two quite different families. But were those families ever linked in any way, and if so can we prove it? That's another challenge!

Dear Mrs. Kruger,

Greetings from your distant cousin in America! According to the way I have it figured out, your father was my seventh cousin, which makes you my seventh cousin once removed. Perhaps your mother told you about my correspondence with her in the summer of 1984. You may even have those letters in your possession. I hope so.

I heard about your family through a death notice of Eileen (Betty) Gubb, widow of Thomas Witheridge Gubb, that appeared in the London Daily Telegraph. It caught the eye of the wife of a distant relative of mine, and he sent it to me. Through the Cape Town City Library I found your mother's address, and she wrote two very interesting and friendly letters. She also sent a copy of the "Pedigree of Witheridge of Berry Narbor and Combe Martin in North Devon, Shewing descent of Gubb Family from the same." This tied into the record I had developed of my own Witheridge ancestry back to 1554, so I knew at once that we were related.

Using this professionally compiled pedigree your mother had sent, I added to and corrected my records and spent some time preparing an even more complete Witheridge pedigree chart. In the process I was also able to make a few corrections to the printed pedigree. Unfortunately, I delayed writing to your mother until finishing this work, and not long after Christmas that year I learned that your mother had died from the cancer she had reported in her second letter. I was greatly saddened, as I had enjoyed her letters so much and had looked forward to further sharing of information between us.

In May of 1985 I sent two copies of my pedigree charts to Una Parsons in Combe Martin hoping that Gerald Walters would be seeing you there and could pass on one set to you. I also asked for your address, so I could re-establish contact with your family. I never got a report as to what happened to these charts that were meant for you, so I don't know whether or not you ever got them. Please let me know, and I'll send you copies if you never got them from Devon.

In December of 1986 I finally got your address from Combe Martin, but I've been too busy with the Holiday Season and then with urgent genealogical research and correspondence to write to you until now. I look forward to hearing from you and finding out (1) if you have the letters I wrote to your mother, and (2) if you received the Witheridge pedigree charts from Combe Martin.

If you do not have my original letters, I'll write and give you more information about my family and my ancestry. And if you don't have the charts, I'll make some copies and send them. In any case, I hope you will tell me about your own family and about your brother and sister and their families. It is quite thrilling to find new relatives in South Africa, and I hope you are as excited about our discovering each other as I am.

Yours sincerely,

Dear David,

I apologise if Ive kept you in suspence for so long but I havent been able to helps you much as yet.

The lady in the Athenaeum was very kind and remembered you and your wife visiting, even showed me the entry in the book which you had signed, saying that you were more interested in Berrynarbor, Combe Martin way than Barnstaple.

Anyway, Ive copied every thing I could find in the Barnstaple records, hope it doesnt confuse you any more. The dates are all out of order because they were indexed in a peculiar way. I wasnt sure if you already had all this information but did it anyway.

The problem of finding any details of John and the ship etc are much more difficult.

The man in charge of the North Devon Library was very kind, he photo copied your letter and contacted some one in the Naval Library at Plymouth and the West Country Studies Library at Exeter, they had no luck either but pointed out that ships changed their names very quickly at that time, plus they'd only looked quickly and a detailed search might show something up.

Someone suggested contacting the author of the book you quoted from to find out where he'd got his information.

Anyway, although we've confirmed that John was a mariner with twin daughters I'm afraid I haven't found much more.

In two years time Barnstaple is building a new library and we're hoping to have all the records back from Exeter. Then it won't be so difficult to try and look something up.

Please write again.

Sincerely
Lyn. Prust

Mrs. R. E. Connett
Brook Green Cottage
Well Street
Exeter
Devon EX4 6QD
England

Dear Mrs. Connett:

I'm sure your Aunt Una has spoken to you about my wife Elizabeth and me. I have been interested in genealogy for many years; and in 1980, on our second trip to Britain, we made a special point of looking up Una and her parents in Combe Martin. We had a most enjoyable visit and have corresponded from time to time ever since. We also had the privilege of meeting several other relatives in Combe Martin, including my third cousin, Myrtle Blackmore.

I think I figured that Una is my seventh cousin, which would make you my seventh cousin once removed, through your great-grandmother, Emma Witheridge. I'm very happy to know and correspond with a number of relatives in England, Scotland, and Wales. This is possible because my father came to this country with his family when he was only seven years old. He was born in Wales, though his father was born in Combe Martin, and his mother was from Cornwall. So when I became interested in family history, I was able to begin by writing to a few relatives in Britain with whom some of my aunts and uncles had kept in touch ~~with~~ over the years.

Several years ago, knowing that you and your parents were living in Exeter, I asked Una whether she thought one of you might be interested in doing a little research for me occasionally at the Devon Record Office. At that time she said you might be interested but were too busy then with your young children and with various activities you were involved in.

I was glad to hear from Una several months ago that you might be willing to undertake some limited research for me this summer. This is whyII am writing to you, and I hope you will enjoy helping with this project. I want to pay you for this on an hourly basis, and you'll have to tell me what you think is a fair amount per hour. Enclosed is £10.00 as a starter, and I'll send more as you report on your time spent and expenses incurred for photocopies, postage, and so on.

The first project has to do with old wills. As you are aware, Exeter Cathedral, where the old wills and many other records were kept, was badly bombed in the Second World War. Wills are very valuable in genealogical research, as they give important information about people and their relationships. For Devon they were almost all destroyed.

A few years ago I learned of the Olive Moger Collection at the West Country Studies Library, in the same building as the Devon Record Office. Back in the early 1920's this lady had abstracted the information from many Devon wills, and the abstracts are now in bound volumes in this library. What I would like you to do is to see if there are any Witheridge wills there; and, if so, send me a copy of each one in the Collection. I am interested in every Witheridge in Devon, not just those in North Devon.

One of my Blackmore cousins, Marjorie Packer, who lives in Swindon, Wilts, had been to Exeter, and she sent me the abstracts of ten Blackmore wills from Combe Martin and the nearby towns. She apparently made longhand copies of these and then typed them up for me. I don't know if that is easier and less expensive than making photocopies, which is what I prefer, if that is possible. Since I would be paying you by the hour, it might be just as well to make the photocopies.

I see from notes I made when we were in Exeter in 1980 that there is also another set of volumes that contain abstracts of Devonshire wills. According to my notes these may be called Burnet's, but I am not sure. I'd appreciate it if you would also check these volumes for any Witheridge wills.

It's also possible that there are other abstracts of wills in the West Country Studies Library or in the adjacent Devon Record Office besides the collections I've mentioned above. There might also be other documents relating to the probate of estates, such as inventories or administration accounts or letters. Perhaps the librarians of both units would give you this information. (Marjorie Packer implied that they don't coordinate their operations very well.)

An entry in the printed "Brief Guide: Part 1" of the Devon Record Office (no date) lists on page 46: "Original Wills and Inventories (90) and testamentary papers (8 bundles) (with inventories and admon. accounts), 1590-1910." However, these may not even be indexed, in which case their use would be very difficult.

I look forward to hearing from you after you get a chance to work on this. I have a few other tasks you could do for me at the Record Office if you find this an interesting activity.

Yours very sincerely,

David E. Witheridge

Dear David and Elizabeth,

Have not written to you in so long - we have been so involved with the wedding and the residual people that came - I have neglected anyone and everyone! But.... all is back to "normal", whatever that means! Annette's Grandmother, Solveig Johannesen and her Aunt Lillimore have gone back to Oslo, the "kids" are back from their Florida honeymoon, and I'm starting to plan for Thanksgiving Dinner. Even bought some Xmas gifts last week!

Let me just say of the wedding, it was worth all the effort we all made. Annette looked lovely in her mothers (the under part) and my (the redingote) wedding gown, and all went very well. The children didn't miss a cue and the 2 grandmothers looked beautiful and happy. A horse and carriage took the whole wedding party for a ride around Campus. and the reception was beautiful at the University Club.

Bruce and I are doing well. His business is really doing well — he's busy, but happy. I'm trying to survive the change in leadership of the Christian Church in Michigan! I'm lucky to have an added help for my search for Bruce's mothers' ancestors, which I have been back at a little, since her grandfather on her mothers side came from Denmark. Since Annette's mother speaks — very fluently — and reads/writes Norwegian, we feel any Danish can be translated (I hope!) Next Saturday eve we are having dinner with them and I hope to get an assist. I have 4 different micro films ordered from the LDS library — another step!

I hope these copies (bad!) can give you an idea of our happy day —.

Much love to you both,

Jo and Bruce

Thanksgiving!

Dear Rev. Witheridge,

I've just had a lovely letter from your relative Winnie Witheridge, in Wales, and she passed on your address to me.

I suggested Kim Cook would be able to help you, mentioned it to Kim myself and was surprised to learn you'd known each other for years - it really is a small world!

It really is nice to find other people interested in the family name . Kim and I first met up about 18 months ago and we haven't stopped comparing notes since. Infact, together we are thinking of forming the Witheridge Society and at this very moment are trying to track down as many of our British 2cousins" as possible. We'll keep you posted on that.

As for my own history, I'm still very much in the dark. My mother has always been interested in her side but my father, who died in 1979, never mentioned his background.

My father, Dennis, was born in Birmingham in 1922 and had a twin sister Eileen. They had three older brothers, Leslie, William and Norman. Only Leslie and William are still alive and, believe it or not, we have never been in touch with either. Norman adopted a daughter, Susan, and my father had myself and sister Yvonne. So sadly our name seems to be dying out.

Both of my paternal grandparents died during the last war and after RAF service my father lived with an elderly uncle and aunt, Jim and Ada, in Winson Green, Birmingham. I vaguely remember them from childhood and have recently been in touch with their son George, now in his 70s.

I've plugged George for as much information as possible and now at least have a few more names to work on. So I'll let you know as soon as I've traced back further than the 1880s.

From what I can gather my father's family was very poor and I think if my father had an unhappy childhood he chose to ignore it. I know that his father, Arthur, born in Birmingham in 1892, was a railway worker and had two brothers and two sisters.

Kim and I have gone through her card index but can't link any of the names to me, so I'm going back to the drawing board at the moment. No doubt it will all fall into place eventually.

Both Kim and Winnie have sent me cards of St. John the Baptist, at Witheridge, which I believe you had printed. I have visited twice, it is a pretty little place. Kim has also now tracked a second parish of Witheridge, near Plymouth, which is all very exciting. I mentioned to Winnie I'd found a Witheridge Lane in Penn, Buckinghamshire, and that Lord Penn, the first governor of Pennsylvania had named his American house Witheridge. No one living at Penn knew what the history was. Have you any ideas?

I'm sure you know about John Galsworthy, author of the Forsyte Saga, being one of Kim's family. I must confess I got terribly excited recently on reading it for the first time to discover the first part was set in North London, where I live, and that a character called Annette plays quite a central role about half way through! My parents adored the Forsyte Saga when it was serialised on television in the Sixties, which is another strange coincidence as neither were particular TV watchers and, of course, they weren't aware of the Witheridge connection.

Incidently, just to let you know a little about myself, I'm 26 and work as a journalist on the London News of the World, my sister Yvonne is 23, married and working as a book keeper for a department store. My mum Ena still lives in Sutton Coldfield in Birmingham but is planning on moving to Abergavenny, in Wales, so I will put her in touch with Winnie when she gets there.

Well, I'm wracking my brains to think of other Witheridge connections, but knowing that you know Kim and have also done a lot of digging yourself, I'm sure your probably more informed than me.

However, when Kim and I get the Witheridge Society going we should be able to fill in a few more gaps.

Do drop me a line if you get the chance as I'd love to hear from you.

King regards.

Annette Witheridge

Dear Mr Smith,

I found your name in the Genealogical Research Directory where it stated that you were interested in the Witheridge family in Devon pre 1850. As you can see from my chart I have Witheridge ancestors. Susanna Witheridge & William Brush were my great, great, great, great, great, great, grea great grand parents. Ermington & Newton Ferrers are two small villages. Plymouth is the nearest town. 10 miles from Ermington & 9 miles from Newton Ferrers. I hope this may turn out to be of some help to you. There are Witheridges of more recent time in some of the Plymouth Parish Records & I think the lines must go back to my Witheridges as the name Arthur keeps cropping up.

Good Luck.

Mary Riley.

Dear Mrs. Smith,

Thank you for your letter of June 24th. I have looked over all my Witheridge records, and I haven't found any connection with your family. However, my family came from North Devon, and I don't have a very complete file of Witheridges in the Plymouth area.

The person who has the best card file of all the Witheridges from both South and North Devon is Mrs. Kim Cook, 18 Hawkhurst Way, West Wickham, Kent BR4 9PF, England. It's possible that she could tie you into one of the families she has in her files. She has also recently organized a Witheridge Society that is bringing together the several branches and building up a central file of all the information.

You will probably want to write to Mrs. Cook, and I shall also tell her about you the next time I write to her. In fact, I'll send her a copy of the marriage certificate you sent me, as the Witheridge Society is collecting a master file of all Witheridge birth, marriage, and death certificates.

I'll also be writing to Mrs. Mary Riley, as I find that her Witheridge ancestry ties right into one of the Witheridge families about which Kim has a great deal of information. I hope Kim will be able to establish your Witheridge connections!

Yours sincerely,

David E. Witheridge

Dear Mrs. Riley,

I'm writing to you because Mrs. Heather Smith of Australia wrote to me about her Witheridge ancestry and sent me a copy of the letter you wrote to her on October 24, 1987. It isn't clear in your letter how much you know about your Witheridge relationships.

Have you been in touch with Mrs. Kim Cook, 18 Hawkhurst Way, West Wickham BR4 9PA? If not, you should write to her. She has a very extensive card file of Witheridges from both South and North Devon as well as elsewhere. In particular she has compiled a family tree of the Witheridges of Ermington. The little chart of your Witheridge ancestry which you sent to Mrs Smith ties right into this, of course.

Kim and a few others have recently organized the Witheridge Society to tie together the various branches, and build up a central file of Witheridge information. Perhaps you already know about this. In any case, I'm going to send her a copy of your letter and chart, and I think she may get in touch with you. I'm sure she knows a number of your distant relatives.

Yours sincerely,

David E. Witheridge

April 25th, 1988.

Dear Rev. Witheridge,

I have today heard from the Witheridge Society in England, and they gave me your name.

For the past months I have been attempting a "Family Tree", and am now back to my husband's great great great grandfather, namely, George Witheridge, whom I found in the 1843 census for Darlington Township, Ontario. He was born in England in 1809, was married to Mary, and had six children, as follows:

John Witheridge, born in or around 1840;
Mary Jane Witheridge, born in or around 1842;
Elizabeth Witheridge, born in or around 1844;
George Witheridge, born in or around 1846 (my husband's great great grandfather);
Sarah I. Witheridge, born in or around 1854;
William T. Witheridge, born in or around 1858.

Are you aware of any of your relatives coming from Canada?

Last September, I visited England for five weeks, and spent one week in Devon, and had the opportunity to visit the Town of Witheridge, and found it most exciting. I am enclosing a leaflet advertising the new book "Old Witheridge" which you may be interested in obtaining a copy.

If you have any advice for me to encourage me in my search, I look forward to hearing from you.

Yours very truly,

Kathy Witheridge

Dear Kathy,

Thank you for your interesting letter. I just want to let you know it arrived. However, I am in the midst of preparations for a month-long trip to Britain and will have to wait until after we return on June 13 to answer it properly.

At first glance I do not recognize this family, but that doesn't mean I won't be able to help you identify it. I'm always happy to find Witheridges working on genealogy! and I look forward to corresponding with you further.

Yours sincerely,
David E. Witheridge

Rev. David E. Witheridge,
2425 Irving Avenue, South,
MINNEAPOLIS. MN 55409.

May 12th, 1988.

Dear Rev. Witheridge,

It was lovely to hear from you, and I thank you for your courteous reply. I am looking forward to hearing further from you, upon your arrival back from England. I hope you had a good vacation, and enjoyed your trip 'over ome'.

I am an immigrant from England. I left Halifax, Yorkshire, 14 years ago to come to Canada. I was divorced some years ago, and last September I was married to Paul Witheridge, a native of Toronto, and that's how I become involved with the "Witheridge Family Tree". And of course, after visiting that super little Town of Witheridge, in Devon, last year, I became curious as to whether or not our name originated from there.

I spent many hours in the library here in Sarnia, and also in the Provincial Archives in Toronto, looking through the censuses. I was also able to obtain a copy of Paul's great great great grandfathers Will and Probate, but unfortunately it did not give me his place of birth, other than England.

I was at a standstill for some time, I did not know where to start looking in England. I knew that he was born in England in 1809, and emigrated to Canada prior to 1843.

In March this year, I learned of the "Witheridge Society" in England, and immediately wrote them asking for membership. They were extremely helpful, and came up with the following information:

> There was a George Witheridge who was married to Mary Saunders, in Devon in 1839, and had a Son named John in 1840.

This information fit perfectly, and was exactly what I was looking for.

I have written back to the Society, with my subscription, and asked if they have more information on the above.

As previously mentioned to you, we were in England last September - October, for 5 weeks, and every place we visited, we looked in the telephone directory for the Witheridge name. The only place we found it was in various areas of Devon. I am enclosing a copy of the listings that we found for your information. I did write most of the people, but have only had one reply so far, that was from a David and June Witheridge, of Plympton, Plymouth, Devon. They also advised us of the "Witheridge Society" but had no address for it, and were going to try and find out for me, as they are not in to Genealogy.

I have an aunt, who lives in Crediton, Near Exeter, Devon, about 10 miles away from Witheridge, and she is doing some digging for me in the Archives in Exeter.

Well, I think thats about all my news for now, hope you had a super vacation and looking forward to hearing from you again.

Best wishes,

Kathy Witheridge

Rev. David Witheridge,

September 14th, 1988.

Dear Rev. Witheridge,

Further to my letter of May 12th, 1988, and hoping that you had a good trip to England in June.

I am coming along quite nicely with my Witheridge Family Tree, but I still have some missing links.

I am back to my husband's great-great-great grandfather, namely, George Witheridge, who was born in Devon, in 1807. I still do not know where in Devon he was born, or the exact date.

He married Mary Saunders the daughter of Peter and Jane Saunders in or around 1839, and they had one Son, namely, John Witheridge, prior to emigrating to Darlington Township in Canada, on or around 1842.

I did obtain a copy of a baptism record of the said Mary Saunders, who was baptized in the Parish of Bradworthy, Devon.

Upon their arrival in Canada, they bought a 93 acre farm in Darlington Township, Ontario, in 1853. I did obtain a copy of this Deed, also copies of Deeds where the Sons sold the property, the first part in 1894 and the second part in 1905. I am also in the possession of a copy of George's Will dated May 27th, 1871. He then died on April 18th, 1884.

A few weeks ago, I discovered his grave in Ebenezer Chapel Cemetery, in Darlington Township. In all the censuses his religion was stated as E.C. and I couldn't figure out what this meant. It obviously means Ebenezer Chapel. This Chapel was founded in 1866 in Darlington Township, and is still in existence today. I have today learned from the Library in Bowmanville, who have assisted me no end, that a lady by the name of Mrs. Rundle, is in the possession of six of the original windows of this chapel, and is anxious to sell. I replied right away stating my interest.

Last week my husband and I, booked our flight to Britain, we are departing from Toronto on December 10th, and returning January 11th. and will be spending Christmas with my Family in Halifax, Yorkshire. I hope to visit Devon for a few days, in order to do some research. I also wish to visit London, in order to obtain some birth certificates, they are much cheaper to attend oneself.

In April of this year, I wrote to Kim Cook sending her twelve pounds to join the "Witheridge Society". Unfortunately, I have heard nothing from her. I wrote her again in August to ask if she had received my money order, but still have heard nothing. Could you please advise me as to whether or not Kim has moved recently, I sent the money to 18 Hawkhurst Way, West Wickham, Kent. BR4 98F.

Well, I think thats about all I have to tell you at the moment. Anxiously awaiting to hear about your trip and if you can assist me in any way.

Yours very truly,

Kathy Witheridge

October 6. 1988

Dear Kathy,

At last I have managed to pull together the records I have of the Bradworthy Witheridge family. I'm not sure how much of this is new to you, but I decided to send you all I have and let you compare it with your records. If you have any corrections or additions, please send them to me, indicating the source for each item. I did the work on this particular family many years ago, with much of it coming from Kim Cook. As you can see, there are many loose ends that I haven't had time to work on, but this material will give you some clues to follow up.

See page 3 of 3

Do you have convenient access to a Mormon branch library (now known as Family History Centers)? That is really the best place to start, but many other sources must be pursued, also. You are fortunate to have an aunt living in Devon to help in your research.

Our trip to Britain was a marvelous experience. It was our third trip there, and we have many relatives and friends there. My father came over as a boy with his family. My wife Elizabeth's ancestors all came over before the American Revolution, so we don't know any current relatives, but we did visit several of her ancestral homes. After about a week in the London area, we hired a car and drove for three weeks through England, Scotland, and Wales. Unfortunately, we both came home with bad colds, which lasted several weeks. We arrived in the midst of the drought and heat wave. So with our colds and the excessive heat, our energy level was very low, and we still haven't finished all that needed doing after our trip, including the writing of many letters!

Our itinerary, of course, included four days in Devon, which we enjoyed very much. I have many known relatives there, and many who are probably relatives, whose connections we haven't pinned down yet. My ancestral families lived over 300 years in the two towns of Berrynarbor and Combe Martin, and I have traced my Witheridge line back to about 1500 in Berrynarbor. My closest Witheridge relatives in Devon are second cousins of my father. They are the only Witheridges in the telephone directory of Exeter, Torbay, & North Devon, which you sent me (besides those named after the town of Witheridge). W.J. (Wm. John) Witheridge is my father's second cousin, and W.G. (Wm. George) is his son. They both live on and work the farm at Middle Stoodleigh, West Buckland, and we have visited them and their families three times. C.G. (Charles) Witheridge is John's brother at East Buckland, and we met him and his wife for the first time this year.

I'm not acquainted with any of the Witheridges listed in the telephone directory for Plymouth, S.W. Devon, & Cornwall.

Kim Cook probably knows or knows of them, as her Witheridge ancestry is from South Devon. Kim and I have been corresponding and exchanging information for about twenty years. She and her husband Roy have met us at the airport and taken us back there on each of our three trips to Britain; and we have stayed with them a few days at the beginning and at the end of each trip. Elizabeth and I are very fond of them and their two sons, Jason and Adam, and we call each other distant cousins, although we haven't yet found the connection. I was very happy when she and some others decided to organize The Witheridge Society, and I'm sure it will result in much progress in our research.

Yes, the Cooks still live at 18 Hawkhurst Way, West Wickham, Kent BR4 9PF (Ph. 01-777-6072). (Note the Postal Code--9PF instead of 98F--though I don't think that would cause any trouble). Kim leads a very hectic life, and I usually have to wait several months for answers to my letters. In addition, there is a Membership Secretary to whom she probably sent your application and money. I think it is Mr. Rod Witheridge, Granville House, 33 Barrowgate Road, Chiswich, London W4 4QX. You might want to correspond with him. I'm sorry you have had a difficult time getting started in The Witheridge Society.

I appreciated your sending the information about "Old Witheridge," the history of the town. When we were in Devon, we went through Witheridge again, and while we were there we tried to buy a copy. However, they hadn't come out yet, so we paid for one, and it was mailed to us after we got home. We enjoyed reading it because it is a typical Devon town, but we knew there would be nothing in it about our family. As a matter of fact, when I began my genealogy, I wrote to the rector, and he said he had checked, and there had never been a Witheridge birth, marriage, or death there since the start of the parish register. They must have all left long before the 1500's.

This is all for now. Good luck in your research on this uncertain mass of material from Bradworthy.

Yours sincerely,

Dear David and Elizabeth,

I cannot remember, for the life of me, if I have written to you since Christmas. There is so much confusion and activity going on in our lives that I have apparently relegated to file 13 some of the details of my life! In any event, forgive any duplications etc.

First, I have been engrossed rather thoroughly in entering information into our new computer (at home) with the new software I got from the Mormons - Personal Ancestral File. It is a "genealogical management system for home computers." I heard about it through a friend and ordered it right away. It stressed the simplicity of its workings (I like that!) so...I have more than 750 names entered and about 300 marriages with all of the attending children that I know about. I have much to do - to check, to add notes on persons and sources of information, to do more research on everyone. I hardly knew where to begin, but now I seem to be on track, and am about a third of the way through the basic family record sheets of Bruce, and have all of the family record sheets - that I had made out - of my side of the family entered. I would give most anything if you and I could get together with all of the information that we have and spend some time together. It will take one of three things: 1) I pack up my computer and bring it to St. Paul; 2) You pack up your records, hire a truck ! and come to East Lansing; 3) You purchase a computer and we both get a modem so we can transfer info by phone! Right now none of those sound too practical! Perhaps if I send you some money for copying (owe you much already!) I could get a hold of some of the many records of the children of the direct line of Witheridges et al. Well, some day...

I am enclosing a few things to let you see how this works. There are many lists I can print, but I am sending just a few. As you can see, on the Pedigree Chart anyone can be "1", so any variation can be obtained. I punched in Tom - the number 474 means something only to the computer. I have put in counties when I have them, but sometimes the info is to "long" to be entirely printed. I have yet to figure it all out, but I'm working on it!

The Descendants Chart will only print 10 generations at a time, so I had to repeat one of the ancestors (in this case I put in John Witheridge and Clara Blackmore), but in any case you will probably learn more about my family than you even want to know! But it is fun to do this, very rewarding, very amazing to me - machines are really great in some areas.

I am sending several of the Individual Data records - just because I kept punching in numbers! There is some superfluous information for the Mormons, but also to be utilized are forms to send to the LDS Library for registering (or whatever it is called) your relatives so you can find out if anyone else is looking for the same ancestors. The form is built into the software so all you have to do is punch in the number of the person and it prints the form with all of the information already on it.

Enough of this software! We are enjoying the computer for other things as well, the word processor most I think. I have all of my letters in my own "library" file, and can hang onto them as long as I wish - or delete them when they have lost their usefulness. I am writing back and forth to my friend in England whom I have never met and wants to come for a visit. I have written to her for 46 years! She and her husband may come in July.

The newlyweds are doing fine - did you add that name to your records? Annette Christine Donohoe, b. 5 AUG 1961, married Roy 16 OCT 1987.

And then some really BIG news - our son Eric has asked Catherine Elizabeth Rayman to marry him - September 3, 1988, People's Church, East Lansing. She was the maid of honor at Roy's wedding - and it blossomed quickly! I am so happy for Eric, he seems to have finally found something outside of himself to care about, and life has become more meaningful for him. Catherine seems to be a good choice for Eric - she was born in this area and her father works in Lansing at one of the plants, has 300 acres near DeWitt which he farms. She is quite shy and reserved, but that is a little refreshing after meeting a few of his girl friends! So we will be planning an executing another wedding. In this wedding Tara (Luanne's daughter - 7) will be a bridesmaid! and little Jennifer will be flower girl and Matthew ring bearer. Catherine was raised Catholic, but came to church today with Bruce and Eric - wants to see what being a protestant is all about. That's a step in the right direction!

I have a new boss, and am having a little trouble adjusting to him and him to me, I think. I am hoping it all works out for the best - I really would like to stay at the regional office for a few more years. It has many benefits - not monetary - and I would not think it a good choice to quit and stay home all day. Perhaps everything will work out, but it is taking some time.

Did I tell you that my dad's last sister, Mabel, died? She passed away before Christmas - December 10, in Grand Ledge at Ada's home.

Well, my friends, I have been at this screen for many hours and I think I will close for now. I know there are many things I would like to tell you - like the joy of seeing 6 cardinals at our bird feeder and then have them line up on the window sill and peek in. And about the marvelous performance of our grand daughter at the Christmas program - it was outstanding! And about my brilliant grandchildren Matthew and Jennifer, and about Emily Rose getting some teeth and on and on - but I won't tell you about all of that right now. I will hope that one day we can sit and chat about our grandchildren. Is that in your future as yet? Hope so!

Thank you again for setting me off on the track of our relatives. I have not even begun to get to the Gubb part of the family - is there ever enough time!!

My love to you both,

Jo

Anything I have, in any form, is yours for the asking!

Dear David and Elizabeth,

What a delightful surprise to get a picture of beautiful Rebecca Elizabeth! I am not exaggerating when I call her beautiful! She is a striking child for being so young. So congratulations to you all. You're headed for years of fun!

I appreciate your letter - I have read it a few times - and will get the info you asked for if possible. I am neck deep in work details and have not been to a library in months, but will be going again soon.

Summer was so busy with our English company - and August was so busy getting ready for the wedding - I rested in Sept - then we had a large time of concern for my brother Roy's wife, Ronnie. She was so ill - almost everything but cancer - and she fainted one day (she did that a lot) and fell and broke her hip. It was the beginning of the end, and she died the 16th of October in Florida. Roy and my sister, Elaine, drove up and we spent a week in funeral activities - Ronnie was only 67 and so had many - really hundreds of people come to pay their respects. We spent time with Ray and Elaine – and my sister Jean and husband Neal came from Arkansas, so we had some good time together, sad tho it was.

Another busy time was company from Norway – visiting our daughter-in-law's parents – and we entertained them here. While they were here we had well problems and had to have a new pump installed – so, now I'm gearing up for Thanksgiving – we expect everyone here for dinner – "everyone" being our immediate family which now numbers fifteen! (that includes Bruce's mom, of course!) I'm already baking cookies and trying to freeze some for Christmas as I won't get any more vacation time, so not much time for preparation –

One of these days I'm going to slow down! but can't seem to set the brakes yet!

Congratulations to you –

Enjoy

Jo

Dear Keith,

It's been many years since we've corresponded, and I see you have retired to Florida. I hope you and Annie are having a delightful time there. As you see, I bought a copy of "Witheridges Across America," for which you probably also got an announcement. Having worked in genealogy for 25 years, I knew it would be of little value, except for this list, which probably comes from telephone and city directories and various other computerized lists.

Since Witheridge is a very uncommon name, even in Britain, I didn't think there were many in America. I ordered this book to see if my assumption was correct, and it was. Of course, such a list is never 100% complete, but it shows how scarce the name really is.

John Phillips Witheridge and Jane Percy in Ottery, Lamerton about 1837.

We look forward to hearing from you when you are able to write.

Yours sincerely,
David + Elizabeth

It appears to me that all the people on this list belong to only two or three families. In the first place, starting with William N. Witheridge of Birmingham, Michigan, all the rest on the list are relatives of mine. My guess is that from the beginning of the list down through you, all are relatives of yours, since your grandfather lived first in Wharton, N.J., when he came from England. That leaves only N. R. Witheridge of Indianapolis, and he or she may also be a relative of yours.

I'd appreciate it very much if you would take a little time and identify as many of these Witheridges as you can. If the New Jersey Witheridges are your relatives, is there one of them who might be the most interested in family history? Do you know of any other Witheridges who are not on this list?

Last May and June Elizabeth and I had a marvelous month-long trip to Britain. After about a week in the London area, we hired a car and drove 3,000 miles through England, Scotland and Wales. We spent several days in Devon, and we met a number of Witheridge relatives there, as well as in other parts of Britain. We were met at the airport and later returned there by Kim Cook and her family, and we stayed with them a couple of days each time. Kim's mother was a Witheridge. Kim and a few others have organized The Witheridge Society to tie together as many Witheridges and Witheridge descendants as possible and to assist in genealogical research.

Have you had any further success in tracing back your family tree in Devon? The last I knew you had gotten as far back as "Reflect often upon the rapidity with which all existing things, or things coming into existence, sweep past us and are carried away. The great river of Being flows on without a pause; its actions forever changing, its causes shifting endlessly, hardly a single thing standing still; while ever at hand looms infinity stretching behind and before — the abyss in which all things are lost to sight. In such conditions, surely a man were foolish to gasp and fume and fret, as though the time of his troubling could ever be of long continuance. ...

"A little while, and all that is before your eyes now will have perished. Those who witness its passing will go the same road themselves before long; and then what will there be to choose between the oldest grandfather and the baby that died in its cradle?"

Dear David,

Just a short note. I have to strike while the iron is hot otherwise I will overlook the matter.

Neil Witheridge has sent me this article from the Times and I wonder if you have seen it. The Witheridges are an august group & seem to be drawn to the ministry. Neil mentioned in his letter that the name Witheridge means "Ridge of Willows" and he has also read that it can mean "Sheep Herder". There is something Biblical about that too.

Enough levity. I think I will write the Chaplain to the Archbishop of Canterbury: My research doesn't seem to tie in with Royalty so perhaps he will do!!

Hope you are both well. Having glorious weather if very cold. — Looking forward to Spring

Martyrs' seed for the Church

Monday sees the tenth anniversary of the murder of Archbishop Janani Luwum of Uganda. Luwum had done all in his power to protest against one of history's most demonic dictators and barbaric regimes. On orders from Amin he was harassed, arrested, humiliated, and submitted to a gruelling show trial on trumped up charges. The next morning newspapers reported the Archbishop's death in a motor accident. Those who saw the body say he was shot.

The trauma of an archbishop's murder was not lost even on a people numbed by six years of tyranny. Hundreds of thousands had been killed, imprisoned or deported. When I accompanied the Archbishop of Canterbury to Uganda we were shown the point where Lake Victoria had become dammed by a vast wall of rotting corpses.

Janani Luwum stands in a succession of martyrs which began exactly a century before with the arrival in Uganda of the first Christian mission. The Kabaka (King) took draconian steps to prevent the spread of a faith which might threaten his kingdom. James Hannington was speared to death in 1885 as he made his hazardous journey to Uganda to become the first Anglican bishop. A year later three newly converted page boys in the Kabaka's service were dismembered before being roasted alive.

The most celebrated of all victims of this fierce persecution are the martyrs of Numugongo, more then 30 young courtiers who were burnt in a single pyre after they had been found reading from scriptures. Roman Catholics and Anglicans perished together.

Despite the Kabaka's determination to stamp out the Christian faith the very opposite occurred. The meteoric growth of the Church in Uganda makes a remarkable tale. A decade after the martyrs of Namugongo there were 7,000 baptized members and 50,000 enquirers. Here was a Church established and inspired by martyrdom. "The blood of the martyrs," wrote Tertullian, "is seed for the church: the more we are mown down, the more we multiply."

The same Easter phenomenon is to be found in Uganda today. For all the sufferings they have endured under Amin and Obote, Christians are still numerous, vigorous and determined.

The sacrilegious slaughter of Luwum was felt far beyond the borders of Uganda. The Dean and Chapter of Canterbury decided immediately to dedicate a chapel in the Cathedral to the Saints and Martyrs of Our Own Time. Here are recorded the names and memories of a handful of countless men and women of every nation and denomination who have sacrificed their lives for their faith: Dietrich Bonhoeffer, Maximilian Kolbe, Martin Luther King, Maria Skobtsova, Oscar Romero, Janani Luwum.

The Chapel is situated at the furthest point of the Cathedral in the Corona, built to house the relic of Becket's scalp, so here the noble army of martyrs past and present are brought together. Archbishop Thomas of Canterbury is linked to Archbishop Janani of Uganda; both were victims of the interminable and often violent clash between Church and State, God and Caesar.

Like that of Luwum, the martyrdom of Becket 800 years before gave birth to marvellous powers of renewal. Almost immediately, pilgrims flocked to Canterbury from far and wide to pray and be healed at the martyr's tomb. From the ashes of a saint's suffering has arisen again and again the fair phoenix of a faith rekindled and revived.

Martyr means "witness" and it is to Christ's crucifixion that the martyr testifies. This is the heart of the matter. The sacrifice of martyrdom is the most literal imitation of Christ. It is to accompany Christ to his journey's end.

But to share in that death is to share too in the mystery of his resurrection. The extraordinary and miraculous fruits of martyrdom – the deepening and expanding of faith and devotion, the victory of love and forgiveness over evil, brutality and death – are vital signs of the power and wonder of Easter.

Indeed it is this very experience of the life-giving power of martyrdom which witnesses to the truth of the central Christian claim that Jesus rose from the dead. The effects of the martyr's death "give the Easter story a profound credibility both in itself and as the release and sharing of a new healing and liberating power in the world" (Church of England Bishops' Statement on The Nature of Christian Belief, 1986).

So, as T S Eliot's Becket preaches on Christmas morning, "A martyrdom is always the design of God, for His love of men, to warn them and to lead them, to bring them back to His ways." Such reflections raise the uncomfortable thought that our own lack of opportunity (and courage?) for martyrdom lies close to the heart of the Church's malaise in our time and place.

Dear Mr. Hookway

Thank you very much for your letter – I was most interested in all the details you sent me. My grandmother was a Hookway – on my mother's side of the family, and although I am sure there were numerous cousins I have never met one (shall I say – yet). I did get some information from my sister before she died but it was only a year ago I really started trying to find out something about the family from the Mormons IGI and Census records. I have gone through my notes and have extracted anything relating to Weare Giffard (W.G.) which I will give you + then give my family Tree to see if you can make any connection. If not there are some very funny coincidences!

Dear David & Elizabeth

Just a short note enclosing some information I've had duplicated. It occurs to me? Did I send it before as some is quite old. Better that than never having sent it.

Some of the info puts flesh on the bones so to speak and I found it interesting as I hope you will.

With all this leisure retirement time I'm getting down to research again and the cold snap we are now having also encourages one to stay inside. I'm looking forward to spring.

Pat & I are taking a five week computer course. We were computer ignorant and now have some idea of what they can do. Do you have any knowledge of Computer Genealogical Programmes and have you thought about this area at all? The LDS have a programme which I have written about and I expect they will be into that field more and more. Their records are of course plugged into this field. It would be exciting if one could eventually phone them and have them FAX the info direct to ones home.

I've been sent a couple of books on [illegible], Conn. in which my gg grandmother is mentioned at some length. She married twice and the author is from her second marriage lucky to have.

We keep well. Our proposed trip to Israel and Egypt was cancelled as our minister's wife with whom we were going as part of a small group has family illness (cancer - her mother). Pat and I will probably drive to California in April and then in the fall go to England. We are just exploring the possibilities now.

My niece here in Vancouver has just started researching her mother's family and it's a treat to share her exciting finds.

Pat is getting in deeper in her Church activities

She will be chairperson of the Settlement Comm for BC Conference come June. She supervises to some extent changes in Pastoral Charges. She is also on the committee which interviews prospective ministerial candidates, is on the Loans Comm for BC Conference loans money to various churches for expansion and development and is on our newly opened Book Store Supervisory Comm. Trips to Toronto this year and our conference which is being held in northern B.C.

Me? I'm on her home support team. The interview Comm may prove to be a difficult one in this coming year as the Gay ordination problem is such a contentious issue. The United Church is trying to deal with the matter in a caring, loving way. St. A/W has lost several families due to the churches stand on the matter. Some people who were on the periphery of the church have become more involved because of the stand we have taken. One can't be less than loving in the situation and to erect barriers because of ones sexual orientation certainly doesn't express what we are called to be and do.

This was to be a short note but I find I've run on and on.

I hope you find the info interesting and useful. Do let me know if you have any knowledge of Computer Gen. Pgms.

Joy + Blessings
John

Dear Mr James, [John James]

I am tracing my family tree and have been corresponding with Mr Eric COULL of South Australia. I recently sent him information on my branch of the family and my relationship to our mutual ancestor Daniel COULL, the original member of the family to migrate from England.

Because of certain information I included he has sent me your name + address, and as he points out that it has been some time since he last heard from you, I can only hope you receive this letter.

1. Please find enclosed a brief copy of my family tree.
2. Refer to Thomas Daniel DOWN. *
3. He + his first wife – Ruth (GOODWIN) had 3 children, 1 daughter, Mabel Ellen (my grandmother) and 2 sons – Thomas Berman + Percival Warman
4. Percival Warman DOWN married Martha (WITHERIDGE) c 1905 NSW
5. Martha (WITHERIDGE) – parents of Phelamon WITHERIDGE
m Mary CAVETH (or CAVETT)

I haven't bothered to research this line because it doesn't directly relate to me but when Eric told me of your interest in this surname I phoned my great Aunt and got this little bit of extra information. She is 82.

The story goes.—

Philamon Witheridge ran away to sea when quite young and travelled the world for some years. He eventually returned to England + married Mary CAVETH (or CAVETT) They had 5 children who died in England. They migrated to Australia (not sure of the year) + landed Port Douglas Queensland c 1870. They had 13 children in Australia + eventually settled in Batemans Bay N.SW.

Philamon lived to be 90+

If you would like more information please let me know + I will try to research them more fully. I'm curious to know how your COULL and WITHERIDGE families are connected + if they connected to mine.

I look forward to hearing from you

Kindest regards
Barbara Willes

Dear Mr James. [John James]

My son Phillip Witheridge of South Australia. sent me your letter, he knows very little of the family history, I cant give you a great deal of information, as all the W. family & Phillip in South Australia. come from the one source. my husband s. Grandparents. I will give you a resume of what we know. — William & Polly. (this seems to be her given name). Witheridge. came from Devon. in the latter half of the last Century. they settled in South Australia, could have had relatives there, I feel sure they were wed in S.A. as I recall her telling me, William, gave her the first cow she owned, for a wedding present, which did not impress me. I feel they both had farming backgrounds. as he worked in S.A. for a big timber Company as horse master and she had cows all her life. I think two of her six sons were born in S.A. then they were transferred to West. Aust. to work in the lower South West. with the same firm. she ran the Mill boarding house. She had the rest of her family at this time. a very isolated life in those days. They seem to have saved enough money to buy land and start a dairy farm. in another very isolated place outskirts of Perth. Polly never had much to say about William I think he liked a drink and was an easy going sort of chap. she was just the opposite. William died not long after the move to the farm. leaving Polly with six sons, one a baby. she would be quite young. as I remember she told me she married at Sixteen. I met her in 1940. when I married her Grand son William (Peter). she would be about 5' tall. very small woman with nice features. she was quite old then. her son George, lived with her on the original dairy, which was very run down. She ruled the boys with a rod of iron all her life, and terrified their wives and children. this is why. so little is known of her history. My husband's father left home and made his own life. married and had a family unfortunately both parents died while the children were young. and they were cared for by the mothers family, of whom Polly did not approve. The youngest son John went off also, he settled in South Australia. and did not return with his family, till after her death. as he was also very unpopular. Her eldest son. Alfred was killed 1914-18 war unmarried. Charles and Percival shared a wheat and Sheep farm about 200 miles from Perth, not very happily I'm afraid. as Polly financed the venture, and of course. was able to call the tune. Charles did not marry till 1939 but Percy. wed young. and had a large family. George stayed with his mother. always saying he would travel and have some joy out of life. but he died suddenly in 1943. Polly did not survive him for long. Charles & Percy. sold up their farm and the dairy. and retired to enjoy life John returned from S. Australia. We did not have much to do with them after the funerals, as there was the usual cash disputes, I think all the old photoes and papers were burnt at this time, rather a pity. but I think They wanted to forget their hard childhood. We only discovered Polly's maiden name was Witheridge. quite recently, so wonder what relationship she & William shared. Percy didn't know about this, he is the only Surviving son & very vague, but she would not have told the boys much, even if they had been interested. Percy's grand son was in Devon some time back, & went to Witheridge village, but could only find two old men. the last of the Clan

I will give you some addresses in Sydney. out of the Phone book there you may get some information, as they are no connection with our clan. here, could be some of Polly's & Williams family who were in South Aust. it is a very fascinating subject once you start, I can quite understand your enthusiasm. if I can dig up any thing further. I will certainly let you know. but all sources here have dried up. but one never knows. Will give you a list of the Witheridge Sons. as correct as we know.

February 25, 1989

Dear John, James

I'm in one of those predicaments where I don't know what I've written to you in the last year or so, so you'll have to forgive me. I truly appreciate your two recent letters, and they have prodded me into writing to you. 1988 was a very busy and wonderful year for us, but in some ways very stressful. A lot was accomplished, but many other things were sadly neglected.

Except for Christmas cards, the last letter to you I have record of is the one I wrote in March of 1987 sending material about the Thomas Witheridge Gubb family in South Africa and the Witheridge pedigree I developed after receiving one from them. If I got a letter from you after that, I have lost it, and I have no record of answering one.

In the fall of 1987 I got busy planning a trip to Britain in the spring of 1988, and I don't know if I ever wrote to you about that trip--either before or after. It was a month-long trip from the middle of May to the middle of June, and we hired a car for three weeks and drove 3,000 miles through England, Scotland, and Wales. We visited many relatives and saw many of Elizabeth's and my places of origin.

However, the weather was mainly cold and wet. It never got up above 70°, except for two days in Scotland. As a result, we both came home with dreadful colds that lasted several weeks. In addition, they were in the midst of a severe drought and heat wave here, and because of our colds and the heat we were greatly debilitated for a long time. It took forever to do all the things needing to be done after our trip, and I still haven't finished all my letter writing, as you can see! *

Now to get down to your letters, I'll start with the most recent one first. Yes, I have seen the article by the Rev. John Witheridge in The Times. It was sent to me by his uncle, Harry Witheridge, who had also sent me the newspaper clipping about the death of Thomas Witheridge Gubb's widow in South Africa. We have known Harry and his brother George ever since our first visit to England in 1976. Later Harry wrote and said that John had completed his assignment with the Archbishop and was now theChaplain at Eton College near Windsor. He is actually called the "Conduct," which I discovered on his stationery when he replied to my letter. So I looked it up in the Webster's Unabridged Dictionary and found there really is a definition for conduct meaning "a hired chaplain. Obs. except at Eton College, England." So he is "one of a kind."

redacted here

Before we went to England, we wrote to John and said we were planning to visit Windsor and wondered if we could see him at Eton at the same time. He and his wife Sarah graciously invited us to have lunch with them, which we did. Then a week or so later his uncle Harry was having a Witheridge family get-together at his house in Virginia Water, not too far from Windsor, and we again saw John and Sarah and their children. Enclosed are two pictures of John and his family.

Their Witheridge family stems back into North Devon like ours, but we haven't yet found the exact connection between our families. By the way, John's address is now The Rev. John Witheridge, Eton College, Windsor, Berkshire SL4 6DW, England. In case you've already written to him at the Archbishop's, they'll no doubt forward your letter.

Speaking of pictures, I thought you'd like to have this one of Kim Cook and her family. We've also known them since 1976, when their boys were only 4 and 8 years old. Here is also one of us taken in the back yard of another Witheridge descendant, Philip Hookway, in Nuneaton. His Witheridge ancestors came from South Devon.

I understand that the name of the Town Witheridge may have two derivations: one could be "ridge of the willows," and the other could be "ridge of the wethers," where wethers refers to castrated rams. I don't suppose we'll ever know.

I don't remember receiving any of the items in your other letter before. As far as I can find, I have no record of Philamon Witheridge, ancestor of Barbara Willis in Australia. Neither do I know anything about the William and Polly Witheridge referred to in the letter from Mavis Witheridge. Thank you for these copies. Some day they may fit in somewhere.

The larger sheet--the pedigree--fits right into my family and yours from Combe Martin. I can't seem to identify where this came from, unless it is from Ngaire Clark Witheridge (Mrs. Ian), but you haven't mentioned her anywhere else. I assume she lives in New Zealand.

In your letter you asked if I have any information on John Witheridge (mar. Elizabeth Harris, Apr. 7, 1801) and the persons at the left joined to John with a question mark. If you will look at my Witheridge pedigree chart (May 1, 1985), which I believe I sent you in 1987 with the South Africa materials, you will find John Witheridge and Elizabeth Harris as the first names at the left of the bottom line. Next to them are the Mary How Witheridge and William Gubb who are the ancestors of the South Africa Gubb family. A little farther on are your ancestors, Francis Witheridge and Ann Eastaway, parents of Thomas Witheridge, Bapt. Oct. 2, 1808, in Ilfracombe. At the right end of that family group are Martin and Emma Witheridge, ancestors of Una Parsons of Combe Martin.

The group at the left on this New Zealand pedigree are all part of our family, but they are not all correctly located. I won't try to go through these relationships, as they are also shown on my chart. I'd be glad to have the address of Ngaire Witheridge (or whoever compiled this chart) and correspond with her if she is interested.

Now about the personal matters in your letter of February 6th, No, I haven't done anything with computers in my genealogy, though I probably would have if I had started a generation later. Now I couldn't afford the equipment necessary, and I couldn't imagine the time involved in transcribing all my information into a computer. I'm glad other people are doing it, however, as I know it's the way of the future. My second cousin, Joyce Aldrich of East Lansing, Michigan, is putting all her Witheridge records on a computer.

We're sorry your trip to the Near East had to be cancelled, and we hope your trips to California in the spring and England in the fall work out. We know you'll love them. We're thinking of going to Maryland and New England this summer, where Elizabeth has distant cousins. Her ancestors all came over from England before the American Revolution.

Your description of Pat's church activities was fascinating, and I enjoyed going through the church magazine you sent. The problem of gay ordination is certainly a perplexing one. We are American Baptists, and as far as I know our denomination hasn't dealt with the issue as directly as yours. American Baptists are not as conservative as Southern Baptists, but we do contain many conservatives, as well as some liberals. As a matter of fact, I often say that Elizabeth and I belong to the 5% most liberal group in our denomination.

We appreciate your accepting point of view toward homosexuals, especially because our older son Jim is gay. In fact, he works for a group called MAP (Minnesota AIDS Project) that provides five or six houses for people with AIDS. He considers it a real service vocation, and we are proud of him.

Thank you for all the interesting materials you sent. We're glad to know you have both been well. We are well, too, and hope we continue that way. How wonderful it is for you to look forward to a grandchild in June. We hope all goes well, and we're eager for further news.

Very sincerely,

Dear Rev. Witheridge,

First of all thank you so much for all the information which you sent me. It is indeed of great value to me. As I think I mentioned to you, I have only been doing the Family Tree for about 9 months, so any information is vital at this point. I had not even started on my research in England. At the present time, I have been working on the relatives in Canada, which takes me back to Paul's Great-Great-Great Grandfather, namely, George Witheridge. You have so kindly provided me with information on seven generations prior to George, so all I have to do now is fill in the blanks.

You must have a wealth of information, having been working on same for some twenty years. I know that I have about 250 pages of information in only 9 months.

Last week, Paul was in Toronto on business, I went along with him and spent a couple of days in the Provincial Archives and going around the cemeteries. Just before leaving, we decided to travel another 30 miles east, and visit Darlington Township, where everything happened.

First we visited the old farmhouse, (not an old farmhouse anymore, unfortunately, it has now been rebuilt), but I have been advised that the original farmhouse was only demolished some 5 years ago. Part of the old barn is still in existence, with two additions added to it. I think I told you that upon George's arrival in Ontario, he bought a 93 acre farm in Darlington Township, and I am in the possession of the Deed dated 1853. All very interesting stuff.

Next we visited the Ebenezer Chapel and Cemetery, which is now a United Church. The cemetery is quite small, but very old and very well kept. The gravestones of the Witheridge's didn't take too much finding, and are in relatively good condition for their age. I took pictures, but haven't had them developed as yet.
I found a stone of Thomas Witheridge and Susanna Witheridge his Wife, whom I couldn't fit in, but from your information, find that it was George's ~~brother~~. I also found other graves with names that were in your records, i.e. Thomas and Mary Harris; there was a few graves with the name "Oke", which may well fit in when I get the time to go through; also the name of "Grills" was in the cemetery, which is in your records, and not a very popular name, so this too may fit in.

Some time ago, I had come across the name of Richard Witheridge, but couldn't fit him in. From your records, I find he is George's brother.

You have certainly given me enough information to keep me busy for some time, and of course, saved me a tremendous amount of work.

I am now looking forward to our trip to England at Christmas, and feel I must visit Bradworthy, Devon. I would like to find out more about the church there, and look around the cemeteries. I am doing history's of all the places where the Witheridge's lived, and the churches they attended. I am at present trying to find out more about the "Ebenezer Bible Christina Chapel", which goes back to Devon, and very little is known about it here in Canada.

Is it possible to obtain copies of Wills, and copies of Deeds of Land from England. I am a legal secretary here in Canada, so I know exactly where to look for this information in Canada, but I am not so sure about how to do this in England.

I was pleased to hear that you had a good vacation in England, but sorry to hear that you came back with a bad cold. The weather is so very damp in England, even in the summertime, and I guess our bodies are just not used to those conditions.

Well, I think that's about all for now, thank's again for your time and trouble. Looking forward to hearing from you again.

Kind regards,

Kathy.

A little history about the chapel where the family attended and are buried in the grounds.

I went to see the Chapel last week, in Darlington Twp and have to advise you it is now the United Church.

There are some original Church windows for sale, and Bowmanville Museum are trying to get me to buy them.

THE EBENEZER BIBLE CHRISTIAN CHAPEL 1866

THE BIBLE CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Perhaps the most fervent of the Methodist sects, the Bible Christian Church was formed in Southwest England in 1815 and established in Upper Canada during the 1830's.

Served by itinerant preachers, its small but loyal membership increased gradually, largely among British emigrants from Devon and Cornwall who had settled in rural areas in Northumberland, Durham and Huron counties. In 1855 the Canadian mission noted, as was the Parent English body, for its emphasis upon lay-ministerial co-operation in church government, became an independent conference and by 1870 numerous chapels, including this structure, had been built.

However, inability to gain support in emerging urban centres and mounting financial difficulties arrested the sect's growth. In 1884 the Bible Christian Church entered into a union with other Methodist bodies.

I found Thomas Witheridge in the Ebenezer Cemetery, last week. I didn't know where he fit in.
From your records I have learned that he was the Uncle of George

In the Ebenezer Cemetery, there appears to be several names that fit in with the records you sent.
i.e. Thomas Harries was married to Mary Witheridge, who was the daughter of George Witheridge and Jane Oke.

There are also some Oke grave stones, which probably fit in too, when I get the time to go through more thoroughly.

I got George's year of birth by taking 77 (age at death) away from 1884 (year of death).

I have noticed when going through the censuses, that they tell a few little lies with respect to their ages.

343 Bright Street, Sarnia, Ontario. N7T 4G5

Rev. David E. Witheridge,
2425 Irving Avenue South,
Minneapolia. Minnesota,
U.S.A. 55405.

November 8th, 1988.

Dear Rev. Witheridge,

I recently obtained the enclosed death extract of Christopher Witheridge.

I came across Christopher in the 1910 Toronto City Directory, listed as a Brakeman with CPR and residing at 44 Hook Street, Toronto.

I had written the Toronto Trust Cemeteries, asking them information on any Witheridge's buried in Toronto. On the list that they forwarded to me, it had Christopher Witheridge, died March 4th, 1935, in Toronto, at the age of 57 years, being the Wife of Charlotte Witheridge of 26 Havelock Street, Toronto, and buried in Prospect Cemetery, 1450 St. Clair West, Toronto.

I was even more anxious to find out more about him, as I could not fit him in with the Witheridge's of Canada.

I sent for a death extract, and as you can see, he was born in England, being the Son of Nathaniel and Elizabeth Witheridge.

I looked on the lists which you kindly forwarded to me, of the Bradworthy Witheridges, and could only find the following:

Nathaniel - Bapt. Jan 5, 1632/3 - Ilfracombe, had two wives (1) Joane (2) Emma Eastaway
Son of James Witheridge and Joane Moule
(This one is too far back)

Nathaniel - Bapt. Mar 13, 1678 - Ilfracombe
bur. Apr 25, 1750 - Ilfracombe
Son of Nathaniel Witheridge and Emma Eastaway
(This one is too far back)

Nathan - Birth 1839 - Bradworthy
Son of John Wetheridge and Grace Grills
Brother of George who emigrated to Canada

This too is a little far back, it would make Nathan around 39 when Christopher was born. I suppose this could be the one.

I was wondering if you could help me out at all, do you have any more information.

Also, do you have any information on the Church in Bradworthy, Devon. I think I told you, that we leave for Britain on December 12th, and we are hoping to visit Devon.

I do have quite a large amount of Genealogy Extracts of Births, Marriages and Deaths, on our Witheridge family, if you would like copies I would be pleased to forward them to you.

I did hear from the Witheridge Society, and now have a copy of the Witheridge Times, Volume 2 Number 2, and find it all very interesting.

I do plan on sending Joyce Browne, copies of all my Extracts, as per her request, but thought I would take them back to England myself, and maybe mail them there. I am also anxious to find out if she has any Certificates of the Witheridges of Bradworthy, prior to visiting St. Catherine's House.

Well, I think that's about all for now. Thanking you for any help you can offer.

Kind regards,

Kathy

Dear Kathy,

Because you are leaving for England on Dec. 12, I'm just sending a quick note. I've looked through all my records and don't find any Nathaniel but the ones you listed. However, Kim Cook has a more complete index and may have some others. She's also trying to compile all the Witheridge/Wetheridge entries in the St. Catherines House Indexes and may have the reference for Christopher. That would be the best place to start. You should write directly to Kim and also try to call her when you're in England.

Unless some other Nathaniels turn up, it's quite possible that the Nathan born in 1839 in Bradworthy was the father of Christopher. That might also confirm my conjecture that the Thomas Witheridge married in 1698 in Bradworthy was the son of Nathaniel of Ilfracombe. But that remains to be proven.

Thank you for your Oct. 14th letter with all its information. I haven't time to write any more at this time.

Sincerely,
David Witheridge

March 4,1989

Dear Kathy,

I hope you had a most wonderful trip to England in December, and I look forward to having a report from you when you have a chance to write. For several months I've been hoping to write to you, but couldn't seem to find the time. What prodded me into action was the enclosed copy of a letter I recently received from Philip Hookway in Nuneaton. His Witheridge ancestry is in Devon, but we haven't yet discovered the connection between our families.

You will note that in addition to all the Hookway references, Ruth Stevens mentions John Manning who married Grace Witheridge, a relative of your husband. Ruth also found the grave of William Witheridge, Grace's brother, though the year (1846) was apparently copied wrong from the stone. She also found the grave of their father, John Witheridge, though here again there is a discrepancy in the date of death. According to his age given (77), this should be 1859, and perhaps the date I have (June 27) is the date of burial, and hers (May 21) is the actual death.

In any case, since she is in contact with some Manning descendants (her fourth cousins), you may want to get their addresses from her and write to them. They may know more about their Witheridge ancestry, or they may enjoy helping you find out more about it!

Before writing this letter I took the time to go through all the records and items you sent me, and I have made the proper additions to my own records. Thank you very much for this information. You asked if I would like to have copies of extracts you have of births, marriages, and deaths. Yes, I'd be very glad to have them, and I'll be glad to reimburse you, if you will let me know the cost.

Another question you asked was about wills in England. I have had very little success in this regard, as the Devon wills were all located at the Exeter Cathedral, which was badly damaged by bombs in World War II. There are some earlier extracts available, but very few of Witheridge wills. The place to check is the Devon Record Office. Later wills (after 1858) should be at Somerset House, Strand, London WC2R 1LP.

I have also had very little luck as yet with land records. Unlike the vital records, land records are not available here on microfilm, and even at the county record offices in England they are not usually indexed. Not living in England, I have more or less ignored them. Perhaps you can discover a way of using them. If so, please let me know!

Well, that is all I have time for now.

Sincerely,

W231

Dear Michael,

I'm sure you must have heard from Una Parsons about the Witheridge celebration to be held in Tiverton on the Bank Holiday, May 3-5. I'm writing to make sure you are well informed and to urge you and Hilary to make a special effort to go, especially on Saturday--as well as Michelle and her husband, if they can make it.

= It's really going to be an outstanding odcasion, as there will be Witheridge descendants from many parts of the world besides Britain. I already know many from the United States, Canada, and Australia who are going, and there may be other countries represented. Quite a few are descended from the Combe Martin branch, so you will get to meet these distant relatives of yours, plus many from other branches that we haven't yet connected to ours. I'm looking forward to getting acquainted with each of them and hearing their stories, as they must all be very special people.

Because so many of the Witheridge descendants stem from Combe Martin, I'm wondering if there are still copies of your book about Combe Martin available. If so, I think you should bring some to Tiverton, because I'm sure there would be people who would like to buy them.

I'm also looking forward to being able to be in Combe Martin again via the coach tour. I have fond memories of the place and the people there, and this will give me a chance to see many of my non-Witheridge relatives.

Well, that's all for now. Please do your best to get to Tiverton in May.

Yours sincerely,

England

Dear Michael and Hilary,

I'm sorry it has taken me so long to write to you after our trip to England last summer. We had a wonderful time and enjoyed meeting many relatives and friends. One of the most interesting times was our gathering with distant relatives in Combe Martin.

We arrived home with dreadful colds that lasted several weeks. In addition we found they were in the midst of a severe drought and heat wave here, so our energy level was very low. It seemed to take forever to do all the things needing to be done after our trip.

[Private medical information redacted here]

Finally, here I am, and I do want to establish contact with you. When I got around to comparing the little Witheridge chart you gave me with my other Witheridge records, I had no trouble tying it in. I know you're a distant cousin, Michael, but I'm not sure of the exact relationship, because of a discrepancy between your information and mine. I'm enclosing two family group sheets for you to compare with your records.

You will see that my record of the children of Nicholas and Prudence Witheridge lists only six children, omitting William, who married Rebecca Ley. According to my records, William was born in Berrynarbor, the son of Thomas Witheridge and Mary Sherman. If you have other evidence showing William to be the son of Nicholas and Prudence, I'd be very grateful to receive it.

I was grateful to have the information that Wilmot Witheridge married Robert Willis. I had Thomas Bussacott as the husband of this Wilmot, but he must be the husband of another Wilmot, whom I haven't discovered yet. I also had Susanna Ley as the wife of a different Henry Witheridge, because I had only recently heard about this Henry from a third cousin of mine, Marjorie Packer. So you did help me in several ways with your information. If you have any other corrections or additions, please let me know.

My recollection, Michael, from our visit to Combe Martin is that you and John Sharp have been involved in starting the Combe Martin Historical Society. I was very happy when I heard about this society, and I'd like to become a member and receive its publications. My ancestors lived in that small part of North Devon over 300 years--first in Berrynarbor and then in Combe Martin--so I feel very close to that area. Here is 5.00 to get me on the list. Please let me know what the annual dues are.

I hope you will enjoy the enclosed pictures as a reminder of our get-together. I discovered that Michael was one of a few people I missed in my picture taking. I didn't have the process well organized, and I did try to talk to everyone for at least a few minutes, so time seemed to run out that evening. Perhaps you would give Michelle the one she is in and tell her we did enjoy meeting her.

Now I must close, as I still have a number of other letters to write. Best wishes to all of you.

Yours sincerely,

Editor's Note

According to DEW's marginal notes in document calendars 139 and 140, all documents ranging from W233 to W243 were to be found in a file called "Witheridge New Jersey. Unfortunately, that file is missing. If it turns up, or if documents in that range are found in another file or files, I'll insert them at appropriate spots in the document collection. For example, documents W242 and W243 were actually located in files named for the people involved, and they are presented here in proper numerical order.

The following documents summarized in document calendars 140 and 141 are also missing: W246 to W247, W251 to W254 and W258 to W259. DEW's marginal notes in the calendars suggest several places to look for the missing documents ("Unans. Geneal. Letters," "Unans. Personal Letters," and "Inf. to be Recorded"), but as of today I have been unable to find files with those labels. All I can do is apologize and hope that many of these documents will eventually turn up.

Dear Martha,

Your mother probably told you I talked to her on the phone a week or so ago, and you probably saw the letter I wrote in March. I was pleased to learn that you might be interested in finding out more about your Witheridge ancestry and relatives.

As you see, I am enclosing another copy of the list of Witheridges from the recent book, "Witheridges Across America." Although it isn't complete, it shows how scarce the name really is. All those starting with William N. Witheridge are relatives of mine, and the rest are from New Jersey (some by way of Nanticoke, Pa.). It looks to me like just two main family groups.

At this point I would guess that the three brothers and one sister your mother told me about were children of George Edwin Witheridge, who was born in Lamerton, Devon, and came as a boy to Wharton, N.J., with his father, John Phillip Witheridge. This is one thing I hope you will help me confirm or disprove.

Enclosed is my family group sheet for John Phillip Witheridge and his children, and also a projected one for George Edwin Witheridge and his children. I'J be very grateful if you would fill in any names, places, and dates you can discover, especially for George Edwin Witheridge's family (if this actually is). The easiest place to start would be the death record or an obituary of your grandfather, Creighton. By the way, I'm sending similar material to your sister Janet, so you may want to work together in some way.

I'm also enclosing a family group sheet for your own family. I hope you will fill this in and send me a copy. What you should do is add what you can to all these sheets and then send me a photocopy of the corrected sheets.

Your mother also told me you had been buying a special perfume from Devon and have now discovered you can get it from a company here in Minneapolis. I'd be interested in hearing about this from you.

That will be all for now. I look forward to hearing from you.

Yours sincerely,

David E. Witheridge

Dear Janet,

Your mother may have told you I talked to her on the phone a week or so ago. I was trying to reach your father, whom I had written to in March, not realizing he had died. Perhaps you saw or heard about that letter. I hope you will be interested in finding out more about your Witheridge ancestry and relatives.

I got your father's name and address from the enclosed list, which is out of a recent book, "Witheridges Across America." Of course, the list isn't 100% complete, but it shows how scarce the name really is. All those starting with William N. Witheridge are relatives of mine, and the rest are from New Jersey (some by way of Nanticoke, Pa.). I think there are just two family groups represented.

Dear Mavis and John,

I'm sure you will be surprised to get a letter from me so long since our trip to England last year. (In fact, it's just about a year since we arrived there last May.) I won't try to explain why it has taken me so long to write to you. It has just been a very busy year and full of many distractions and responsibilities.

We greatly enjoyed our visit to Britain, and we remember our evening get-together in Combe Martin as one of the high points. Enclosed are a couple of pictures to serve as a pleasant reminder of that delightful gathering. I intended to send them to you many months ago.

Mavis, I have known since our visit in 1980 that you are a distant Witheridge relative of mine, but I have never pursued the matter to define the relationship. Now I find in my notes that you are a cousin of Una's and that you and she share the same grandmother--Emma Witheridge, who married Henry George Parsons. This means that, like Una, you are my (ninth) seventh cousin. It's fun to have relatives still living in my old ancestral home of Combe Martin!

I see that Una didn't give me much information about your grandparents, Emma and Henry Parsons and their family. I'd really be grateful if you would send me a list of their children in chronological order --in other words, Una's father Herbert, your mother or father, and any brothers or sisters they had.

I guess that's all for now. We look forward to hearing from you at your convenience.

Sincerely,

Rev. David E. Witheridge,
2425 Irving Avenue South,
Minneapolis. Minnesota,
U.S.A. 55405.

Dear David & Elizabeth,

First of all my apologies for taking so long to write you, but life has been very hectic around here.

For the month of July, we had my sister and brother-in-law and another couple over from England visiting us, so of course, we had to do the grand tour of Ontario; Toronto, Kingston, Upper Canada Village, Ottawa, Montreal, Algonquin Park, Muskoka, and all down Lake Huron, back home. We even stopped in at the graveyard in Darlington Twp, to show our visitors just where the Witheridges lived and died on their arrival from Devon, England, in 1842.

Since then, we have been very busy doing major renovations to our house, it's a lot of work, but it should be lovely when eventually finished.

I am also back to work, I do keep trying to retire, but as soon as the lawyers in town find out I am at home, they have to call me to work. There is a very bad shortage of legal secretaries in town.

In November, we are flying to Los Angeles, California, for two weeks. Paul is doing a one week business stint in Newport Beach, we then extend the trip for an additional week and move on to Hollywood. It should be a lot of fun, as we have never been there before. My mother tells me that she has a cousin in Beverly Hills, so I am thinking seriously about paying her a visit, as she may be able to give me information about her father, who was my grandfathers brother.

I now go back to May 1st, I got so depressed that day because I couldn't take my mind off thinking about the great day in England. I had spent a great deal of time printing posters etc., for "Witheridge Day", and felt so sad because I couldn't be there. I thought about you, and probably you felt sad too, because the previous year you had attended.

I did think very seriously of calling, but I had no telephone number for the Hall where the event was taking place, and I knew that I wouldn't reach anyone at Phils home.

We are hoping to return once again to England next year, but I don't think it will be in May. We really enjoy September in England, and seem to keep to that month. A few years ago, we did go for 3 weeks in May, and it rained every single day. On the other hand, we have been in September 3 times, and each time have had wonderful weather.

I did try my hand at writing an article for the "Witheridge Times" and am enclosing a copy for you to look at. I could have probably gone on for ever, but didn't wish to bore members.

I am having a really hard time trying to locate an L.D.S. Church, were I could view some records. I had read in a book that there was a new L.D.S. Church here in Sarnia, so I wrote and asked if they had a library there. My letter was today returned "No Mail Receptacle".

I was having a great deal of difficulty with Paul's great-great grandmother, Susan McWaters, who married George Witheridge, Jr, on or about the year 1867. I knew that Susan was born in Ireland, as the census told me so, but I had no idea as to where or which part of Ireland. I have spent quite a lot of time researching this name, and now find that she was the daughter of John McWaters, who came to Canada from County Armagh, Northern Ireland.

John McWaters, was born on or around the year 1808, and was married 3 times, his first wife was Susanna J. Johnston, born on or about the year 1812, and was the daughter of John Johnston. John McWaters and Susanna J. Johnston had 3 children.

John McWaters second wife, and the mother of my Susan, is unknown at the present time, but there were 2 children of this marriage, Thomas McWaters born on or around the year 1844, and my Susan, who was born on or around the year 1845/46.

John McWaters third wife, Jane Copeland, born on or around the year 1822, the daughter of Agnes Copeland, and there were 11 children of that marriage.

It is thought that Susan McWaters was quite young when she arrived in Clarke Township, Canada, which is right next to Darlington Township.

I am a member of the Ontario Genealogy Society and also a member of the Branch of Whitby/Oshawa, where the Witheridge family arrived from England.

I have obtained an abundance of information from the Branch, and was advised by them, that a Barbara DiMambro of Richmond Hill, Near Toronto, had an Ad in the O.G.S. magazine, she was looking for George Witheridge and Susan McWaters. I immediately contacted her and told her that these were the great-great grandparents of my husband Paul. They also turned out to be her great-great grandparents. She had very little knowledge about the Witheridge family, so I immediately offered my assistance. Whilst returning my family to Toronto Airport in July, we called in to see Barb, and took her a huge box of information, certificates, etc., on the Witheridge family. As you can well imagine, she was delighted to say the least.

Between Barb and I, we have now come up with a date of death and place of burial for George and Susan. I did have a date of death for George, but never had one for Susan.

We are now both anxious to find out more about Susan, and that is why I am anxious to view some of the L.D.S. records.

Well, I think that I have probably gone on long enough, and hope that you are both keeping well.

Kind regards,

Kathy

"THE ONES THAT GOT AWAY"
THE WITHERIDGE FAMILY WHO EMIGRATED TO CANADA FROM BRADWORTHY, DEVON

Canada, is a Nation of Immigrants, we or our ancestors travelled to Canada to build a new life. It is not known why the Witheridge family moved from the lovely village of Bradworthy, Devon, but it is evident that George Witheridge along with his recent bride, Mary Sanders and their two year old Son, John, emigrated to join other family members and share their wealth in a relative new country.

George Witheridge, the great-great-great grandfather of my husband Paul Witheridge, was the son of John Witheridge and Martha Sanders. It is only in recent months that the mother of George has been found. It was thought that his mother was Grace Grills, as she was the mother of his six brothers and two sisters and the wife of his father. All my records indicated that George was born on or around the year 1807, but John Witheridge did not marry Grace Grills until August 6th, 1815, and, as Grace Grills was born in 1793, she would have only been fourteen years old when George was born.

The Reverend Peter Sutton, of Bradworthy Parish Church, Devon, was preparing for me, a Witheridge Pedigree, and when it arrived, there was a notation against the name of John Witheridge indicating that on September 3rd, 1808, he entered into a Bond in respect of a child expected by Martha Sanders of Milton Damerel, Devon, of whom he was the alleged father. (4 mi. ESE of Bradworthy)

As a baptism record for George had never been found in Bradworthy, Devon, it was presumed that his year of birth was on or about 1816. I now felt certain that the illegitimate child expected by Martha Sanders was George. I then obtained a copy of the baptism register from Milton Damerel, showing George Witheridge, son of Martha Sanders was baptized on December 18th, 1808. My suspicions were now confirmed.

George Witheridge married Mary Sanders, at Bradworthy Parish Church, on March 25th, 1839, and on December 22nd, 1839, their first child, John Witheridge was born at Cleverdon, in the Parish of Bradworthy.

It is believed that George Witheridge, his wife Mary, and their son John, emigrated to Canada in or around the year 1842. Their second child, Mary Jane, was born in Upper Canada in 1842, and George Witheridge appeared in the 1843 census for Darlington Township, Upper Canada.

Darlington Township was a relatively small farming community, being thirty miles east of Toronto and five miles west of Bowmanville, which is now in the Province of Ontario.
In 1866, the Ebenezer Chapel was opened in Darlington Township, this being the Bible Christian Church, which was of the Devon origin. Many of the Devon families attended the chapel, including the Witheridge family.

It is interesting to walk through the older section of the Ebenezer Cemetery today, and find such names as Grills, Harris, Littlejohns, Oke, Osborne, Sanders/Saunders and of course, Witheridge, all buried in the cemetery, and all names which appear in my Witheridge family tree, and originate from Bradworthy, Devon. In fact, the Ontario Heritage Foundation, Ministry of Citizenship and Culture, have placed a plaque in front of the chapel, which reads as follows:

THE BIBLE CHRISTIAN CHURCH

> "Perhaps the most fervent of the Methodist sects, the Bible Christian Church was formed in southwestern England in 1815 and established in Upper Canada during the 1830's. Served by itinerant preachers, its small but loyal membership increased gradually, largely among British emigrants from Devon and Cornwall who had settled in rural areas in Northumberland, Durham and Huron Counties. In 1855 the Canadian mission, noted, as was the parent English body for its emphasis upon lay-ministered co-operation in church government, became an independent conference and by 1870 numerous chapels, including this structure, had been built. However, inability to gain support in emerging urban centres and mounting financial difficulties arrested the sect's growth. In 1884 the Bible Christian Church entered into a union with other Methodist bodies."

On October 27th, 1853, George Witheridge bought a 96 acre farm, being Part Lot 21, in the First Concession, for the Township of Darlington, County of Durham, for the sum of One thousand and twenty-eight pounds ten shillings of lawful money of the Province of Canada.

On the south-west corner of the Witheridge farm there was a school, which was built in 1840 of log construction. In January, 1857, George Witheridge sold off a small portion of his land in the south-west corner to School Trustees of School Section Number Three, in order that the school could be extended. He sold yet another small piece of his land to the School Trustees in 1875, possibly to extend the school even more.

This was no doubt the school where the six Witheridge children attended, and would have only been a short walk for them in the winter time. This school is now long gone but records which I obtained from the Provincial Archives, showed the following information:
"Darlington Township School Number Three was built in 1840 of log construction. In 1856 the school was open nine months and nineteen days. Total inhabitants in the school district were 249, young and old, 71 of which were between the age of 5 and 16 years, 30 of which were boys, 35 were girls and 5 of the students were non-residents from other sections.

7 scholars attended school less than 20 days in the year 1856.
27 scholars attended school between 20 and 50 days;
17 scholars attended school between 50 and 100 days;
8 scholars attended school between 100 and 150 days;
6 scholars attended school between 150 and 200 days;
No scholars attended the full 260 days.

10 scholars were in the lowest class or the First Book of the National Readers;
11 scholars were in the 2nd class or Second Book of the National Readers;
19 scholars were in the 3rd class or Third Book of the National Readers;
10 scholars were in the 4th class or Fourth Book of the National Readers, and 15 scholars were in the 5th class or Fifth Book of the National Readers.

42 students studied arithmetic
13 students studied grammar
12 students studied geography
No students studied history and 44 students studied writing.

The school teacher in 1856 was E.G. Power."

It is quite obvious that the children were encouraged to work rather than attend school. The males usually worked around the farm and the girls went into service.

George Witheridge lived on the farm until his death on April 18th, 1884, aged 77 years. His Will read that his wife Mary, was to remain on the property until her death. He gave to his eldest child, John Witheridge, 46 acres, being one half of the farm more or less, and the remaining 46 acres to his youngest child, William Thomas Witheridge. In turn the said John Witheridge had to pay to his sister, Jane Oke, the sum of $460.00, and to his brother George Witheridge Jr. the sum of $60.00. The said William Thomas Witheridge, along with his mother, Mary Witheridge, was to pay to the said George Witheridge Jr. the sum of $400.00, and the sum of $400.00 to his sister Sarah Witheridge. The remaining child, Elizabeth Witheridge had died on February 21st, 1865 at the age of 20 year 1 month.

The witnesses to the Will were Thomas and Grace Yeo, who were from Bradworthy, Devon.

The farm was held by the two brothers until January 6th, 1905, when it was sold to Walter Foley. I might add at this time that the farm is still in existence today, with many changes of course, and is still owned by the Foley family.

Dear Carol,

Thank you for your telephone call. I'm sorry I couldn't remember the facts about your family at first, but I looked up the notes I took during your first call, and I see that you are a descendant of Francis Witheridge and Ann Eastaway of Berrynarbor and Ilfracombe. You are definitely a very distant cousin of mine — I think about ninth cousin — but I can't figure it out exactly until you send me information about how you are related to Francis and Ann Witheridge.

I have met or corresponded with several other descendants of Francis and Ann Witheridge. They are thus more closely related to you than I am. They are John James of Vancouver, B.C.; Neil Witheridge of Stonehaven, Scotland; his nephew, Robin Witheridge of London; Una Parsons, Mavis Pegler, and Kenneth Norman of Combe Martin; and Una's niece, Robyn Connett of Exeter.

I haven't time to write more at this time, but I look forward to a letter from you containing more information.

Yours sincerely,
David E. Witheridge

Dear Mr Witheridge,

Many thanks for your letter of the 16 June enclosing the picture which you took of myself with Mavis Pegler. - the Parsons family have been known to me for many years.

I am so glad you enjoyed your meeting with the many interested people of Combe Martin

At present we are having the most glorious weather, so lovely that I can only remember one year similar, and that was in 1947. This summer has been overshadowed by a threatened drought and we are extremely anxious that we do not get rationing even now.

Yes, I am very interested in music especially the Baroque period 1600 - 1750. I have played at the Baptist church for about half a century allowing for five years when on war service.

Incidentally, this year - June I, with fifty eight other organ "buffs" went to E Germany. Our tour was arranged by Inter Church Travel and it took in Leipzig, Dresden and Erfurt. Really we were looking and listening to the organ works of J S Bach played on the magnificent Silbermann organs which Albert Schweitzer admired. Our recitalist and lecturer was Peter Hurford the English international organist.

We had two American ladies in the party and from Canada there was a coloured organist - a fine player his name was Foster Hill and he played a four manual Cassavant organ at a large Presbyterian Church somewhere in Ontario. At one time he told me he had had lessons from Virgil Fox.

I've also been to Saas Fee in Switzerland where four of us did some long walks to Mountain huts. In the party was a Mr and Mrs Gammon – he is circuit Treasurer for several Methodist churches in the Bradford circuit and Una Stock came with me. Una is a geographer and is very keen on taking photos of geographical scenes for teaching purposes. She is also the person with whom you communicate from time to time.

Now as to the Bray family I am not able to help you to any great degree. My Father William Bray was born in the Parish of Kentisbury – three miles from Combe Martin in 1877. – he died at age 91 in 1969. My grandfather was John Bray who died in 1920/1 and while most of his life was spent at Kentisbury he came from Braunton. In Braunton there were other Brays and my grandfather's brother was one of the many sea captains sailing out of Braunton on the vessels which plied their trade perhaps as far afield as Ireland but mainly in the Bristol Channel. This brother was call Richard "Dick" Bray and he is mentioned as owning a Vessel called the Lavinia in a book called "Victorian Braunton" by Arthur Slee. I cant go back further at present.

Yes, I am aware of Mrs Annie Bray who was Kenneth Norman's grandmother. I have always understood that the Bray she married was a Berrynarbor Bray. One of the Brays of Berrynarbor was organist at the Parish church for 45 years and I believe (the family) they owned the ancient Globe Inn. at one time.

At the present time I regret that I cannot offer more assistance. In view of the fact that there would appear to be no relationship to the Berrynarbor Brays I cannot see that a relationship exists between the two of us.

Perhaps as Autumn comes and I'm not so busy I will go to the new library at Barnstaple and try to consult their archives, and take Una Stock with me for she has done considerable research on the Irwins.

I do hope you and your wife are keeping well

Yours sincerely
Bill Bray

Telephone from Carol Goins in Calif. - 12/7/89

Called to wish us Merry Christmas before she leaves for England.

Had a letter from her third cousin in New Zealand:
Velma Metcalfe [49 Chester Road, Tawa, Wellington, NZ] (Kin)
Working on her Witheridge ancestry
Stuck about 1775
Corresponded with Carol's brother in England and with The Witheridge Society
Connected up with my information going back to 1500's
She has written a history of the Witheridges in New Zealand to be used in "The Witheridge Times", but it hasn't come out probably because Philip Witheridge's wife has Multiple Sclerosis

Carol's brother does a great deal of genealogy and has been to St. Catherine's house several times. He is not working, as he has degeneration of the spine, which he has had about 10 yrs. He is in his 50's Carol's husband has French ancestry - both his father and his mother.

Dear Elizabeth & David

We were so glad to get your Christmas letter and to hear about your family, + your trips to England.

We have been pretty busy. Bob is still delivering motor homes and I go with him a lot of the times. We spent 4 mo. in our own this past summer.

Our Bob is still in Pt. Townsend. He hasn't married. He gets his little boy quite often and keeps close to him. Larry and Carol and Christy Ann now live in Colorado Springs. He is working for Santa Fe railroad. They love it ___ but we miss them so much. We spent some time with them this summer.

Joan + family are busy as ever. Laura + Lance are growing up. She is 22 and he is 19. They are both in school.

We haven't seen Margaret for 2 years + as she was gone when we were there. She hasn't been too well but in her last letter she said she was feeling better and had gained 7½ lbs. She was down to 100. She is such a wonderful person.

Do have a wonderful Christmas and a very Happy New Year

Love

Rev. & Mrs. David E. Witheridge,
2425 Irving Avenue South,
Minneapolis. Minnesota,
U.S.A. 55405.

Dear David & Elizabeth,

First of all I must wish you both all the very best wishes for 1990. Another decade! how time flies.

Having just returned from a vacation in Los Angeles, California, and a wonderful trip I might add, I am now anxious to plan our next holiday.

We are thinking of going to England in May, to attend the "Witheridge Day Celebrations". It is a dream of mine and has been since I first heard about the "Witheridge Society".

I am getting more and more involved with my Family Tree, and have found Paul more distant cousins than he ever thought possible. We felt that Paul was the last of the Witheridge line in Canada, but we are now corresponding with John Witheridge, a school teacher from Orono, Ontario, (very close to where the Witheridge family settled upon their arrival from Devon). He has two sons, the eldest of which is named Devon Edward Witheridge, and he made it quite clear to me that he knew of his roots.

John's father, Clarence Howard Witheridge, is still alive and resides in Kingston, Ontario. He also has a cousin, Robert Henry, whose mother was a Witheridge, who lives in Victoria, British Columbia, and whom I have been corresponding with. He gave me quite a lot of history on the Witheridge family, who apparently, moved all over North America.

— John James

One of the Witheridge girls, Marguerite Witheridge, a sister of his grandfather, moved to Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, U.S.A. and married a Carl Tomblen, a State Senator for Idaho. A few of the Witheridge family moved to North Dakota, some to Marysville, Washington, and Everett, Washington, and others took up farming in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, Canada. The name could now be pretty wide-spread across North-America, I will have to do some more digging.

He also sent me a lovely old photograph of his grand parents, who would have been Paul's great-great uncle and aunt.

If you can be of any assistance in advising me how to locate families in U.S.A., I would appreciate any help you can offer.

Once again, all the very best to you both.

Kind regards

Kathy

The Combmartin & Berrynarbor Family

by Kim Cook

In this issue we are again looking at a simplified family tree; this time it is for the Witheridges of Combmartin and Berrynarbor in North Devon. This branch of the family is perhaps the most prolific, and it is not possible to fit the full family tree into the format of our magazine.

In selecting the parts to include, I have borne in mind our members Joan and Harry Payne (035 & 055) of Cheltenham, and Dave and Elizabeth Witheridge (042 & 043) of Minneapolis. This chart shows very clearly the relation-ship (7th cousin) between them, and I am very grateful to both families for much useful information included in this article.

The earliest recorded Witheridges in Berrynarbor are John (c1500-1541), William (c1507-1565), Thomas (c1509-1553), Humfry (c1511-1544) and Edward (c1513-1550). These five men may have been brothers or cousins, and it seems that at least four of them produced descendants. It is believed that Thomas may have been the father of Nicholas (see top of tree), and of a daughter Katherine, but the evidence is not conclusive. In some early records the surname is spelled Witherygg.

The family were still in Berrynarbor at the time of David and Joan's common ancestor Thomas, who was baptised in Berrynarbor on 29th December 1650. His marriage to Mary Sherman took place in Fremington, but their children were all baptised in Berrynarbor. However, subsequent generations began the exodus, first to neighbouring villages and towns, and then further afield.

From the junior branch William (1690-1731) and Rebecca moved to Combmartin where their two children were baptised in 1724 and 1727. This branch of the family stayed in Combmartin until John (1828-1905) his wife Clara and their children moved to South Wales in the early 1870's. The family lived in Cwmaman, Aberdare and John worked as a collier.

In 1877 their eldest son William, his wife Mary Jane and their five children made the long sea journey to America, settling first in Sherrodsville, Ohio, where three further children were born. Later the family moved to Saginaw, Michingan, where their grandson David was born, and where he met and married Elizabeth. Incidentally, one section of this branch stayed in North Devon, and has descendants still living at High Bray, near Brayford.

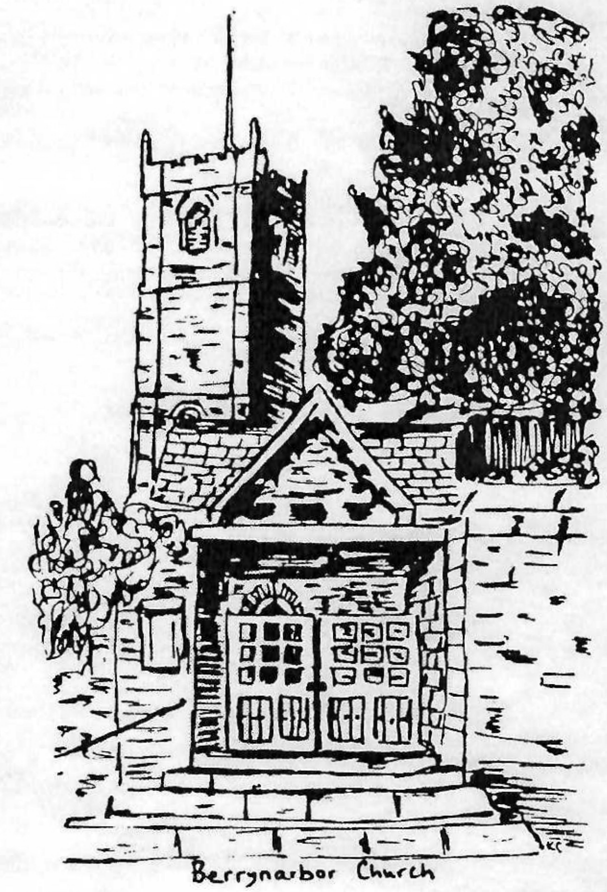
The senior branch stayed a little longer in Berrynarbor. Thomas (b1751) and Mary were married there and both their children were baptised there. However, their eldest son, John, married in Combmartin, and his son, also John, was baptised there. Francis (b1782) married Ann Eastaway in Ilfracombe, where their four children were baptised.



Berrynarbor Church

The most mobile was Thomas (b1808), probably because of his job as a coastguard. Of his children, Edmund was born in Lymington, Hants, Philemon and John in Watchet, Somerset, Jacob Thomas in Barnstable and Ann in Porthleven, Cornwall. I believe Thomas died in Cornwall in 1871 at the age of 62, while his wife Jane lived on until she was 80 in 1893.

Their son Jacob was originally a joiner, so I don't know what took him to the Newcastle-upon-Tyne area, where in 1876 he married Charlotte Caroline Hardwick. Their first two children were born in the Newcastle area, but by 1881 the family was living in Fulham, London, where Jacob died in 1923. Mary Craven (mother of Joan Payne) was a younger and only surviving twin. After Jacob's death the family resided for a while in Whitton, Middlesex, where Joan's own daughter Joan Mary, was married in 1970.

Both the branches have come a long way, geographically and socially, from those first Witheryggs in Berrynarbor. But some things have survived, including the names Joan and Thomas (David's younger son is also Thomas).

Another interesting name (which does not seem to have survived) is Wilmot. This, surprisingly, is a female name, and one which seems peculiar to North Devon. Tamsin (Thamosin, Thomasin) is another West Country speciality, a feminine form of Thomas.

Another member of the family who moved from Combmartin was Edwin (b1835). He married Matilda Thomas in 1859, but thereafter disappears from the locality. For a long time it was believed that he had died without issue. However, I recently did some detective work on this and discovered that Matilda died in Clifton, Bristol, in 1860, where three years later Edwin married his second wife Albertina and had eight children!

I have been in touch with some of Edwin's descendants and hope to include that branch of the family tree in a future issue of Witheridge Times.

Greetings.

I hope this note finds you both well.

We both retired in May and are enjoying all the leisure. We keep busy with our various interests. Pat is very busy on various church committees both at our local church and at the provincial conference and national level. I'm busy too but not nearly to the same extent.

We enjoyed a holiday to Spain and Morocco this year. Morocco was especially fascinating. Like going back in time the further south we travelled. Something of a Biblical flavour to the various scenes.

Our "girls" are a great joy. I guess they will always be "girls" no matter what age. Cath, the eldest, is expecting in June so we have an especially wonderful 89 to look forward to. Our first gr. ch.

Pat is in seventh heaven (where did that phrase come from I wonder) She has started knitting!

Ive got to crank up the genealogy fires soon. With all this leisure Ive no excuse. Regrettably I do owe a few letters.

With Best Wishes

Greetings:

We are indeed fortunate to be grandparents! Athena Rose arrived in June and Pat has been walking on air ever since and I've been quite high too. She is just lovely.

We are just back from [illegible] for the whole family [illegible] the weather was along and we had a wonderful time. Just as one would wish.

So you are having a Xmas with Dean, Virginia and Rebecca. What an occasion that will be! Rebecca will bring an added dimension to the season.

I'll write again in the New Year.

Rev. & Mrs. David E. Witheridge,
2425 Irving Avenue South,
Minneapolis. Minnesota,
U.S.A. 55405.

Dear David & Elizabeth,

I have just returned from a visit to our local library, and was most interested in something I read.

I was browsing through the Ships Passenger Lists Volumes, and found the following:

WITHERIDGE, John - n.a. - Maine, 1622 - 8880 p.19

I asked just what this meant, and was told that John Witheridge, age not known, arrived in Maine, U.S.A. in 1622. The 8880 is a reference to a book entitled "Pioneers on Maine Rivers" by Spencer.

Having never looked at the Passenger Lists Volumes before, I am not familiar with how they work. I thought maybe you could assist me.

I have checked the IGI for John Witheridge, but as we do not have an age for the above named, it could be very difficult.

I have no idea if this would be your line or Paul's, as I am informed that it was usual to land in the U.S. then travel to Canada.

I believe you once told me that your family emigrated to U.S.A. in 1880, so it could well be a little early for you.

Do you have any records for John Witheridge/Wetheridge, who would probably have been born near the end of the 1500's with no burial records in England.

I am going to return to the library to take another look when I have a little more time.

In the meantime I have requisitioned the book "Pioneers on Maine Rivers" on an inter-library basis, to see if that tells me anything.

It would be most interesting to learn that the Witheridge family emigrated to North America in the early 1600's.

I am also going to write to Kim, to see if she can come up with anything, although I am sure that you hold most of the records which Kim has.

I hope you had an enjoyable vacation with Kim and Roy. If you are ever in Ontario, please feel free to visit us, you would always be more than welcome.

Kind regards,

Paul & Kathy

P.S. I am enclosing two photographs taken on "Witheridge Day".
On the group picture, I am second from the right on the front row and Paul is the one with the beard, first right second row. The other picture is the "Wetherherd Pie" competition. Phil did the large one, and won, and June Witheridge did the smaller ones, they were exceptionally good too.

Dear Kathy and Paul,

We just loved getting your letter and seeing how you are still making progress on the Witheridge line. Yes, I have been aware of the John Witheridge who was a ship master around 1600, and I now have a number of items about him that I am enclosing. I learned about him from the same volume where you found him, and I was able to get the book and copy the pertinent pages. I also found a reference to him in The Devon Family Historian (publication of the DevoonFamily History Society), which I am enclosing. Finally, I got a little item about him from Harry Witheridge of Virginia Water, Surrey, not far from London, who had been given it by a friend. It tells about a collection taken for John Witheridge and Nicholas Paige in a London church. I think these are all fascinating reading.

I believe I know who this John Witheridge was, though I don't have definite proof. I think he was the one born in Barnstaple in 1572, the son of John Witheridge and Elizabeth Stephyns. I'm enclosing the record sheets of this family. Hopefully, other records will continue to turn up concerning John, the mariner. It seems unlikely that he or his family ended up permanently in America, as he doesn't appear in any other records here.

Thanks for your pictures from the Witheridge Day in May. We were delighted to have a picture showing you two. We're sure you had a wonderful time. Kim brought us one of your framed potpourri sachets (or whatever you call it). We think it is just lovely, and we enjoy having something you made and took all the way to England! I'm enclosing a picture of Elizabeth and me taken in England in 1988.

We did have a most wonderful time with Kim and Roy when they were here, and we think they enjoyed it, too. We drove through Wisconsin to Chicago one weekend and visited our son Tom and his wife Virginia and daughter Rebecca, then drove back along the Mississippi River. On another day we drove up past Duluth to the North Shore of Lake Superior and back again to Minneapolis that evening.

That's all I have time for now.

Best wishes,

Dear Kathy,

I was greatly intrigued by your letter, but I've been too busy until now to answer it. Before doing so, I had to look over our former correspondence to remind me of all the details, and I see I have several things to write about.

First, I'm pleased to hear that you may go to England in time for the Witheridge Day celebration. I hope that you will be able to work it out and that you will have an excellent time.

Secondly, I'm glad you've found some of Paul's relatives, especially some who know about their family and background. For a number of years I've been in touch with John James, a Witheridge descendant and a distant cousin of mine, who lives in Vancouver; so I was excited to see that Robert Henry lives there. I know they will want to get together.

John's Witheridge line stems back to Berrynarbor, where mine began, and they lived for a while in Ilfracombe, where I think Paul's ancestor, Thomas Witheridge, may have been born in 1673. I think this Thomas was the son of Nathaniel Witheridge and Emma Eastaway, but that still is just my conjecture. It's interesting to note that John's ancestors in Ilfracombe were Francis Witheridge and Ann Eastaway. I've never had time to piece together the Eastaway family, but there were several Witheridge-Eastaway marriages over the years. If you want to pass on John James' address to Robert, it is 6276 Yukon St., Vancouver, B.C. V5Y 3S8.

Your question about other Witheridges in America (U.S.A) is one I've been working on for some time. My grandmother said ours was the only Witheridge family that had come to America, but I didn't believe that could be true, though it is a very rare name, even in Britain. Many years ago I discovered a Keith Witheridge, who was a school principal in Annapolis, Maryland. We have corresponded over the years, and I know his family also came from Devon (Lamerton), but we don't know his ancestry back before 1800, so we can't tell if we're related.

Last year I got a mailing advertising a book about to be published on Witheridge genealogy. From what I had heard, I knew it was apt to be a fraud in terms of tying all the Witheridges into a family tree, but I figured it would list all the Witheridges they had found in various computerized listings (probably city directories and phone books). I wanted to confirm my notion that the name was scarce in the U.S.A., and I thought the list might be of use to the Witheridge Society, so I ordered a copy, called "Witheridges Across America."

Just as I had thought, it was mostly general information on how to do genealogy, but it did contain a page listing all the Witheridges they had found--eighteen addresses in all. I'm enclosing a copy of that page. As you see, all those starting with William N. are members of my family. I wasn't sure about the one in Indianapolis, but I figured every one above that was part of Keith's family, because he came from Nanticoke, Pa., and his grandfather settled first in New Jersey when he came to America.

I started writing to these people about a year ago, and had great difficulty making contact. I found that the M.R.Witheridge of Indianapolis is also part of the New Jersey grppp, as she is the widow of Ernest Witheridge from Newark, N?J. I found that N. Witheridge of Newark and Nellie of Brick, N.J., were one and the same--Nellie (deceased), the mother of Ernest (deceased) and Mrs. Helen Witheridge Firman, who responded, but didn't know anything about her ancestry. She thinks George of Rahway is some kind of cousin, but is out of touch with him. George never did reply, and he has an unlisted phone number. Similarly, S. Witheridge of Lakehurst never replied and is not known by the others.

John O. Witheridge of Orange, N.J., is deceased, but I talked to his widow on the phone and found out he was also a cousin of Ernest Witheridge and Helen Firman, but they do not know their ancestry in England. I talked to Allen Witheridge's daughter Cathy, but she only knew that his father's name was Robert. That accounts for the whole list, and I still think the Witheridges in New Jersey are all related to Keith Witheridge, but I haven't done any further research.

So you see, there may be many Witheridge descendants in America by various other last names, but probably not many by the name of Witheridge. If you find any, please let me know!

I'm sorry I never answered your August 22nd letter, but when it came, I put it aside, because I knew I had to compare the new information with what I already had. I enjoyed your article on "The Ones that Got Away" and hope they get around to publishing it in "The Witheridge Times." By the way, I had a telephone call from Kim Cook on Christmas Day, which of course was very welcome. On our Christmas card to them I had mentioned that we hadn't received an issue of "The Witheridge Times" for quite a while. She said Philip Witheridge's wife has multiple sclerosis, which has seriously hampered things with the Witheridge Society. We were thrilled to hear that Kim and her husband Roy are planning a trip to Minneapolis in May or June, and we hope they will be able to stay with us for a couple of weeks.

I was delighted to hear of your discovery of Barbara DiMambro, and I know you and Paul will enjoy your contacts with her. I am reminded of the material I sent you last spring from Philip Hookway giving the address of Ruth Stevens in Exeter and her connection with John Manning and Grace Witheridge of Bradworthy. Did you ever write to her about their descendants who are fourth cousins of hers? Did you get their address and write to them? They are obviously distant cousins of Paul.

This has become much too long, but I have let this all pile up and should have written sooner. You write wonderful letters, and I look forward to another one some day.

Very sincerely,

Editor's Note

I ran across several items pertaining to the book, Witheridges Across America, in Dad's files. I've decided to place them here, in a clump directly following his February 10, 1990, letter to Kathy Witheridge (document W271, folder 1.63h), because that letter contains his fullest description of the scheme and how he took advantage of it.

Dad recognized it as a fraud, but a potentially useful one — cf. Vladimir Putin's recognition that fraudster Donald Trump was an idiot, and a useful one indeed.

Enjoy!

WITHERIDGE

August 8, 1990

Dear Mr. Witheridge,

Our book WITHERIDGES ACROSS AMERICA represents our knowledge about the location of Witheridge families in America. If individually researched, it would require you to spend thousands of dollars or months of work to search through National and State, government and utility records. These records represent the households of over 200 million people.

We have found the Witheridge name to be rare and thus WITHERIDGES ACROSS AMERICA is a very special limited edition. There will be less than 15 books published and they will only be printed upon your specific request. All orders must be received prior to September 19, 1990. Orders placed after this date must regretfully be declined.

WITHERIDGES ACROSS AMERICA is a hard bound library edition and is gold stamped on a leather textured cover. Each book is serially numbered and accompanied by a letter authenticating the collection of data for this one and only edition. THIS EDITION WILL NEVER BE PRINTED AGAIN.

P.S. You are already in this book.

Rev. & Mrs. David E. Witheridge,
2425 Irving Avenue South,
Minneapolis. Minnesota,
U.S.A. 55405.

Dear David & Elizabeth,

Just a few lines hoping to find you both keeping well.

For some time now, I have been trying to locate members of the Witheridge family, who migrated to U.S.A. from Darlington Township, Ontario.

I had heard that some of them had gone to Tacoma, Washington, so last year I wrote Tacoma Public Library. Yesterday, I received their reply.

I am enclosing a copy of their correspondence, hoping that it may be of some interest to you.

Irvin G. Witheridge, Ada Witheridge, Greta Witheridge and Ernest Witheridge, are of the same line as Paul, but I have a feeling that Mabel D. Witheridge and Edward A. Witheridge, may well be of your line. I noticed that they were from Port Townsend, Washington, and I see from your list of Witheridges across America, you have a first cousin, Robert A. Witheridge of Port Townsend, Washington.

Maybe this is purely coincidental, but I would like you to advise me if this is so.

It looks, from the information received from Tacoma, as though there may be members of the Witheridge family in San Francisco, California. It would appear that Morley Witheridge, son of Irvin and Ada Witheridge, moved to California around 1943/1944, so I will now investigate that possibility.

I did find Sarah Maude Ayre (nee Witheridge), sister of Irvin G. Witheridge, in Edam, Saskatchewan. She and her husband, Thomas H. Ayre, moved to Saskatchewan, as Homesteaders, after their marriage in 1905. It is believed that Maude lived until she was 99 years old.

I am enclosing some of the information which I have on the Ayres, as it is quite interesting.

I today received the book "Pioneers on Maine Rivers", but I really didn't need it any more, as you had so kindly forwarded copies of the appropriate pages for me. However, it is a very interesting book.

I must close now,

Kind regards,

Paul & Kathy.

Dear Mrs. Witheridge,

Long ago (last Spring) you wrote asking about a Witheridge who had migrated from Ontario to Tacoma.

I believe the enclosed copies will identify the migrant.

The Tacoma City Directory of 1928 was the first to include the name, so the family probably arrived here in 1927. They immediately bought a garage/service station, and operated it for several years. Son Morley evidently moved to San Francisco during World War II. He was listed in the 1942 directory, not listed in the next-published directory of 1945. There may have been a divorce in the meantime, also. Wife was listed as Allie M. then later as Frances L. No similar name is listed on the death certificate index.

There have been very few Witheridge families in Washington. From the Washington State Death Certificate Index there are only three of that last name in addition to the Irvin G. family here in Tacoma. (Years available, 1907-1979; years viewed, 1930-1979.) In case the additional names will help your genealogical research, I am also including the information here.

Dear Kathy & Paul,

I enjoyed your letter very much with the information and enclosures. I'm glad to know about these other Witheridges in the U.S.A.

Yes, you are right about Edward and Mabel Witheridge of Port Townsend, Washington. He was my uncle – my father's brother – and she was his first wife. He grew up in Saginaw, Michigan where Elizabeth and I also grew up. Uncle Ed moved west in 1920, settling first in Portland, Oregon, then moving to Port Townsend, where he and a partner owned a hardware and furniture store. We saw him occasionally when he came to Michigan to buy a car and drive it back to Port Townsend.

Fortunately, Elizabeth and I saw him and talked to him at length about family matters when we drove out there less than a year before he died.

This is all I have time for now, but I wanted you to have this bit of information right away.

Did I ever write to you on this note paper? We found it at the church in Witheridge, but when we tried to order more, we found they were all out and weren't going to get any more. So we had some printed locally.

Love,

David & Elizabeth

[DEW corrects the reversed authors' names]

Dear David & Elizabeth,

Thank you so much for your welcome letter received today.

The information which you so kindly forwarded on John Witheridge, was absolutely fascinating.

I was back to the library the other day and in the same "Passenger and Immigration Lists Index" came across the following:

WITHEREDGE, Edward (no age) Boston, Mass, 1643 - 1936 Page 326

Code Book Source 1936 was, "A Genealogical Register" by ~~Nugent~~, Farmer and
Code Book Source 6220 was, "Cavaliers & Pioneers" Volume One, by ~~Farmer.~~ Nugent

Would you know anything about these names?

From the information which you forwarded to me, the above named, John Witheridge, had a son named Edward, baptized July 26th, 1616 at Barnstaple, Devon, and also a son named William, baptized December 1st, 1610 at Barnstaple, Devon. It would appear that John's two sons were also mariners.

I looked through the Witheridge Society Handbook, and found that none of the members have lines back to Barnstaple in the 1500's and 1600's. It would appear that Paul's line would be the nearest, as I am back to 1604, James Witheridge of Fremington. On the Devon map, Fremington is very close to Barnstaple, so maybe there could be a connection there.

I don't believe I mentioned to you the trouble I am having with Paul's grandparents. I am enclosing a write-up of the incidents so you can read about my dilemma. Maybe you can come up with a suggestion for me.

By the way, the picture which you sent of yourselves taken in England is lovely.

If you are ever travelling near to Ontario, please come and visit us, we would simply love to meet with you both.

Kind regards,

Paul & Kathy.

A GENEALOGISTS NIGHTMARE

My husband's grandfather was born in the small village of Little Drayton Common, Shropshire, on July 24th, 1876. His name at birth being, ARTHUR AUSTIN, son of William Austin and Mary Austin (nee Barrow).

On March 3rd, 1902, the said ARTHUR AUSTIN, (then aged 25 years), married Mabel Kate Painter, (then aged 20 years), daughter of Charles Painter deceased and Elizabeth A. Painter (nee Clutterbuck), at Hunslet, Near Leeds, West Yorkshire, England.

It is not known why they decided to marry in Leeds, as Arthur came from Shropshire and Mabel came from Gloucestershire. The only reason I can come up with is, Mabel appeared to be seven months pregnant at the time of the marriage.

I am now in the possession of the birth certificates of their children, as follows:

DORIS MAY AUSTIN, daughter of Arthur Austin and Mabel Kate Austin (nee Painter), born May 13th, 1902, at Leonard Stanley, Gloucestershire.

REGINALD ARTHUR, (I do not have a birth certificate for this child). Born February 21st, 1904.

MABEL KATE AUSTIN, daughter of Arthur Austin and Mabel Kate Austin (nee Painter), born December 17th, 1905, at Little Drayton, Shropshire.

RONALD AUSTIN, son of Arthur Austin and Mabel Kate Austin (nee Painter), born September 2nd, 1907, at Little Drayton, Shropshire.

ARTHUR CHARLES AUSTIN, son of Arthur Austin and Mabel Kate Austin (nee Painter), born October 21st, 1910, at Little Drayton, Shropshire.

Some time in this time era, the said ARTHUR AUSTIN served six years with the Shropshire Light Infantry, but the dates are not known at this time. I have written to Ministry of Defence in London, England on two occasions, with two stamped addressed envelopes, but unfortunately, have not had the courtesy of a reply. I have also hired a genealogist in Barking, Essex, to try and obtain this information on my behalf.

It is believed that the family emigrated to Canada between October, 1910 and September 15th, 1914, when the next child was born in Canada, namely, MARY ELIZABETH BEECH, born September 15th, 1914, at Petrolia, Ontario, Canada. Unfortunately, I do not have a full birth certificate for Mary, so it does not state the names of her parents. I have however, applied for a full certificate.

The next records in my possession are Army papers for ARTHUR JOHN BEECH, dated July 29th, 1915, at which time he joined the Canadian Overseas Expenditure Force. These papers give his date of birth as July 21st, 1976, and place of birth as Market Drayton, Shropshire. It also states on these papers that he served six years in the Shropshire Light Infantry.

The next record in my possession is the Canadian Passport of ARTHUR J. BEECH, which is dated June 5th, 1919. This document shows his date of birth as July 21st, 1876, and place of birth as Shropshire. It listed is age at that time as 42 years.

I have written to the PRO at Chancery Lane, London, asking about the British Passport which they must have had to leave Britain, or alternatively, Emigration documents, but they advise me that I would have to attend personally and look up this information, they do not appear to assist in research.

I have now got the change of name down to October 1910 and September 1914.

The National Archives in Ottawa, Canada, have agreed to forward Passenger Lists, on an inter-library basis, on ships arriving in Montreal and Halifax between the time period 1910-1914. At the time of the arrival of the micro films, twelve in all, I will have to go through them to see if either the name Austin or Beech appears.

There is still one aunt living, namely, Mabel Kate Beech, who is now 85 years old and resides in Toronto, Ontario. She never married and goes under the name of Beech, although her birth certificate shows Austin.

I am afraid that there may be a "Skeleton in the Closet", as when I bring up the subject of name change, she changes the subject immediately. She did once tell me that she thought the name had been double-barrelled at one time, Austin-Beech, and that the Austin part had been dropped. I do not really believe this, as no records show it as such and, where did Beech come from, and why was the original name of Austin dropped. None of this makes any sense to me.

I do not for one minute believe that one can change one's name in the middle of the Atlantic Ocean, which is how it looks right now. I do have a few more steps I can take, unfortunately, this is very expensive and very time consuming, but I am, determined to solve the mystery.

I was once advised that maybe the children did not have the same father, but all the dates and place of birth, appear to look in one direction.

I still have to look through the twelve reels of passenger lists micro film, to see if I can find either an Austin or a Beech. This will tell me which side of the ocean the name change took place. If they sailed under the name of Austin, I then have to look to Canadian sources for change of name, but if they sailed under the name of Beech, I have to look to the Passport Office in Britain and the Supreme Court Enrolment Books in Britain, whereby records of change of name by deed poll are kept.

Should anyone come up with any other ideas, I would gladly like to hear from you.

Editor's Note

The document on the preceding pages (Kathy Witheridge's [q.v.] August 10, 1990, letter to DEW, document W277, folder 1.63h) makes reference to two "Witheredges" she was able to locate at her local library in two different genealogical classics: John Farmer's (b. 1789) A genealogical register of the first settlers of New England [etc.], published in 1829; and Nell Marion Nugent's Cavaliers and pioneers [etc.], published in 1934. Both books are in the public domain and are now available free of charge online at Internet Archive (the latter book in the Archive's Open Library).

I went to both books online today and made screenshots of four relevant pages, which follow this editor's note as new elements of document W277:

- Farmer, page 326 (see "Witheridge, Edward"), plus a portion of the book's Internet Archive information page.
- Nugent, Internet Archive Open Library information page.
- Nugent, page xxxv (which explains the abbreviations used in the book).
- Nugent, page 65 (see the last five lines of the "THOMAS TODD" entry).

WILLIAM, the author of New-England's Prospect, printed at London 1634, was very early in this country. He sailed from Boston on his return to England, 15 August, 1633, but is supposed to have returned to New-England, and Mr. Shattuck [MS. Letter] conjectures that he was the William Wood who resided in Concord, and died there, 14 May, 1671, æ. 86, while Mr. Lewis contends for his being the early resident at Lynn, above named.

Rev. & Mrs. David E. Witheridge,
2425 Irving Avenue South,
Minneapolis. Minnesota,
U.S.A. 55405.

Dear David & Elizabeth,

Thank you so much for your letter of September 4th, 1990. Paul was most impressed with the note paper.

I have once again obtained a book from the library, entitled, "Genealogical Register of the First Settlers of New England" by John Farmer.

On Page 326 is the following:

WITHEREDGE, EDWARD, Boston, was a mariner; admitted to the church in 1643, and freeman in 1644.

I would imagine that this was the son of John Witheridge of Barnstaple, as he had two sons, Edward and William, who were both mariners.

Maybe you would have a little more knowledge than I, on finding out a little more about Edward. When it says he was admitted to the church, does that mean that he would be a Minister? and where are such records kept?

I am still awaiting obtaining the book "Cavaliers and Pioneers" Volume One, by Nugent, which supposedly gives information on the above named William Witheridge, brother of Edward.

I received a letter from State Historical Society in North Dakota, regarding my Witheridges who migrated to North Dakota, and then on to Tacoma, Washington. I have forwarded money to the Society, asking that they forward copies of the naturalization index for Cavalier County, to see if I can find out more about this family.

I am still waiting to hear from Kim, as she asked me if I would do some research for her in Canada, on a member of her family. I am wondering if she is still not feeling well, as I know that she was not too well after her trip to the States.

Do you ever hear how Jean Witheridge is? When we visited Phil in May, Jean was in the hospital, and we have never heard anything since. I hate to write and ask, as I would be afraid of hearing bad news.

I haven't started promoting the Witheridge Society yet, but I should get working on it in the next little while, as I would like new members to commence their subscriptions on January 1st. I don't know how much response I will get, but I am hoping for a few members, as I have handed out a lot of information on the Witheridge family.

I think I told you that Paul and I will be in Las Vegas from October 24th to November 2nd. We are both looking forward to the trip, as we have never been before. Paul will be on business at a Conference for 3 days, then we are adding some vacation to it.

I think that's all the news for now.

Kind regards,

Paul & Kathy.

Dear Ms. Witheridge:

Thank you for your letter concerning family history in North Dakota. I am enclosing our information forms so you can better see what we have in our collections and what services we provide. We do not have directories that would cover any of the small towns in North Dakota that we could check for the years 1900 to 1927 but there may be other searches that woudl be of benefit to you. A 1900 Census search, a search of naturalization records or other searches may provide some information for you but there are fee involved with many of these searches. Sarles is in Cavalier County and I believe that the other name might be Devils Lake and not Denba Lake which is in Ramsey County. A quick glance of the naturalization index for Cavalier County shows that a William and Irvin Witheridge had applied for final papers there, so much of your search may be centered on this county.

I wish you well in your search and look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely,

James A. Davis

December 4, 1990

Dear David & Elizabeth,

Well, it's almost that time of year again, how time flies. I am a little disappointed that I haven't heard too much from the Witheridge Society this year. I am trying desperately to recruit new members, but if it's anything like this year, we have very little to offer new members, no magazines this year. I just hope that all is well with Phil and his family, I realize that he has a difficult family life and maybe he tries to do too much.

Last month we went to Las Vegas for 10 days, we had a good time and the weather was perfect, about 85 degrees every day. Unfortunately, we are not gamblers, but we did enjoy the many shows that we went to see. We did go to see Paul Anka, who has always been my dream man, and he is just as good now as he was when I was 16!

Paul was on business for 3 days, then we extended the trip for an extra week. Although we enjoyed our visit, I have now seen it, and I don't think I would ever go back.

It almost feels a little Christmassy today, as we had our first snowfall yesterday. I hate driving in it, but it is very nice to look at.

We will not be in England next year, as my sister and brother-in-law and another couple of friends are hopefully coming over here. We plan to drive down to Florida for a couple of weeks, coming home via the east coast of the U.S.A. stopping in at North and South Carolina and Washington D.C. It should be a nice trip, we have done it before with my mom, so I hope they all enjoy it.

I hope you are all keeping well, and look forward to hearing from you sometime.

I must close now, I have lots of letters to write.

All the very best to you for Christmas and the New Year.

Lots of love and best wishes,

Paul & Kathy

Dear Kathy and Paul,

Thank you for your Christmas letter and news. We are just beginning to get back to normal after the Holidays, and I am trying to catch up on a lot of unfinished business.

[redacted]

[Private medical information redacted here]

But back to your August and September letters I haven't yet answered! Naturally, I was interested in the Edward and William Witheridges you found in the Passenger and Immigration Lists Index. I was not aware of the William in Virginia, but I did know about Edward from Pioneers of Massachusetts, by Charles H. Pope, 1965, pp.315, 510. It said that he was a mariner in Boston; was adnitted to the church in Boston Dec. 24, 1643; made a Freeman (citizen) of Boston May 20, 1644; and had accounts with Sedgwich, Hill and Mills (John Mills, Boston) on Mar. 23, 1648. "Admitted to the church" merely means that he became a full member of the church, but I don't know what the procedures of requirements were. I'm inclined to agree with you that Edward and William could be sons of John Witheridge of Barnstaple, but we'll have to find confirmation somewhere.

In regard to Paul's Austin-Beech ancestry, that's a fascinating problem; but I've never had a name change to deal with, so I haven't any experience or expertise to contribute!

That's all for now. We hope you have good success with your genealogy in 1991.

Love,

Dear David and Elizabeth, 14 May 1991

Well, we did it! Twin grandsons have arrived healthy, only a little early (they usually schedule twins 2 weeks ahead of the normal 9 month due date) and ready to start on their life journey! It has been a struggle to keep them "inside" since they are destined to be large (I wonder why - their dad is 6'7"!) and Catherine had to be mostly in bed for the last 3 months, was in and out of the hospital many times, and was on medication to keep the contractions at a minor level. Even the blood I donated so she could be sure it was "healthy" blood was not necessary - we feel very, very fortunate!

So - statistics are: Born to Eric and Catherine Aldrich twin boys, both at 8:01 (inside of the minute!), by Caesarian section, May 10, 1991, at the St. Lawrence Hospital, Ingham County, Lansing, MI. The "first out" was Benjamin Jay (to be known as Ben) weighing in at 7 lbs 12 oz, and then came Bruce Dominic (to be known as Nick) who weighed in at 7 lbs 3 oz. They have had absolutely no trouble, born on Friday morning and came home on Monday. Catherine is a very happy, if sore and tired, mother, and Eric - although expressing the fact that this didn't seem like a whole lot of FUN - is thrilled and relieved that they are well and have all their "parts".

Their daughter, Elizabeth, was one on May 1 - so we are not sure what she is thinking! She is a sturdy, curly dark haired beauty, and has stayed with me since the day before the birth, and many, many times before the births. It is such a privilege to be able to care for a child that age - although she wears me out during the day - especially when I pick her up after a full day at my office! - the time from bath to putting her in her crib makes it all worth while. She is very bright and talking a lot of gibberish - we recognize "no" (wonder why!) and "Grandpa", and "cookie" and a few others, especially Daddy since she and Eric have spent a lot of time together out of necessity, these past few months.

Aside from new babies, I have other news you may be interested in: Through my friends Joy and Alan Webb of Lincolnshire, I have received an official copy of the marriage of my grandfather Alfred William Chivers and Elizabeth Witheridge, and according to the names on it his father's name was not John as you (and I) have it - it was George! And, by the way, what is a "Sawyer" under profession?) If this original information came from anyone besides my mother I would shrug it off - but she was not wrong about much! But, in any event, I feel we have to trust an "official copy", don't you? Perhaps now I can pursue that line and get somewhere! Joy and Alan also sent me an official copy of the birth of my mother and several certificates on my Dad's side which are helpful. I know you don't go anywhere with the Chivers family, but this information should be corrected on your family record sheet. By the way, any idea of pulling this all together in a book of sorts? I received a copy of the Redburn Family - our line has not connected as yet - and it is simply copies of family record sheets, etc. Perhaps that would be a way to go, if you have any interest in publishing. We have not worked much on our family records since before the births of our latest four grandchildren, and since they all live so close it is more fun to play and visit than work with books and records! Perhaps one day...... (how many times have I said that line!)

Other children and Bruce are doing well. All of our grandchildren are born between May 1 and July 1 - so everyone is turning a year older, with our granddaughter Tara Fellows being the oldest and turning 11 in June. Birthday parties galore!

The economy the way it is our property still is the same, no development as yet. I, personally, hope it can stay that way for a while longer - I am not ready for suburban living. I prefer the open fields, as do the children, and so I don't feel bad at all - except, perhaps, financially!

All of my sisters and brothers are well and doing fine. Roy has been in the hospital for a short stay, but is well now.

Best close and get this in the mail to you. Hope you two are well and enjoying the season.

Love to you both, Jo

September 16, 1991

Rev. & Mrs. David E. Witheridge,
2425 Irving Avenue South,
Minneapolis. Minnesota,
U.S.A. 55405.

Dear David & Elizabeth,

First of all my apologies for not writing you in so long - my how time flies. It's hard to believe that the summer is over once again.

On June 18th, 1991, I flew to Britain alone, to visit with my mother. I just decided on a spur of the moment thing, booked one week and flew the next. I had a good time but it was no holiday, I assisted with the moving of my mother who moved from the home which she had lived in for some 27 years into a senior citizen apartment.

On September 29th, 1991 my sister and brother-in-law arrive from Britain for three weeks, we are going to Florida for 8 nights then spending a week returning to Canada via the east coast, stopping in at Washington D.C. for a few days.

I have now persuaded Paul into going to Britain next year to attend the Witheridge Day celebrations, so we will probably be going for the month of May. I was hoping that maybe you would be attending also, as it is a few years since you were last there.

For some years I have been trying to contact a Reg Walter of Erith, Kent. I had received a copy of an old letter written in February, 1871, by a James Moore of Darlington Township to his mother-in-law Miriam (Trathen) Walter. I showed the letter to Kim on our last visit to the Witheridge Day, and she said she would try and find this Reg Walter for me, however, I never heard anything more from her. Last year I joined the Devon History Society, and whose name and address should be in the book but Reg Walter. I wrote to him and received a reply last week. I am enclosing a copy of the letter and a copy of the letter from Mr. Walter for you.

I have done quite a lot of research on the Moore family, as I found it most interesting, and as you can see from the old letter, Miriam Moore married John Witheridge, the eldest child of George and Mary Witheridge (Paul's great-great-great grandparents).

I am enclosing a copy of your family sheet on Ann Witheredg, c. 1702? and wondered if maybe you had any additional information on this name in order that I may forward same to Mr. Walter.

Well, I must close now, hope to hear from you soon.

Kind regards,

Kathy

Dear Mrs Witheridge                Warm Wednesday 21st August 91

Thank you for your most interesting letter of the 12th August with enclosures — greatly appreciated.

I confess to being very intrigued by your research and the data given for the lands purchased by James Moore and George Witheridge in Ontario during the last century.

Alas, you are wrong in assuming I have seen or possessed the original letter written by James Moore of Darlington Ontario to his mother-in-law Miriam (Trathen) Walter of Whiteley, an ancestress of mine, in February 1871.

My typewritten copy of this unusual and interesting letter was given to me during correspondence I had with a Mr Ron Moore of 8 Chicora Avenue, Toronto, Ont M5R 1T6 in the years 1973/74 He being a descendant of James Moore who married Mary Ann Walter in 1827 at Bradworthy, who subsequently died in 1848, and who was just beginning to research his family history as the result of papers left by his late cousin Ray Moore of Goderich. Also assisting him was a Mrs Mary Sieber also of Goderich, a descendant of the Trathen family who I believe supplied him with a copy of James Moore's letter.

Wonder how this letter got back to Canada if it was addressed to Miriam Walter in England? More interesting is, did she answer his letter assuming she could write which I very much doubt as her signature on her marriage in 1809 was not all that significant!

Unfortunately, a number of old time settlers despaired of receiving news from those back home from what I have seen in correspondence of those times

Ron Moore was a Mathematics & Physics instructor at Ryerson Polytechnic Institute in Toronto and now I believe in his early 50's, so might well be able to provide information concerning the whereabouts of 'the latter'.

He certainly provided me with some very useful contacts and was an energetic beaver as regards chasing up family connections besides being a delightful correspondent.

I understand that James Moore originally emigrated to North America in 1853 following the death of his first wife Mary so presumably he returned to the UK prior to going back to Canada with some of his grown up family in 1873. He was it is said a favourite grandson of Miriam Walter (1788–1880) and saw the family off to Bideford to catch the train to the port of embarkation. It appears that several of his children and grandchildren were well educated and did well in Canada.

I really delight in hearing of their progress.

Like you I have accumulated quite a collection of photos and bits and pieces in respect of these hardy pioneers of the 1840's and 1850's and always pleased to share info. where I can.

Enclosed are 'trees' of families connected with the Walter's of Bradworthy and their only connection with the Witheridge family (mother of our ancestress Elizabeth Tremeer (1723–1806)) Can you provide any further details of Ann Witheridge?

Hoping I may have been of some further assistance in your enquiries and I might hear from you again.

Every success in your endeavours and best Wishes

Sincerely Reg Walter

DARLINGTON, February 1871

My very much respected Mother, after a long silence between you and me i.now take the opportunity of advifsing you with a few lines hoping it will find you in perfect health as it leaves me at Present thank God for it, i shall make a few statements in the way of apology for this long silence between us. (first) in goneby days i wrote two letters and sent them to my Brotherinlaw - John - Walter - and on them letters i inserted my best respect to you stating my circumstances also and i also desired of Brother John Walter to write me a letter in return and let me know how all the family was, including your self on the letter that he ought to have sent me as an answer to what i sent him. another reason was that i did not write i thought you would not believe me if i wrote the whole truth - i could sign some other reasons but let this suffice at Present, - and i do hope when you receive this letter you answer it imediately as i should like to hear from you and all your family in england - My wife and me have a great many times told together of you when the day is over and retired from labour and sitting by a cheerful fireside - its then we have a social chatt of old times, we have very often wished you here to partake of a cup of tea with us, as we have generaly plenty of tea of the first rate quality in the House and we dont forget to replenish the teapot with it three times a day - sometimes with the best curleygreen - and different sorts we use besides of Exelent - quality. so that we can at any time furnish the table and suit the taste of all friends and neighbours that pay us a visit, - i will endeavour in this short Epistle - to describe where we live and manner of living, in the first place - we live in the township of Darlington - its close by a road side surounded by a great number of kind people. about 3 Miles from the flourishing town of Bowmanville where we can purchase any sort of thing we need. - perhaps you may suppose that we are deprived of many comforts. which you enjoy. but thank God we never once regreted of coming to this country as yet - we have a very fine house to live in - i dont mean to say we have a gentleman's seat to reside in - we have our House very neatly furnished with good furniture we have two good feather Beds all fitted out such as curtains counterpanes Quilts Blankets Sheets - our rooms are lay'd with double flooring and our rooms are all paperd - and our bed room floors are covered with carpets -

i have in addition to my house one acre and half of good land i consider the land to be as good as any on Whitley farm i have on some part of it a good Orchard. - i have had some years - more then one Hudred Bushels of apples so we can always have plenty and some to spare, i have a nice Mare - she is 7 years old - so when we want to go on a Visit or to church - or Market we need not walk. - i have two Buggys - one when new cost 20£ pound the other cost 40 pounds - the mare - i drive is worth now this Present time 30£ - Harnefs cost - me 6£ - i have two Cows and we generaly raise two pigs every year - which gives us plenty Pork - i almost forgot to tell you we have a good cutter to ride in so that we can in winter get over the snow without much trouble so now to sum up the whole i dont know we want any thing to make us comfortable, at Present, James Moore Jr.[1] and Mary your grand Children give their love to you they have 6 fine Children, - they rent a farm - not far from us 112 Acres they are doing well - got a good stock of Horses & Cattle and some Money out on Interest. i believe they live equal as well as any farmer in Bradworthy.

Mary Ann[2] is living a long distance from us i think its about 200 Miles - She is maried to a man called Elias Perkin - she has 7 Children. the last birth was two twin Boys her husband is a very nice christian man a clafs leader belonging to the Weslyan Methodist - they have 100 Acres of land of their own they are getting along very comfortable they live in the township of Repel near Owen Sound County of Grey. - John W Moore[3] is a Methodist Minister been traveling Preacher for the last two years. He is married about 18 Months ago, Miriam[4] and her Husband which is John Witheridge give their love to you they are living close by us, their farm joins with my place. Miriam hath four children - alive - Buried two - John Rents his fathers farm. Lot 31. Con. 1. they are getting along verywell - Joshua[5] & his wife give their love to you they have one child Joshua is a school Teacher - gets 97£-10s per year we saw him & his wife yesterday. they were well - he told me he should not teach school much longer - 2 years would be the most. - he has made a great Proficency in learning - he is thoroughly acquainted with all the english Branches - he is also a Clafsical Scholar - understand Latin Greek - Hebrew and French - can translate it into English

Joshua your Grandson, intends when two years is expired to go to a Colledge to study for a Minister and after that he will be able to get a situation and live a gentleman not only so he may be an instrument in the hand of God of winning souls to christ - and in the mean time directing his own steps through Gods afsistance that he may at last be saved, - i have made mention of all you Grand Children - except - Richard 6. - and i am sorry to say i cannot inform you much about him. - when i came to Canada first - i put him with Mr Samuel Mason to learn the Harnefs and saddle making, when out of his time. and he had learned his bufsinefs, he went to the United States - about 10 years ago, and i have not heard from him since.

Dear Motherinlaw grattitude flows in streams from my very heart when i think of your kindness to me and my children i never shall forget it this side of the grave. where we are all fast Hastening - i have longed to see you many a times to converse with you about all my temporal concerns and also of our spiritual welfare, but it does not appear at Present that ever we shall meet on this earth but i hope to meet you in heaven. the Lord hath promifsed in his holy word that he will not withhold any good thing from them that walk uprightly and it is shown to me by God in every instance Blefsings temporal & Spiritual i have received at his hands i have no reason to complain in the least of temporal blifsings - food and raiment House home and habitation is given to us by the Lord - our table is always at meal times spread with abundance of food - such as good white Bread & Butter pies and cakes besides meat & Potatoes in sumer we get Plenty of fruit - such as Gooseberrys Currants Red and Black, - rasberrys - three kinds Red Black & White. pears plums and Cherrys. strawberrys in abundance and many other sorts besides to numerous to mention, we gather them and then Preserve them for the winter use - i heartily wish you was here. to join with us to morrow so that we might have a merry meeting round our table, and partake of our preperations above described - we generaly purchase on pound of tea at a time. and 3 pound of currants - and sugar more or lefs we have always in the House - we can get all sorts of Groceries of the best quality at moderate Prices - we very often grind 6 Bushels of Wheat at a time.

(worn) s you would like to know a little about the Climate in this country - i am well aware that England is a more moderate clime [than ou]rs in Canada - but what of all that. we pafs our time along in Canada a great deal more cheerful that a great many people in England. (perhaps you would ask for what reasons) i can quickly tell you, first, it is a free country and the people in general are more accomadating in this country and willing to render afsistance when its needed. the labouring man can earn more, he can earn a great deal more wages and when employed by the farmer he always gets his board and sits with his employer at the same table, and if you will allow me to draw the contrast between this country and england. - i now insert it as a stuborn fact that cannot be denied by a truthful man. that the labouring clafs of People live better then the generality of farmers in England.

there is another thing that i shall mention before i close these temporal statements - we are not shorn of Religous Priveliges we have the same lord over us as you have in england and his bounties are shed forth upon us in very rich abundance our land is filled with plenty of every good and desireable thing, he giveth us our crops in due season so that we can enjoy them, only view the contrast for one moment between Canada and England, both under British Government, same laws and every thing, but the aristocracy appear to be of a very different disposition. to what they are in england, they dont look with disdain on a poor man in this country as they do home, people here dont hate to see a man wear a good coat or a good pair of Boots or any other suitable garment to apear decent on the sabbath day - as the do in england if a man is sick and need releif the give it to him with a free heart dont force him to sell his cow or starve as they do in england.

Dear Motherinlaw Please excuse me for freedom of plain truths. i am well aware that you are exempt from all these things that i have just Hinted above. for i know that you was always kind and affectionate to every Person. and gave away all your abilities would afford i am sure it will be said of you as of good Corneilus thy Alms - are come up for a Memorial before - God - Prayer to god is also required of us which i hope you are constantly engaged in i pray for you in my simple way every day and all my relations may God afsist us to do his will on earth that at last we may meet in heaven where parting will be no more.

Dear Motherinlaw i must now by way of conclufsion for this time draw to a close, only Please give my best respects to all your children and Grandchildren be so kind to remember me to all enquireing friends i also give my love to my son Wm[7.] & his wife and Children he hath sent to his Brothers about coming to Canada - i think they will help him if he is fully bent of coming tell him to send them a letter again imediately - stating all Pertickulars

Editor's note:

The early documents pertaining to correspondence between Kathy Witheridge (q.v.) and Dad are identified by numbers in the "W series" — see documents W190-95 and W219-23 (folder 1.63g); documents W224-30, W255-56, W263, and W269-77 (folder 1.63h); and documents W278 and W281-83 in the present folder (1.63i).

Starting at this point, their correspondence appears in unnumbered documents that will continue chronologically from where the numbered documents left off. That is, the final numbered document sent by Kathy — document W283 in this folder, which was logged by Dad on September 16, 1991 (see the previous page) — is followed directly by a letter from Dad to Kathy dated November 16, 1991 (see the next page).

Dear Kathy,

I'm sorry I have not written to you sooner, but I must just use the same old excuse - too busy. I can't go into great detail, but most recently we have had the great pleasure of a house guest from Scotland for twelve days - Mrs. Isobel Clarkson, who was here to judge a Norwegian Elkhound specialty show in Minneapolis. We met her on our first trip to Britain in 1976 and have kept in touch with her ever since, including visits to her house again in 1980 and 1988. She judged the Elkhounds at the Crufts show in England last year (like our Westminster Dog Show in New York City), and we finally convinced the local association to invite her here. Unfortunately, the day after she arrived we experienced the worst snowstorm in our history - 28 inch in three days, but otherwise everything came off well. We have had three Norwegian Elkhounds over the past 35 years, and she became very fond of our present one, Rokk, as we are, of course.

Now, to answer your question, no, I have not done any more work on the family connections of Ann Witheridge, who married John Tremear. There may be more information in the updated L.D.S. computerized International Genealogical Index, but I have not been able to spend any time at that library for a long time. In fact, my genealogical activities of late have been almost nil, and I am very unhappy about that.

Thank you for the information you passed on from Reg Walter. I'll try to get it on my sheets right away so it doesn't get lost. Thanks also for that very fascinating letter from James Moore back to his mother-in-law in England.

We're delighted that you and Paul are planning to go to England next May. I wish we could go, but I'm sure we won't be able to. By the way, we finally got a long and welcome letter from Kim in September. Their lives have been full of difficult events this year, such as her mother's illness and death, their dog's serious illness and operation, Kim's fall and injuries that lasted from February to September, hectic problems caused by the growth of their business, and so on and on. But they finally got a week's holiday in Devon, during which she wrote this seven-page epistle.

We love to get your letters and hope to meet you both some day if we ever get back to Michigan to see our dear friend Mabel Butterfield, who lives in Lapeer - half way between Flint and Port Huron. (Probably we told you we both grew up in Saginaw.) Please don't despair when it takes me forever to answer.

Love,

David + Elizabeth

Rev. & Mrs. David E. Witheridge,
2425 Irving Avenue South,
Minneapolis. Minnesota,
U.S.A. 55405.

Dear David & Elizabeth,

First of all I hope that you are both keeping well, it was such distressing news to learn that Elizabeth had not been feeling too well. I hope that she is now recovered from her hip injury.

The weather here has been dreadful this year, April already and we still have snow on the ground. It feels as though Spring will never arrive.

Only another three weeks and we will be on our way to England, how time flies these days. We leave Toronto on April 28th, 1992 and return to Canada on May 27th, 1992. My mother is getting so excited, she just loves me to go "home", being 77 years old and not being able to visit us in Canada any more. I do try my best to return each year to see her.

Paul and I are looking forward to attending "Witheridge Day" once again, but I must admit, I am very nervous about giving the presentation this year. I have put a lot of hard work into my research on "the Devonians who emigrated to Upper Canada in the mid 1800's), but it is still not exactly as I would like it to be yet. Having never spoken before the public before, I am really up tight about it, but Paul seems to feel it will do me the world of good, so I guess I have to follow his thoughts.

I have been extremely busy with Paul's family tree recently, and have made one or two breakthroughs, it always feels so good to score "another goal" after years and years of nothing.

I had learned that the children of John Witheridge and his wife Miriam (Moore) Witheridge (John was the eldest child of George and Mary Witheridge, Paul's 3 x great grandparents who emigrated to Canada in 1841) had all moved West after a family quarrel. I learned as follows:

Their eldest child: William John Witheridge - moved to North Dakota, on or about 1896.

Ida Edith (Witheridge) Oke - moved to North Dakota, on or about 1909

Anna Louisa Witheridge - never found her

Anniter (Witheridge) Thorne - married in Bowmanville on March 14, 1897 and died in Bowmanville, Sept 2, 1900, aged 30 years

Edgar John Witheridge - lived and died in Bowmanville

Irvine George Witheridge - moved to North Dakota, (date unknown), then moved to Tacoma, Washington, in 1927, where he died in 1965

Florence Mabel (Witheridge) Wood - moved to North Dakota, date unknown, but she was in the 1910census for Cypress Twp, County of Cavalier. Moved to North Idaho, (date to be determined).

Sarah Maud (Witheridge) Ayre - married in Bowmanville in 1905, then moved to North Dakota to work and earn money and get some equipment before they went to homestead in Saskatchewan in or about 1907, where they lived and died. Sarah lived to be 92 years old and died in August, 1972.

Some time ago, I had obtained a copy of an obituary from a Couer d'Alene, North Idaho, of a George Carl Tomblin - George was married to a Marguerite Wood, who was the daughter of Mabel Florence (Witheridge) Wood. It gave the age of George as 89 years at his death in 1982, but did go on to list that his wife was still alive at that time, and gave the names of his sons.

I decided to make a trip to the local library, and look up some telephone numbers. I found a Carl Tomblin in Hayden Lake (just like the newspaper had told me), so I took down the address. When I arrived home, I wrote a letter to the address, thinking that this might well be one of George's grandchildren.

Low and behold, I received a telephone call that same week from Marguerite Tomblin. I just could not believe my ears - she first of all advised me that I had found another relative for Paul, and she went on to tell me, what appeared to be her life story. The one interesting point she told me was that her father was Thomas Bramwell Wood, whom she believed was born in Yorkshire, England, and that his middle name Bramwell was after the Bronte family. As you are probably aware, the Bronte family were from Haworth, Yorkshire, which is about 7 miles away from where my mother lives. We visit Haworth every single trip, as it is such a beautiful village, and always fascinates me.

Anyway, she turned out to be an extremely lovely lady, who is most interested in genealogy. Before we got off the phone, I promised her that I would send her information on her family. I immediately put together a 1½" binder, full of pertinent information on the Witheridge family and mailed it off to her.

Last week, I received a letter from Clarence R. Ayre of Edam, Sask. who advised me that he had spoken with his cousin, Marguerite Tomblin in North Idaho, and he wrote giving me details of his family, Sarah Maud (Witheridge) Ayre and Thomas Henry Ayre. He also forwarded to me details of the Witheridge family transcribed from the Witheridge family Bible. The largest break-through though was, he sent me a photograph of his grandparents (John Witheridge and Miriam (Moore) Witheridge) grave. I had never been able to trace the whereabouts of John and Miriam, after they sold the Witheridge farm in Darlington Township, in 1905, tt was as if they had disappeared from the face of the earth. However, they died in Edam, Sask, - John on November 26th, 1929, and Miriam on May 22nd, 1924.

I am enclosing a copy of the family information taken from the Bible, together with a copy of the letter which I received from Clarence Ayre, as it goes into great detail about the family.

I was quite excited about all these happenings, it had certainly filled in a few blanks in my research.

Well, I must close now, I could ramble on forever.

Paul and I would like to wish you both all the very best, and if you can ever find a few moments, please drop us a line.

Kind regards,

Paul & Kathy

To Mrs Kathy Witheridge, Sarnia,Ontario.
From a relative of your Husband:

I was talking to my cousin in Hayden Lake today and she said you were gathering family information and you needed something about John & Miriam Witheridge.and some about T.H. Ayre & Sarah Maud Witheridge.

The first two are my grandparents on my mothers side and last two are my parents. After I talked to my cousin I went out to the Edam cemetery and took pictures of the two headstones, which I will enclose in my letter.

John & Miriam (Moore) Witheridge both died at my parents home Se 6-50-18-W3.
My mother died in Sunnyside nursing home in Saskatoon, Sask. Date of death was Aug/1972 at 92 yrs of age.
My father was killed instantly in farm accident with horse & wagon. The date was Oct 06/1942 -3.30 P.M. on NW 6-50-18-W3. He was just past 62 years old.
I myself married Gertrude Ethel Benson in 1939, she died Aug 15/81 in Edam Hospital (brain cancer) I married again in 1984 to Alida Peppinck and she died 13 mos.later of bone cancer. My brother Elmer born Oct 12/1916 married Jean Huff,born Sep 20/1920. My sister Vivian married Clarence L.Hamson Jul.6/40 I had no children,Elmer has four daughters, Vivian has two daughters.

The above may contain all you wanted to know and possibly more than you need . You may find it boring but I thought I would tell a bit more about my parents and grandparents. My grandparents came up to this area in 1919 with their daughter Mabel Witheridge who was married to Bramwell Wood. My grandparents had lost what money they had in a bank failure at that time,and the Wood family thought they would go to Canada and try farming. Besides the grandparents they brought their two children: Eugene and Marguerite ; the woman you were in touch with at Hayden Lake Idaho.

They setted on fairly poor land and after about five years they moved down to Coue-d,Alene Idaho and left the grandparents at my folks. Mr Wood went to work at a lumber mill in C DAlene and also for a few years he was member of the state legislature at Boise Idaho.

My parents were married in Ontario in 1905. After marriage they went to North Dakota to work for others so that could earn some money and get some equipment before they went to homestead in Saskatchewan.

After the Wood family left, the grandparents lived in a little house in my parents yard until my grandma died and then grandfather lived with us till he died.

After a couple of years in North Dakota my parents were able able to save enough and get enough equipment to come west. That is why they had a few horses when they moved up. Marguerite told me that you had information about how many horses and cows they had for some years It amazes me how you were able to gather all that information !

However having a few horses meant that dad was able to work for other settlers,breaking new land, because oxen were not as useful for that. However it meant dad would be away quite a bit. Mother told one story,about when she was home alone, and a group of Indians came with many wagons and horseback riders and hounds. After hearing tales about Indians before she left Ontario it must have been quite frightening. However they rode around the cabin a few times and went on. There was a creek less than a mile from there and they used to camp there going from one reserve to another near Jackfish Lake. The creek was Blackfoot creek,and went across the quarter dad later owned, and where he was killed. (NW 6-50-18-W3)

The cabin I mentioned above was at first just a 10 by 14 lumber affair with tarpaper on the outside. Later when dad could gather some logs a larger log building was built with prairie sods on the roof. Of course when it rained for a day outside it rained inside for three days. Mother tells of keeping the travelling minister overnight and the only dry place was under the table

I was not around yet in those days and after 1910 when you correctly found that homestead was proved up & granted clear title:dad and mother bought the homestead just south of their own. This one had been previously proved up by a man named Ed Bell and we still call it the Bell quarter today. It had a better house and water supply.In Feb 1911 I was born but not at the home place. Mother went to within 8 miles of North Battleford to be closer to a doctor. The farmhouse whereI was born was for years known as Flanders farm with dutch wooden shoes on the gateposts. It has only about ten years ago been demolished. I was the first white child in the homestead area.

When dad came up from Dakota to select a homestead there were people in North Battleford who made a busines of taking people out to select their homesteads. Of course by 1906 you had to go quite a way from Nor.Bat. as closer places had been taken. The west was surveyed in townships of 36 sections (six miles square)four quarters to a section. Certain sections were set aside for settlers, other sections were for C.P.R. grants ,others for Hudson Bay Co. and some were designated as school sections. The school was built about 1915(Blackfoot School) and was located a mile west of our home and that is where I took all of my schooling. (grade ten).When school started 1915 it was held for a short time in the log house that my folks had just moved from, until the school building was completed.

When the railway come up in 1911 the settlement known as Edam was started. It was twelve miles from the homestead. It now has a population about 450. Like all small villages in this area there is large percentage of older people; widows and widowers like me.There are a few younger families, some are farming from here and others are teachers or nurses working here. The first hospital in Edam was built in 1917 and it was the first hospital in Sask. to be built by municipalities. I met my wife Ethel when she came to Edam to work as matron of the hospital in 1938. She had her R.N and had trained in Orangeville and Toronto Ont.

The businesses still here are: two general stores,two restaraunts,four gas stations one bulk oil, credit union, municipal office,village office, fire hall,senior citizens centre, liqour store, hotel and pub,school to grade 12, gymnasium, coverd skating rink and hall, curling rink,three sheet artificial ice , legion hall, three churches and a hospital, eight bed and twelve bed level three care. The cost was around three and a half million. We have a resident doctor, but are finding it hard to keep one. The facilties are nearly full at present.

There are also two grain elevator companies an electric shop , a resident plumber , a carpenter, seed cleaning plant, laundromat & car wash and a beauty parlor. When I read of all places I have listed I can hardly believe its the same place I live in ; because after all it is just another small village trying to stay alive.

We have natural gas available and each location has their own water system, sandpoints about eight to fifteen foot deep,and a village sewer system. There is an oil field just west of Edam and there are at present about three hundred wells. The oil is quite heavy so production is not that great and oil pricec are low just now. The oil is trucked from Edam to Lloydminster Alberta. The farming at Edam is grain, oilseeds, dairy and beef.

The town was at first mainly Dutch people , therefore the Dutch name, however it is now quite mixed with quite a few French.

My sister Vivians daughter has started geneology search also; but she has only got about three generations back. I sent a couple of family unit sheets to my cousin in Hampton Ont; for her. I have three cousins in the Bowmanville, Oshawa area. My first wife had quite a few relatives around Palmerston and London Ont; and having trained there she had a few nurse friends also. While she was living,we were down at least three times and travelled around the London Palmerston Owen Sound Sound , Listowel , Elmira areas. Twice we drove home new cars from, Oshawa,and going home through Sault St Marie, we must have passed near Sarnia.

Well I must close this some time, so I will wish you good luck in your searches. This kind of research seems quite popular these days.

Sincerely yours,

(I have been finishing

P.S. I have today received an answer to a phone call I made to my cousin in Devils Lake, North Dakota ,on behalf of my niece wanting information about the Witheridge family. I will photo-copy it tomorrow and enclose it with my letter. It may be of some use to you, or it may just cause confusion. She is daughter of the third person on the list. Her name now is Mrs Stella Oyus.

Dear Kathy + Paul,

I hope you had a grand time in England and are catching up on all the unfinished business at home and at work. I'm looking forward to seeing you at our June 8th get-together. I understand you plan to start out early on Friday and arrive late that evening.

I'm enclosing a map so you'll be able to find my house. Coming through St Paul keep your eyes on the signs for I-94 West and Minneapolis. In Minneapolis there will be a warning sign for a Tunnel, and just before the Tunnel take the exit labeled Lyndale-Hennepin. There are two lanes in the exit, and take the left-hand one marked Hennepin. Keep on Hennepin to 25th St. Turn right a few blocks to Irving. Turn right on Irving, and we are in the middle of the block on the right side – 2425. We'll have the light on! You may have trouble parking right in front of our house, because there are often many cars there.

Kim and Roy and I will be spending four days, June 3-6, on a trip up the North Shore of Lake Superior as far as Thunder Bay, Ontario, and we won't be back until Thursday evening. So if you need to talk to someone during that period, please call either my son Tom or his wife Virginia at (612) 322-4784, or my son Jim or his partner, David Torborg, at (612) 825-7449.

I can't go into all the details about the weekend or all the people who are coming. We'll tell you when you get here. I'd appreciate a note or a call to confirm your plans. Drive carefully.

Sincerely,

David Witheridge

Dear Kathy and Paul,

We were all very sorry that you couldn't be with us on June 8th, and I know you were sorry, too. We had a most interesting time, and we all met some Witheridge descendants we had never met before, as well as seeing others whom we knew but hadn't seen for a long time.

I was deeply moved to be presented by Kim with a lovely framed certificate naming me Honorary Vice President of the Witheridge Society. In addition, Kim told the group all about the society and its plans for a Witheridge reunion in Devon next May in celebration of the tenth anniversary of the society.

There was great interest in the idea of going to England next year for this event, and several, including me, have already decided to go. I'm sure there are others in the U.S. and Canada who will want to go when they hear the plans. I"m trying to think of all the Witheridge descendants I know of, both in North America and in Great Britain, and I plan to write to as many as possible urging them to give careful 1 attention to the announcement when it comes from the Witheridge Society.

Kim spent several days drawing family trees of the several branches of the Witheridge family that were going to be represented at the luncheon. All were highly impressed, of course, to see their own names on the charts and to see how they and the others fitted in. I had copies of the charts made for me and another set made for you, which I am sending under separate cover. I know you will find them very helpful.

As North American Representative, Kathy, you will be interested in knowing who were at the luncheon. There were twenty-two all together. Besides Kim and Roy, there was my immediate family, all from the Twin Cities area: my older son, Jim, who is gay, and his partner with whom he lives, David Torborg, and David's mother, Margaret Torborg; my younger son, Tom, and his wife, Virginia Selleck, and their daughter, Rebecca Witheridge.

My sister-in-law, Janice Witheridge, and my nephew, Jay Witheridge, came from Saginaw, Michigan. My brother John was unable to come because of a heart attack and operation earlier in the year. My niece, Jennifer Burke, came from Royal Oak, Michigan, a suburb of Detroit. My second cousin, Jean Tomlinson, came from Bella Vista, Arkansas; and her son, Dennis Tomlinson, came from Prior Lake, a Minneapolis suburb; and her daughter, Patricia Johnson, came from Shoreview, a St. Paul suburb.

Also from Minneapolis we had Paul Freed, a relative of yours. He has been living in Minneapolis since 1957, and we never knew each other existed. (I've been here since 1951.) He heard about our get-together from a relative in North Dakota and called me to ask about it. He was a professor of music (piano) at the University of Minnesota until he retired in 1992. He has a brother, Bruce Freed, who teaches philosophy at the University of Western Ontario in London. (He lives in Embro.) Bruce was visiting here, so he was able to come to the luncheon, too. They have a sister living in England, who was visiting here earlier, but had to go back. She is definitely interested in joining the Witheridge Society. I think Paul joined and gave his dues to Kim to take back to England.

A few weeks before the luncheon I got a call from a Tony Witheridge in Geneva, Illinois, whom I had never heard of. Come to find out he is originally from Australia and is the son of Dorothy Witheridge, the Australian Representative of the Witheridge Society. He had heard about the luncheon from my sister-in-law Janice. To make a long story short, he came to the luncheon and is definitely going to England next May and is sending some money to his mother as a gift so she can go.

Finally, at the luncheon we had two very dear neighbors who have lived across the street from us for 45 years, Liz and Bill Whitbeck. (Liz is also interested in genealogy.) We also had George Mellon, a former president of the Minnesota Genealogical Society, and his wife Deloris, who is currently a member of its board. George is a distant relative of my wife Elizabeth in the Kendall line. So you can see it was quite an exciting affair.

Nowfor your use as North American Representative, I'm enclosing the names and addresses of all the Witheridge descendants who were at the luncheon, as well as others I can think of whom you should know about. As I get more addresses, I'll send them on to you. I guess that is all for now, and I hope all is well with both of you.

Yours sincerely,

Rev. David E. Witheridge

U.S.A.

Dear David,

Thank you so much for your letter of July 10th, 1996, it is always so good to hear from you. I am also pleased to hear how well you are keeping!! You will never know how sorry we were to have missed your luncheon in Minneapolis on June 8th. It is very unfortunate that it was so soon after our return from Britain. We arrived home on the late evening of June 2nd, absolutely exhausted!! What with a very hectic month and jet lag on top of that, we were extremely tired and just couldn't drag ourselves any further!!

I did correspond via the Internet with Tony Witheridge earlier this year. He sent me a copy of his Witheridge Gazette which really impressed me!! He gave me his Internet address so we wrote back and forth a few times. On at least one of the occasions, I advised him that Paul and I were going to England for the month of May in order to attend the Witheridge Day celebrations, and also that upon our return we were going to Minneapolis to attend the U.S. celebrations. He advised me at the time that he could not make it to England this year but would try his best to attend at Minneapolis. I gave him your address and telephone number in order that he could contact you!!

I also advised Sharon and Ted Brydges of North Battleford, Sask, they too wished to attend but unfortunately Sharon had an appointment on the following Tuesday which could not be missed and they too felt it was a little far for a week-end trip. I did speak with Sharon on the telephone last evening, and she advised me that she had spoken with you on the telephone a couple of times. She also advised me that Paul Freed along with his aunt, Stella Oyos (who is now 91) visited them a couple of weeks ago. I have corresponded with both Paul and Stella, they are both very interesting people, Stella provided me with all kinds of information and photographs of the family. Paul had read one of my books at his aunt's house and telephoned me to provide him with a copy of all the family information, which I did. Sharon and Ted will be coming to visit us in Sarnia in September, as we visited them a couple of years ago!! Paul asked Sharon that we all visit his brother Bruce, here in Ontario, which of course we will gladly do!!

I am very excited about our 10th anniversary next May, and hope that we have a good turn out from north America. I was so disappointed this year as only 14 people attended and Paul and myself were included in that number. It is very sad when only a dozen people in Britain show interest!!

I don't know whether Kim advised you that my talk at Witheridge Day this year was on a Witheridge family whom I recently found in the Hamilton area of Ontario. It took me a few years to find out which line they descended, but eventually we solved the puzzle and they are of the Ermington line. Ivor John Edwin Witheridge who now resides in Selkirk, Ontario, has been corresponding with me for some time now and has provided me with all kinds of pictures and information. He is a distant cousin to John, Phil, Richard and David Witheridge, all members of the Society. I presented each of them with a copy of my presentation which they just loved. It has completed a lot of gaps for their research!! I am just in the midst of putting together more copies of my presentation, and as soon as I get it finished I will forward a copy to you as I think you may find it interesting!!

I recently looked up all the Witheridge's in the U.S. on the Internet and found 19 together with one Wetheridge, one Whitteridge and one Witteridge. I am enclosing a copy for your information!! I did write a few of them including G. Keith Witheridge of Merritt Island, Florida. Keith replied advising me that he was 88 years old and that he had a son but they did not speak to one another. I also had a reply from Jean E. Witheridge of Nanticoke, PA., who advised me that she was the widow of J.E. Witheridge together with the following information:

"Father - John Witheridge, he had two brothers and one sister, George and Tom and Emma. As far as I know the brothers and sister are dead.
Mother - Mary Renihomer? deceased. Sister - Mildred Witheridge Lewis deceased.
George Witheridge had 2 daughters and they are both deceased.
Tom Witheridge had 3 boys, Paul and Kenneth, both deceased. Keith - I don't know where he is.
I am his widow as mentioned and am 86 years old. Will be 87 in September. We had no children so there are no survivors."

When I get the information from England on Witheridge Day 96, I have arranged that I get one copy and photocopy here in Ontario and send to all the north Americans. I pray that we have a good response in order that we may have a terrific week-end in Devon next May.

Best wishes

Paul & Kathy

Dear David;

My apologies for not getting right back to you after we talked on the telephone. The same old excuses "extremely busy". We had visitors from Saskatchewan on October 3, another Witheridge descendent, Sharon Brydges and her husband Ted. We had a wonderful time and did a lot of travelling in the 8 days they were with us. Of course we had to visit Niagara Falls. When one has never seen it, it is a sight that must be seen. We have made the trip so many times with all of our different visitors.

We also went to visit Bruce Freed in Embro, Ontario, the brother of Paul Freed of Minneapolis. I believe that you have met the two brothers. We had a lovely visit with Bruce and his wife Anne, and I still cannot believe that we had a Witheridge descendent living so close to us that we did not know about. I had talked on the telephone with Paul some years ago, but never knew that he had a brother in Ontario, although I did know that he had a sister in England.

I have written to a total of 24 families in north America with invitations to Witheridge Day '97. I received a telephone call from Dorothea Goins a couple of nights ago. You probably know Dorothea, I think that she has been a member of the Society for a few years now. We had a lenghy chat and she told me that she spends a lot of her time in England, as all of her family are still there. She makes at least 3 trips per year, and hopefully, one will coincide with next May, although she will not know for sure until nearer the time.

I hear that the bookings are not going too good, I have a feeling that most of the British families will leave things to the very last minute. This year we had a very poor show with only 14 of us attending, that being only 12 were from Britain. I do hope that it will be a success, as a lot of work has been put into it. It looks at the present time, as though most of the bookings are from overseas.

Do you know if Paul Freed became a member of the Society when you saw him in June? John Witheridge, the membership secretary, advises me that he has no knowledge of this, although I am sure that I was told that he was a member. I have written Paul to ask him, but I believe he was in England in October, so haven't heard back from him yet.

Whilst Sharon and Ted were with us, we looked at the family trees which you so kindly forwarded to me. We did find a couple of errors on the Bradworthy tree, so I have written Kim with the correct information in order that she may make the corrections prior to next May.

I am enclosing a sheet of Paul's family for your records, as I do not believe that you have this information. A lot of it is not on the tree.

I am also enclosing a list of all the families I contacted for your records. I have corrected some of the addresses that I know have changed.

I trust that you and your family are all keeping well, and are prepared for the winter months. How I hate winters! However, it will soon be Spring and then we get to go to England once again. After the May week-end, Paul and I are going to stay in Devon for a few more days, we would like to visit Plymouth and area. We have invited Brenda Dwyne, our newest member from Ontario, to go with us, as she will be alone and her family originate from Ermington.

Must close now, take care.

Best wishes

Dear Kathy,

I was very glad to get your letter. I had been going to write you anyway for several days, because I had this extra copy of Jo Aldrich's list of her relatives and their descendants, and I wasn't sure whether you had ever received it or a more recent one from Jo. So here it is.

When Jean Tomlinson sent it to me, she said, "Mary Beth Abu Bakr, Roy's daughter, has been married twice, and both husbands are black. This one is a Muslim, so Mary Beth and the children are also. It also accounts for the different names." I've said for some time, "The whole world is my family," and this is just another example.

Jean also said she talked to her brother Roy about the Witheridge get-to-gether in 1997, and he sounded interested. He and his wife Betty are going to Europe this fall for three weeks--the first week at a lake in Northern Italy, the second week at a lake in Switzerland, and the third week in Austria. So I guess they could afford to go to England next May. You will notice they spend the summer in Michigan and the winter in Florida. I'm hoping Jo and Bruce Aldrich will go to Witheridge Day(s) and also some of her other relatives. I've hardly met any of them, so I don't know their circumstances.

I talked to Paul Freed, and he is the one who gave Kim $10.00 for his Witheridge Society membership. I sent him an application and a genealogical chart to fill in. He has returned these, and I am just now mailing them to John Witheridge for his records. I know Kim and Roy had some very difficult personal and business problems when they got home, so I can understand how she could have mislaid and forgotten about Paul's application.

I also appreciate the information you sent about Paul's and your families, as well as the list of those to whom you have written about the upcoming celebration. There is one name missing, and I suppose it was just an inadvertent oversight. That is Tony Witheridge, who came to our luncheon and is a member of the Witheridge Society (#113). He is the son of Dorothy Witheridge, our Australian Representative, and I know he plans to go to England next May and to give his mother some money at Christmas so she can go.

I just remembered Annette Witheridge, who is also missing from your list. It seems to me that Kim said she had moved from the address we have in the 1996 membership list of the Society, but maybe you already have her new address.

Well, I guess that's enough for now.

Sincerely,

Dear David;

My sincere apologies for not writing you in such an age, but honestly, we have had a very exhausting year. After the month of May in England, we had vacations almost every month all through the summer. In August we went to visit Brenda Dwyne and her family at their cottage about 4 hours drive from us on Lake Huron. I trust that you remember Brenda, the very sweet girl from Hamilton, Ontario, and of the Ermington, Devon, line. We had a wonderful time together and hope to see them again next year.

On September 2, we went out to North Battleford, Saskatchewan and spent two weeks with Ted and Sharon Brydges (Sharon's grandmother was a Witheridge), she is also a member of the Society. I believe that you spoke with her on the phone last year. We had a great visit with them, they took us on a 6 day tour of the Canadian Rockies. How wonderful, it was all that I had dreamed Canada to be.

I have spoken on the phone a few times with Paul Freed, he was hoping to get to Saskatchewan whilst we were there, but unfortunately he got sick and could not make it. Paul is a terrific guy, it was our first time meeting him in England this year. Our family seems to be growing rapidly and I still keep on looking for more.

I had a letter from Jean Tomlinson asking about joining the Society. She told me that she had been to a re-union in Michigan in August. I have written her asking if she would be interested in a re-union in Lansing, Michigan, next year, maybe July or August. I am looking to you for some help David in trying to arrange this. I hope that between us we could arrange a really nice event. Let me know your thoughts on this and I will do all I can to arrange it. I think that we could get a good turn out, as our Canadian members should be able to attend too.

I trust that you are keeping well, and look forward to hearing from you in the not too distant future.

Best wishes

Dear David,

I haven't heard from you in a long time and beginning to get anxious. I usually hear from you at Christmas time, but nothing this year. I truly hope that you are well.

In the past while I have been trying to get started on organizing a "Reunion" in Lansing, Michigan in the summertime. At the moment it looks as though it could well be mid to end of August, 1998.

I am trying to get some assistance and have corresponded with Joyce Aldrich, who originally offered help but now appears to be too busy with other things and has passed me along to her niece, Kathy Thomas. At the moment I do not have an address for Kathy. I have been corresponding with Steven Karnes via the internet, and he too has offered to assist. Unfortunately, Steve's dad passed away very suddenly a couple of weeks ago.

What I need at the present time is a suggestion for somewhere to hold the event in Lansing. Once I get some suggestions, Paul has offered to drive me to Lansing to take a look around. Hopefully, when the weather gets a little better.

Joyce did advise me that there were 50 or more who had showed interest. Also I wrote Tony Witheridge in Geneva, and he and his wife would like to attend. Also Brenda Dwyne and her family in Hamilton, Ontario. I think that maybe Paul Freed would attend and his brother, Bruce, from Ontario. So it looks as though we could have quite a turn-out.

If you are to attend I would appreciate you doing one of the "talks" and I would do the other. I really need your input on this subject.

I hope to hear from you soon.

Best wishes to you,

Paul & Kathy

Dear Kathy and Paul,

I want to follow up on the phone call we had the other day. It sounds as though you will be having a good Witheridge reunion in August, and I hope you get some good assistance from Kathy Thomas and Steve Karnes. I'm sorry I can't plan to be there, but I have a big gathering of my mother's German relatives to manage this summer, and that's all I can handle.

I hope John and Janice and Jay will get there from Saginaw, and perhaps their daughter Mary Kay from Waterford. Then there are my niece and nephew in Bay City, Virginia Anne Sorensen and Bill Witheridge, children of my brother William, as well as Jennifer Burke in Royal Oak, my sister Louise's daughter. I think I gave you all their addresses last year. Let me know if you don't have them.

Now a little more about the New Jersey Witheridges. For a long time I thought they were related to Keith Witheridge, who came from Pennsylvania, but whose father was originally from New Jersey. I wrote to all whose addresses I had, but I couldn't get any answers back. So I telephoned a few and gradually pieced some of them together. Then I ordered the New Jersey and Pennsylvania census records from the Mormon library, and I found that Keith's family and the others were not related, at least not in this country. I was able to trace the New Jersey family back to Andrew Witheridge, the first one in America.

So I wrote to Kim to see if she had the record of an Andrew Witheridge who was born about 1845. She sent back the information about Andrew Hannaford Witheridge, and it all began to fit together. She had the records back to South Milton near Plymouth about 1700. I had also written to John Witheridge, and he sent essentially the same information, but it didn't match exactly with what Kim had sent. I got busy at many other things and just let it sit.

Then the Winter 1997 issue of "The Witheridge Times" arrived with Joyce Browne's article about the South Milton family, and I got interested again. A year earlier I had talked on the phone and written to two sisters in New Jersey, Janet Sauter and Marthe Gilmore, and told them I had their ancestry back to Andrew Witheridge, the first of their line in this country. I said I was sure we'd be able to connect them up in England. So

I called them both and told them we now know their ancestry back to 1700 in South Milton, and they were thrilled.

Actually, I had tried to get them to go to Devon in May of 1997, and they would love to have gone, but couldn't work it out. Even though the Witheridge Society isn't meeting in Devon this year, I urged them again to go and meet some of their relatives and then go down to Devon to visit the towns they came from. They'd really like to go, but the big problem is that Martha has a bed and breakfast place on the Atlantic shore that she has to open up, and she doesn't have anyone she can trust to do that. I tell her she should train someone, because some day she may have illness or an accident and will need a substitute. Well, we'll see.

Then, as I told you, I was over at Jim's apartment in December, and he found on the internet a list of six "Witheridges," one of whom was Jill Pierson in New Jersey, who listed genealogy as her hobby and Witheridge as one of the lines she was searching. So we sent her an E-mail and asked how she tied into the Witheridge family. She replied that her great-grandmother was Ethel Witheridge, who was the daughter of Frank and who married Alfred Crowell Pierson. I immediately found Ethel in my New Jersey records, so was able to tell her I knew her ancestors back to 1700 in South Milton.

Finally about the middle of January I was able to complete the compilation and correction of all my family group sheets for the family in New Jersey and all the was back to John Witheridge in South Milton. So I sent copies to Janet Sauter, Martha Gilmore, and Jill Pierson. Jill was thrilled, of course, and sent me her records of the descendants of Ethel and Alfred Pierson. I told her about the Witheridge Society, and now she wants to know how she can join. Isn't that quite a story? She is just twenty years old and a college student; otherwise I'm sure she'd like to go to England herself in May.

I've told Jill about Janet and Martha, and I've told them about her. (They are second cousins of her grandfather.) She says she is going to try to get in touch with them. They're all in the same general part of New Jersey. I know you'll want them on your mailing list, so here are their addresses:

HOME PORT

by Joyce Browne and Philip Witheridge

This article is the result of a voyage of discovery - a cruise around the facts as they were discovered by talking to members and by intensive search of the records. This voyage starts and finishes at the natural harbour of Hooe, which is immediately south of Plymouth.

The Romans were trading and exporting sheep from Hooe before 450 AD when they left Britain. In those far off Roman days at the end of the year, the wether lambs would be separated from the breeding flocks on Dartmoor. These wether lambs would then be driven down the ridge road, off Dartmoor, and on down to where Plymouth is today. In Roman times this area was open ground and these flocks of wethers would be held against the natural boundaries of a stream which flows into Sutton Bay on one side, and the Cattewater, the tidal estuary of the river Plym, on the other.

After the bartering had been completed, and the ownership decided, these wethers were driven over the Cattewater at low tide, and taken up to the grazing on Staddon Heights above Hooe. Here the flock would be stored and grazed until they were ready for shipping out of Hooe, across the Channel to feed the Roman garrisons in France.

In 1086 the Doomsday Book recorded, in the Plympton Hundred, a manor called 'Wederiga' or 'Wether-ridge'. This manor is now lost, but the 'Withyhedge Brake' overlooking Jennycliff Bay, seen on recent Ordnance Survey Maps, is believed to mark the place where this manor once stood, and from whence, we the South Devon families, derived our surname.

The Society had early success in the exploration of some of the South Devon families - Ermington and Wembury - to name two, but we soon realised that at least one other major Witheridge family inhabited this area of South Devon.

The IGI gives records of Witheridges scattered in a number of places, ie, South Huish, Modbury, Plymouth, Exeter, Newton Ferrers, etc. In the Hearth Tax list for 1674 seven Witheridges were named in South Devon at Wembury, Plymstock, Newton Ferrers, Ermington, South Milton and Woodleigh. The name 'Andrew Witheridge' at South Milton is particularly significant as this name was still in family use in this district in the last 1800s.

In the years 1619 and 1626 the government ordered a survey of mariners and shipping, and in South Devon, at Plymstock, a Christopher Witheridge, a mariner aged 20 was recorded, another Christopher, a fisherman aged 58 was found at Newton Ferrers, and at South Milton there were two fisherman, John aged 23 and William aged 50.

As we found more names in the SouthMilton/Thurlestone and South Huish area we tried to slot them into what we called the 'South Milton/Thurlestone/South Huish' family. This proved to be very difficult, not because of a shortage of names - we were overwhelmed by Johns, Williams, William Henrys, and Andrews, but by a shortage of evidence as to who belonged to whom. This difficulty was compounded as we found that the families did not always stay in one place, but moved between South Milton, Thurleston and Bantham. You can see on the map how close together these villages and hamlets are.

A Breath of Wind In the Sails

Becalmed as we were, we welcomed the freshening breeze of discovery from our friend Sheila Jewell who found some leases concerning property in Yealmpton, and with the help of the leases and parish registers we were able to disentangle the South Huish family from the others and place them with the Yealmpton family - see our article "The South Huish/South Milton/ Yealmpton Family" in the Witheridge Times, Winter 1995.

Now that we have been able to see transcripts of the parish registers of South Milton, Thurlestone and East Portlemouth, we are more confident in our interpretation of the links of this family and we have named it "The South Milton and Thurlestone Family", and you will see that on Sheet 1 of the family trees we have incorporated what we previously called "The Stoke Damerel Extension" into it.

Stoke Damerel is a district which incorporates Devonport, so it is obvious that there are other families with links to this area, but for the moment we are concerned only with those originating in South Milton.

The Family Trees - Sheet 1 (See fold over section at rear of magazine)

At the head of the tree is a John Witheridge who married a 'Mary', and you will see that the line connecting him to John, born 1700, is dotted - indicating uncertainty. We do not have absolute proof that the John born 1700 was the son of the John who died in 1748, but the probabilities point that way. The third generation John, born 1740, who married Mary Cawse, had two sons, John, born 1744, and Andrew born 1777.

Navigating our way around the descendants of these two proved to be a problem. They both named sons 'William' and 'John', born within a year or two of each other, and both Johns married girls named 'Mary Ann'! One William married Mary Hannaford, and the son of one of the Johns, James, also married a Mary Hannaford. We nearly foundered on that one!

South Milton and Thurlestone Family Tree Sheet 2

It is interesting to see how the descendants of John, born 1740, who married Mary Cawse, seem to differ in their choice of occupations and their financial circumstances:-

(Brothers)

John born 1774

John, born 1774 married Catherine Lamble (or Lambal) and their line took to the sea. Their oldest son, William, married Mary Ralph in Liverpool and went on to father a family of eight, two of them were sailors, and one a sailmaker.

Andrew born 1777

Andrew, born 1777 married Abigail Tabb, and he was a labourer, and his descendants lived from the land, either on farms, or in horticulture. We know from apprenticeship records that some of his family were in poor circumstances.

In 1808, John (another John!) son of Andew and Abigail Tabb "a poor child" aged seven, was apprenticed by the Churchwardens to one Roger Crimp, a yeoman of South Milton.

In 1811 the same John, aged nine was again indented to Rober Crimp, and in 1816 Andrew and Abigail's third son, Thomas, "a poor child" aged nine was apprenticed to the same Roger Crimp.

In 1840, Andrew and Abigail's grandson, John, was apprenticed to a Mr. Toyer, but at least he had reached the grand old age of eleven.

Sorrow came to this family in 1844 when another of Andrew and Abigail's grandsons, Thomas, aged ten, son of Andrew Witheridge and Mary Luckham, fell from a horse and was killed. Andrew senior had died in 1841, but Abigail lived until 1859.

South Milton and Thurlestone Family Tree Sheet 3

The other branch of the family, personified in William born 1800, who married Mary Ralph (We have seen this name written as 'Rolph' and 'Ralp') seems to have fared better.

That is not to say that life was not hard. As a young man William was making voyages to ports around the British Isles, he married in Liverpool and formed connections there. Some of his descendants still live in the Wirral, others in Wales, and some settled in Salcombe (Kingsbridge registration district). Two of his sons became Master Mariners, one of his daughters married a Master Mariner, and another daughter married a ship's carpenter.

William's grandson, Beauchamp Henry Witheridge, went to Scotland and worked with Alfred Nobel, the inventor of dynamite. Beauchamp married in Scotland, but eventually settled in Wales and he and his wife had seven children, the oldest of whom, George,

But back to William the Mariner:- Philip's illustrations show the kind of vessel which William may have been sailing - but which one?

We know that at one time (1863) William was master of a vessel named "Loveday". This is shown on the Port Record of the voyages made by the Loveday - voyages made regularly between Salcombe and Plymouth - and what is the address of the owner? Why - our home port - West Hooe, Plymouth.

Editor's note:

Starting at this point, the correspondence between DEW and Kathy Witheridge (b. 1942) shifted from regular postal delivery ("snail mail") to the new-fangled email that was rapidly taking over the world of written communication.

To save space, I have taken the liberty of downsizing the text, eliminating unnecessary white space, and (where possible) combining two or more separate email messages on the same page.

Also, to make referencing and searching easier, I have added a sequential encircled page number to the righthand corner of each page, starting with ① for the next one.

Hi Gang;

I now have the 1881 British Census on 25 CDs! If any of you would like me to do any look-ups, please feel free to ask.

I also have the 1851 Census but this one only covers 3 Counties, Devon, Norfolk and Warwick. Should anyone require anything from this CD, I will oblige.

Kind regards

Hi David;

I have just been looking at the 1851 census for Combmartin, Devon, and found the following:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| BLACKMORE, Susanna | head | 70 | pauper Ag Lab widow |
| BLACKMORE, Clara | dau | 28 | general workwoman Ag Lab |
| BLACKMORE, William | son | 26 | farm labourer |
| BLACKMORE, George | g/son | 9 | scholar |
| BLACKMORE, Mary Witheridge | g/dau | 1 | |

I know that Clara married John Witheridge, and I have their first child as William Witheridge, born Sep 23, 1856. Did Susanna have children older than Clara? Maybe another one who married a Witheridge, or does Mary Witheridge Blackmore belong to Clara? And, who does George belong to?

So many questions that I keep coming up with! Just trying to test your memory!

I am keeping extremely busy at the moment, as my sister and brother-in-law arrive from England next Thursday.

One more question David, I am trying to create a web-page for the Witheridge Society, do you know if Dorothy Witheridge, the Australian rep, has an e-mail address? Maybe I should ask Tony, but I haven't talked with him in a while, was in the midst of moving.

Hi, Kathy,

Your e-mail reminded me of unsolved mysteries in my family history, and I got out my records again to see what I could find.

First, in regard to George Blackmore. He is the one who was later known as George Curtis. The family story is that before Clara Blackmore married John Witheridge, she married George Curtis, who then went off to sea and was never heard from again. He is supposed to gone with Maximilian to Mexico. The ship and all the crew apparently were lost.

There is no record that Clara ever married George Curtis, and the birth certificate of the younger George gives his name as George Blackmore and lists Clara as unmarried. She is also called unmarried in George's baptismal record in the Combmartin parish register. George had a twin brother John, who died in infancy.

In the 1861 Census of Combmartin in the record of John and Clara Witheridge's family, George is listed as "George Curtice, son, unmarried, 18, blacksmith apprentice, born in Combmartin." He later married a Mary Jones, and they had four children: William, Clara Elizabeth, John, and Laura. The Curtises apparently all came to America, and our family occasionally had contact with some of them, though I never met any of them.

Now, in regard to Mary Witheridge Blackmore, my conjecture is that she was the daughter of John Witheridge. The birth certificate and baptismal record just show her as Mary Blackmore, not with the middle name of Witheridge as given in the 1851 Census, and they both list Clara as unmarried. In the 1861 Census under John and Clara Witheridge's family, Mary is listed as follows: "Mary Witheridge, Dau., 11, scholar, born in Combmartin." Later Mary had two children, both listed as illegitimate on the birth certificates and in the Combmartin parish register: Eva, b. Nov. 6, 1871; and William John, b.. Apr. 7, 1873. I didn't find her in the 1871 Census, but she may have been listed in some other family that I missed, or she may have been out-of-town during her pregnancy.

By the way, the 1871 Census shows Clara Witheridge with the children–William, Betsy, Edwin, and Susan–but not the father, John. He may have been in Wales looking for a place to move the family to.

Another thing I notice is that my record of the 1851 Census shows another daughter living with Susanna Blackmore: "Ann Blackmore, Dau., unmarried, 26, Ag. Lab. born in Combmartin." You asked if Susanna had more children older than Clara, and the answer is yes, she had eight older that Clara, but I won't try to list them all.

I guess this answer your questions about the Blackmore family, probably with more information than you wanted. In regard to Dorothy Witheridge, no, I don't know if she has an e-mail address, so I guess you'll have to ask Tony.

Have a good time with your sister and brother-in-law!

Love, David

Hi David;

Sorry I haven't written you in a while but I have had my sister and brother-in-law over from Britain. They were with us for a couple of weeks and returned home last Friday evening.

I have just found a Christy Witheridge on the internet, who tells me that her father is Larry Witheridge and her grandfather is Robert Witheridge. Do you know who this might be?

Love,
Kathy

Hi David;

I found Edward Allen Witheridge, born Sep 6 1891 and died in Jan 1975 in Port Townsend, Washington. However, I do not have his wife's name or any of his children. Would you happen to have this information?

I am pleased to hear that you advised me of this David, it can become quite a nuisance! What is he selling?

I have been in touch with Joan and I know that she visited Joyce Aldrich in Lansing this summer, they had a great time. Joyce told me the whole story. I was sorry that I did not get to meet with them, it would appear that they are really nice people.

I keep in touch with Joyce Aldrich on a regular basis, we have become great friends. A few weeks ago, she advised me that they are going to England next May for Witheridge Day 2000. Boy am I envious! Apparently, three of the sisters are going, Joyce, Winnie and Jean, along with Joyce's husband. I was also told that maybe some of Jean's family will be going again too.

Have you heard as to whether or not Kim has moved yet? I am waiting to get a new address for her. Will have to write to Joyce Browne again, as she brings me up to date on all the news.

I will do that.

Hi David;

As always, thanks for the information! I received a note from Joan Shaw today and she filled in one or two more gaps. Along with she and Larry there is also a brother Robert who lives in California. Apparently, Lois Witheridge is still alive and is now 86, but her husband Robert Edward died on Nov 2, 1994 at Port Hadlock, WA.

Larry Witheridge has 3 children, Christy (20), Katie (18), David (16), but I do not know the name of Larry's wife. I have asked for this information.

When you hear from Kim to advise you that she is on the internet, could you please let me know. Kim is such a hard person to reach and it will be great to have her on the 'net'.

Must close now,
Love
Kathy

Hi David;

Hope that you are keeping well and prepared for the winter months.

It seems that each time I drop you a note it is to ask questions!

Recently, I found an article on the Internet which had been taken from The Surrey Advertiser Ltd, in 1997. Part of it read as follows:

"A student at Charterhouse is in a coma, fighting for his life, after an accident during a sea survival exercise in the school's swimming pool.

Nick Stafford, 18, of Epsom, who is described as a 'strong swimmer', became trapped underneath a life-raft during Combined Cadet Force sea survival training on Monday afternoon.

The course was being run by Royal Navy personnel from Gosport in the pool at the school's sports centre.

The headmaster, the Rev John Witheridge, said the group of 17 cadets were in the water working with life-crafts........."

As we all know there are many Johns! Have you ever heard of this one?

It is surprising what you find on the internet when you look for the Witheridge name.

Did you get your Fall edition of the Witheridge Times yesterday? I see that there is no change of address for Kim as yet!

Talk to you soon,
Love,
Kathy

Hi, Kathy,

Yes, I know the Rev. John Witheridge. Elizabeth and I met him and his family on one of our visits to England. At that time he was "the Conduct" at Eton College in Windsor. That is the designation given to the priest who is the spiritual leader or chaplain at Eton College, which is the only place in England where that terminolgy is used. He had previously been chaplain for the Archbishop of Canterbury. I believe he went directly from Eton to be the Headmaster at Charterhouse.

John is the nephew of George A.C.Witheridge and Harry (Henry James) Witheridge, whom Elizabeth and I became well acquainted with on our trips to England. John's father is their brother Frank (Francis Edward), whom we met just once at a family gathering at Harry's. They also had a brother Stanley, who spent some time in New Zealand and also in Switzerland. George is the father of Col. Anthony Witheridge, the retired army officer who died about a year ago, and whose funeral Kim wrote about in the Witheridge Times.

I don't seem to have all the records about their family, but I believe they stem from the George Causey Wiitheridge family, which goes back to Northam in northwest Devon.

I wrote to Kim and Roy about a week ago at their new address, but of course haven't had time to know if it reached them or not.

All is going well here.

Love. David

Hi David;

I had a feeling that you would know all about him!

Last year I corresponded with Simon Witheridge, who is the son of Anthony Gilbart Witheridge and Francoise Mary (Burnaand) and grandson of George Albert Childs Witheridge (dob Nov 2, 1909). ?

I will give you Simon's e-mail address:

simon.witheridge@hsam.co.uk and his brother Philip (Pip)

witheridge@mailcity.com

Just in case you would like to drop them a line. They appear like very nice young men.

I did a little research for them (from St. Catherines index), but only got as far back as Robert Herbert Witheridge s/o George Causey Witheridge and Margaret Ramsey, born in the Dec qtr of 1887 at Pancras.

Talk to you later, and thanks again for the info.

Hi David;

Just a short note to let you know that I have found another Witheridge descendant! Peggy Weldy of the US, wrote as follows:

"My paternal grandmother, Jane Witheridge b 1875, married Clifford Samuel Werfield, b 1865, d 1914. Her parents were John Phillips Witheridge and Emma Northcott. I believe they were from England and had been servants to Lord and Lady Carew. They had 7 children as far as I can ascertain, Mary, Will, Emma, Tom, Jane, John and George."

This family stem from the Tavistock family and connect with Paul's family in Bradworthy.

At the present time I am corresponding, almost daily, with Tony Witheridge, he is going to help me put together a web page for The Witheridge Society, as I have never done one before and he has done a couple for himself.

Talk to you soon,
Love
Kathy

Hi David;

Peggy gave me the name John Philip Witheridge and when I asked Joyce Browne about this person, she advised that it was PHILLIPS and not Philip.

I never knew that there was a connection between the Tavistock Witheridges and the Bradworthy Witheridges. It was not until I started looking at the Tavistock Family Tree that I saw the connection.

Prior to the Witheridge family moving to Bradworthy they were from Barnstaple until 1632. At which time they were in Infracombe. I believe via Fremington. It was not until 1698 that one of Paul's grandfathers, Thomas Witheridge was baptised in Bradworthy. After this date there were a couple of Witheridge family members born in Morwentstow in 1759 and 1761. It was Paul's 5 x gt grandfather, George Witheridge who was baptised in Morwentstow in 1761. He married Jane Oke in Bradworthy on Jan 22 1783 - this is where the family connect! George had a brother Richard, whom I never knew about. Richard was born in Kilkhampton in 1766 and he married Mary PHILLIPS in Tavistock in 1799. As you can now see, Peggy's family and Paul's family connect. The Witheridge Society obviously knew of this connection as they have a Family Tree showing the Ilfracombe/Bradworthy link to Tavistock.

Yes there is a research report on the Tavistock Witheridge line done by Philip in the above edition. However, I think that having Peggy on board might clear up a few 'gray areas'.

I wrote to George Keith Witheridge in June of 1996, and although I did receive a brief reply from him, he advised that he was 88 years of age and had very little contact with his son who had no interest in family history. I also wrote to Mrs. Jean E. Witheridge of Nantecoke, PA, and she advised that her husband had been dead for 21 years. I cannot remember, without looking up details, where she fit in.

I have recently joined mailing lists for New Jersey and Pennsylvania to see what I can find out about these families. I will certainly let you know if I find anything of interest.

Hi David;

Another question!

Do you know where the Whitteridge family born in Ohio originate?

Taken from the IGI:

WHITTERIDGE, Byron - b May 14 1871 at Clark, Ohio
s/o Worthington Whitteridge and Sallie Henry

WHITERIDGE, Elizabeth L - b Apr 1872 at Clark, Ohio
d/o Thomas Whiteridge and Jennie Aldrich

WHITERIDGE, Eurilda - b Feb 10 1873 at Clark, Ohio
d/o W. Whiteridge and Sallie Henry

WHITERIDGE, Hattie - b Nov 20 1874 at Clark, Ohio
d/o Horace Whiteridge and Evira J. Scrike

WHITTERIDGE, Maude - b Aug 9 1871 at Clark, Ohio
d/o George Whitteridge and Catherine Franklin

WHITERIDGE, William T - b Jun 15 1870 at Clark, Ohio
s/o Thomas Whiteridge and Jenny Aldrich

WHITTERIDGE, William - b Nov 1872 at Clark, Ohio
s/o Worthington Whitteridge and Sallie Henry

Would the above be a completely different family to ours, or are they connected?

Hi, Kathy,

No, I have never seen this family before, and I do not know if they are related to our Witheridges or not. John Witheridge in England seems to think all the different spellings may be related, and maybe some are, but not all. We'll just have to keep them on file, I guess.

Hi Gang;

Just wanted to let you all know that we have a new member to the Witheridge Society.

I found Peggy Weldy, who lives in Tucson, Arizona. Peggy descends from the Tavistock family and she is the first person from this line to be found in the US. We have got the Tavistock line to connect to the Bradworthy line, so Peggy is a distant relative to Paul.

Welcome aboard Peggy.

Hi David;

Joyce Browne and myself have done quite a large amount of research on the 'Salem Witchcraft Trials'. You may recall that one of the witches was supposedly Sarah (Buckley) Whitterage who married Sylvester Whitterage at Marblehead, Massachusetts on Nov 17, 1684. It is quite surprising how many different ways the name is spelled throughout all the research. It has never been established as to whether or not Sylvester belonged to any of our families. According to a passenger list it showed as follows:

April, 1635 - In the Eliz: prd W. Stagg, master, bound for New England:

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| A Carpenter | Wm Whitteredd | 36 |
| uxor | Elizabeth | 30 |
| sonn | Thos: Whitteredd | 10 |

I have found a note which someone sent to me in 1998 which reads:

"Married - Scituate:
Dr. William Whitridge of Tiverton and Mary Cushing - 10 Mar 1781"

I don't know much more about this info - only that I seem to recall hearing the name Cushing before. Do you think that this might have been in Tiverton, Devon?

I know I ask too many questions David, but I know you have been researching for a long time.

Hope you are well.

I would like to take this opportunity of wishing you all 'A Very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year'.

This year, Paul and I have decided against sending Christmas cards ar will be making a donation to 'The Canadian Diabetic Association'. Havi been diabetic for some 36 years and now starting to get a little 'diabetic damage', I feel the necessity to support them to the maximum.

This does not mean that you will not be in our thoughts at this time.

I am fascinated that our family is growing quite rapidly. We are now much larger in North America than they are in Britain. I have found numerous new family members this year and am still looking.

We had a wonderful Reunion this year, and although we only had 25 attend, it was a great day. We look forward to having more of these events in the coming years.

For those of you who are not members of 'The Witheridge Society' and have an interest to join us, please let me know and I will forward details

Hi All;

Arrived home safe and sound last evening! Had a great trip, but 'Witheridge Day 2000' was very sad. Would you believe that only 8 of us showed up, we had to make Tom and Sheila Jewell members in order that we could have an AGM. Apparently, the constitution indicates that 10 must be present.

Paul and I put forward several suggestions to try and make things work, but I am not convinced that any of them will ever take effect. If the Society is to continue, something must be done! Does anyone have any bright ideas? I do have the minutes on tape and will try and put these together for our North American members.

I trust that you are all keeping well - please keep in touch.

Hi, Kathy,

Thanks for your two messages. It's good to find a new Witheridge, or should I say Witheridge-in-law? I'm glad Carol wants to join the Witheridge Society. I hope someone in England can figure out who John Northmore Withridge was. I wonder who Terry Grigg is and how he knew about you. Maybe he saw your web site.

Regarding the Mary Witheridge and John Witheridge in Cornwall, I really don't know who they are. And it looks as though Emily Williams was originally Emily Witheridge. John Witheridge's baptism would probably show up in the Combe Martin parish register, but I guess I don't have time to track it down.

Hi David;

I figured this out a number of years ago. You might recall seeing Brenda Dwyne of Hamilton, Ontario, at Witheridge Day 1997 at Tiverton. Well, Brenda is the grandaughter of John Northmore Witheridge, jr., who was born in Ermington, Devon, on Nov 10, 1872. He married Mary Jane Knight on Jan 3, 1905 at Stoke Damerel, Devon. They had two children in Devon, one of which was Brenda's mother, Sylvia Maud, born at Bodmin, Cornwall, on Apr 9, 1915.

On May 14, 1921, this family arrived in New York, to start a new life in Ontario. John Northmore Witheridge had been a sergeant major in the British army and had served 22 years.

John Northmore Witheridge's father was also John Northmore Witheridge and this is the one who married Emma Louisa (Cowell) Grigg in Mar 190 after the death of his first wife, Maria Tall Sandover, in 1902. John and Maria had been separated for many years and her death was very difficult to find as she reverted back to the name Sandover, and she was actually living with someone by the name of Sandover, who was a distar cousin of hers.

I think that I wrote an article for the Witheridge Times a few years ago and my findings of this family.

Hi David;

I am trying to think of something to put on the web site without providing too much information to non-members. I had thought that I would put up excerpts from the minutes of Witheridge Day 2000, but now I feel that would be a disaster! I don't particularly wish people to know that the event was certainly not a success.

I have been looking through back issues of The Witheridge Times, and note that you did an interesting story in Volume 9, Number 3, Autumn 1995 regarding 'The Other Witheridges', all the various towns and villages named Witheridge. I wondered if it might be a nice idea to condense it a bit and just cover all the different areas with the Witheridge name. We could maybe show some maps and signposts on the page. What are your thoughts? and would you agree?

I once found a location named Witheridge Lane, somewhere in Devon, I thought that I had seen in on a census, but cannot find it right now. There is a Witheridge Street, which I found on the Internet today, as follows:

[redacted]
50 Witheridge Street,
Agawam, MA 01030, [redacted]
[redacted]

Maybe I could write this gentleman and ask if he knows the history of Witheridge Street, what do you think?

Best wishes
Kathy

Hi, Kathy,

Sorry I didn't answer your e-mail right away, but I've been "involved." Yes, I think it would be a good idea to have something on the web site about the other Witheridges. I have a few comments in that regard.

Maybe you have noticed that in the next issue (Vol. 9, No. 4) I had a follow-up article about the Witheridge Farm in Somerset, which I think is very interesting. I ended up by saying I hoped someday someone over there would see if there still is a 300 year old house on Witheridge Farm. Well, it so happens that when I was at the 10th anniversary celebration, Kim and I (and I think Roy) went to that farm and had a most wonderful time. We met the owner and his wife, and they showed us through the fascinating old house that they had been restoring. We (especially Kim) took many pictures. However, they had had no luck in finding out the history of the place or the origin of the name. We took down their names and address, which I have misplaced, though Kim probably has them. Unfortunately, I didn't write up our visit at that time, and I don't think Kim did. It would have made a wonderful article in the Times.

All of this would be the basis of a wonderful piece on the web site. However, I can't volunteer to help you with it, so I guess you're on your own. If you included anything about our trip to Witheridge Farm, you would want to get Kim's input, though she is often very slow in responding, because she is so busy. She would certainly have some pictures you could use.

You would also have to get Joyce's permission to use any of the material from the Witheridge Times.

You certainly should try to track down the origin of that Witheridge Street in Massachusetts. That is amazing!

Well, I'll be eager to hear more from you about all of this.

Love, David

Hi David;

I thank you for your answer! I have now written to Kim, via Ron and Brenda Dixon, who are to act as a go between to get mail to England. They have very kindly offered to get messages through to Kim, this way it should not take very long for an answer. I also have an e-mail contact to get Joyce, so that has been very valuable. Joyce has tried every which way to get onto the Internet, but when we saw her she is still having problems. I keep hoping that she will be up and running soon. We really do need some contacts in Britain.

I am just working on Witheridge Day 2001 for the web site. Whilst in Tiverton, Kim provided information on 'Weald & Downland Open Air Museum', located just north of Chichester. This is where Kim would like to hold the events at the next AGM. I hate to sound negative, but it seems that whatever we try these days, it just doesn't go. We really have to get some more enthusiasm in Britain. We did get a lot of interest going in the US this year, unfortunately, the information was too late being available and they were left with very little time to book flights. Paul and I didn't book our flight until a month before we left. So these events MUST be planned a long time in advance if they want attendance!

Must carry on and get something else done!

Love
Kathy

MORE ABOUT WITHERIDGE FARM IN SOMERSET

by David E. Witheridge

After I sent in the article about the small Witheridge places in England (Vol 9. No. 3 Autumn 1995), and not long before my wife Elizabeth died in August, I was going through some old files and came across a letter I had forgotten about from Beth Norman of Lake Crystal, Minnesota. She had heard me give a talk at the English Interest Group of our Minnesota Genealogical Society about our 1980 trip to Britain and had heard me mention that one of my Devon ancestral families was 'Norman'. She had come up to me and said that she had a book about her family entitled 'Norman Genealogy', by William E. Norman, in which he told how some of her ancestors had lived for a while on a place called 'Witheridge Farm'.

In her letter she said she had looked up the information and found that prior to their coming to Canada in 1833, George Norman and Joan Leigh were married on a farm at Quarme, a little place in Somerset not far from Winsford. They stayed there nine years and had four children before moving to Witheridge Farm (listed as the fifth Witheridge place in my first article), where they stayed fourteen years.

The author said it was a fine large farm of 200 acres. The old farmhouse was large, having been the residence of a land owner. The rooms were large and the parlour boasted a wooden floor, the only one downstairs in the country around. The hall, dining room and kitchen, pantry and dairy had stone floors. Each room contained a fireplace and the large bedrooms upstairs had fireplaces. At the back was another building having a kitchen downstairs and bedrooms upstairs where the servants - four men and three women - had their rooms. Eighteen cows were kept and butter and cheese made every day".

Beth went on to tell of their own visit to the farm (I'm not sure what year that was):-

"Our son Jim had been there several years before us and had met the family, so we stayed at the home of Mr. & Mrs. David Norman at Gupworthy Farm near Wheddon Cross...Mrs. Norman was kind enough to drive us around and show us the country. She took us to the church at Winsford, as that was supposed to be the family's church. From there we went to Witheridge Farm.

"To get to the farmyard we drove down a narrow lane into the yard. The house was a two-storey building. The lady who lived there said it was about 300 years old. The walls were 18 to 20 inches thick at the bottom and about 8 inches at the top. She was sure it had originally been a thatched roof. None of the doorways were square, but were all round at the top. The stone floors were large stones of slate colour and set into a sort of cement. The upstairs doorways were only about 5 feet high, so you really had to stoop to enter them. The front door was made of slabs of wood and was about 4 inches thick. The big iron straps and the bolts in these iron pieces were very obviously hand made."

I wonder if this fascinating old farmhouse is still there? It doesn't sound to me like a building that is apt to have fallen down. I'm sorry we didn't try to see it when we came to England in 1988. Is there someone over there who would like to investigate and see if there still is a 300 year old house on Witheridge Farm?

Hi David;

As you suggested I contacted Kim and asked her about the Witheridge origins. Basically I asked if I could use a couple of paragraphs from her article which appeared in the Spring issue of 1987.

I would just like to do maybe a short account of Witheridge origins on our web site, not giving away too much information.

I have today looked on the internet and found maps of "Witheridge Wood", located at Knotty Green which is east of High Wycombe in Buckinghamshire - see http://www.streetmap.co.uk/streetmap.dll?grid2map?X=492760&Y=193365&arrow=Y&zoom=2

I also found "Witheridge Hill", which is north west of Henley on Thames, Oxfordshire - see

http://www.streetmap.co.uk/streetmap.dll?grid2map?x=469500&y=183500&zoom=3&isp=200&ism=1000&arrow=y?44,7

The above are extremely good maps which gives you a good idea of their location, you can also zoom in and out. Please give them a try and see what you think. I was thinking of putting a link to these maps after a brief description of the place.

I have today received a reply from Doreen Heaton, who is responsible for the Northmore family. She creates a newsletter and every two years they have a reunion. I asked how she draws the crowd, and she felt that people do not wish to attend meetings/AGMs, they just wish to get together with family and friends to view pictures, books, etc. I am told that they have 60+ at their reunions and this year she has 40+ booked already, also, 6 from the US.

← AGM = annual general meeting

I honestly believe that we have to make some amends, because to have only 8 attend an AGM is quite silly. We had to make Tom and Sheila Jewells members in order that we could hold an AGM, as there has to be 10 members present to hold an AGM.

I am trying desperately to come up with some new ideas, but no one else seems to be bothering at all. I am determined that I will not put forth the effort to attend future meetings unless I know for sure that a decent number of members are attending.

If there are no changes in the next couple of years, I will have to drop my membership, as it is a huge expense, doing research, working at a web page and trying to attend annual meetings in England.

What are your thoughts David?

Hi, Kathy,

I was sorry to see that you are thinking of dropping out of the Witheridge Society. I agree that something has to be done, and I, too, am frustrated that the people in Britain don't seem to know what to do. But we need people like you who have the ideas and vision and energy to make it succeed.

The trouble is that we in North America can't run the society in Britain. They have to do it. You did a great job with the reunion last summer, even though you were disappointed with the turnout. I think in another two or three years we could have another North American reunion with some of the same people plus others who weren't able to come last time. Distance is our problem here, but that certainly isn't their problem in Britain. The whole area of Britain is no larger than the state of Minnesota.

Here are a few of my ideas for what they're worth. I think a weekend later in the summer would be better than the first weekend in May. It would certainly be better for anyone coming from the United States or Canada. The first of May just isn't in our vacation period. The fact that the first Monday in May is a bank holiday doesn't seem to appeal to the British people, either. Perhaps they have other things they'd rather do with their family on a holiday. It should probably be on a Saturday or Sunday, rather than on a holiday Monday.

I agree that the idea of an AGM wouldn't attract a great many people. Most of the members of the Witheridge Society are so distantly related, if at all, that it's hard to build up the flavor of a family reunion. But that is what should be attempted, with mainly time for personal introductions and conversations, sharing pictures and stories, eating together, and maybe some presentations about interesting Witheridge information, with a very short AGM as a formality.

Perhaps having a reunion every two years would be better than having an AGM every year. The officers or board could meet on the alternate years to transact any necessary business, and they could also vote by mail on anything urgent.

The Witheridge Times is probably the unifying feature of the society, and that should certainly continue. Your web site is a great new feature, and as more and more members are on the Internet, I can visualize that being a means of drawing us all together.

Of course, I can't travel to the meetings, no matter when or where they are held, but I'll continue my membership, because I want to keep getting the journal, and I want to have more and more contact with the members through the Internet.

Well, these are some of my thoughts; but, as I say, the members in Britain are the ones who will have to make the decisions about the meetings and other features of the society. At least, if they ask me, I know what I'll tell them! Please stay with the society, and don't abandon me!

Now, back to the first part of your e-mail. I looked up those maps showing Witheridge Wood and Witheridge Hill on the Internet, and I think they are great. You certainly should try to put a link to them on your web site. Anyone with Witheridge connections would be fascinated. I showed them to my granddaughter Rebecca (11 yrs. old), and she said, "Awesome!" As you may have noticed in my article in the Witheridge Times, Elizabeth and I did get to see Witheridge Hill, but we weren't able to get to Witheridge Woods.

When my family took me to dinner on Father's Day, I took along copies of those two maps I had printed out, as well as one of the Witheridge Society web site and one of the pictures at a Witheridge Day. Of course, they liked them all. I was surprised that Jim hadn't heard about your web site. I guess he is not on your list of Witheridge e-mail addresses. His address is [redacted]

By the way, I now have an e-mail address for my brother John in Saginaw. It is [redacted] and you should add him to your list, too.

Well, that just about covers it for now.

Love, David

Hi David;

You know me, always threatening, but never do it! I was probably just having a bad day when I wrote you.

I don't know whether I told you, but we are driving west in September. My sister and brother-in-law are coming over from Britain and they have always wanted to see the Canadian Rockies, so this is what we are going to do. Take a month and drive! We will be spending some time in North Battleford, Saskatchewan, with the family I found a few years ago. When we return, we are thinking of travelling the US way and hope to call in at Minneapolis. I am hoping that a few of us, your family, Paul Freed, and maybe the Tomlinsons can at least get together for lunch or something!

Just heard from Joyce Aldrich today, haven't heard from her in a while. She tells me that her husband has just undergone cancer surgery, but he appears to be not too bad at the moment. I must write to her, as I have rather neglected her in the past while. We became quite good friends whilst organizing the reunion last year.

Haven't heard from Joyce and Graham since we got home, this is most unusual, I hope all is well with them.

This only problem I see here, is the cost of air fares, always pay top dollar in the summer months. We usually like to go either May or September.

I think that the AGM should probably be held at either Joyce or Kim's. They only need 8, I believe to hold an AGM, and we could all send our thoughts via mail. This way, it would not take up any part of a 'Reunion'. I am sure that they could get enough people together in that area to get it out of the way, as I understand that this has to be done.

I too feel that this would be a much better arrangement.

Maybe we should all come out to visit you next year, I am sure that we could get a good turnout if we started planning early enough.

I won't do that David.

Hi, Kathy,

I was glad to hear that you are planning to stick with the Witheridge Society. I thought you would, because you have so much of yourself invested in it.

What good news that you will be traveling west in September and hope to return by way of Minneapolis! We'll certainly get a good group together to greet you. I wish I could invite you to stay overnight with us, but I don't have enough room for four guests, now that my son Tom is with me, and his daughter Rebecca half the time. When I hear about the exact date, I'll get in touch with the Tomlinsons and Paul Freed.

Sorry to hear about Bruce Aldrich, but I hope he gets along well.

I've had some correspondence with Joyce lately about an article I wrote for the Witheridge Times, and she always says that they are both in good health.

It would be good to have the group come here some time, but I don't think you would have as good a turnout as you did in Michigan, because you start with a much bigger base of Witheridges in Michigan than here.

Love to you both,

Hi Gang;

I trust that you are all enjoying our summer! I have gotten the bug to organize another North American Witheridge Reunion, and wish to advise you all and get some input at the very start. It would be in the summer of the year 2001, so you all have lots of time to do some planning. I feel that it would be interesting to hold the venue in the Bowmanville, Ontario, area. Bowmanville being approximately 40 miles east of Toronto on the 401. You guys from the US, could probably spend a few days in our beautiful Toronto prior to going further east to Bowmanville. This could no doubt be made into a great trip for you all.

← The basic plan

I need some early input, as to dates etc., and also as to whether or not it would be feasible to hold the event in Ontario. I am thinking that those US bucks would go a long way in Ontario.

Best wishes to you all and hope to hear from you soon.

Hi, Kathy,

I'm glad you're getting some good response in regard to the reunion next year. The combination of the Witheridge Reunion and sightseeing in the Toronto area sounds like a great drawing card. You might even get some from England. Now, as you say, the main thing will be to find the most suitable date.

Good luck!

Hi David;

I just cannot believe the response! Did your son Jim tell you that he is most anxious to come. He tells me that he has been to Toronto before and just loves it! I have always felt that Toronto is one of the most beautiful large cities in the world and that everyone should see it!

Received a note from Annette last week and she is hoping to make it, also Joyce and Bruce Aldrich will be coming. John James of BC wishes to come and was hoping that he would be able to see the changing of the colours, which means September. I was kind of hoping for the las end in August, prior to the children going back to school for those we appear to be an older crowd!

← Annette Witheridge et al.

I also doubt that we will get anyone from England. I know that Joy Graham will not travel. I am not sure as to whether Kim and Roy financial position to make the trip. The only ones that I can think be Richard and Maureen Witheridge, who have been promising for to make the trip. Also, David and June Witheridge of Plympton.

Our member, Barb DiMambro of north Toronto has offered accommodations to any Brits. There is also Paul and I and Brend Bill Dwyne who have offered accommodations. We are about a fou drive from Bowmanville and Brenda and Bill will be a little less than

I am starting to get excited and will come up with a date as soon possible. There are still a lot of people whom I have not heard from

Hi, Kathy,

I keep looking forward with great anticipation to your visit at the end of September or the first of October with your sister and brother-in-law.

I think the best way to get everyone together is to have dinner at a restaurant where we could have a private dining room, but each one could order from the menu. I was talking to Tom about this, and he suggested a place where a group he was in met for dinner in a separate room about once a quarter. If we could get everyone to come, we'd have 14, including the four of you--a mini Witheridge reunion!

However, we need to know right away what day you will be in Minneapolis, so we can reserve the room. Since you know when you want to get back to Samia, you can figure back from that. It will probably take you two days to get there from here, unless you decide to spend some time in Chicago. Well, you figure it out and let me know what day you plan to be here.

Hi David;

I will give you the arrangements so far, although this is not yet cast in stone!

We are hoping to be in Minneapolis sometime Sunday, October 1 and we will be staying for 2 nights. This is about as close as I can get at the present time. We will be leaving the Calgary area and travelling through Montana and North Dakota. We haven't picked up our trip yet from the CAA, but they should have it ready for us this week. I will confirm dates as quickly as possible.

Hi David;

Just have another question regarding our trip.

We are planning on taking a slow trip back to Samia from Minneapolis, and wondered if you could suggest a couple of areas worth a visit. We have thought about one night in Milwaukii, WI. and the second in Benton Harbour, MI.

Do you think that we would be missing something worth seeing?

Hi, Kathy,

Yes, the Econo Lodge is in a respectable area. It is adjacent to the University of Minnesota campus, on a main route between Minneapolis and St. Paul, and in the vicinity of several large motels.

Tuesday

You didn't say exactly when you will arrive and leave. I have assumed you would arrive during the day on Sunday, Oct. 1, and leave Monday morning, Oct. 3. My thought was to get everyone together for supper about 5:30 Sunday evening at a restaurant where we could have a small private room. This wouldn't keep people up too late who have to work the next day. You would then have Monday for sightseeing and shopping--maybe the Mall of America. Please reply right away so I can reserve a room for supper.

Love, David

P.S. Just got your new e-mail about the trip back to Sarnia. The trip through Wisconsin is lovely, no matter which way you go, but we always loved the trip down the Mississippi River via Hwy. 61 to La Crosse and then over to Milwaukee, even though it's a little slower than taking I-94 all the way.

When we went through Wisconsin, our destination was always our beloved Chicago, especially when Tom and Virginia were living there.

I hope you will spend a little time in Chicago, especially along Lake Michigan all the way from Glencoe (via Sheridan Road) to Hyde Park (via Lake Shore Drive). There at 57th St. (Jackson Park) is the Museum of Science and Industry, our favorite museum, and nearby the University of Chicago. From there via Stony Island Avenue it is easy to get onto I-90 to take you to Michigan. Of course, you may already have in mind many other things to see and do in Chicago. There are so many! This all brings back so many memories of our younger days.

I know you will have a great trip.

Just wanted to let you know that I received a call from Paul Freed this afternoon. He told me that you had contacted him and he was quite thrilled. I would like to thank you for doing this on my behalf, it was very nice of you.

Paul sounded quite uplifting on the phone, and advised that his sister Marcia and niece Lucy, from England will also be joining us for dinner on Sunday, Oct 1st. I think that this means that there will now be 17 of us, as you had the number at 14 I believe. Quite a nice party don't you think? I am really pleased that there will be so many of us. I always feel a little guilty as we can always outdo the Brits! I think that we can safely call this a mini Reunion and take lots of pictures for the web site. I will try and bring as much stuff as I am allowed in the car!!

I don't know if I told you that Richard Witheridge of Bath is now on the internet. If you wish to drop him a note his address is:

Once again, I thank you for the contact.

I feel that I must spread the news that there will now be 17 of us getting together for dinner in Minneapolis on Sunday, Oct 1. As most of you know, Paul and I will be travelling west to to the Canadian Rockies for a month on the road. Whilst away, we will be visiting with three Witheridge descendant families:

Sharon and Ted Brydges of North Battleford, Saskatchewan. Sharon is the 2 x gt grandchild of George and Mary Witheridge, and the gt grandchild of John and Miriam Witheridge.

Roy and Janice Curtis of Sarles, North Dakota, USA. Roy is the gt grandchild of George and Mary Witheridge, and the grandchild of Sarah Janet Witheridge and her husband, William Francis Curtis.

Whilst we are in Minneapolis, we will be meeting Paul Freed and his sister Marcia, who will be visiting Minneapolis from Essex, England. Paul and Marcia are the 2 x gt grandchildren of George and Mary Witheridge, and the gt grandchildren of John and Miriam Witheridge

Just to let you know the relationships, Paul is the 3 x gt grandson of George and Mary Witheridge, and 2 x gt grandson of George, jr and Susan Witheridge.

All of the above being from the Bradworthy, Devon, line.

Just wanted to let you know that we are now back home after a wonderful trip to the Canadian Rockies and other places. We had a great visit with Ted and Sharon Brydges in North Battleford, Saskatchewan. We then got to meet Roy and Janice Curtis in Devils Lake, North Dakota. Roy's grandmother was Sarah Janet Witheridge. Lastly 17 of us had a great get-together in Minneapolis. Rev. David took us all around Minneapolis prior to dinner. All in all it was a great trip!

The response for the reunion in Bowmanville in 2001 was fantastic, we just have to decide upon a date now and we will be set to go.

We hope you all had a great summer and look forward to meeting you all again in the future.

Hi Kathy,

I just sat down at my computer to type in the following, which I had written out longhand so I wouldn't miss anything, and I found your e-mail about Paul Freed. I'm going to send it anyway, as I originally intended.

I've been able to contact everyone by phone, and I'm happy to report that everyone can come to supper on Oct. 1. In fact, the number has grown. Paul Freed (as you know) called his sister in England, who had been considering coming on a visit, and she and her daughter are definitely coming and will be here on Oct. 1.

Denny Tomlinson and his wife Darlene can come, and he will see if maybe his son, who lives here, can also come. Denny's mother Jean in Arkansas had been thinking of coming up here for a visit, but he's not sure she feels up to it right now. He will talk to her and tell her about the supper.

Denny"s sister, Pat Johnson, can come, but she is not sure about her husband Gary, because he hunts, and there may be something in season that weekend.

So we should have at least fifteen, and maybe as many as eighteen. That would certainly be a mini Witheridge reunion (as you say)! I"m looking forward to it. I've reserved a private dining room at the well-known Lexington Restaurant in St. Paul at Lexington and Grand Avenues, where we can each order from the menu. Prices are moderate for a good restaurant.

Back to your trip. Yes, the Mall of America was designed and built by the same Ghermazian (?) brothers who built the West Edmonton Mall. It is the largest mall in America, maybe the world. There are four anchor department stores at the four corners--Macy's, Bloomingdale's, Nordstrom, and Sears--with hundreds more stores and many restaurants. In the middle is "Camp Snoopy," an entertainment area with all kinds of rides and booths. I hardly ever go out there, except for something specific I can't find elsewhere, and to go with visitors from out of town.

I would also appreciate driving you around Minneapolis to show you our wonderful lakes and parkways, if we can fit it into your plans.

Regarding Chicago, you don't have to spend a lot of time there, but you really should drive along Lake Michigan on your way to Michigan. I don't know any other place in the country like the Lake Shore Drive. There are some wonderful places in Chicago, and some other places not so good. We lived for six years in Hyde Park, on Stony Island Avenue, just across the street from Jackson Park and the Museum of Science and Industry, and close to the University of Chicago, and we loved every minute of it. If you have time for a few hours at the Museum of Science and Industry, you will just love it.

Well, have a great trip out west and drive safely. I'm eager to see you again.

Love Dave

It is getting to the point where we have to make a decision on a date for the Witheridge Reunion 2001 to be held in Bowmanville, Ontario.

I have heard from the folks out west, who are still in farming, and August/September is out for them (they will be harvesting!).

June has been suggested in order that we can accommodate them. As they are very anxious to attend I feel that we should try for a June date.

Please let me have your comments in order that we can firm up a date as quickly as possible. As you can imagine there is a lot of work ahead to get this event off the ground and have a successful event.

Hi Folks;

Here is a note which I received from John Witheridge last week! John has been working very hard on organizing our Reunion 2001. I would appreciate your thoughts on what is happening so far.

I have taken a look on the Internet for Hotels and there is only one in Bowmanville - Howard Johnson Clarington Hotel - the rooms appear to run about $75 CDN per night. In Oshawa there is - Rodeway Suites, also looks very nice and the rooms are a little less expensive and run about $65 CND for seniors and a little more if you are not yet 50. This one includes a Continental breakfast. I am going to have John check out these two, just to see if they are in a nice part of town.

I look forward to getting some feedback on this subject!

What are your thoughts on paying a deposit, so that we are not left with huge bills? The way I see it, it is only going to run about $10. CDN for lunch and the hall.

Dear Kathy,

I have tentatively rented the hall at Ebeneezer U.C. @ $ 80.00 Canadian. I also contacted the U.C.W. and they had their meeting Thur. They will cater the event and we have two choices. Both include coffee, tea and treats in the morning. The first is sandwiches and finger desserts @ $7.00/person or a buffet style make your own sandwiches and salads and desserts for $ 12.00/person.

I told them I would get back to them in two or three weeks.

I also talked to my boss about a coach and he said they only rent for a minimum of 6 hours. I have not contacted a school bus company yet. I again know two people that run their own companies. I however feel that the convoy method would be more fun and cheaper. Maybe we should seek other opinions.

I suggest the local Marina for the supper. Do you want me to make inquires there or will it be up to each person.

Yours in the Tree,

John Witheridge the Fifth ( would you believe fourth )

There are a number of you who know or have met Joyce Browne, editor of The Witheridge Times and her husband Graham Browne, Chairman of The Witheridge Society.

Joyce has been trying desperately to get connected to the Internet for probably a couple of years now. Today, I received her first e-mail advising that she has now been successful! Poor Joyce has probably replaced every piece of equipment she owns in order to get on line. I have never known anyone have such bad luck.

All of you who know Joyce, please send her a quick note. It will be fabulous to have her aboard as she is a wealth of information.

Just wanted to let you all know that we now have a date. The Reunion will be held in Bowmanville, Ontario, on the week-end of June 22, 2001.

Arrangements are being made for accommodations, etc. We are also planning to have a speaker to talk to us on the Bowmanville area. I am hoping to speak on "Early Settlers of Durham County". Should we have enough response, we are talking about hiring a bus on the Sunday to take us to all the points of interest in the area, which will include the old Witheridge farm, and various cemeteries in the area.

The reunion is hopefully to be held at the Ebenezer Chapel in Darlington Twp., which used to be the Bible Christian Chapel, were members of the Witheridge family attended upon their arrival from Devon, England. Also, there are family members buried in this cemetery, which includes George Witheridge and his wife Mary (Saunders), who settled in Darlington Twp., in 1841 after leaving Bradworthy, Devon.

For those of you who have not seen the up-date to the Witheridge Society Web Site, take a look - we now have some new pictures which includes pictures of the Australian Reunions.

Time to make more amendments to the page, now that we have a date.

Should any of you have any suggestions for the 'big day', please let us know. Now is the time to speak up!

Kind regards

Just wanted to keep you advised about all the plans that are in the process for our Reunion 2001 in Bowmanville, Ontario.

John Witheridge has kindly looked into a couple of hotels for us - the one which is of interest to me is - Port Darlington Marina, which has 24, newly renovated rooms at a cost of $76 per night. This price may be discounted depending on how many rooms we take. The restaurant facilities are excellent, and we have already decided that this is the place to have our Saturday evening meal. John took his wife along a few weeks ago, they thoroughly enjoyed the food and the atmosphere. The second hotel in mind is - Howard Johnson Clarington Hotel in Bowmanville, and the costs here are approximately the same range.

I have had a response from the Foley family, who purchased the Witheridge farm in 1905, inviting us to take a look around the farm on our Sunday morning tour.

I have today written to the Bowmanville Museum, which can be viewed at - http://www.bowmanvillemuseum.org/
The main reason for visiting the museum being, I promised them a book on the Witheridge Family, some years ago, and thought that it might be a nice jesture to present them with such a book if we visit the museum from Witheridge families throughout North America.

If anyone has any suggestions, please let us know about them. We are working hard to make this an 'Event Never to be Forgotten'. Some of our visitors are in their 80s and haven't seen relatives in many years. Maybe you had better bring KLEENEX, I am sure that there will be tears of joy to be had!

May I take this opportunity of wishing you all the very best for Christmas and the Year 2001! I have a feeling it is going to be a good year!

I would like to advise all our Witheridge families, that Clarence Howard Witheridge of Kingston, Ontario, passed away on February 11th. Clarence was the father of John Witheridge of Orono.

On February 10th, Clarence and his wife celebrated their 57th wedding anniversary. They, along with their children went out for a lovely meal and had a wonderful family celebration. Clarence went to bed at 10:30pm and never awoke from his sleep!

We were all so looking forward to meeting with Clarence in June, as he was going to attend our Reunion in Bowmanville.

I am sure that you all go along with me in sending condolences to his wife and family. I am sure that he will be very sadly missed.

Hi David;

Just a note to let you know that I have just received your cheque for $50. I really must thank you for your generosity and will most certainly let everyone know of your kindness.

Paul and I are off to Bowmanville on Friday to take a look at the lay of the land. We will be staying at the Howard Johnson Hotel in Bowmanville, where we are all staying in June. I hope that it is o.k. now that we have gone ahead and done all the bookings.

Just after I received the note from David and June Witheridge of Plymouth, yesterday, I received a note from Tony Witheridge in Texas, advising that he too would be attending. I thought it funny that I had never heard from Tony and was a little worried about him.

We are now at 53 CONFIRMED, and only hope that the church hall is large enough to take us all. However, I am trying to get an appointment for Saturday morning to take a look and see the hall, we will then have a better idea of how many more we can take.

I heard from Joyce Browne in England the other day and she tells me that once again there are very few booked for the AGM next month. At the present time I am trying to put forth some recommendations as to how they can get more people to attend. Paul and I tried very hard last year to try and make suggestions, but nothing ever seems to change. This is the main reason that we are not in England this year for the AGM. It cost us a great deal of money to get to Tiverton last year to find that there was only 10 of us there, two of which were not members, so they had to be made members in order that we could have an AGM, apparently there has to be at least 10 members in accordance with the Constitution.

Once again David, I thank you for your generosity.

Hi David;

You wrote an article for the Witheridge Times regarding your grandparents, William Witheridge and Mary Jane Allen. You sent me a copy prior to it being inserted in the magazine and asked that I not copy it, which I have never done.

I am putting together a small family book for each person attending our Reunion on their family. As I know little about the Combe Martin Witheridge family, I wondered if I could add excepts from your story into my softward program? I will of course include that it was written by you and that I have permission (if this is the case). I had limited information to insert into Jim's book and thought that your story might add a bit of zest!

Jim will no doubt let you look at his book upon his arrival back home. They do look very nice and I will get them spiral bound, but at the moment it is small.

I have never heard from Jason Mark in Toronto.

Hi, Kathy,

Yes, I would be glad to have you copy any part or all of my article about William Witheridge and Mary Jane Allen, now that it has appeared in the Witheridge Times. I had just wanted Joyce to have the first chance to use it.

That is wonderful of you again to put together those family books for those at the reunion, and I know Jim will be pleased to have that material in his book. I'm so glad he and David are making the effort to go to the reunion.

I'm sorry Jason hasn't responded. I think he would have enjoyed the reunion, but maybe he is still too young to launch out into such things on his own.

Hi David;

Just wanted to let you know that I am having lots of fun getting onto the new Ellis Island site. I have just found the following, and wondered if you knew anything about these people.

George Chivers - lived in Newport, Monmouthshire in Wales left Liverpool and arrived in US on Mar 2, 1906. He was 32 years old at the time and travelled on the "Teutonic".

The ships Manifest shows the following:

Elizabeth Chivers - mother - 59 - final destination - Marshall, Illinois
George Chivers - son - 32 - servant - final destination - Marshall, IL
Maud Chivers - dau - 18 - assistant - final destination - Marshall, IL
Isabel Chivers - adopted dau - 7 - final destination - Marshall, IL
Alfred Ernest Chivers - son - 22 - cab driver - final destination - Marshall, IL

I cannot find any of the above in the information I have, but do you?

I have sent this information to Joyce Aldrich to ask her too.

Hi David;

I trust that you are keeping fit and well!!

A couple of months ago Joyce Aldrich gave me a bit of information regarding Alfred Chivers and Elizabeth (Witheridge) Chivers, which she obtained from their Naturalization papers. They indicated that both went to the US via Quebec, Canada on different ships. I immediately ordered the films through inter-library-loan, and today took a look at them. I found the following:

"Empress of Britain" left Liverpool on August 8, 1907 and arrived in Quebec on August 16th, 1907. There was a clean bill of health and no one was quarantined

3rd Class Passengers - bound for USA

CHIVERS, Alfred 49 Miner of Glamorgan, Wales - destination Saginaw, Michigan

"Victorian" left Liverpool on September 25, 1908 and arrived in Quebec on October 2nd, 1908.

Steerage Passengers bound for USA

|---|---|---|---|---|
| CHIVERS, Elizth | 50 | wife | England | Saginaw, Michiga |
| CHIVERS, Elizth | 15 | none | England | Saginaw, Michiga |
| CHIVERS, George | 26 | miner | England | Saginaw, Michigan |
| CHIVERS, Edgar | 11 | child | England | Saginaw, Michigan |

Just thought that I would forward this information to add to your files.

Hi, Kathy,

Thank you for the Chivers passenger information. When I first looked at it, I was a little confused, because it said George was headed for Saginaw like the rest of the family. However, I was sure he had first come to St. Charles (south of Saginaw) while my grandfather and his family were still living there. So I got out my family group sheet for the Alfred Chivers family, and on the back of the sheet was this entry:

"George Chivers had come to America in 1903. In 1907 his father, Alfred Chivers came over for his health. In 1908 George went back to Wales and got married. His wife, Rosie, didn't come over then, because her mother had a heart attack. Mrs. Alfred Chivers (Betsy), with her children Edgar and Elizabeth, came back with George on Oct. 4, 1908. Rosie came early the next spring, 1909. The William Witheridges had just built a new house on Warren Avenue in Saginaw. They had been living on Holland Avenue. Elizabeth Chivers (Redburn) stayed with the Witheridges about two years to go to school. George Witheridge and Allie (from St. Charles) had been married (in Sept. 1908) and were living with the Witheridges."

On the back of George Chivers' sheet is this notation:

"Worked in dangerous, gassy mine in Cwmaman. Energetic young man, became sick from the gas. His uncle, William Witheridge, was working with Dick Jenkins (Bill's father)"–(Bill Jenkins married Christina Witheridge in 1908)–"in a mine in St. Charles, which was on strike; so he had gone back to England to visit. William Witheridge said, "Take a vacation and come to America." But George said, "No," as he was on contract.

"Then the St. Charles mine was ready to start up again. His Uncle Bill introduced him to Dick Jenkins, who asked him to come to St. Charles to work in the mine. He went to America in October and had to stay until spring, as an Englishman or Welshman would travel on the ocean only in spring or summer, not in the winter. George lived with the Witheridges."

That isn't all entirely clear, but it fits together to a degree, and it's all I have. I thought you'd be interested.

Also in my notes I see that my father's sister Clara Mae told me that "George Chivers had a brother John, who came to Michigan for a visit." However, he always lived in Wales. He was a mine superintendent. He was married, but had no children.

Now before I close, I should say that I just talked to my brother John to wish him a Happy Birthday, and I was amazed to discover that he and Janice are going to the reunion! I think that's wonderful, and I know you are delighted. Now if we could just get Jason to drop in for a few hours!

Love, David

I was told by Joyce Aldrich that John Chivers was born August 25, 1885 in Wales and he was married about 1908 to Sarah Maggs. He died in the US abt 1955, which tells me he did come to the US.

A friend of mine looked up this death for me. Might this be the wife of Edward Witheridge, born Combe Martin abt 1862. I think that he married in Wales in 1882 but do not have a wife's name. Do you think that this might be correct?

51523.
She was residing in Cleveland when she died.
She was b Wales, d/o John Jones & unknown
Edward Witheridge was the informant.
I have a copy of this and will be glad to send it to you.

There must be a problem with the index because that certificate # was not for him.

I checked the Cleveland Necrology File and did not find a death notice for either of them.

Sorry that I wasn't able to provide as much information as I expected.

Dear Kathy,

I just got around to reading your e-mail, which arrived on Friday, and I am delighted. This filled in some blanks in my records of "Ned" Witheridge, as he was known by my father's family. They didn't seem to know much about him after he came to this country. (Yes, he was born in Combe Martin on Nov. 13, 1862.)

All I knew about a possible marriage was from Susannah Adams Argust, his niece in Wales, who said that she never heard whether Ned married and that he never returned to Wales after going to America. Now we know about his wife Elizabeth and her death in Cleveland and birth in Wales. There is probably a record of their marriage in Wales and other traces of Edward in Ohio, now that we know where to look.

Thank you very much.

Love, David

Editor's Note:

The emails on the previous page (Kathy's to Dad, dated June 14, 2001, and Dad's reply, dated three days later) were the last direct communications between these longtime pen pals that I found in the boxes of documents I've been working on for more than two years now.

This sudden radio silence would be concerning and mystifying — if it really happened. But I have reason to believe it didn't. They continued to be in communication (see the editor's note at Kathy Witheridge's index entry), albeit not as often as in earlier years. Dad just stopped filing proper records of their back-and-forth. In June 2001 he was almost 87, increasingly preoccupied by the insufferable burdens of old age and minimally involved in genealogical research, except for his difficult German Nemitz line. His formerly meticulous recordkeeping was not a priority.

I know a little about those burdens myself, even at the tender age of 74, as I prepare for required mitral valve surgery a month or two from now.

In short, there was no sign of a serious argument between the two collaborators, or even a minor spat. There was no unresolved disagreement about anything, genealogical or otherwise. Kathy's next-to-last email to Dad in the file ended with "Talk to you soon, love Kathy." His last email to her began, "I just got around to reading your e-mail, ... and I am delighted. This filled in some blanks in my records." It ended, "Thank you very much. Love, David."

Hi friends;

Well its been a while since I last wrote, almost feel as though I am losing connections with you all.

Our summer is now over and we have to look forward to winter, which isn't a pleasant thought for me.

On October 4th, we had the pleasure of meeting up in Niagara Falls with a Paul and Beryl Witheridge of Marlow, UK. What a wonderful day we had!

I was taken into hospital on Oct 10, with an attack of pancriatitis, quite scary, but I seem to be well on the road to recovery now. I return to see the specialist tomorrow, so hope all is well.

We have now decided to make the trip to England next year so that we can attend Witheridge Day 2004 in Devon, on the week-end of May 22nd. I know that some of you have shown some interest and it would be really good to get together once again.

I trust you all had a great summer and I look forward to hearing from you sometime in the future.

Hi Kathy, sorry I took so long to get an answer, but an answer I have.

From Father:

This is my Father's Brother, who moved to California about 1921. They had one daughter, Esther. I'm not sure of the spelling of his wife's name. I think we just called her Alma and spoke of her Mother as Mrs. Doty. George opened a florist shop in San Fernando and operated it for over 50 years.

We are all well here and are looking forward to spring. During the last week of March David and I are taking his Mother Margaret to Washington, DC via train for a few days.

I hope all are well in your neck of the woods.

Love Jim and David

Editor's Note

The next nine pages contain what Dad called "Family tree of the So. Milton, Thurlestone, Kingsbridge Witheridge family." I lovingly call it The Monster.

The original of this Witheridge family tree measures five and two-thirds feet on the horizontal dimension and slightly more than one and one-third feet on the vertical dimension. I found it folded into a small, tidy 6" x 9" packet, not unlike those highway maps we used to keep in our cars before GPS and Google directions came along. Whoever made the original used a typewriter (remember those?) and joined its many pages together with staples and Scotch tape.

I say "whoever made it," because its provenance is technically unknown. But the creator could very well have been Joyce Brown (q.v.), perhaps assisted by her co-author Philip Witheridge (q.v.), because it closely resembles — in content, style, and format — the four family tree charts at the end of their Witheridge Times article (Volume 11, Number 4, Winter 1997) about the South Milton (etc.) Witheridge family; see the last document in folder 1.63i. In fact, if I were a betting man, my money would be on Joyce (and possibly also Philip).

Of one thing I'm virtually certain: It wasn't made by Dad. He seldom used the British day-month-year date format. Nor would he have been likely to squeeze together such data elements as "bc1808" and "d1886SM"; instead, he would have typed "b. c. 1808" and "d. 1886 SM." But for me the dead giveaway is the last word on the last line of the last page: "SAUTTER." Dad misspelled Janet Sauter's married name as "Sautter" in his first letter to her way back on May 9, 1989 (see document W243, folder 1.63h), but by at least October 27, 1996, he was spelling it correctly (see document W299 a few pages back in this folder).

One big remaining question is: Which document (Joyce and maybe Philip's family tree in their 1997 article, or The Monster on the next nine pages) is the "newer" tree? I'm guessing it's the latter, because it fills in many names and dates that were left blank in the 1997 article — particularly for the most recent generations leading to Janet Sauter and her sister, Martha Gilmore, in New Jersey, whom Dad discovered by means of his Witheridges Across America (q.v.) tactic (see the aforementioned 1989 letter to Janet and an identical one sent to Martha on the same day, which are documents W242 and W243 in folder 1.63h).

My bottom line hunch is that Dad collaborated with Joyce Browne (and maybe Philip Witheridge) on the link between South Devon and New Jersey. He had facts they needed, and vice versa. Annette Witheridge (b. ca. 1961) is also a likely factor in the transfer of this important information across the pond, because she knew about Janet Sauter and Martha Gilmore (see document W299 in this folder), and — as a leader of the Witheridge Society (q.v.) — she knew Joyce Browne and Philip Witheridge. So that's my belief for now.

Subj: Re: Witheridge genealogy
Date: 97-12-14 21:14:24 EST
From: Chesnutmor
To: Witherjim ← James Penney Witheridge (b. 1946)

Dear Mr. Witheridge,

My name is Jill Pierson. I have been doing genealogical reasearch for a little more than a year. I am descended from Ethel Witheridge Pierson she married Alfred Crowell Pierson in 1909. She would be equivalent to my Great Grandmother.

This is the information that I have so far courtsey of my father's family. The Witheridges to my knowlede primarily settled in New Jersey. Ethel Witheridge was born Febuary 10, 1890. She died Febuary 17, 1940. Ethel was born in New York City though.

Ethel was one of many children. I believe 5. She was the middle child. Her parent were Fank Witheridge and Katherine Bower. Frank was born in Rahaway New Jersey. Frank did have several brother and sisters himself. His parent were born 1845/1846. They were Andrew and Elizabeth Witheridge. The family came somewhere between 1867-1870. The reasons for such as journey and movement I do not know.

I can tell you more if you like.

Sincerely,

Jill

business men as Harry T. and William J. Wickes organized a company, with Robert M. Randall as general manager, to prospect for and mine coal. As a result the Pere Marquette Coal Company sunk a shaft on the John P. Allison farm, near the Saginaw mine; and it was named Pere Marquette No. 1. Soon after a second shaft was sunk on the West Side, just beyond the city limits between Gratiot and Brockway Streets. This mine was known as Pere Marquette No. 2, and soon mining was commenced on a large scale.

About 1899 the Standard mine, located a short distance south and west of the original mine, was completed and put in operation by other parties; and the coal business of the valley was fairly launched. The product found a good market close at home, and at a good profit in active competition with Ohio and West Virginia coals, which had to bear a freight charge from three to eight times more than that of the local coal.

Arthur Barnard Begins Coal Mining

An enterprising citizen early identified with the coal industry was Arthur Barnard, who first secured coal leases in Blumfield Township, about nine miles east of the city. On this land he soon after sunk a shaft near the line of the Saginaw, Tuscola & Huron Railroad, which formed an outlet for the product. This mine was successfully operated for a number of years, the coal taken from the entries being of very good quality, and was mostly consumed at home.

The success of this mine and the prosperity attending the expansion of the industry led to further investments, and early in the present century he "Jimtown" mine, in James Township, the Riverside mine, south of the city on the Tittabawassee, the Chappell & Fordney mine, on the Belt Line near Gratiot Street, and the Barnard mine, on South Michigan Avenue, were sunk by enterprising operators, and the coal business in Saginaw began to assume large proportions.

Meanwhile the Pere Marquette Coal Company was absorbed by the Saginaw Coal Company, which was composed of practically the same stockholders, and the mining operations of the company expanded to a huge scale. Besides sinking new shafts in proved coal veins, the company purchased several of the independent coal companies, whose operations had not proved entirely successful, and in a few years it practically controlled the coal business at Saginaw. Some of the older mines, such as the Pere Marquette No. 1, which had reached the end of profitable operation, were dismantled and abandoned. In others improved machinery, electric haulage, and modern equipment were installed, to place them on a better paying basis. For economic reasons the industry was gradually becoming consolidated, not only to better control the market and the shipment of coal, but also to fix the selling price. In this city the price was fixed on the basis of the price of Ohio and West Virginia coals at the mines, plus the freight charges to this point, and ranged from four to four and a half dollars a ton delivered.

Labor Difficulties

During the early period of coal mining in Saginaw Valley, the labor problem was the greatest difficulty encountered. At first there were no experienced miners here, and after the industry was fairly started it was necessary to go to Ohio and West Virginia coal fields for them. This was no easy matter to bring about, as the Michigan coal fields were almost unknown to the miners of the old fields, and they were reluctant to leave their homes to try out newer conditions in the Michigan field. It was necessary to send a good man with tact, judgment and patience into the coal fields, and corral every unemployed miner and as many others as could be induced to leave their jobs, herd them together as a party in chartered cars for the trip to Saginaw. A close watch had to be kept over them at every place the train stopped, to keep them from wandering off; and even then a number of the recruits would desert their new "boss" at the first opportunity, although the fares and expenses were paid by him. It was altogether a strenuous job to land the greater portion of a gang of new miners in Saginaw, and actually get them started to work in the mines. In this work of bringing in miners Frank S. Spencer, for a number of years with the Saginaw Coal Company, was very successful.

Some Miners Become Operators

The operators in the Saginaw coal field, which includes all mines in this county, have experienced the usual labor troubles arising from disagreements, disaffection and the persistent efforts of the miners to improve working conditions. Added to these difficulties was the active influence of Socialism, which has many followers among the workingmen in Saginaw, and cries out against the employers with some bitterness. Some of the Socialist miners in looking around for something more practical than verbal expressions of hatred, conceived the general plan of the Caledonia Coal Company, a purely co-operative concern, which was organized in 1905.

It was planned to make this essentially a workingmen's mine, the company to be composed of practical mine workers, each of whom was to have an equal share of the stock, and to be equally interested in the output. Every man would thus be working for himself, and whatever his ability and industry gained would be of direct value to himself, instead of going as profit to the capitalist class. The mine and the general business of the company was to be directly controlled by a superintendent, who was accountable to a board of managers; and the decision of this body was to be at all times subject to review by the general assembly of the miner-stockholders.

To the socialist mind the plan had much charm, and many workmen were attracted to it. As organized the company consisted of one hundred men with a capitalization of fifty thousand dollars. A year later the number of shareholders and workers was increased to five hundred, and the capital stock to two hundred and fifty thousand dollars. The individual contributions were not large, and some workmen paid for their shares in labor, believing that if the co-operative plan was worth anything, it was worth the trial.

The organization of the company was perfected with the utmost secrecy, and all arrangements quietly made for sinking a shaft. A little tract of forty acres in the eastern limits of the city, upon which the coal lease, originally held by one of the old companies, had been allowed to lapse, was quickly secured by the Caledonia Company; and only when actual work on the shaft was begun, did the coal companies and the public learn what was going on. The shaft was put down with surprising rapidity, and on September 1, 1905, coal was sold from the new mine, the entries of which were at a depth of one hundred and sixty-five feet. There still remained the work of clearing away the waste and rock, extending the entries, and erecting the necessary structure over the shaft; and it was late in the Fall before the company was ready to enter the market with its product.

The Operators Take a Hand

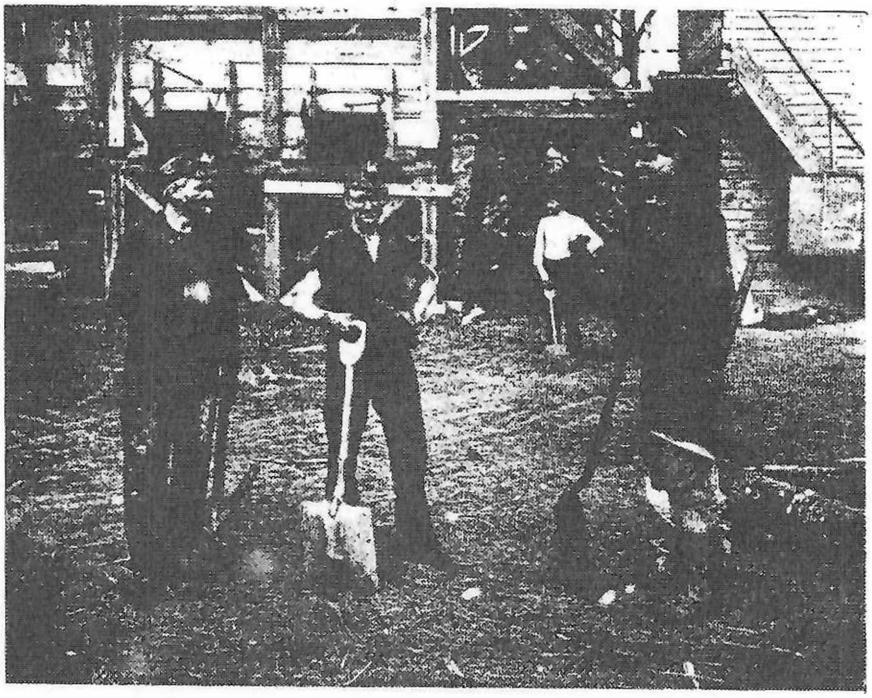
Meanwhile the operators had advanced the price of coal for the local trade, to the regular winter rate of four dollars and fifty cents a ton, although coal was sold at points a hundred miles or more away, with three times the freight charge, at considerably less. Thereupon the Caledonia Company began selling coal at four twenty-five a ton.

WORKING MAN'S MILL NOT IN A TRUST
CALEDONIA COAL CO.

LOADING COAL IN WAGONS AT CALEDONIA MINE No. 1, 1905



SOCIALIST MINERS JUST UP FROM THE MINE, 1905

This unheard-of proceeding aroused the operators to quick action. A conference was held at which they explained to the little group of socialist miners their painful duty. But the miners were not won over.

"We must protect the public against extortion," they contended, a principle which fell on unheeding ears. The operators were firm. "You know the price of life," they said.

The Caledonia reply was instant and unmistakable. The price of coal was dropped to four dollars, then to three-fifty, at which point it remained for several years.

The action of the operators was equally positive. Coal was rushed to the new mine, at which most of its product was sold, and was offered directly in front of the Caledonia mine at the startling price of one dollar and seventy-five cents a ton. This action was kept as secret as possible, as it was hoped that the socialist miners would be brought to their senses, without wide publicity of the methods employed.

The Caledonia Wins Out

The effect was lacking, however, and when the public realized the situation the little mine was flooded with orders. It was soon evident that the operators were beaten, the supply of one seventy-five coal was withdrawn, and the general retail price for the city trade was fixed at three dollars a ton, delivered, fifty cents under the Caledonia price. But the little socialist mine with only forty acres of coal had already gained many friends, and these continued to stand by it.

It was soon evident that the Caledonia mine was the key to the whole situation as only because of its competition was the low price conceded by the operators. If at any time through lack of support or any other cause the Caledonia had succumbed, the retail price would at once have advanced to the old figure. There were enough consumers in the city who realized this fact, and they kept the mine well supplied with orders. It thrived largely because of the difficulties that beset it.

True to its promise the Caledonia mine ran regularly, even through the bituminous coal strike of 1906, when every other mine in the State was closed down for several months. The owners of the mine worked it themselves, they had no labor troubles and were unaffected by labor disturbances outside. Every man was personally interested in the company, and eager to do his utmost for its success. They had the whole market to themselves, during the Summer, but the retail price of their product remained at three fifty a ton. The management was in the hands of strong, capable men.

The wage scale of the company was based directly on the Michigan scale, but was applied to "mine run" instead of to the screened coal, as applied by the operators. This was a decided advantage to the miners, and, moreover, was based on a thirty-six inch vein of coal, although in other mines it was based on a thirty inch vein. Day men received ten cents per diem above the price fixed by the Michigan scale. In 1906 the average wage paid in the Caledonia mine was two dollars and seventy-five cents a day.

Realizing that their original forty acres of land, hedged in on all sides by the coal leases long held by the old companies, would not hold out very long, the Caledonia people soon after secured five hundred acres of good coal land on the outskirts of the city, and set about to develop it by sinking a new shaft. All the profits of the first mine, above the operating expenses, and the proceeds of the new stock issued to new workers under their plan, were used in this development; and the company prospered to a remarkable degree. Later another site for extended operations was located on the West Side, in the vein which had produced the best coal in the valley, and it was fully developed.

The Operators Regain Their Advantage

In January, 1910, discouraged by the continual opposition of the operators, who had become stronger than ever, the Caledonia Company entered into an agreement whereby their entire output was contracted for, covering a period of years, by the Consolidated Coal Company. The expected in regard to the city trade at once happened, the retail price being advanced to four dollars a ton; and in January, 1911, it was raised to four fifty, at which figure it has since remained. The entire production of the socialist mines has since been marketed by the Consolidated people, who, strange as it may seem, are the very "masters" the socialist miners regard with such inveterate hatred.

Characteristics of Saginaw Coal

According to a report of the State Geologist, the coal veins in Michigan thicken and thin, divide and unite, and pinch out so rapidly, or are cut out by sandstone beds or by erosion so often, that the finding of a thick bed at one place forms no proof that the same bed or other beds may be found a few hundred feet away. On the other hand, the absence of coal at a particular spot does not preclude the possibility of finding workable coal at astonishing short distance away. The beds are often of such local extent that it is never safe to attempt an exploitation of coal deposits without a proving of the area by thorough drilling, and even this is not always reliable. Too often a coal bed gives way to black shale horizontally or vertically, or its place may be taken by sandstone. Cannel coal and bone coal are often observed as gradations from coal to black shale.

The Saginaw coal, one of the thickest and most extensive seams in the State, is probably the best vein in quality, though its coal is non-coking. Its thickness is often more than three feet and forms the base of most of the mining in this county. It is low in sulphur with a decidedly high heating power, and although leaning toward gas and coking types, the high content of moisture renders poor coke. Some of the later mined coals, especially of the Saginaw seam, running well above fifty per cent. in fixed carbon, with little or no sulphur, are much higher in grade. Saginaw coal in comparative tests with Hocking Valley, made by E. C. Fisher, of the Wickes Boiler Company, proved superior in several respects to that most famous steam coal. By tests the superior St. Charles coal, which comes from the same horizon, does not rank in efficiency with Pocahontas, but was better than several other coals, and nearly equal to the best Hocking Valley. Its good qualities make it a fine domestic coal and a steaming coal much in favor with railroads.

A Rider is a small coal seam found as a cap to the lower and thicker parts of the troughs of coal, and is formed by the settling and compacting made by the fifty or sixty feet of peaty material in the process of forming the main seam, in which shallow basin the rider was made. The middle or Saginaw Rider is a seam of considerable thickness, and possibly the East Side mines have their shafts in this coal. No bed of coal was ever continuous over the basin, as sandstone often replaced the beds, showing that the coal was cut out after it was formed.

Development of Mines

There are some peculiarities in the occurrence of coal which have retarded and will continue to more or less retard its future development. Sometimes the roof is a porous sandstone or is full of fissures, allowing free circulation of water, but usually the water comes from the coal itself or from the foot walls. Heavy beds of sand and gravel in the drifts carry a great

The next four pages contain a brief article written by DEW for The Witheridge Times and published in the Summer 1999 issue (Vol. 13, No. 2).

It tells the story of DEW's paternal grandparents, William Witheridge (b. 1856) and Mary Jane Allen (b. 1857), who emigrated from Wales to Sherrodsville, Ohio, in 1888, where William worked in a mine and farmed a few miles from town. In about 1898, the family moved to St. Charles, Michigan, where a new coal mine had opened.

After a brief trip to visit family and friends back in England and Wales, William and Mary Jane returned to the U.S., moving to Saginaw, Michigan, where William worked in a coal mine and became the treasurer of a worker-owned cooperative mine, the Caledonia Coal Company, which is described in the previous document in this folder.

The final paragraphs tell of the family's last big move, to California and elsewhere on the Pacific coast, where all of these Witheridges ended up, except for DEW's father, William Allen Witheridge (b. 1881), who remained in Saginaw.

WILLIAM WITHERIDGE AND MARY JANE ALLEN

A Life Profile

by David E. Witheridge

William Witheridge, my grandfather, was born on September 23, 1856, in the North Devon seacoast town of Combe Martin. He was the son of John Witheridge and Clara Blackmore, both of whose families had lived in that area for many generations. They were members of the Church of England.

One of the industries of Combe Martin was the mining of a lead ore containing a small percentage of silver. William's father John worked as a miner, but the operation of the mines was not very profitable, so they were closed from time to time. Because of the uncertainty of work in the mines, John Witheridge took his family across the Bristol Channel to Swansea, Wales, about 1871 (when William was about 15) in search of steady employment in the coal mines there.

After moving to Wales, William also became a miner, and he worked in various Rhondda Valley mines. On September 25, 1880, he married Mary Jane Allen in Sardis Chapel (Independent) in Pontypridd. Both were listed as residents of Waunyr Eirw, Llantrissant.

Mary Jane Allen was born in Swansea in January 13, 1857. She was the daughter of William Allen and Christiana Richards. Her father was a coal miner, who had moved to Wales from Cornwall. He became a machine man, a stock taker, and an iron furnace manager in various Welsh towns before becoming weighmaster for a coal mine in Aberaman. There he was killed in a mine accident in 1869, when Mary Jane was twelve years old.

Mary Jane's mother was a tailoress. After her husband's death, she moved a few miles away to Hirwain, where two of her sons were miners, taking her younger children with her. At that time they were members of the Church of England. Later the family moved to Porth in the Rhondda Valey, where the sons continued mining, and Mary Jane probably learned dressmaking with her mother.

When Mary Jane and William were married, she already had a two-year-old daughter, Elizabeth Jane Allen, born June 11 1878 in Maesydd Landore, Glamorgan. It is not clear whether or not William Witheridge was the father, but Elizabeth was always known as Elizabeth Jane Witheridge thereafter.

Four more children were born while they were living in Wales. William Allen, my father, was born January 23, 1881; Clara May was born May 25, 1883, and died December 23, 1883; and John Allen was born April 23, 1885. These three were born in Brittania, a small section of Porth. George Allen was born March 4, 1887, in Tylorstown, Glamorgan, also in the Rhondda Valley.

In 1888, when William was 32, he and Mary Jane were all packed to move their family to Australia, when they were persuaded by Mary Jane's brother, George Allen, to go instead to Sherrodsville, Ohio, in the U.S.A. George and his family had moved there in 1886, probably at the suggestion of Richard Jenkins, a mining superintendent, who had gone to America from Wales. George had written to the Witheridges and had said there would be good jobs and lots of work in Ohio.

Sherrodsville was a mining town. William Witheridge worked in a mine, but lived with his family on a farm a few miles out of town. At first they lived in a house in Sherrodsville. The owner of the farm, Mr. Toots, had just built a house at another location so he was glad to have the Witheridges rent the farm and take care of it. They raised crops and animals, such as cows and pigs, so they had their own milk and other food. William was used to such an arrangement, as he had gown up in Combe Martin, where most miners had their own little farming areas.

William and Mary Jane had three other children in Sherrodsville. Christina was born August 16, 1888; Edward Allen was born September 6, 1891; and Clara Mae was born May 18, 1894. All the children except Clara Mae, attended school in Sherrodsville. They probably attended the Methodist Church and Sunday School, as it was the only church in town.

About 1898 the Witheridges moved to St. Charles, Michigan, where a new coal mine had been opened. Friends in Sherrodsville wanted to go there, and they asked the Witheridges to go with them. They first moved in with the Adams family in a big house on a farm not far from town. Later they moved to a house downtown in St. Charles. They attended the First Baptist Church, and several of the children were baptized there.

In 1903 or 1903 the mine in which William was working went on strike, and he took advantage of the opportunity to take his wife and their youngest daughter, Clara Mae, on a visit back to England and Wales. While there, they urged George Chivers to return with them to America on a vacation. He was William's nephew, the son of William's sister Elizabeth (Betsy) Chivers. At first George refused; but Richard Jenkins, superintendent of the St. Charles mine, also arrived in Wales on a visit, and he convinced George to come and work in the mine. Later George's parents and his brother Edgar and sister Elizabeth also came to America.

About 1904, when William was 48, the Witheridges moved to Saginaw, Michigan. William worked in a mine there, and he became treasurer of a coal company owned by the miners, called the Caledonia Coal Company, Ltd. He held this position at least from 1907 to 1913. While he was working at the mine, someone set off an explosion early, and a piece of coal hit William in the head. It knocked him out and nearly killed him. From then on he never worked down in the mine again, but he worked at tipples (loading cars) and had other responsibilities at the mine. In Saginaw the Witheridges were active members of the First Baptist Church. For seven or eight years, probably after he no longer went down into the mine, William served as a janitor of the church. In 1917 Rev. Elijah R. Allen, Mary Jane's brother, became the minister of the First Baptist Church and served in that capacity for four years.

About 1908 their son John began travelling around the country singing with a vocal group, perhaps a sextet. By 1910 he had settled in California. Then in 1920 their son Edward went west, settling first in Portland, Oregon, and seven years later in Port Townsend, Washington. In 1921 their son George, a florist in Saginaw, decided to move his family to California; and William who was 65, and Mary Jane, who was 64, accompanied them. They all settled in the Los Angeles area, and George set up his florist shop in San Fernando. My father, William, was the only one of the children of William and Mary Jane who remained in Saginaw with his family.

Mary and Mary Jane lived in Inglewood, a suburb of Los Angeles, until William died August 9, 1935, at the age of 79, and Mary Jane died December 8, 1942, at the age of 85.

Editor's Note

The final document in folder 1.63j (see the next page) is Dad's 1942 letter to "Dear Folks" — exactly which folks is a mystery to me, unless one of them was his sister, Louise — about his exciting new job in Chicago: Assistant Minister of Hyde Park Baptist Church (now called Hyde Park Union Church) in the University of Chicago neighborhood on the South Side lakefront. This liberal congregation was perfect for him, opening doors to the university where he later received his master's degree at the Divinity School. Many of the church members were also U of C faculty, some exceedingly prominent in their fields.

My brother Jim and I were born while Dad and Mom were in Hyde Park. We lived in a small apartment across from Jackson Park on Stony Island Avenue, just north of the Midway (the "midway" of the 1893 World's Columbian Exhibition, the first world's fair with an area for amusements, hence that subsequent use of the word for other fairs), a pleasant walk from what is now the Obama Presidential Center. *

I found this letter in one of Dad's four files of miscellaneous documents pertaining to his early work on the Nemitz family and related German lines. There was no particular reason for it to be located there (in folder 2.1), except perhaps for the passing references in paragraph four to the town of Beecher, Illinois, home of some Nemitz descendants, where he and Mom intended to stay overnight on their way to and from Chicago.

So I moved it here, and I apologize for the poor copy (actually, two poor copies, one darker than the other). The original in the file was a carbon copy on a piece of tan copy paper, and it was 80 years old. Hope you can decipher most of it.

[June 22, 1942]

Dear Folks,

Would you like to know where we are going to be located next fall? Right in the heart of Chicago! That is, we are expecting a call to become assistant minister of the Hyde Park Baptist Church. The church council has voted unanimously, but we are now waiting for word as to the outcome of the general vote of the church, which was to have been taken yesterday. We do not doubt what the answer will be, however.

We have been trying to get a church in a college town, but this is much finer than anything we had expected, that we are simply thrilled. You no doubt know that this church is right on the edge of the campus of the University of Chicago, so a great many professors and students go there. Then, too, they are willing to have me take some courses there so that in about six years I shall be able to get my doctor's degree.

The only thing that has us worried is what kind of place we shall find in which to live—that is such a crowded area and rents are so high for decent places. So, as soon as we get the final word from the church, we want to come to Chicago, to see if we can locate an apartment that will be open by the first of September, the date when our work will begin. We do not know exactly when we shall come, but it will probably be within the next two weeks, for Dr. Schloerb, the pastor, leaves for his vacation after the Fourth.

What we shall probably do is to go directly to Beecher and spend the night with them. Then we can come in to Chicago the next morning and look. If you could put us up that night, we would be very happy; but I know you don't really have much room. We want to spend two days in Chicago, but the second night we expect to return to Beecher. Then, of course, the next morning we shall leave for Saginaw. What do you think of this? At least we can have a meal with you.

As I say, we don't know yet just when we are coming. If we come this week, it will be on Wednesday, for I have to be back here to preach on Sunday. If we come next week, it will no doubt be on Monday. We shall have to let you know as soon as we are sure. If this will not be convenient for you, please let us know at once.

We have a lot to tell you and are curious to see you again.

Lovingly yours,

Elizabeth and Dave

Dear Mrs. Adams:

You may remember that many years ago I wrote to your sister Susannah Argust trying to find out more about our Witheridge family background. At that time she said she sent my letter on to you for information you might have. I am a grandson of your Uncle William Witheridge, who married Mary Jane Allen.

The reason I am writing to you now is that my wife Elizabeth and I are coming to Britain this summer, and we certainly hope we can visit you in Cwmaman. I have been the Executive Director of the Greater Minneapolis Council of Churches for twenty-five years, and I've been granted a 12-week study leave. I'll be spending several weeks in university libraries, but for about a month from July 8 to August 7 we'll be renting a car and traveling through England, Scotland, and Wales conferring with the leaders of local councils of churches.

This will bring us to Wales between July 29 and August 3. We hope it will be possible to visit you some day during that period. Of course, we would not expect to stay with you, but would find other accommodations nearby.

We also hope to meet and talk with your brother Albert Edgar, who we assume still lives near you at 14 Pleasant View, Godream. If not, I hope you will give me his present address. I understand he has a daughter. Does she also live near Aberdare?

As you probably know, I also have relatives in Glamorgan on my grandmother's side (Allen): Mrs. Will Roberts in Ynysybwl and Mrs. William Monnelly in Myrthr Tydfil. We'll be visiting them, too.

Would you please give me the addresses of your two daughters and your son? We hope we can arrange to meet them on our trip and would like to write them in advance.

As you see, I'm assuming you are in good health, and I surely hope that is so. We look forward to hearing from you soon.

Your cousin,

David E. Witheridge

Dear John and Maurine:

Perhaps you have heard about me, John, from your sister Irene. I am your second cousin. Your grandmother, Susanna Adams, was a sister of my grandfather, William Witheridge, who left Wales for America with his wife and children about 1888.

My wife Elizabeth and I have taken two very enjoyable trips to Britain – the first in 1976 and the second in 1980. Each time we visited Irene and Neville in Birmingham and had a marvelous time. Of course, we met many other relatives, too.

On July 16th Elizabeth and I are planning to leave on a 3-week trip east. We'll be stopping mainly in Pennsylvania, Maryland, and New England. On the way back we'll be coming through Ontario and across into Michigan at Sarnia.

It occurred to us that this would be a wonderful chance to meet you and your family, if you expect to be home at that time. The way it looks now, we would arrive in Kincardine Sunday afternoon, August 1st. We would probably be staying in or near Toronto the previous night. If you do not have room for overnight guests, we'd appreciate your suggesting a suitable motel for us to stay in.

We hope you will be home at that time, and we look forward to hearing from you before July 16th.

Yours sincerely,
David E. Witheridge

Dear Elizabeth & Dave.

Your letter arrived Yesterday. I'm delighted to hear from you and just cant wait to see you. We have room for you of course, but I should tell you now so that you can think about it. every Saturday night throout July & August our little town attracts a lot of tourists with its pipe & drum band. Its a traditional meeting place of the townsfolk after the labours of the week. its nothing special really we follow our band up thro town and back to the park where they play in the band shell for some time, but I guess it must be quaint, as the tourist come from all over north America to witness the event, also on the Sunday evening there is a public Singalong at the beach, another attraction, So if you would just think about that, and decided you would like to see it I think you would enjoy it.

The best route from Toronto is to take the "Air port Road" to Mono Mills turn left onto Hwy # 9 and it brings you right into Kincardine it'll be a nice restfull drive thro rural Canada for you after the long trip you'll have done from Toronto down town to Kincardine is approx 140 miles.

Have a wonderfull trip drive Saffly and see lots. We really look forward to seeing you.

We had a trip to wales in March april this year. my Mother passed away the first week, and Uncle Edgar Adams who was my father's youngest Brother and also the last of that generation passed on two weeks later. At least I did see them first So it helped to ease the pain.

I'll close now with love to you from John Maureen & 3 girls

7/16/82

Dear John & Maureen,

We were very glad to hear from you and to know that you will be home on Aug. 1. We shall enjoy staying with you that night.

The pipe and drum band celebration sounds very interesting, and we wish we could be there for Saturday, but we can't. In fact, it will be about 6:00 p.m. before we can get there on Sunday. We can only get to Belleville on Saturday because of the distance from Vermont. If we can work in part of the singalong at the beach, that would be fun.

We have to leave Monday morning, as we are due in Michigan on Monday afternoon.

We're glad you had a trip back to Wales though we were sorry to hear that your mother had died, John, and also your uncle Edgar. We met him when were in Wales but we didn't get to meet your mother, as she was out of town.

Looking forward to Aug. 1st! Sincerely,

Dan & Elizabeth

TEDDY'S BEAR

by Luanne Fellows

Did you ever wonder where the first Teddy Bear came from? And why the name "Teddy?" It all started in 1902 when the 26th President of the United States decided to go bear hunting.

Four experienced hunters had been searching for bear signs for hours in the thick Mississippi woodland. But now they hoped they would soon have a healthy black bear cornered for the President, Theodore (Teddy) Roosevelt. Their slate-colored hounds had detected the scent of bear in the underbrush and were straining at the ends of their ropes.

"Turn 'em loose! Fresh track!" shouted the leader, a tall, wiry man.

More than 25 bear hounds went howling and yelping into the thick underbrush. The hunt was on!

The hounds and bear had no trouble racing through the tangled grasses and prickly bushes, or dodging the heavy Spanish moss that hung down from the limbs of giant hardwoods and knotty cypress trees. An icy morning rain had left the November air crystal clear and cold. Suddenly, the bear came into view and the hounds yelped excitedly as they closed in. They were even noisier as the bear spun around, frantically lashed out at them, and turned to run again. These courageous dogs had somehow to trap the unpredictable bear and keep him at bay until the hunters arrived.

The hunters whooped and hollered as they swiftly trailed the hounds, dodging honeysuckle, buckvine, and fallen limbs. After a mile or so they slowed. Cautiously, they approached a clearing.

The lean black bear had chosen to turn and fight near a shallow waterhole. The dogs had him trapped against a fallen cypress tree.

"That's sure a poor excuse for a bear," breathed the leader of the hunting party. "He's lame and half-blind! It's a wonder he made it this far. He'll make an easy shot, though. Better go fetch Teddy."

Just then there was an ear-piercing yelp. A careless young dog had received a fatal blow on the head from the frantic bear.

Behind the tiring bear an agile hunter crept slowly along the fallen cypress tree. With the butt of his gun he hit the exhausted bear on the head. The stunned bear was quickly roped and tied to a tree.

While the hunters waited for Teddy Roosevelt, they tied the dogs and rewarded them with praise. One of the younger men fumbled with his tobacco and asked, "What's the President doin' in Mississippi anyway?"

"He's figurin' out just where Mississippi ends and where Louisiana starts. He's going to draw the line on the map for us," replied the leader. "Here he comes now."

Rough Rider Roosevelt stopped dead in his tracks as he entered the clearing. He could not believe his eyes! These men really expected him to shoot a lame, half-blind bear which was tied to a tree? He had hunted wild animals on three continents and had faced stampeding buffalo! No sportsman would be forgiven for making such a shot as this, and he, the President, was every inch a sportsman. He turned away in disgust.

The bear hunt had come to an unexciting end but Clifford Berryman, a famous political cartoonist, heard about it. Within days he had a cartoon published in a Washington newspaper showing Rough Rider Roosevelt "drawing the line in Mississippi." The cartoon showed Teddy refusing to shoot a shivering, teary-eyed bear cub.

Morris Michtom, a candy store owner, saw the cartoon. He designed a furry toy bear with shoe-button eyes. Soon three little bears sat in his Brooklyn, New York, store window with a copy of the cartoon. A little sign read "Teddy's Bears."

So many people wanted to buy one of the stuffed bears that Michtom's wife, Rose, was kept sewing steadily. Mr. Michtom soon had permission from Teddy Roosevelt to call the toys Teddy Bears. The President didn't think his name would mean much to toy companies, but within a year, there was a Teddy Bear boom. Teddy Bear had been born and was growing strong.

That was over 80 years ago. Adults and children still love Teddy Bears. Many keep them as friends for life. True loves of Teddy Bears have taken their bears with them on airplanes, and some have rushed into burning buildings to rescue them. Soldiers have carried their bears with them into combat. One Teddy was even carried to the top of a mountain by an Italian Alpine climber.

James Ownby, a journalist and bear lover, was so impressed by how much bears mean to people that he started a club for arctophiles (friends of bears). There are over 7,000 Good Bears in his Good Bears of the World organization. These Good Bears really believe in Teddy Bear power. They donate Teddy Bears to just about anyone who needs a bear hug — especially to children and elderly people in hospitals and institutions. Mr. Ownby, who calls himself Bearo #1, thinks Teddys are almost supernatural. They give love and comfort and are great listeners. People seem to recover more quickly when they feel this special love.

To keep all his Good Bears in touch, Mr. Ownby and his Hawaiian bears publish Bear Tracks four times a year. He has plans for a Teddy Bear Museum and wants 1985 to be a worldwide celebration — the Year of the Teddy Bear. So far, governors of 18 states have proclaimed October 27th, Teddy Roosevelt's birthday, as Good Bear Day. There may soon even be a monument at Smedes Camp where Roosevelt refused to shoot the bear. The monument will say, "Teddy Bear Slept Here."

Teddy Bears in America have come a long way since that wild bear hunt in 1902. They come in all sizes and colors and offer lots of love and friendship. Thanks to the Good Bears of the World, children in hospitals have something to hug while they're sick and even after they go home. There may soon be several museums and even a holiday honoring Teddy Roosevelt and Teddy Bears. Why don't you help spread the word? Enter into the world of love and understanding and give someone you love a Teddy Bear!

David,

Forgot to ask you, in my last letter, if you knew who these people are/were. These funeral "programs" were among my mother's things. These names don't ring any bells with me.

Enjoyed a prolonged January thaw – and now it is bone chilling cold again – but since Spring is becoming a real possibility – I mean I can stand on my head, if necessary, for 7-8 weeks! I am looking forward to some green grass and warm breezes!

Regards to you – Jo

Dear David and Elizabeth,

David Ash Witheridge (b. 1986)

I'm sending, under separate cover, a gift for your grandchild. I was under the impression the baby was due in April! I hope the baby is doing well, and Virginia is leveling out with her b.p.

Thank you for your letter. When one comes from you I save it until I have time to sit and enjoy it with a cup of coffee by the fire - they are always interesting and enjoyable.

Bruce was interested in your mention of Marsh Pump. He worked at Demmer Tool and Die, formerly the home of Detroit Grey Iron Foundry, close to Marsh Pump. It was also close by Lansing Tool and Die where my father worked for many years. Bruce headed (started) up the Special Machinery division of Demmer's - was there until the mid 60's.

I was very interested in the article you sent and of Tom's involvement. I have another friend who has recently moved to Chicago, doing work of this sort. I am not sure what she is doing exactly, but will find out! Her name is Virginia Beattie, a nun (with a loose connection to with her order in Adrian) I think that is Dominican. In any event I am sending her a copy of the article.

Thank you for sharing Jim's life with me. It is something to be proud of - he must have had much determination to be cured of this unfortunate disease. Another friend of mine, Toni Hetherington, is a counselor in Insight, a drug abuse live in, 28 day program. She says that she meets the most wonderful people through connections there – they seem to have a more sensitive nature than the ordinary person. Do you find this so?

Since my other Peoples' Church bulletins were of some interest to you I am sending along our Lenten programs. This is the first year for a publication like this - Hope it generates some revenue!

My regards and love to you both. I am looking forward to one day meeting you both. Bruce has an Uncle in Fairmont - Sounds like we could plan a trip and see everyone!

Stay well, avoid the flu!

LENTEN BOOKLET

THE LENTEN SEASON IN THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH IS A TRADITIONAL TIME OF RENEWAL WHICH COINCIDES WITH THE SEASONAL RENEWAL OF THE EARTH. THE TERM "LENT" IS A SHORTENED FORM OF "LENGTHENING OF DAYS." IN THE PRE-INDUSTRIAL WORLD, CULTURES WERE DEPENDENT UPON THE SEASONAL AGRICULTURAL CYCLES TO MAINTAIN THEIR EXISTENCE. THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH MADE USE OF THESE CYCLES IN ITS NURTURING OF FAITH. AS THE SPRINGTIME DAYS LENGTHENED ENOUGH FOR PLOWING AND PLANTING, SO THE CHURCH LENGTHENED ITS EMPHASIS PREPARING FOR ITS LORD'S RESURRECTION. JUST AS THE PHASES OF THE SPRINGTIME MOON DECIDED PLANTING SCHEDULES, SO THE JUDEO-CHRISTIAN TRADITIONS MARKED ITS PASSOVER AND EASTER IN A SIMILIAR MANNER.
AS THE SOWER PREPARED THE SOIL FOR THE SEED, SO THE CHRISTIAN PREPARED THE SOUL FOR RECOUNTING THE RESURRECTION OF JESUS CHRIST.

THE LENTEN SEASON IS A TRADITIONAL TIME OF RENEWAL BY STUDY, WORSHIP, AND OFFERING. THE PEOPLES CHURCH OFFERS THIS RENEWAL FOR YOU IN THIS YEAR OF OUR LORD, 1986, BEGINNING WITH ASH WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 12, AND CONTINUING THROUGH EASTER, MARCH 30.

THIS LENTEN BOOKLET BRINGS TOGETHER IN ONE FORM, SIX WEEKS OF OPPORTUNITIES FOR RENEWAL. THESE ARE MAILED TO EACH FAMILY. THEY ARE ALSO AVAILABLE IN THE PEWS OF THE CHURCH. FOR THOSE WHO ARE HOMEBOUND, CASSETTE TAPES OF THE SUNDAY SERVICES ARE AVAILABLE. PLEASE CALL THE CHURCH OFFICE.

Dear Jo & Bruce,

Just a short note to thank you for the lovely and most exquisite blanket you sent for Tom's and Virginia's baby. It was entirely unexpected, of course, and a very warm and thoughtful thing to do. We assume that you knitted it yourself, Jo; but whoever did, it represents many hours of loving work. We haven't sent it yet, but have mentioned it in a letter and in a recent phone conversation. They were thrilled and very grateful. We'll send it soon with some other things we have from Tom's and Jim's baby days.

I'm sorry, however, that I misled you into thinking the baby had already come. You were right in your impression that the baby is due in April – toward the end of April, in fact. When I said the baby was doing well, I was really reporting on all the tests and ultra-sound pictures they keep taking nowadays, as well as his frequent kicks and other movements. I think I may have told you at Christmas time that they had used the amniocentesis test they give to women over 35 now, and found that the baby is perfectly normal and is a boy. That's probably why I expressed myself as I did.

Just two days ago Tom called and said Virginia's blood pressure had not dropped as the doctor had hoped, so he had her put in the hospital for closer monitoring and more complete rest. Tom thinks they may even keep Virginia there until delivery, though that will depend on how she responds.

Now I must close. Thank you again more than we can say.

Love,

David & Elizabeth

4/1/86

Dear Jo + Bruce,

We have some sad news to convey to you this time. Tom and Virginia's baby arrived pre-maturely and only lived 18 days. When I last wrote to you, they had put Virginia into the hospital because of her high blood pressure. This developed into a very serious syndrome of symptoms called pre-eclampsia. If this does not subside, but progresses into the real eclampsia, the mother's life is endangered, and the baby is nearly always stillborn.

As the doctors saw this approaching, they decided to take the baby by Caesarean section, which they did on February 25. They named him David Ash Witheridge (Ash is one of Virginia's family names). He was only seven months along and only weighed 2 lbs., 10 oz. He immediately had to be put on a respirator, and his lungs never did develop enough that he could be removed from it. Virginia recovered slowly but surely from her serious symptoms, but little David had a recurring series of setbacks, so that he died on March 15.

Tom stayed close to Virginia and the baby at the hospital, and he called us every day. It was a period of great stress for them and for all of us, of course. After a day or two they moved the baby to Children's Memorial Hospital where they bring babies from all over the country, so we know he had the very best care available.

When it was over, Tom and Virginia went away for a short trip alone and out of touch with everyone for several days. Now they are home and getting back to their work and many responsibilities. Virginia is starting out on half-time, but fortunately her blood pressure is where it should be most of the time, and she is gradually feeling better.

Since this experience, we have heard of a number of others who have had pre-eclampsia and have later gone on to have one or more children with no problem at all. The doctors have encouraged Virginia to try again, so we are looking forward to the future with hope.

We are sending the enclosed memorial folder because we thought you would like to see the lovely quotation Virginia selected, which we think is very appropriate. We're glad we had not sent your beautiful blanket before David was born, but we'll see that they have it to put with the other things they will be keeping for the next time. Thank you again for your loving concern.

Spring has definitely arrived. We have had two record-breaking days in the low eighties, and this should lift all of our spirits. We hope you have all been having happier times.

With all our love,

David & Elizabeth

David and Elizabeth,

I have delayed writing to you- I have no words to express my sadness for you all. Thank you for sending me the news and for telling me about it. May God be with you all during the difficult days you are sure to have.

I'm glad, too, that you didn't send the blanket I knitted. Please do with it what you like. I enjoyed making it and one day I'm sure some little one will be warmed by it.

I will write more later. Please know my thoughts are with you two- and all of your family at this sad time of your lives.

God bless you all,

Joan Bruce

Dear Jo and Bruce,

You're probably wondering what's been going on in our household, because you haven't heard from us for some time. Things have settled down, both with us and with Tom and Virginia, and fortunately we have all been very busy. As you know, both Tom and Virginia are working hard on their Ph.D.'s, so they've had much catching up to do after their ordeal.

Thank you very much for your kind note about the baby. Elizabeth and I are looking forward to seeing Tom and Virginia, but we've delayed going to Chicago until they're not so busy. Now we've set our trip for the weekend of July 25-28. At that time we'll also be taking your lovely knitted blanket to them.

Our own lives have also been very busy this spring. For one thing, we've been plagued with unexpected problems with our plumbing. First, a stretch of 75-year-old iron cold water pipe in the basement sprang a leak one Friday night. (Such accidents always seem to happen to us on weekends.) When we finally got a plumber over to make emergency repairs, it developed into a bigger job than we had expected. In the process we discovered another pipe on the other side of the basement that was in even worse shape than the first one. So we had the plumber come back in a few days and replace it, too. Now everything is copper, except the risers to the bathroom on the secong floor. Since these are concealed in a wall, we hope they remain intact.

Because the first leak wasn't discovered until morning, water standing on the basement floor loosened some of the tiles. These were so old they couldn't be repaired, so the whole floor of the recreation room had to be replaced. This job was just completed two days ago, and now everything has to be moved back in.

A few weeks after the pipe replacement job, the drain from the tub in the second floor bathroom started to leak through to the ceiling of the first floor hall. The plumber had to rip a hole in the plaster ceiling to replace the drain. Now we are waiting for the plasterer to schedule the repair job, and after that there will be a decorating job, the extent of which we are unable to predict at this point.

The other time-consuming responsibility of spring is yard work. It's nothing like taking care of a farm, even a small one, but it does have to be done in conformity with the inexorable timetable of nature. My first love in the yard is a rose garden of 33 bushes. Right now they are in the midst of their first and most magnificent blooming of the season, and they are about as glorious as they have ever been. However, I say that roses are a "high energy input" flower, because of the work involved in preparing the bushes for winter, uncovering and pruning in the spring, and regular spraying, fertilizing, watering, and pruning through the growing season. But I guess the results are worth all the work.

In addition, we have had extra work this spring in terms of planting and transplanting a number of shrubs, severely pruning a honeysuckle hedge that appears to be 75 years old, and planting Elizabeth's "little garden" primarily with annuals, but increasingly with perennials. I occasionally say we really need a full-time gardener, and I really don't aspire to be one! We hope some day the two of you will be visiting Bruce's uncle in Fairmont and will be able to visit us and see our house and garden. (We actually have two guest rooms.) That leads me to say that the next time we come to Michigan we hope to visit you, too.

The process of uniting our two congregations is progressing well. The Review Committee presented its preliminary draft of a Plan of Union to the Session of Grace Presbyterian and the Church Council of Trinity Baptist, and both bodies unanimously approved it in principle. On June 22 it goes to a joint meeting of the two congregations for consideration. I happen to be the moderator of Trinity this year. If they both approve, we'll take it to the Presbytery and the Baptist area staff for their response before working on the final documents.

Since we haven't heard from you lately, we're wondering how your genealogical efforts are progressing. Like me, you may have times when you have to put such work aside for a while.

I've been concentrating on my German ancestry lately. I may have mentioned that my mother's parents were both born in Germany. But it was in a part of Germany that is now in Poland, so most of the records have been displaced, if not destroyed. I've been trying to locate them for years. Through an amazing index of 18,000,000 persons displaced from eastern areas formerly belonging to Germany, I got the name of a woman born in the same city where my grandfather lived and whose maiden name was the same as his--Hewitz. We've written back and forth twice, but she doesn't have any record of her ancestry back of her parents. Everything was confiscated by the Poles and Russians when the Germans were evacuated on very short notice. Now she has just discovered one of her cousins who has lived near Chicago over thirty years, so I have written to him. He doesn't know much about his family, but Elizabeth and I plan to visit him and his wife when we go to Chicago in July.

I've also discovered a man in Bay City--Ronald Putz--who is of German ancestry, fluent in the German language, and interested in genealogy. His grandfather came to Bay City from a town not far from the one where my grandfather lived in Germany. I wrote and told him about my birth and family background in Bay City, including the fact that my grandfather's two sisters and their families stayed on there after Grandfather left. Come to find out, Mr. Putz knows a lot about the German families of Bay City and has known many of my relatives over the years. He called two of my second cousins there, who until now were only names to me on my record sheets, and talked to them about my concdrns. They are both willing to help, and I know they will have family information I am lacking. I'll be writing to both of them as soon as I get a chance.

I've also written to a man who was born in the part of Germany my grandparents came from and now lives in Minnesota. So far I haven't heard from him, but he may prove helpful in my search and in my understanding of that area.

Thank you again for your kind thoughts and prayers at the time of our tragedy. We'll be looking forward to hearing from you in the near future.

Love,

10 August 1986

Dear David and Elizabeth,

Have just re-read the bulk of our correspondence over the past year - you have become a very important part of my life and I feel like we know each other. I find it quite easy to write, when I find the time!, and sometimes say more to the persons I correspond with than with those I see every day. Do you find this so? In any event, just one year ago right now (7 Aug) was your first post card to me - and I am forever grateful.

I did get just too busy with family things and got away from my genealogical search for awhile. Now I am back into it but mostly on Bruce's side. I have written to the Rector of Hindley about the Redburns, as you suggested, and to a Mr. T.P. Farmer, Bru-Lands, Sherborne, Dorset, England who is with the Somerset and Doreset F.H.S. and also to the Lancashire F.H. & Heraldry Society in Lancashire plus the Society of Genealogists in London. I have heard only from the latter who informed me that any search would start with one day's charge of $108.00. I may pursue this at a later time.

The search for Bruce's relatives takes a new twist every few days! There is so much in the library about his heritage as, on his father's side, his great-great grandfather, Edward Coke Potter, came to Michigan in the mid-1800's. Edward Coke Potter's great-great grandfather, Thomas Hazard, had a son, George (died 1743) who married Penelope Arnold, the grand-daughter of Governor Benedict Arnold and Damaris Wescott Arnold. He is also the ancestor of THE Benedict Arnold somewhere down the line. In any event the grandfather of Governor Benedict Arnold, Thomas, married Alice (Alce) Gully, bap. 29 SEP 1553 in Northover, Somersetshire. From there it goes as on the sheets I am enclosing - so you can imagine our surprise and delight at Bruce's connection with Wales! The wealth of information in the library about families such as the Potters and the Hazards and the Arnolds (all three of which had members as signers of the original Rhode Island Compact) is overwhelming and I am getting more information than I can easily handle. Each day I go in at noon and I can get "lost" in there - sometimes emerging after a couple of hours, and rushing back to work to stay until 6:00 or so. In any event, Bruce's family search is going well, but only in regard to his father's mother's side. The rest of the family will have to wait for a little while. His mother's ancestors are from Denmark and names come to a halt with his grandfather, as they do in mine on my father's side.

Your comment in one of your letters about a numbering system for blood relatives is an interesting one. I would like to hear more about that one day. I am putting just names, family numbers and genealogical numbers into my computer so that I can sort by any one of those - mostly as just an index for my family sheets as I have so many names on Bruce's side that are unfamiliar. That way when I run into something that sounds familiar I can look in my index, find the family number, locate the family sheet and proceed. It has proved helpful already, and I don't even have it finished. Another problem with his is the overwhelming amount of names!

Since I am at the library almost every day please ask if you need any information. I would be overjoyed to be able to supply you with any information they have that would help.

I am enclosing a few pictures - taken at our family reunion in July. The one with all of us (about 75) is sent only so you can see the whole group at once! Needless to say it is difficult, if not impossible, to give a name to all of them. Our group is to the right, with Annette in a red cap. She did not get into all of the pictures, but we asked if she wanted to join us, and she did. She enjoys our large family and all of the get-togethers as her family is small, her mother being from Oslo, Norway, with very few (if any) relatives in the US. Her father is from Philadelphia and so there are not many of them here - just she and her two unmarried brothers. She joins us at all of our birthday parties - of which we have had four in recent weeks. Bruce's mother turned 81 on July 11 and we had a big party for her, Eric turned 26 on the 19th of July, Annette had a party here on the 5th of August and Luanne and her family were here for her birthday just this weekend. Busy times. The other pictures are of just the "Aldriches" with Annette joining us, and of my brothers and sisters, all except Elaine and her husband, Clarence.

This next week will also be a busy one as our daughter Fadra has to have surgery. She has been having some problems, spent 6 days in the hospital several weeks ago, now has to have some ovarian tumors removed. I am so glad that Bruce's mother is with us as she is excellent with the children and I will be able to work a few hours at a time anyway. We will be shuttling back and forth, so I don't plan to accomplish much next week or in subsequent weeks for that matter. I think she may need help for some time with two small children. I hope Virginia and Tom are doing well, know that you visited them, or at least planned to, a few weeks ago. They have been through a lot, but must be very special people and mean a lot to you. My best to them.

Bruce and I had a problem, not nearly so extensive as yours, with the drainage around our house. We have had to dig out the front bushes, actually pulled them out with the tractor, then dug down 4-5 feet in some places to get to the drainage tile that surrounds our house and clear out the clogs. We have had no trouble for over 25 years, so really can't complain. The fill was mostly sand, too, so it was easy digging, but any digging is a muscle stretching activity, and needless to say we are both sore! It is not completely done as yet, but most of it is and we are glad it was not more extensive than it was. I had to almost laugh at the chain of events that happened to you! Bet it was not funny on your end, however!

Did I ever mention to you that I talked to Dr. and Mrs. Fischbach and they remember you well - talked about "exchanging" books between Julius and Elizabeth. Julius has not been well, was hospitalized for a time. I have not had any news about him in a while.

How is the merger going with Grace Presbyterian? We are - the Disciples, that is - starting out on a new venture come September. We are going to have a "shared staff" position - and our associate, Jim Fraley, will be filling the position. He will have his office in our building, but will be taking over some of the work of the United Church of Christ Conference, whose judicatory office for Michigan is in East Lansing. Also, Earle Van Slyck, our Regional Minister, resigned under pressure on June 30, so guess who will be doing most of the running of the Regional Office!! I have been there so many years (since 1974) that I do not have much problem with that - if it does not go on for too long. We are looking for an interim Regional Minister - want a job?

Back to business - do you happen to know what software the relative of Elizabeth is using for his record keeping? Bruce and I are thinking quite seriously of investing in a computer of our own, and one thing I would like to do is to put all of this information on it. I would like anyone's opinion, however, before we invest in any software. Actually, any data base software would be adaptable, but if there is something especially for the purpose I would like to hear about it.

How is your German ancestry search coming along? I was amazed at your chance finding of a name of a person born in the same town as your grandfather. I am amazed at our finding so many of Bruce's relatives born in either Devon or Somerset - and some, on his mother's side, in Cornwall. I know that the British Isles are not very big, but to find so many of our relatives in the south-west section is remarkable.

I am enclosing a portion of a map that will show you what is going on around our secion of land here in East Lansing. We have a development that has houses in the half-million dollar range going in to the southwest of us. the area of There are already several houses built - magnificent structures of which I would not like even one! - and then to the north they are going to put in a variety of housing and recreation areas. Our property is outlined in blue - so you can see we are sitting on some property that could prove to be very much in demand in a few years. It will be interesting to watch and, perhaps, develop. I am very happy for the many years we have had of privacy and open fields for the children - but progress knocks and I think we may have to answer! Taxes, for one, are getting out of hand. I will keep you informed!

You also mentioned, in one letter, your roses. You must be a much better gardener than I - I, too, tried roses, but did not have them in the right spot for one and did not give them enough care for two! I am now doing a little work in my rocky area on the north side of our patio - just a few rocks that needed clearing out and re-planting. I really do love to work outside, but do not find there is enough time to do all that needs to be done.

It is Sunday afternoon - and I should bring this to a close as I need to get ready for the coming week. I am feeling quite a lot of pressure at work because of our personnel situation and with Fadra's surgery it will complicate things. We are also losing our camp manager after 7 years, and that will be a huge positon to fill come September 1!

My very best to you and yours. I hope your summer is going well. I am looking forward to a little cooler weather!

Love and regards,

Jo

Refer to New England History and genealogical register—Vol. 33, p. 432.

"She was a Welsh woman of the pure blood, therefore delicately mannered." —Geo. Meredith.

One of the most remarkable pedigrees on record is that of William Arnold, which traces his line back some eighteen generations to one of the Kings of Wales. "If blood tells," as we must believe, this first Arnold, who, with his wife and family, arrived in New England, June 24, 1635, must have been as true a gentleman as ever set foot on the shores of the New World. He had sailed from Dartmouth, May the 1st, and for nearly two months had been buffeted by the seas. His first home was at Hingham, in Massachusetts, but he did not stay there long, for one year later we find him with his family established at Providence, R. I., and next at Pawtuxet. Appleton, in his cyclopedia, says: "In 1636, William Arnold, with Roger Williams, was one of the 54 proprietor, in the first settlement of Rhode Island. He is described also as one of the 13 original proprietors of Providence plantation, or, as Austin puts it, one of the 13 original owners of Rhode Island. In 1661 he was commissioner. I have not space to tell of the numerous positions he held in the colony, but must hasten on to his son Benedict, who was the first Goverdor of Rhode Island, and according to 'American Ancestry,' was accounted the wealthiest man in the State. His farm took in a section of the most valuable part of the present town of Newport, the old 'Stone Mill,' for which scientists have tried in vain to fix a date and purpose, being on part of it. A disgrace to the State is his present resting place. In a quadrangle made by the Auction Rooms of Newport, an antique shop and a small church, one of the oldest in the town, now used as a storeroom in connectoin with the shop, lies the body of the first Governor of Rhode Island, under a stone bearing a coat of arms a foot and a half in diameter. Nearby lie the stones of five other colonists, one with an equally imposing coat of arms, a certain Pelham, all mutely crying out to Heaven for vengeance on so great a disrespect. To get to this pathetic spot I was obliged to pass through a succession of storerooms filled with furniture, and when I found this grave of my ancestor, the stone so worn away that the sun and rain alike could beat within, empty boxes and bales on every side, I could not believe my eyes that read the name, Gov. Benedict Arnold, or my ears when my conductor informed me we were standing on sacred ground, and added placidly that she wished 'they would do something about it, as it was very inconvenient.' "

Gov. Arnold's son Oliver lived at Canonicut, and was one of the first citizens of the town, holding several important offices, among which was that of Deputy, 1682.

Dear David,

Just a note - my time is rather limited these days - daughter Sadra is having problems and has been in the hospital twice in the past weeks. Her children, 2 and 4, have been staying a lot with us. Fun, but tiring and not much else gets done! I haven't been to the library in weeks - I think I am having withdrawal symptoms!

I was looking at a map I picked up at AAA and discovered a Witheridge in Devon. I can't believe you are not aware of it - but you hadn't mentioned it. None of my other (older) maps have it - is there a story here?

Since writing you last we have made the connection with the Aldrich side/line on Bruce's ancestors. He knew his great-great grandfather's name and wife's name - there it ended. One day, in the library, the newer books - in another section - contained a volume 5 on the George Aldrich Geneology (I had looked at the other 4, older volumes earlier) and lo and behold - a connection! So, back to the early 1600's to Mendon, Mass in just a few pages! I was so excited I had goose bumps!

I hope you are both well and looking forward to a skiing winter. I am looking forward to some inactivity! (relatively speaking)

Fond regards, Jo

Dear Jo,

I hope this note paper will give you a little pleasure. I'm sorry to be so late in answering your two letters, but like you, we have been extremely busy. This cannot be a complete answer to your letters, but I did want to tell you a little about the Town of Witheridge.

[Special note paper from the town of Witheridge, Devon]

Many years ago when I heard about Witheridge, I wrote to the rector of the church and asked if he would investigate the parish register for Witheridge entries. He very kindly replied and said he had checked (perhaps even before I had written) and found that there had never been a Witheridge baptism, marriage, or burial recorded since the beginning of the parish register a reasonable price, I'm going to send you some as a gift as soon as I can get to it.

As I said, I'll have to answer your other letter later. Now I must close.

Love,

David + Elizabeth

in the 1500's.

However, the family name of Witheridge obviously comes from a locality and not from an occupation or a personal characteristic, so it is assumed that all the Witheridges stem back to that town, even though they had left before 1500. So far, all the Witheridges I have discovered do come originally from Devon.

On our trip to Britain in 1976 we visited Witheridge with a great sense of finding one of our roots. Inside the lovely church we found this note paper on the literature table and bought the few packages there. By the time we returned in 1980 our supply was practically gone, so we phoned ahead from Exeter and asked the rector if we could get some more. He wasn't sure, but when we arrived he had found some and also invited us in for tea with him and his wife.

A few years later a minister friend of ours (a woman) retired and spent a year in a church not far from Witheridge. We wrote and asked if she would check with the rector to see if by any chance they still had some note paper. She replied that their supply was absolutely exhausted and that they had no plans to get more.

When your letter arrived, I decided to write to you on this paper, but discovered from Elizabeth that we only had a few sheets left, so I took a copy to a local printer and had some made. We think he did a beautiful job, since we had to make quite a few to get

Dear Jo,

Here at long last are the Witheridge notes I promised to send. I hope you enjoy using them.

We have just had a very happy Thanksgiving weekend with Tom and Virginia here from Chicago. A few weeks ago Tom finished all the requirements for his Ph.D., and Virginia expects to complete hers in the spring.

Except for bad colds a few weeks ago, our health has been reasonably good, and we hope the same for you and your family.

Love,

Dave

David and Elizabeth,

The note paper is really appreciated – I have sent one to David Chivers – the rest will be for special people and times. Thank you!

Hope this finds you well and happy, and enjoying this lovely season of the year. Will write later –

Thinking of you especially when Christmas is here
and wishing you happiness always.

Dear David and Elizabeth

Feel like I've been out of touch - not just with you, with all the people I write to. My life goes off in about 10 directions after Christmas and February decends like a cloud, seems to obscure my good intentions. March is the month I wait for - even if the winds blow and the snow flies Spring is just around the corner when March 1 arrives.

Have many things going on - but do want to know how you folks are and how life is treating you. I have been doing some genealogy searches, but haven't had much luck. The "Reaburn" book proved to be not much, but the records of Lancaster - (Hinkley) have much information - some I had, some I didn't.

The wedding of son Ray and sweet Annette is now scheduled for Oct. 17th, in 2/ Peoples Church, reception on Campus. My boss, Jim Fraley, Associate Regional Minister of the Christian Church (Disciples) will perform the ceremony - Roy knows him and likes him. The plans for the affair are going along nicely.

Daughter Padra is expecting 3rd child in early July. She's doing well, feeling pretty good.

Sad news - brother George is gravely ill. He became ill just before Christmas, they discovered he has an inoperable tumor on the pancreas. They say his time could be short, but who can tell. He is alone in Arizona, ~~and~~ so my sister Jean and husband have spent 3+ weeks taking care of him. He is up and around right now. Jean, herself, is going to have a caterac removed this month.

We've had a mild winter, except for a week of cold weather. It was 3/1 42° yesterday – thawing again today.

Snow has come – and mostly gone – so can't complain about that!

Bruce's mom is tired of Florida.
She will, undoubtedly, be moving up here this year for good. She will be 82 in July.

My hand work these days is a pillow for grand son Matthew to carry down the aisle with the rings – at the Wedding! It is a combination cross stitch (22 to an inch!) and a border, about 1½" of hardanger. Since Annette's mom is from Norway she really thinks it is something. I have to use a magnifying glass, the work is so fine. I've been working on it for weeks!

Saturday eve 3/7

Back again – spent the week battling a sore throat and cold. That's what warm weather in February usually brings. Andra's children have had it, too, and Tara in Port Huron. I try to mail the children things when they are ill — they do enjoy going to their mail boxes and find a surprise. Some times it is as simple as a box of licorice — or a couple of pages to color.

Enjoying our dog — he is now 8 months old and weighs about 70 lbs. He has lots of bad habits to break — plus he is still a pup — but he needs work! He is a beauty, however.

Feel this letter is only touching high spots — but better ~~that~~ than nothing, I guess.

My love and regards to you both —

Jo

Dear Jo and Bruce,

We are in the midst of a heat wave, as you probably are, too – countless days over 90 degrees and very humid, plus occasional thunder storms. Also, during the day lately we've spent a lot of time watching the Iran-Contra hearings. I figure, what's the use of being retired, if I can't watch this little slice of history and neglect a few chores and responsibilities? Tonight Elizabeth and I are watching TV – the Torchlight Parade of our annual Minneapolis festival called the Aquatennial.

Since receiving your note about George's death and the memorial folder and obituaries, I have intended to write and tell you how sorry we were to hear about his death. We know how much he suffered and how difficult it was for all the family during his final months. Even though it is a blessing that this time of worry and suffering is over, there is also a feeling of great emptiness and loss that continues. Our thoughts and prayers are with you all.

We were delighted to hear about Zadra's good experience with Emily Rose, and hope that both are progressing beautifully. Give Zadra our love and best wishes. Say "Hello" also to Bruce's mother for us. We did enjoy meeting her and hope all goes well in her new apartment.

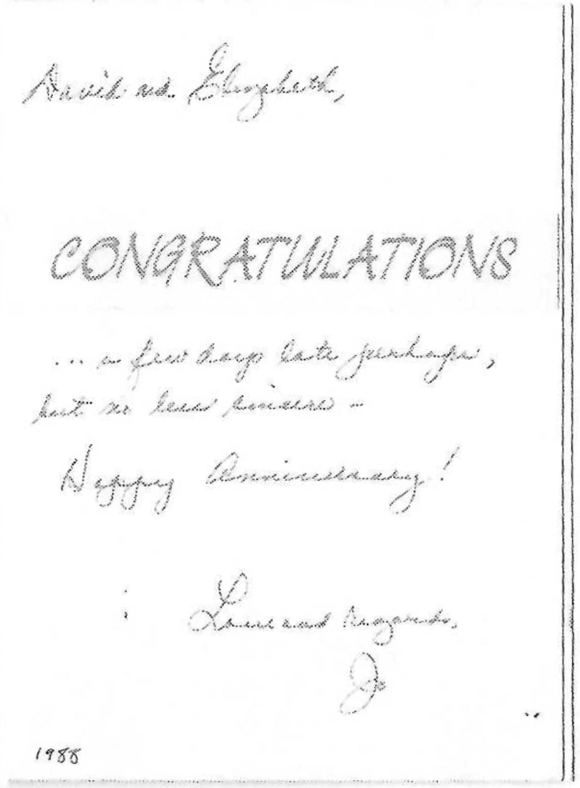
Probably by now you have recovered from your big reunion weekend. It must be quite an achievement to remember all the young couples and children as they mature and develop year after year!

I haven't forgotten that I haven't properly answered a couple of your letters dealing with genealogy, but I can't undertake that now. The one thing of this nature I'm sending you is the "cutting," as they call it, from The Times of London. This was sent by one of our distant cousins, Harry Witheridge, who lives in Virginia Water, Surrey, not far from London. I'm not sure if I've ever mentioned Harry and his brother George whom we met on our trips to Britain. We're fond of them and their families. The Rev. John Witheridge is one of their nephews. In Harry's Christmas card last December he said John was being transferred to a new position as head chaplain at Eton College, the prestigious boys' school at Windsor. I know we're related to Harry and George (and John), because I've traced their ancestry back into North Devon, where our family began, but I haven't been able to establish the exact connection.

Now, in closing, I want to say we were very happy to meet all of you on our trip to Michigan, and we wish we could have come to know you sooner.

Love,

David + Elizabeth



David and Elizabeth,

Dear Elizabeth,

Missed it, didn't I! Hope you had a happy day! I thought, perhaps, 1988 would be a year I would remember most everyone – however....

Imagine your trip to Devon was wonderful – you've been there so much – you must feel at home there! I am anxious to make a visit to England – Bruce says 1990. We shall see!

We had a wonderful summer what with our visitors from England – my pen pal of 46 years – and our sons' wedding – it was a joyful time. I'm back in the thick of work now and as you undoubtedly know it's the busiest time of the year – fall programs being instigated, etc. Love it tho!

I hope you are both well and ready for winter – Bruce and I have cut about 3 cords of wood – an oak that we felled a couple years ago – We counted the rings and realize the tree had seen both world wars at least. It was a stately tree, but in a bad spot. It will keep us warm all winter.

Our love and regards to you and yours.

October 12, 1988

Dear Jo and Bruce,

I'm sure you'll be amazed finally to get a letter from me, but I intend to do as complete a job as possible with this, to make up for my long delay in answering your many communications. We especially want to thank you for your three lovely cards--for our anniversary and for our birthdays. You were very thoughtful, and we were very grateful to hear from you. Elizabeth's card with the meadow flowers was especially lovely.

Now I'm going to tell you immediately our most wonderful news. Tom and Virginia presented us with a granddaughter--Rebecca Elizabeth-- on August 19th. She was 2½ months early and only weighed 2#, 2 oz., so we were greatly concerned, as you can imagine. For a second time Virginia developed pre-eclampsia, which is rather unusual, they say. But girls normally have more strength and stamina than boys, and that's the way it worked out. Within four days they were able to take her off the respirator, whereas little David's lungs never did develop in his 18 days so he could be taken off. In every respect Rebecca has progressed beautifully, and she is now up to about 3#, 12 oz. Within about two weeks they think she'll be able to go home. She's been getting mainly Virginia's milk, sometimes through a tube into her stomach, but also with a nipple and a bottle, but now she's starting to nurse directly from Virginia. They hold her quite a bit, and they have sent some darling pictures, including a video tape Tom recently took.

We're just dying to see her, and they now want us to come down to Chicago for Thanksgiving. This was their year to come here for Thanksgiving and to go to Virginia's parents in Mattoon, Ill., for Christmas; but they won't be traveling anywhere for a while! Another complication was that they were moving into a different house at the very time Rebecca was born. Virginia had been in the hospital a couple of days for her high blood pressure, and the very day the movers arrived, they called Tom from the hospital to tell him they had taken Virginia to the delivery room. So he called his secretary and asked her to come and supervise the moving, which she did beautifully. Because of their hectic lives right now, they're still living in two rooms plus the bathroom.

We've sent them two boxes of baby clothes--some from our boys' baby days and some from as far back as Elizabeth's. Now they'll be able to make good use of the lovely blanket you sent them for their first baby. We know you'll be happy to hear the good news about Rebecca.

Our trip to Britain was a great success, and we were able to accomplish almost everything we had planned. However, the weather didn't cooperate. It was cold and rainy nearly all the time we were there. The only time it got above 70° was a couple of days in Scotland. The worst part is they don't heat their homes and hotels the way we do. Ittwas often nearly as cold inside as it was outside! The result was that we both came home with dreadful colds, which lasted several weeks. Then we found they were in the midst of the drought and heat wave here. So with our colds and the excessive heat our energy level was very low, and we still haven't quite finished everything that needed doing after our trip, including writing a great many letters!

I can't remember how much I told you about our trip, but we spent about a week in the London area and then "hired" a car for three weeks and drove through England, Scotland, and Wales. We had a rather new, beautiful red Volkswagen with automatic transmission, and we didn't have a bit of car trouble on our 3000-mile trip.

We were met at the plane by Kim Cook and one of her sons, who took us to their home in West Wickham, Kent, a suburb of London. We stayed there two days before going to a hotel in London for five days. At the end of our trip we went back to the Cooks for another two days, after which Kim and her husband Roy took us back to the airport for our return flight home. Have I told you about Kim? I've been corresponding with her for over twenty years. Her mother's maiden name was Witheridge, and I got in touch with Kim through her maiden aunt, Dorothy Witheridge, whose name I found in the London telephone directory at the New York Public Library.

Kim probably knows more about Witheridge genealogy than anyone else in Britain, though I may have more information about the Combe Martin and North Devon Witheridges than she has. Her Witheridge line stems from South Devon near Plymouth. She and a few others have recently organized The Witheridge Society for all the Witheridge descendants, in order to further our research on Witheridge family history. They are about to expand overseas, and I expect you will hear from them shortly, if you haven't already done so. Elizabeth and I are very fond of Kim and Roy and their two sons, Jason and Adam. We call each other distant cousins, though we haven't yet found the connection between our families.

Elizabeth and I spent four wonderful days in Devon. Each night we stayed in one of our favorite small inns, The Lodge, in Berrynarbor, where our earliest recorded Witheridge ancestors lived. In 1980 we became warm personal friends of the proprietors, Doreen and Alan Prater. When you go to Devon, you definitely must plan to stay there a night or more. Berrynarbor is only two or three miles from Combe Martin, where we have several relatives still living. Myrtle Blackmore is our third cousin, and Una Parsons is our seventh cousin. Una's paternal grandmother was a Witheridge. First in 1980 and again this year Una and Myrtle organized an evening get-together of local residents with the same ancestral lines as mine (and yours). I had sent her a list of our twenty family lines in that small area. (Did I ever send you that list?) When we got to the meeting, there were twenty-two people present, and we had a very enjoyable time. I still haven't had time to write them all to pursue our relationships, but I hope to get at that soon.

One day we went to visit John Witheridge (Wm. John) and his family on a farm at West Buckland, about twenty-five miles from Combe Martin. This was our third visit there. John is a second cousin of my father and your mother. John's son George (our third cousin) now is in charge of the farm and lives in the main house, while his parents have moved into the "Bungalow." George's wife Pat had prepared a most delicious lunch, and all the family came together to visit with us, including George and Pat's children and one of John's daughters, Joyce Cork, and her husband and children. The other daughter, Marian Balment, and her family weren't able to be there, but John's brother Charles and his wife came over from East Buckland. It was especially encouraging to see how the children had developed in the eight years since we last saw them. Two of the girls were just finishing what we call high school and are starting college this fall.

In other parts of England we also met some of your relatives and mine. We stayed one night with another third cousin on the Blackmore side, Marjorie Packer, and her husband Ted. They live in Swindon, Wiltshire. Marjorie and I have been corresponding about Blackmore genealogy for several years.

Then in the Birmingham area we visited two of our Witheridge second cousins. Irene Birdsall is the granddaughter of your grandmother, Betsy Chivers',,sister, Susanna Witheridge, who married John Adams and stayed in Wales. Irene's husband is Prof. Neville Birdsall, who recently retired as professor of New Testament in Birmingham University. We stayed two days and nights with Irene and Neville. I'm not sure I told you they visited us in Minneapolis for twelve very enjoyable days at Easter time this spring. Neville was on a lecture tour in this country.

We also ppent an afternoon and evening with another of our second cousins, Pearline Fryer, and her husband Sidney, who live not far from Birmingham in Pensnett. Pearline is a first cousin of Irene's and is also a granddaughter of Susanna Witheridge Adams. We love both of these families very much and have visited them on all three of our trips to England.

While we were in the Birmingham area, we also visited Bessie Witheridge (unmarried) in nearby Warwick. She shows and judges Cardigan Welsh Corgis. We haven't figured out how or whether we're related, but Kim has recently tied her ancestry into a South Devon Witheridge family from Ermington.

Another special Witheridge event was the day we spent with Harry and Alice "Toots" Witheridge at their lovely home in Virginia Water, a town near Windsor. We've known Harry and his brother George since our first trip to Britain in 1976. I had found them, as I had found other Witheridges, through the English telephone directories; and I have traced their ancestry back into North Devon, but so far haven't connected it to our Combe Martin line. Once a year Harry and Toots invite the families of the four Witheridge brothers--Harry, George, Frank, and Stanley--to their home for a get-together, and we were fortunate to be able to get there on that day. It was a memorable occasion and a chance to meet several "distant relatives" we had not met before. After we got home, we learned that Frank had died of emphysema not long after we were together. Stanley, by the way, has moved to Australia, but he was rdpresented by his son Christopher and his family.

The Rev. John Witheridge is Frank's son, and we had had lunch with him and his family a week earlier at Eton College, where he is the Chaplain (actually called The Conduct). Until a year or so ago he had been Chaplain to the Archbishop of Canterbury. We enjoyed seeing John and his family again at his Uncle Harry's.

Another Witheridge family we visited was the one in Llanelli, Wales. The first one we had met in the family was Lt. Col. George Witheridge and his wife Mary, whom we had stayed with a few days in Kilgetty, Wales, in 1976. He was a career man in the British Army and was wounded in a tank battle in World War II. George and Mary have died, but in 1980 we visited his brother Henry and his sister Elizabeth Couldrey and their families in Llanelli. Henry has since died, but his widow Winnie keeps in touch with us every year. Our visit this year with the many relatives, including daughters and grandchildren, was delightful. Later we stayed overnight with Philip Hookway and his wife in Nuneaton, not far from Birmingham. He is a cousin of this family. I have helped them trace their ancestry back into South Devon, but again we haven't yet found the connection with our family.

It is interesting that George, Henry, and Elizabeth's mother was Elizabeth Munro from Scotland. One of my wife Elizabeth's early Colonial ancestors was also a Munro from Scotland, so we have two possible connections with that family. Later in Scotland we visited the headquarters of the Munro Clan, Foulis Castle, and were welcomed and shown around by the hereditary chieftan of the clan and his wife.

We also had dinner in London with Annette Witheridge, who came to our hotel after work one evening. I just began corresponding with her about a year ago, and she doesn't know anything about her ancestry beyond her grandparents. She's a young journalist working for some national British publication and occasionally travels to New York City. She helped Kim organize The Witheridge Society.

I can't go into the many interesting places we went to connected with Elizabeth's background. We don't actually know any of her living relatives there, because all her ancestors came over before the American Revolution. But we visited several places they had come from and were actually in several homes they had lived in, which was a great thrill.

So much for our trip! We hope you'll be able to go to England within the next few years. You must have had a great time with your long-time pen pal visitors from England this summer, and I know their visit heightened your desire to go. I don't think you ever told me their names or what part of England they live in.

Now about some other subjects before I bring this to a close. We were so happy to hear about Eric and Catherine's wedding, and I have noted the information in my record, as well as the information on Roy and Annette's. When I get time I want to check the computer printout you sent, to see if there are any items like middle names or additional children that I should add to my sheets. I also noted your Aunt Mabel's death and was sorry to hear about it.

I'm so delighted to hear about your computer and the fun you are having putting all your information into the program. I am really thrilled, because I know I'll never get a computer, but now I can keep feeding information to you, and your computer can also serve as mine!

I haven't studied your printout yet as thoroughly as I should, but I see it has great capability and versatility. I'm not yet sure whether or not one could eventually give up compiling family record sheets like mine and do everything only on the computer. But I suppose that is because I do not completely understand the computer program. You mentioned in January that you still had to adddyour footnotes and sources of information. As you know, my sheets often have a great many of these, and I'd like to see just how this is done on the computer. I'd also like to know what you do with uncertain items or conjectures--items that would normally be accompanied with question marks.

Over the years I have seen so many genealogical records evolve or be found in error that there has to be a way of indicating the relative certainty or uncertainty of the information. Too many people treat what they find printed in books as proven or certain, often without knowing the sources, and I wonder if that tends to be the impact of what people see on the computer screen or printout. How do you view this problem after your experience so far with your computer?

I do know that I need to Xerox some more of my family record sheets and send them to you. Unfortunately, some of these were done a long time ago in my early years of genealogy, so they would first have to be copied over. Would you please let me know exactly what you would like me to send first? I'm not sure I remember or have a record of exactly what I have already sent you.

You have kindly said from time to time that you would be glad to help me in any way you could, and I have a couple of requests in regard to my Nemitz ancestry in Michigan. I know you are now too busy to go to the state library as often as you used to, so don't feel any pressure to do this immediately.

In our German Interest Group newsletter there was a little note that a series of excellent articles on Germans who settled in Michigan had appeared in Family Trails, published by the Michigan Board of Education. The reference was Vol. 6, No. 3, 1982, but that must have been just one of the articles. Could you possibly track these down and send me a Xeroxed copy of the whole series? I'll be glad to reimburse you for the cost of copying and postage, of course.

Another notation I find is in regard to the Michigan State Censuses of 1884 and 1894. I think it was my friend, Ronald Putz, in Bay City who mentioned seeing them in the Public Library there. I assume thay are on microfilm. My question is, could you investigate and see if it would be possible for the Minneapolis Public Library to borrow the Bay County portions of these two censuses from the Michigan State Library on Interlibrary Loan? I would be interested in going through them to look for any persons by the names of Nemitz, Tomke, and Schroeder.

I also have a note that a couple of years ago you mentioned the numbering device I use for identifying "non-blood relatives" and connecting them to my regular numbering system. I had written about this in an earlier letter, but I have never sent a description of it. I still haven't written this out, so I can't just make you a copy at the moment and send it to you. I'll keep it in my notes to do for you at a later date, so you know I haven't forgotten it. I'm wondering, however, if this would have any possible use to you when you get everything transferred to your computer system. I'm not sure a numbering system like the one I use can be accommodated in such a computer program.

That's it for now. I don't suppose you've been able to read this all at one time! Now that our trip is over, I hope to do better with my correspondence in the future.

Love to you lall,

Dear Jo,

This is just a short note to send the enclosed items. I was greatly interested in the History of Combe Martin and sent a subscription. I met Michael Beaumont at the evening get-together in Combe Martin last summer.

The article about the lordship of Witheridge Manor was sent to me by Una Parsons, our seventh cousin in Combe Martin. I thought you'd get a big kick out of it.

We spent the Memorial Day weekend in Chicago and enjoyed being grandparents to Rebecca. She is continuing her beautiful development. During the last two weeks of July we'll be taking a trip east to Maryland and Connecticut. We'll be stopping a couple of days in Chicago both going and coming, of course!

We hope your hectic lives have eased up a bit, and we hope you are all well, as we are.

Love,
David + Elizabeth

Dear David and Elizabeth,

Nice to write you a letter — but summer days are not 24 hours long (I'm convinced of that!) and there just doesn't seem to be time to put pen to paper. But I thought you might like this recent photo of our grandchildren - Tara is Luanne's 9 yr old, Matthew, Jennifer and Emily all belong to Fabra. Tara is 9, Matthew 7, Jennifer 5 and Emily 2, all turning a year older between late May and late Jul.

Are enjoying our large garden this year — may have a road there by next year! Plans are proceeding, slowly (thank goodness) for developing the area - I will miss the animals I see - like the twin fawns in our backyard, prancing in their stiff legged way rather like feisty children, with one eye out for mother, not too far into the woods. Sewers are scheduled to start soon — a way of life ending for us, I fear. Maybe neighbors will be interesting, however!

Our love and regards,

Joan Bruce

Dear Dave and Elizabeth,

Thought you might like to see these beauties – they are well and growing. I stayed last week helping to care for them all – really a busy household!

Not enjoying the terrible hot weather – glad for a few cool days. Am back to work now – seems a long time since things were "normal", whatever that means! We're glad that the babies and Catherine are doing well.

Regards to you both.

Enjoy the summer.

Dear Jo & Bruce,

We were so thrilled to get the picture of your beautiful twin grandsons Ben and Nick! They look so serene and comfortable. Glad to hear they are doing so well. You all must be very pleased and proud.

Thanks for all the news in your May 14th letter. I wish I could find time to write a longer letter. Thank you for being indulgent.

Regarding the marriage certificate, I appreciate your sending it, and I have made the change from John to George Chivers in my records. Perhaps I made a mistake in copying down what your mother said, or perhaps another explanation will turn up sometime. By the way, a sawyer is a workman in a sawmill or in lumbering.

I may never get around to "publishing" anything, but I have started "writing." All I have done so far is an article about the lives of my grandfather and grandmother Witheridge. I'll send you a copy some day.

That's all for now.

Love,

Dear David,

Hope this finds you well and enjoying the fall weather. Imagine you have heard from Kathy about the reunion in Lansing - we really had a great time meeting some new relatives.

I've been busy putting names and dates in my computer - have well over 2000 people in there now and it grows daily! I certainly appreciate the start you have me many years ago and think of you often with love.

Ran across this message that was given at my mother's funeral and thought you might like to read it. Steve Karnes is the son of my sister, Winnie.

Steve Karnes Address at Grandma Redburn's Funeral - November 26, 1977

I would like to read two of Grandma's favorite Bible verses. We found them written in the front of her Bible. From Job 19:25: "I know that my Redeemer liveth." She wrote after that, "And because He lives, I, too, shall live."

The other verse was taken from Proverbs, chapter 3, verses 5 and 6: "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge Him, and He shall direct thy paths."

Grandma left us all with a heritage; she has influenced each of our lives in many ways. I can't speak for us all. I can only share a little of how Grandma influenced my life. I remember visiting Grandma and Grandpa as a child; helping with the laundry with the wringer washer, eating ice cream cones, sleeping in the upstairs bedroom when we kids spent the night, and Grandma tucking us in and praying with us. Most of all, I remember just visiting. When I got older, I spent less time at the house, but the short times I came and visited, I continued to enjoy. I talked to them and listened to them tell about their life.

I learned a great deal from the experiences they related to me. I especially learned of a loving and very real God. Grandma knew God. God was real to Grandma. The single most important letter I ever received was one that Grandma wrote to me while I was a senior in college. She told me of the struggles she was going through with old age. She awakened me to the fact that the elderly have very special needs -- physical, emotional, economic, and spiritual needs -- that I was unaware of. This motivated me to become involved by working in a nursing home. But another part of that letter affected me deeply. Through all the struggles she was going through, she began to doubt God's presence in her life. She reminded me of Job as he struggled with God. Job 23:8, "Behold, I go forward, but He is not there, and backward, but I cannot perceive Him." Many of us sometimes wonder where God is in a particular situation. We wonder what God is doing allowing us to hurt and struggle. Yet it is only through our honesty with God, questioning, struggling, then listening and waiting, that we learn.

God has many lessons to teach us, Often we get tired of the lessons and just want to give up. But Grandma, after 80 years of learning, was still ready to learn more. She learned through her struggles that she had to trust in God and lean on Him. She could not put her trust simply on her own understanding. She had to acknowledge Him, knowing that He would direct her path.

Grandma, like Job, struggled with her God; she questioned Him. And, like Job, she listened to God and said with Job, "I know that my Redeemer liveth."

I miss Grandma; I feel grief because of my loss. But I know that for Grandma I can feel nothing but joy. Grandma knew that her Redeemer lives, and because He lives, she, too, lives and dwells with Him.

God bless, Jo Aldrich

Dear Jo,

Thank you for your message. I know you had a wonderful time at the reunion, and I'm sorry I couldn't make it. I think of you often, even though I haven't kept in touch.

That was a lovely address Steve gave at your mother's funeral. Elizabeth and I enjoyed meeting her, and we wished we had known her better. Here is something I came across in my notes. It is an excerpt from a letter from her on Aug. 1, 1964.

"When we came to this country in 1908, we came to your grandfather's place on Warren Ave. My folks went on to St. Charles, but because they thought Saginaw schools were better than St. Charles's schools, they decided to board me at your grandfathers and go to school in Saginaw. Well, I liked the schools because they were more like the ones I had attended, but I didn't like being away from home, so finally after about 1 1/2 years they decided I could go to St. Charles school. I got to know your dad and mother, although they weren't married when we first came here."

I thought this was a little bit that you may not have heard before and might enjoy.

Love, David

Dear Mr. Argust:

You probably recognize the name Witheridge and know that your grandmother's maiden name was Susanna Witheridge. She was a sister of my grandfather, William Witheridge. So you and I are second cousins.

Some years ago I wrote to your mother, and she responded with some very interesting information about our Witheridge family history. At that time she gave me your address, and I hope it is still correct.

This summer I have been granted a 12-week study leave, and my wife Elizabeth and I are planning to spend it in Britain studying the ecumenical situation there. We'll be studying for several weeks at three universities--London, Exeter, and Cambridge--and we'll be visiting several local councils of churches.

From June 16 to July 7 we'll be in the London area. From July 8 to August 7 we plan to rent a car and take a trip north through England to Scotland and then back through Wales to Devon. We're hoping we can visit you and your family briefly in the period of July 8 to 10. Will you be home at that time?

I understand from your mother that you and your wife both are teachers. My wife Elizabeth was a kindergarten teacher for several years before we were married. Now she writes books for children and young people, with seven published so far.

I started out as a heating and ventilating engineer, then became a Baptist minister. For 25 years I have been the executive of the Greater Minneapolis Council of Churches. We have two sons--one 29 years old and the other 28.

We surely hope we can see you when we're in England. Please write and let us know if that will be possible.

Your cousin,

Dear Mr. Witheridge,

I expect it will come as a shock to you to hear that my husband died in November 1974. It happened very suddenly and was a terrible shock to us all. I dare not dwell on it too much, that is why I am thankful I have a job to keep me busy and I am also fortunate in having two good sons aged 23 and 20.

My sons and I look forward to meeting you and your wife in July and if you will ring us when you are in this country we will make arrangements to meet you in Birmingham.

Looking forward to seeing you,

Yours sincerely,

Jean August.

Dear Jean August,

We had hoped to send this before Christmas, but time ran out on us. However, we thought you might like to see this letter anyway.

Meeting you and Nigel was one of the bright spots on our trip, and we hope we can keep in touch in the future.

We think these pictures are rather good, even though they were made from slides. They never come out as well as prints from negatives.

As we probably told you when we were there, Nigel looks enough like my brother John to be his son. It startles us every time we see this picture.

Similarly Susannah August looks exactly like my father, who was her first cousin, of course.

We're looking forward to seeing all of you again some day. Maybe Nigel will be coming over to the United States one of these days, and if he does, we certainly want him to come to Minneapol

We're sorry we didn't get to meet Glyn, too, while we were there.

Dear David & Elizabeth,

Many thanks for your letter and especially the photos, I agree they are really excellent especially as they are taken from slides

John's mother came last weekend the first time she has managed it since Christmas, the weather has been so bad. She said that Pearl had heard from you and she had seen a photograph of the house she was born in. Glyn still talks about visiting Nashville, I think he'll have to wait till he's earning his own living. He is working hard on this degree course in Economics, I hope he can make it. It's a pity he and Negel haven't got more in common, own living. He is working this degree course in Economics, I hope he can make it. It's a pity he and Nigel haven't got more in common, they might have come together.

How is your dog. Judy has had canker in one of ear. We have had a job to hold her down to put ointment inside. I had to get a neighbour to muzzle her and he had to wear a pair of kid glove, she was so vicious. When I take her to the vet, she doesn't play him up, she terrified of him.

I shall be glad to see the Spring. Thank you once again for the photographs.

Love & best wishes

May 9, 1980

Dear Jean,

You may have heard from Pearline or Irene that I retired on January 1st from my position as executive director of the Greater Minneapolis Council of Churches and that we are planning another trip to Britain late this summer.

I am in the midst of trying to arrange our trip. We now have plane reservations to leave here on August 2nd on a new non-stop flight from Minneapolis to London that just begins June 1st. We'll return to Minneapolis on October 2nd. I've also completed the first draft of a possible itinerary to include the many places we want to go in England, Scotland, Wales, and the Isle of Man. We are going to hire a car for about seven weeks, as we did in 1976.

One of the places we definitely want to visit is the Birmingham area. We were so pleased to meet all of you, and we are looking forward to seeing you again, including the children who are still there and may be able to see us. In fact, one thing we would greatly enjoy would be to hear Nigel play the organ, if that could be arranged. We keep thinking that he and Glyn may come to America and may visit us in Minneapolis.

Our present plans are to arrive in Pensnett on Tuesday afternoon, September 2nd, and leave Thursday afternoon, September 4th. One of the nights might be spent with the Birdsells, but we are not sure of that. We also want to see a Bessie Witheridge and her brother Dick who live in Hertford Hill, near Warwick. We think they are distant relatives, but we don't know for sure yet.

By the way, Nigel will be interested to know that my nephew, Dr. James F. Mark III, now teaches music at Mount Allison University in Sackville, New Brunswick, Canada. He is my sister Louise's son, so he is Nigel's and Glyn's third cousin. As you see from the recital program I'm enclosing, he plays the clarinet, and his wife Penny plays the piano (and especially the harpsichord). She was born in Newfoundland, and they met in London when they were both studying at the Royal College of Music. Jaimie, as we call him, also directs the symphonic band at Mount Allison.

Please let us know if September 2 to 4 would be a good time to see all of you. You will probably want to confer with Pearline and Irene. We may have to alter our plans somewhat to fit your schedules or those of others we want to see in Britain. We look forward to hearing from you soon.

Dear David & Elizabeth,

We look forward to seeing you in August. Nigel will make arrangements to see you as soon as you are in the area. He will either arrange to play for you at St. Augustine's in Edgbaston or perhaps you may be able to visit his school in Uttoxeter, situated in very lovely country.

Hope all goes well,

Sincerely,

Dear Jean:

Greetings from far away America! We hope all is going well with you and Glyn and Nigel. We had a most delightful trip to Britain, and we especially enjoyed the day we all had together going to Litchfield and Uttoxeter.

We have had fun re-living our experiences by means of our slides, as we've shown them to various groups. Now we've been able to have prints made of some of them, and here are a few we thought you'd be interested in. There's an extra copy for Glyn of the one of you and him (and the dog!). I'm sending the two of Nigel directly to him.

Life has been very hectic since we got home a couple of months ago. So many things had been left undone before and during our trip. And then we had to get ready for winter with such things as covering our roses, raking leaves, taking off screens and putting on storm windows. Everything is pretty well set now, and winter weather has fortunately held off. We sometimes get snow this early that stays on the ground until spring, but so far we haven't had any snow th speak of.

We were happy to have our son Tom home from Chicago over the Thanksgiving weekend in late November. He also brought his girl friend Virginia along. Jim, our son who lives in Minneapolis, was here for Thanksgiving dinner with three of his friends, so we had a big occasion with eight all together.

Now we'll wish you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. Write when you can.

All our love,

Dear David & Elizabeth,

It is so rude of me not to have answered your letter before and thank you for the lovely photographs, I do apologise. I was hoping that Nigel would write to you and you already know what a poor letter-writer I am. However, I'll do my best.

Well, January is out and we have been lucky as regards weather, it has not been too bad at all, and if we do have some bad weather now it wont seem so bad as the days are getting longer.

I think this is a depressing time of the year. I have joined the Brierley Hill Operatic Society to sing in their winter concerts. We have about four concerts coming up in March. Many of the members take part in the show which they put on in November but I don't think I could cope with that, it would be a bit too tiring. Nigel is taking part in "The Gondoliers" at the end of the month, I am going with some friends to see him.

Glyn is very busy with his job, I think he is lucky to have a job at all these days. He has failed two driving tests but it doesn't seem to worry him, he says he'll pass sometime.

Hope you are well and thank you once again for the lovely photographs.

Love + Best Wishes,

Jean

Dear Nigel:

This is just a short note to send you these pictures that were made from two of our slides. We think they came out rather well, and we hope you like them.

Our trip to Uttoxeter was a delightful experience, and we especially enjoyed hearing you get such wonderful music from your chapel organ. Thank you for spending some time with us on that very busy day. We wish we could see your room now that it is all completed.

Did we tell you we were planning to attend a concert by the London Symphony Orchestra at the Royal Festival Hall on the Friday we were in London at the end of our trip? It was an all-Wagner program, and we liked it very much.

Some day we hope you'll be able to come to America and to visit us here in Minneapolis. We know you would love it, and we would enjoy having you as our guest in our home.

We wish you a very happy holiday season and a good year ahead in 1981.

Yours sincerely,

Editor's Note

In this section of folder 1.63m are several documents from Dad's earliest phase of Witheridge family history research:

(1) A letter to George Adams of Wales, Dad's first cousin once removed, a brother of Susannah Adams (b. 1890), whose married surname was Argust (although she is known in the index by her birth surname, Adams). The letter to George was returned unopened.

(2) Transcripts by Dad of two separate letters (April 20, 1964, and June 1, 1964) written by Susannah to Dad's sister-in-law, Janice Witheridge of Saginaw, Michigan, who was married to Dad's younger brother, John Meredith Witheridge (b. 1922). John and Janice were also interested in family history and had made some inquiries of their own around the same time that Dad was launching his Witheridge family history research. Unfortunately, Janice didn't loop Dad into her work until he had already learned about it circuitously while visiting in Saginaw, his childhood hometown.

(3) Dad's August 30, 1964, letter to Susannah.

(4) Susannah's reply to Dad on October 15, 1964, containing very helpful information.

(5) Dad's August 26, 1970, letter to Susannah with follow-up questions, which she apparently never answered.

Mr. George Adams

Dear Mr. Adams:

Let me introduce myself. If my information is correct, my father, William Witheridge, was your first cousin. His father, William, was the brother of your mother, Susie Witheridge, according to my Aunt Clara Mae (Mrs. Allen Marquis).

When Father died last May, I realized how little we knew about his family, and I began to piece together the information I could discover. I knew that Aunt Clara Mae corresponded with some of the family in England, so I wrote to her and got a few facts from her. In addition to your address, which she admitted might be wrong as she hadn't heard from you for some time, she told of your sister Susannah. But again she thought her address was wrong, as she hadn't had a letter for many years.

Last summer when I was back in Saginaw, Michigan, I went to visit George Chivers, another cousin of yours and of my father. Fortunately, he had an old family Bible, from which I took down as much information as I could find. This went back only as far as your grandfather, John Witheridge, who lived in Combe Martin and for a time was a lighthouse keeper on Lundy Island.

I am hoping that I have your right address and that you will be able to give me or steer me to further information. As you can see, I have put your grandfather's name and his family on a record sheet. I would appreciate it very much if you would look this over and correct or add any information you can regarding names, dates, and places.

If you have any children, or nieces and nephews, I'd be very happy to have their names and addresses, so that I could correspond with them. Please also give me the proper name and address of your sister Susannah.

As you can see, I am a minister. After a number of years as a Baptist pastor, I came to Minneapolis to be in charge of the local council of churches. My wife Elizabeth and I both grew up in Saginaw, and we have two sons in high school, James and Thomas.

I hope your health is good and that you are living a happy life with your family. Please tell me a little about yourself and your family when you write.

Yours sincerely,

David E. Witheridge

Please return to David E. Witheridge, 2425 Irving Ave. S., Minneapolis, Minn., U.S.A.

From Susannah August - 4/20/64 (to Janice)

My eldest sister (Clara Eliz. Adams?) still lives at Cwmaman where we were all born. She remembers my grandmother Witheridge saying as grandfather (John) had a brother that went abroad and that is as far as we know. I know he had a brother that lived at South Molton, North Devon. That would be my great uncle William and his wife was called Mary or Elizabeth. They had two children; a boy, Johnny, and a girl Mary. They still live in Devonshire, but we never hear from them since Grandmother's death.

Uncle William + Aunt Jane came to England for a visit when I was going to school and Clara came with them + we went to Coombe Martin for holiday along with my Aunt Betty Chivers, George Chivers mother, and when they returned to the states they took George Chivers along with them. That is a great number of years ago.

There is one of your family called David E. Witheridge from Minneapolis that wrote to my cusion (sic) Johnny Chivers' wife and she sent (the) letter along to my brother in the old home village in S. Wales. So he sent it along for me to read as I wrote to tell him about your letter to me and he received the one from Sarah a day or so after and he could not give any information about the Witheridge family. Johnny Chivers is dead nine years, but his widow writes my brother occasionally.

Cwmaman? Aberdare?

I wrote to my youngest sister. She lives in Leicestershire, Eng. and she said if you wanted to know the history about the Witheridges it would be best to write to the clerk of the parish council of Tiverton, Devonshire, and they would know whether the place Witheridge was called after the family or not. Witheridge is

I don't think my uncle Ted Witheridge married. He went to America I think around the time Uncle William and Uncle George Curtis but he never visited the old Country after he went.

Now about our family. I have two sisters alive. The eldest Clara still lives in the old home and my youngest sister lives at Leicester. My youngest brother lives in old home village, but my eldest and the middle brother are dead about fifteen years. Also my sister that was younger that the Mary went to Surrey, England to live but was unlucky as she passed away about twenty years ago. So we are three girls and one boy out of the family of seven.

With regards (to) Blackmore, my daughter went to Westward Oh (sic) North Devon, Eng., last year for holidays and went to one village which had a very small church in it and the number of people that were buried in that churchyard called Blackmore was amazing. They must have been my grand-mother Witheridge mother ancestors.

I am a widow. I lost my husband eleven years ago and I live with my daughter. She has three girls going to school. I have two children. My son the elder and he has two boys but they live about seven miles from me. My eldest sister has two sons and one daughter. My sister that died three girls and five boys. One of the boys was killed in England during the war. My eldest brother has one daughter. We are all the family of John and

② - From Susannah Adams August - April 20, 1964

Susannah Adams (Nee Susannah Witheridge) and my mother used to live with my grandmother for a number of years.

I can picture my grandfather Witheridge now. He was a lovely man. I used to live with them after my mother moved to a larger house. I remember on one occasion he won a table lamp in a prize drawing and I went to my mother's to wait until she and grandfather came with it. Then I would accompany grandfather home with his prize. It had been snowing and the road was slippery and we were nearly home. I was carrying the globes and he had the lamp. I asked him to let me have it, but he would not as he wanted to carry it himself, but in any case he slipped down and broke the lamp. It was a big disappointment to him as he wanted to give grandmother his prize.

Well now I have given all the information I can which is not much.

I hope you all as a family are keeping in good health. We this end have our sickness. I had an accident nearly two years ago and can only just walk about but not far. We are all getting on in years. My eldest sister is 76 years. I am 74. My sister in Leicester is 68 and my youngest brother is 64 years.

Please convey my best wishes to all the family. I was pleased to hear from you and if what I have written has been any help it is a pleasure.

Yours sincerely
Susannah

Clara Blackmore married George Curtis (he was drowned). She later married John Witheridge.

George Curtis married Mary – not sure of surname.

William Witheridge married Mary Jane Allen

Elizabeth Witheridge married Albert Chivers.

Uncle Ted not married

Susannah Witheridge married John Adams
That is my father and mother.

From Susannah August - June 6, 1964

Dear Janice,

In answer to yours of May 1st, I hope I shall make the Witheridge family affairs more clear to you this time.

My grandmother Witheridge first married George Curtis and he was drowned at sea and they had one son George Curtis, the one that went to America, and they had I think three children - William, Clara, and Johnny Curtis. Then my grandmother married John Witheridge and I think your husband's grandfather would be my grandmother's son William that married Mary Jane Allen. My grandmother and grandfather Witheridge were Devonshire people and they came across from Combemartin to Swansea in Wales when my mother was five years old, so all their children were born in Combemartin neighborhood somewhere.

I don't know the age of George Curtis, William Witheridge, Mary, Betsy, and Edward Witheridge, but my grandmother told me as my mother was five years old and she was the youngest of the family, so you can see my grandfather Witheridge was not a Welshman.

You mentioned about my great Uncle William Witheridge. He had a son called Johnny but he did not marry a Emma Northcott and would be born much later than 1835. I think he would be a little younger than George Chivers. When you see George Chivers again, you may ask him if he remembers him, as his mother used to visit that one's father and mother (William and Eliza Witheridge at South Molton, Devonshire when they used to go on holiday to Combemartin.

George Chivers father and my father came from Somersetshire, so they were Englishmen.

I have done my best with the forms filled in so I hope you will understand them.

I told you about my eldest sister having sickness at her home. Her husband ill for many years.

He passed away the 9th May and it is a great relief as the doctors could not do anything for him. It was the miner's complaint.

You say George Chivers told you as his grandfather and my grandfather were step brothers. They were certainly not, as his and my grandfather was the same person. George Chivers' mother was [and] my mother were sister and her name was Elizabeth but we used to call her Aunt Betsy. You may mention it to George Chivers. Ask him if he remembers me Susannah. I was not very old when he went to America with Uncle William when they came here on a visit, Aunt Jane and Cousin Clara.

I cannot tell you any more about my grandfather Witheridge's family as I only heard about the one William that lived at South Molton, Devon.

I hope you all as a family are keeping in good health. I can manage to get about the house without any aid, but when I go up the village to do a little shopping, I have to use two sticks. I fell down the church steps two years come September and fractured the femur in the right leg so they pinned and plated it when I was in hospital as when you get on in years the bones do not knit but it is very uncomfortable sometimes still it is nice to be able to get about.

I have two children, My son the elder is a teacher and his wife goes to school teaching music. They have two boys - one 11 in July, the other 9 yrs next March. The eldest has passed his 11 plus exam and will go to grammar school in September.

My daughter I live with has three girls. The eldest was 16 last month so will be leaving school now when the summer holidays start end of July. I don't know what she is going in for when she leaves but is very interested in out but it all depends on her exams which will be next month. She attend a grammar school. The others are one 10 years, the other 6 yrs. and are at the local school.

I think I have told all the news with the exception that I lost my husband eleven years last March and I miss him more as the time go on. We could sit and talk about old times at our village down in Wales before we were married and after and my youngest brother (He is the only brother left) send me the local paper from the old village in Wales every week so as I can see how things are going on. When my husband was alive if I did not remember someone that would be mention in the paper we used to put our heads together and fathom it out what was what. Still we have a lot to be thankful for. He had been poorly for 16 weeks before he died not able to work but had not been too well for many years.

I will now close my letter with the family of George Curtis, Mother's brother. I don't remember when he went to America - I think it must have been before my mother married. His wife was from Aberaman, nr Aberdare, Glamorgan. Wales, and I remember Uncle George and his son Johny Curtis coming on a visit to see granny and grandfather Witheridge. The Curtis family lived at Cleveland, Ohio USA and I expect some of the family are still around about there now.

Uncle William and Aunt Jane must have gone to America before I was born as I remember my mother saying Uncle William has dismantled a sewing machine they were going to take out with them but someone advised that it would cost more in transport than the worth of the sewing machine, so my parents bought it from them and my father assembled it and it done good service to our family in sewing little odds and ends.

Then Uncle William and Aunt Jane came on a visit and took George Chivers back with them. After George had been out a few years he came back and took his father back to America. After his father had been out there a few years and got settled George came home again to fetch his mother, sister Elizabeth, and youngest brother Edgar, and I think he married this young lady then as they were courting before he went to America. Her name was Rosie Ford but she is dead now, but I haven't seen George since he went to America the first time. When you see him just jog his memory or ask him if he remembers. I hope you will not be bored with my letter as there is a lot of repetition and the children are home from school now waiting for their tea and it is a bit difficult to write with them about. My daughter is at the chemist shop in the village assisting part time morning and late afternoon and evening, so will close with best wishes to all the family.

Yours affectionately,
Susannah

P.S. Don't know about any relative connection that has gone to Australia.

Dear Mrs. Argust (Cousin Susannah):

You cannot possibly know how glad I am to have found your address at last. I am a son of William Allen Witheridge, who was a first cousin of yours, if my information is correct. I am the one who wrote to Mrs. John Chivers, who then forwarded my letter to Edgar Adams, your brother. (Is his full name Albert Edgar Adams?) That was many mouths ago, and I never could understand why he didn't answer my letter.

Now I find that he sent the letter to you, and you discussed my questions when you wrote to Janice, the wife of my brother John in Saginaw, Mich. However, Janice never told me about it until a week ago when we were visiting in Saginaw. (That's 700 miles from here.) We very seldom hear from them by letter. I read both of the letters you wrote to Janice--in fact, I made copies for myself, because of the family information they contained.

If you still have the letter I wrote to Sarah Chivers, you know that I am a Baptist minister, but I am now in charge of the Greater Minneapolis Council of Churches, which is a full-time position. I grew up in Saginaw, Michigan, and started out as an engineer. I graduated from the University of Michigan and returned to Saginaw to work with Father in his heating and ventilating business. Then I decided to be a minister and attended seminaries in Rochester, N.Y., and Chicago, Ill.

My wife Elizageth also grew up in Saginaw--in the same Baptist church, in fact. She was a kindergarten teacher, and since our marriage she has been writing books for children. Four have been published, and another is on the way. We have two sons. Jim is seventeen and is entering the University of Minnesota this fall. Tom is sixteen and will be a high school senior. I thought you would like the two pictures enclosed--one of my wife and me, and one of the boys with their grandparents.

We were sorry to hear about your accident and your leg injury, but glad to know that you are able to get around. We do hope your health has been good this summer.

Do you have any pictures of you and your family? You must be very proud of your children and grandchildren. I wonder, too, if you have any pictures of your mother and of your grandmother and grandfather Witheridge. If you have, I'd be very glad to have copies made for me and would be glad to pay the cost.

As you see, I have enclosed a form on which I would like to have the complete information about you and your husband and your children. Please put in middle names, if there are any, and fill in all the other items you know.

Then I have also included a sheet on which I should like you to give the addresses of various relatives. You said in a letter to Janice that you had not heard from John and Mary, the children of your great uncle William Witheridge, since the death of your grandmother. What are the last addresses you had for them, and what was the date? Do you know if they (John and Mary) had children and, if so, what their names were? Was the wife of your great uncle William named Elizabeth? Have you any idea when he or she died?

Did your grandfather, John Witheridge, have only four children--William, Elizabeth, Edward, and Susannah? Or was there also a Mary in that family? You mentioned an uncle Ted Witheridge who went to America. Would he have been the same as Ned Witheridge, whom I have seen referred to?

What was the religious affiliation of your grandparents, John and Clara Witheridge? This is important to know, because most of the early birth, marriage, and death records were kept by churches.

There are a few other items that were not clear from the information you gave to Janice:

1. Do your first name and your mother's both end in "h"?
2. What year was your father born, and what year was your mother born?
3. Where did each of them die?
4. Where were you and your husband married?

I know this is a long letter and I have asked many questions. But I hopw you will be kind enough and patient enough to answer them if you can. Greetings also to your daughter and her family!

Your cousin,

David E. Witheridge

Dear Cousin David

First I owe you an apologye for not ansering sooner. The reason is I sent your letter to my eldest sister Clara. Elizabeth that still live in Wales and to my youngest sister Lily Beatrice that lives at Leicestershire

My eldest sister told me as Great Uncle William died and his widow married again a man named Harding. He had a revelative living in my home village Cwmaman that is how she heard and with regards to Mary and John their children I cannot tell you anything. I think the best thing would be to write the clerk of the parish at South Molton Devonshire England.

You asked about my Grandfather and Grandmother Witheridge how many children they had. There were five. William. Mary Elizabeth (Betsy) Fred and my mother Susanna. no H at the end of her name but there is at the end of mine (Susannah) I cannot tell you the year of mother birth but it was June 9th and father March 4th and father died 27th April 1944 His age somewhere about 70 to 73 and mother died 13th April 1950 age about 80 to 82 I will let you know for certain when I write again as I will ask my eldest sister

With regards to photos of Grandfather and Grandmother Witheridge my eldest sister has a photo of them and if possible will have some taken. They are very old and it will be a great pleasure for you to see them They were a grand pair. Their religious effiliations were Church of England all our family as the same religion

I have enclosed a photo of my mother and father taken about 1940 also of my husband and myself taken the same time 1940. I will send you some photos of my son and his family also my daughter and family later date.

I was very pleased to receive the photos of your father and ~~wife~~ your mother and your sons also the one of you and your wife I think your father William Allen very much resemble your Grandfather William Witheridge. It is many years since I saw him when he visited Wales I think the last time and your aunt Clara was a little girl I was going to school at the time and would be about 12 to 13 years of age. just like the old saying a lot of water has flowed under the bridge since then.

My son is teaching at a secondary modern school. He as two boys the elder age 11 last July passed his 11 plus and in september after the summer holiday term started at the Grammer School the younger boy is eight last March. My daughter has three girls. The eldest was sixteen last May and finished at the Grammer school last July and started work at an office in september the other two are at school one age 11 in December the younger seven in November.

I met with my accident two years last month. I had been to church to the Mother Union meeting and when coming out I missed judge my footing and fell down three steps and fractured the femur I have had it pinid and plated so that enable me to walk about the house without any aid but when I go to church or up the village I have to use two sticks. We have to be thankfull for small mercys.

I hope your and your wife and sons are in good health which I am pleased to say we are all in here. My eldest sister lost her husband the 9th of May. He had been in poor health for quite a time. I lost my husband eleven years last March. He had been in poor health for quite a time being a miner in his younger day I think that had an affect on his health.

The reason as sisters are scatted about in the Midlands here is owning to the depression that hit the coal fields in Wales around about 1935 to 1936 Then We moved here to Staffordshire my sister next to me moved to Surrey she only lived a few years after she moved there and my youngest sister went to Leicestershire.

My eldest sister has two sons and a daughter. The second sister had six sons and four daughters. My youngest sister had four sons. The youngest one is 27 years is a spastic but is able to do a little work at the coporation gardens where they grow their plants for parks etc He is under the welfare as he is not able to do too heavy work. He loves me to go and visit them and my son took me up the last week in July for a fortnight Then he took me down to Wales to my eldest sister for ten days the end of August which I enjoyed. I was able to see my youngest brother then. He has one daughter. My other two brothers died after my father I think in about three to four years the three died father and two brothers.

I will write and explain about Grandmother Witheridge two marrages I did explain to your brother wife but will let you have it as well.

My cousin widow Sarah Chris sent your letter on to my brother Edgar as she could not give you any information with the result my brother sent it along to me.
My mother lived for about thirteen years with my grandmother and grandfather Witheridge after she was married then the family got larger and my mother and father got a larger house and moved but my grandparents still lived on in the old house where your grandparents visited them when last here.
That is how I got to know a little about the family grandmother used to tell me about things. I stayed with her after my parents moved. I used to love to watch her reading the bible which she done every day.

but Uncle Ned or Ted never came home after he went to America and I never heard whether he married. I dont think he liked writing as the letters to Grandmother Witheridge were few and far between.

I think this is all I can think about now so once again wishing you the best of health and in your work

Your Cousin
Susannah.

Dear Cousin Susannah:

It's many years since I've written to you, and I hope you and your family are in good health. I certainly appreciated the interesting and detailed information you gave me about our common ancestors. I've been getting so much information, it's hard to hold it all in my mind.

I note that you have a son, John Granville, who lives at Oldhill, Staffordshire, and that both he and his wife Joan are teachers. They have two sons, one 17 years old and the other 14. I know their life is very interesting, because we also had two sons go through their teen years.

Then you have a daughter, Pearline, married to Sidney T. Fryer, with whom you live. How fortunate you are to share their home and all the exciting family experiences. I see they have three daughters, aged 22, 16, and 12. When you write, tell me what your children and grandchildren are doing these days. You also promised to send me their pictures some day.

It is certainly a tense time in which to be living, at least in the United States. I'm sure this is why I haven't found time to write to you for several years. It seems to me the main problem has been the Vietnam War in which we have been embroiled.

Our two boys--Jim, 23, and Tom, 22--are of draft age, and their lives have been badly disrupted. They are both what we call "conscientious objectors," and are serving two years of "alternative service," instead of serving in the armed forces.

Race relations have also been at the breaking point in recent years. In Minnesota this not only involves Negroes, but also American Indians, of whom we have about 16,000 in the Twin Cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul. The church is trying to do the right thing and gets criticized from both sides. As the Executive Director of the Greater Minneapolis Council of Churches, I am deeply involved in all this.

I may have told you that my wife, Elizabeth, is the author of children's books. Her last book was about a Negro slave girl back in 1815. Right now she is working on a book about an American Indian boy, which should be published in about a year.

In 1967 my Uncle Ed Witheridge made a trip to England and Wales, but I did not hear whether he was able to include a trip to the Midlands. Did he visit you or any of your sisters? I think he did meet Gladwyn Adams (Mrs. William E.). Could you please give me her address?

I think this is all I can write at this time. I hope you are well and will be able to answer soon.

Yours sincerely,

David E. Witheridge

RATIONAL ECLECTICISM AND THE OLDEST MANUSCRIPTS: A COMPARATIVE STUDY OF THE BODMER AND CHESTER BEATTY PAPYRI OF THE GOSPEL OF LUKE

BY

J. NEVILLE BIRDSALL

George Kilpatrick has been in the present generation the reviver of rational eclecticism in the textual study of the New Testament, although he acknowledges C. H. Turner as a forerunner through his studies of Marcan style. Kilpatrick has applied his knowledge and acumen to the text without reference to the codicological history of the witnesses to any reading chosen or rejected by him, while always having in view as the ultimate object the restoration of the original text. It has seemed to some of us, while considerably influenced by his work, that this is a rather one-sided presentation of the problems: and that the way of advance lies not only in studies of vocabulary and style and the evolution of the Greek language in the New Testament and subsequent periods, but also in manuscript study, especially but not only of the earliest witnesses. To tell the truth, Kilpatrick has always encouraged this type of research in others although he has not much practised it himself. In this study, to which I have returned from time to time over several years, now presented in his honour as to a friend, I have attempted to utilize the methods which Kilpatrick has made his own in assessing the relative value, as approximations of the original text, of our two earliest papyri of Luke in which any extent of text is to be found.[1]

Orthography

In proper names p75 appears regularly to have the older form, namely a Semitic form or one nearest to the Semitic original: thus we find (9:30) μωυσης and (10:39 and 42) μαριαμ (in contrast with p45 μωσης and μαρια)[2] We have to take note however that the second volume of Moulton-Howard,[3] discussing μαρια in its declinable and indeclinable forms found that by the time of the main uncial witness (to which of course they were limited) there was "perpetual variation ... even in a continuous narrative" and that "there are great inconsistencies and a rule seems unattainable". A glance at John 11 comparing our two witnesses shows something of the same complexity and inexplicability: in the four verses where comparison is possible (20, 28, 32, 45) p75 has μαριαμ, p45 μαρια or μαριαν except in 20 where they coincide with μαρια (which is the reading of the vast majority, although we must expand the attestation given for μαριαμ by Moulton (144-5) from mere 33 to 33 579 Θ 565 1582 2193 138, if we may trust von Soden). There seems more consistency in the data of Luke in our two witnesses however: perhaps the problem was originally limited to John, where a number of problems about proper names (e.g. the use of the article) appear to be sui generis for that gospel. In two related nouns (10:34, 35), p75 has the hellenistic form πανδοχεῖον, πανδοχεῖ while p45 gives the Attic with "κ" for "χ" which Phrynichus,[4] for instance, commends. Again, in verbal conjugations, it is p75 which gives the mixed conjugation ἀπῆλθαν at 10:30 and the form without augment εὐδόκησεν at 12:32, both Hellenistic forms.

[1] The pattern of this kind of assessement is G. Zuntz, The Text of the Epistles (London: OUP, 1953) Chapter II "The oldest manuscript". The present writer attempted something similar in The Bodmer papyrus of the gospel of John (London: Tyndale Press, 1960). Rational criticism applied to textual traditions is exemplified in the classical work of M.-J. Lagrange, Critique Textuelle. II La critique rationelle (Paris: Gabalda, 1935).

Two conjunctions come into the reckoning here: for elision of ἀλλά (11:33, where p75 has ἀλλ') a decision is wellnigh impossible;[5] while for the crasis κἄν (p75: 13:9) Blass-Debrunner[6] accepts the reading, but apparently on grounds of attestation rather than some clear rule of usage (p45 καὶ ἐὰν has support of D 157 472 1009 only): Radermacher[7] implies its acceptability but without specific reference.

Changes of case, gender and number

We leave aside the evidently itacistic variation of 11:36 (p45 ἐχων after σωμα). The neuter πνεῦμα is treated as grammatically masculine in p45 at 9:40, 11:24, 25. At 9:40 this reading is also known in D 124 174 and three lectionaries; at 11:24 there is considerable support for εὑρίσκων but only that of nine manuscripts for ζητῶν, and in 11:25 ἐλθών also has wide support (this time including D). The transcriptional probability seems to be from the masculine, the evil spirit being strongly personalized, to the grammatically correct neuter: in other words, the reading of p45 and its different groups of allies in this matter is to be preferred.

A similar case however (αὐτὰ/ αὐτοὺς) is dependent upon the conflate reading of p45 (12:24): τὰ πετεινὰ is an intrusion into the verse (sc. from Matt. 6:26) and the pronoun is attracted to it, as it stands in first place after the verb. This reading is unacceptable. The plural ἀποθῆκαι in p45 in the same verse is similarly to be explained and rejected. The reading of p45 at 11:41 ἐν τῇ ἀγόρᾳ in the singular number is unique to that manuscript: I suggest that this may be rejected as a "lection banale", one market place to a town.

Three instances concern the genitive case. One of these is probably due to scribal error, if indeed the transcription of Kenyon be correct: namely 9:48 where the restoration εν πα[σιν υ]μ̣ω̣ν̣ is found. At 12:44 we encounter a tricky problem of usage, namely the participle of ὑπαρχεῖν used in the neuter plural: is the sense more substantival or does it retain a verbal force? Both following genitive (implying the former) and dative (implying the latter) are found. There are eight occurrences in Luke[8] of this participle in this sense. It is not simple to define the Lukan usage however: at 8:3 the dative appears well established with seven mss. only in dissent. Elsewhere the genitive is the better attested. Only at 12:15 (αυτου : αυτω) and 19:8 (μου : μοι) is there weighty variation. In the verse under consideration, the sense seems to require the substantival force with the genitive: if we are right then in following this combination of majority attestation and exegetical propriety, p75 gives the better text: perhaps αὐτῷ at 12:15 influenced the scribe's memory here in p45.

In considering the remaining case of this kind (9:53) we meet a combination of factors: the reading of p45 is singular and consists primarily of a change in word order viz. τὸ πρόσωπον ἦν αὐτοῦ πορευομένου.

[8] Viz. 8:3, 11:21, 12:15, 12:33, 12:44, 14:33, 16:1, 19:8. At 12:15 p75 reads αὐτῷ: it is not extant for 19:8.

It would seem the simplest explanation of the change of nominative to genitive as an instance of attraction to the preceding αὐτοῦ following the change of order. It is almost without meaning and worthless for the text.

Presence of the article

Sophie Antoniadis in the only study devoted solely to the grammar of Luke writes with confidence "l'article dans le NT, comme dans Luc, ne présente pas d'irregularités dans son emploi. On l'a déjà vu, il précède des noms dont on a déjà parlé ou dont l'existence est établie".[9] In spite of her confidence (which nevertheless should be treated with respect, as the view of one looking at an area of "New Testament Greek" against the background of the Koine as a whole and the evolution of modern Greek), every case demands consideration on its merits, as the length of the section devoted to the article by Blass-Debrunner[10] may suggest. We take the cases which arise in the papyri under consideration in ascending order of difficulty according to our judgement.

The addition of τὸν ante ἄρχοντα at 12:58 in p45 (singular reading) is to be rejected, as attraction to succeeding articles. This instance follows the rule of Antoniadis.

At 13:19 the reading εἰς κῆπον ἑαυτοῦ which conforms to Septuagintal usage,[11] has undergone correction in p45 and ten other mss. The addition of τον is secondary. The addition of τοὺς ante φραγμοὺς at 14:23 by p45 may be another case of pedantic change. At 11:11 (p45 υιος p75 ο υιος) and 11:42 (p45 υμιν φαρισαιοις : p75 υμιν τοις φαρισαιοις), it is p45 which carries the solecistic reading which invited correction. At two other points also p45 seems to have a subtle reading, which the alternatives attested in p75 obscures. These are at 9:48 where the article of ὁ μέγας (p45 1093) might be anaphoric to the dispute of verse 46;[12] while at 12:54 the reading of p45 τὴν νεφέλην, which is the majority reading, here may well refer to the beginning of the wet season, and not to any cloud. Its removal is a further instance of grammatical pedantry, from which clearly neither witness nor its allies is free. Is p45 also acceptable at 10.19 (ἐπάνω τῶν ὄφεων καὶ σκορπίων D 157 GregNyss), referring to "serpents" (or "serpents and scorpions") as a class (cp. the following πᾶσαν τὴν δύναμιν του ἐχθροῦ)?

However at 11:45 p45 omits the articles as D does : the textual situation is very complicated however and suggests dislocation at a stage earlier than the additional confusions peculiar to the papyrus (viz. the inversion ὡς ἐστὲ, which seems meaningless). The textual complications have their root in the exegetical problems, and we cannot suggest on purely internal or linguistic grounds the originality of any specific reading.

There remain the instances where changes are found in the article before the name of Jesus. We have two such, in each case a singular reading : at 9:33 the absence of the article in p45 (πρὸς ἰησουν : πρὸς τὸν ἰησουν); at 10:39 its absence in p75 (πρὸς τοὺς πόδας ἰησου : πρὸς τοὺς πόδας τοῦ ἰησου). Colwell[13] has argued that singular readings should never come into such discussion as this. If he be right, the matter is settled. But Martini[14] appears willing to accept the singular reading of p75 at 10:39 by analogy with other cases (5:8, 8:35, 8:41). These three cases all concern the feet or knees of Jesus : the absence of the article before the name of Jesus is in all cases attested by B as well as p75, and at 5:8 and 8:41 by others. Yet its absence may be a stylistic peculiarity of the Alexandrian tradition : certainly the norms of Greek syntax are not reflected in it, and not being as convinced as Martini of the excellence and neutrality of that tradition, I should be loth to accept it as a mark of Lukan style.

Changes in the verb

We may disregard at 9:48 and 11:21 the presence of indicative mood for subjunctive in subordinate clauses. This is a solecism for which the scribe must be responsible : it cannot represent the intention of the evangelist, although it highlights phonetic causes which lay behind changes in the language then and later.

At 11:38 the two witnesses present a different voice: p45 700 ἐβαπτίσατο p75 rel ἐβαπτίσθη. This is a case where the minority clearly retain the original text, and the majority present a nonsense, reflecting semantic changes and loss within the language. βαπτίζειν in the middle voice means to wash oneself: the passive is appropriate only in the Christian ritual context.[15] Its presence here must represent the demise of the aorist middle and its significance,[16] and its supplantation in this verse by a form of inappropriate meaning. (We may compare the change at I Cor. 10:2 where however the semantic problem was more subtle).[17] Liddell-Scott-Jones[18] is in error in following the majority text and giving the passive the "meaning", to perform ablutions, in this passage.

Two cases meet us in p45 (12:6 and 30) of regimen Atticum (neuter plural subject with singular verb): this must be correction on stylistic grounds. In each case it is interesting that p45 gives a reading adopted in the Byzantine texts: at 12:6 the influence of parallelism with Matt. 10:29 may be discerned, while even in Matt. 6:32 (the parallel of Luke 12:30) the Byzantine text had the singular verb.

6:37 presents an interesting variation, p45 giving the future passive indicative after οὐ μή, while p75 gives the aorist passive subjunctive. The usage is "almost restricted to quotations from the LXX, to sayings of Jesus, and to Rev(elation)",[19] whichever tense and mood be adopted. The future is not found in the Ptolemaic papyri: and the only certain example in the New Testament without the type of variant here shown is Matt. 16:22 where the verb is ἔσται, for which no aorist stem is available.[20] This seems to suggest that the aorist would be the form more natural to a Hellenistic writer, and that the future is a purist correction.

A number of variants are found between the present and aorist tense-stems. At 9:29 for the present infinitive, p45 and the first [20] B-D. para. 364.1. The form of words here ("das einzige sichere Beispiel fuer das Fut. ist Mt 16:22") is formally correct, yet we should note that Rev 18:14 while it has the variant readings εὑρήσεις, εὕρῃς, has no aorist variant for εὑρήσουσιν. (We find aorists at Luke 21:33 and Rev. 9:6 too, other examples given by Moulton Proleg. 190 as "unambiguous").

hand of the Sinaiticus (= S) have the aorist (Sinaiticus has made the contrary change, aorist to present, in the preceding verse). Here Colwell's caveat against singular readings is borne out by the context. Jesus went up into the mountain to "begin to pray" or "to engage in prayer" (inceptive force of the aorist): and "during his prayer" (continuous force of present tense-stem) he was transfigured. p45 has simply repeated the tense of the preceding verse: I suggest that the error of S has no relationship to the papyrus here. In three further cases too, it is p45 which upon examination proves to have the secondary reading: 9:34 where the aorist ἐπεσκίασεν (p45 pler) is perhaps harmonized with ἐγένετο, but where furthermore ἐπεσκίαζεν (p75 B S pc) is more subtle than the aorist, viz. "began to overshadow", coinciding with the latter part of the verse, "as they entered the cloud". Similarly, 13:13 ἐδόξασεν (p45), ἐδόξαζεν (p75) "she began to glorify God". At 10:39 the aorist of p45 might just possibly be interpreted as a gnomic aorist: Mary being transformed into an ideal figure, "ever hears" the master:[21] but this is oversubtle, and the more feasible solution is that in addition to the common confusion which gave rise to the other instances, we have here too the opportunity for uncial error by dittography viz. HKOYЄN < HKOYЄЄN < HKOYCЄN.

The perfect was in process of decay in the Hellenistic period and disappearing before the encroachment of the aorist: thus we have an antecedent probability that perfects will be original, aorists corrections, perhaps unconscious. Thus at 10:20 the reading of p75 ἐγγέγραπται will have preference over p45 (ἐγράφη): and at 11:21 καθωπλισμένος (p75) over καθοπλισάμενος (p45), where probably itacism (ω<ο) has abetted the transformation. At 14:20 the reconstructed η̣γαμη̣κ̣α̣ of p45 is, if correct, probably not a perfect but a variant aorist form:[22] the ἔγημα of p75 is an aorist form of the Attic dialect, and is never found in the New Testament without variation.[23] If we were sure of the reading of p45 it might be preferable (the usual variant is ἐγάμησα).

At 10:19, the δίδωμι[24] of p45 is probably a substitute for δέδωκα of p75.

There are a number of changes between present and future forms.

[21] See J. M. Creed, The Gospel according to Luke (1930) ad loc. although he knew no variant here.

[22] It is unattested elsewhere. The facsimile is totally inadequate. I have not seen the original.

At 11:10 p75 B D read ἀνοίγεται, p45 rel ἀνοιγήσεται. The latter is probably an assimilation to the preceding verse, and smacks somewhat of the "banal reading", softening the striking declaration. At 11:23 the σκορπίσει of p75 looks like a simple error. At 11:41, the change has been from the ἐστὶ of p75, which is the normal apodosis of a Hebraic style conditional sentence (with imperative in the protasis) to the ἔσται of p45, arising from taking the imperative "au pied de la lettre". The same verbal change at 11:34 (εστιν) appears due to the parallel passage of Matt. 6:22 (sine varia lectione).[25]

Two instances of a change in p45 from finite verb to participle (9:30, 12:7), although they may be Semitisms[26] in orgin, are, so far as the text of Luke is concerned to be explained as harmonistic changes. (cp. Matt. 17:3, Mark. 9:4, Matt. 10:30).

Pronouns

Kilpatrick has suggested that while frequent use of pronouns was a feature of Hellenistic Greek, the tendency was to remove them under the influence of the more succinct norm of classical Greek.[27] If we accept and apply this criterion, we find, perhaps to our surprise, that the balance of acceptability lies with p75. At 12:22 p45 (with Byzantine support) reads ὑμῶν post ψυχὴ while p75 omits it. However in six cases p75 has the longer text (9:36 αὐτοὶ : ibid. οὐδὲν after οὐδένι, 9:49 αὐτόν, 9:52 αὐτου, 10:40 μου post ἀδελφή, 11:20 ἐγώ). In four of these in fact, the omission in p45 is a singular reading. No criterion can or should be used as a bed of Procrustes : there are doubtful cases in p45 at 9:48 and in p75 at 12:52 and 14:23. Omissions are found in both papyri in the verse 14:8 : these are part of a more complex situation and may not be resolved in isolation.

Additional words

Lagrange was another of Kilpatrick's forerunners in the application of "critique rationelle" to the New Testament text. In respect of addition of words and changes of phrase, he set out a valuable and well-known list of possible contrasts which help us to distinguish false from true in this area of variation and corruption.[28] We shall draw upon these as well as other criteria in the discussion of these categories.

Firstly, instances where p45 displays a succinct reading. 10:11 presents us with the following contrast.

| p45 | p75 |
|---|---|
| καὶ τὸν κονιορτὸν | καὶ τὸν κονιορτὸν |
| ἡμῖν | τὸν κολληθέντα ἡμῖν |
| ἐκ τῆς πόλεως | ἐκ τῆς πόλεως ὑμῶν |
| ἐις τὸυς πόδας | εἰς τους πόδας |
| ἀπομάσσομεθα | ἀπομάσσομεθα ὑμῖν |

Here in p45 we seem to have deliberate excision of ὑμων and ὑμῖν, but the omission of τὸν κολληθέντα can surely only be accidental. The text is corrupt. At 10:14 and 11:31 the phrase ἐν τῇ κρίσει is found in p75 rel plur but omitted in p45. In the first of these there is other variation (ἐν ἡμέρᾳ κρίσεως : ἐν ταύτῃ τῃ ἡμέρᾳ) as well as the omission: harmonization with Matt. is unlikely since this would occasion the phrase ἐν ἡμέρᾳ κρίσεως which in fact has little attestation in Lukan witnesses. The variation ἐν ταυτῇ τῇ ἡμέρᾳ reflects the preceding verse 12. ἐν τῇ κρίσει then must be the Lukan reading, and its omission in p45 must be accidental, due to a carelessness which has already appeared in a number of instances discussed. At 11:31 too this must be the explanation : the omission of vs. 32 in D may well be original; but ἐν τῇ κρίσει must have stood in the text of vs. 31 in any event, or the sense halts.

At 11:14 however, the addition of ὁ κωφός post ἐλάλησεν clears up an ambiguity. p75 then, which attests this addition here, gives a secondary text. 12:47 is singularly difficult. It might appear that the awkward reading of p75 S B al pc μὴ ἑτοιμάσας ἢ ποιήσας (supported also in the Byzantine tradition with the change of ἢ to μηδὲ) is secondary since we have the simpler phrases μὴ ποιήσας D (to which p45 bears witness with the careless omission of μὴ !) and μὴ ἑτοιμάσας W lat syr. However when we consider, we may see that the reading of the majority is a splendid instance of "leçon fruste" : the originators of the simplified versions have been attempting "élégance". Hence again (stupid mistakes apart) p45 is secondary.

ding. We may summarize since most instances speak for themselves. 12:24 (to which we have already needed to refer above) is a clear conflation. 12:31 however seems to point to carelessness on the part of p75 omitting τοῦ θεοῦ (v.l. αὐτοῦ) against all other attestation. The addition of ἰδῆτε post πνέοντα at 12:55 in p45 with only versional support, is a banality. 13:34 presents the omission in p75 alone of the words τῆς ἑαυτῆς νοσσιᾶν ὑπὸ τὰς πτέρυγας. Martini[29] nevertheless is willing to defend the shorter text (quella lunga ha l'aria di una addizione esplicativa) and one might suggest harmonization as the origin of the reading of the rest.

At 11:15 we have the quite distinct form of words in p45 ἐιπον : ἐλάλησαν ὀχυροὶ λεγόντες. Merk[30] has characterized this as "lectio ... sensus satis obscuri" and the word ὀχυροὶ quite justly as "in novo testamento tam peregrinum". Is this an exegetical addition ? Yet it is hard to find any Old Testament passage where the word bears other than a literal sense. Certainly, Liddell-Scott-Jones do not record any but literal meanings for it in the period covered by their Lexicon, and no patristic passage given by Lampe[31] seems to contain a clue. In any event, it is clearly not original.

Closely linked with additions of various kinds, often occasioned by stylistic or exegetical considerations, are changes of phrase and vocabulary.

At 13.15 we meet in all attestation except p45 the phrase ἀπεκρίθη δὲ αὐτῷ ὁ κ̅ς̅ καὶ εἶπεν. Now this is a construction typical of Johannine, not Lucan style. The form in p45, ἀποκριθὲις δὲ αὐτῷ ὁ κ̅ς̅ εἶπεν, is the normal Lucan form. In spite of an inclination to accept it, although singular, for that reason, it is probably correct to see the change in P45 as stylistic regularization, and the reading of the majority as original (its origins lying probably in the sources utilized by the evangelist).

At 11:13 in place of ἐξ οὐρανοῦ, which p75 attests with some supporting witness, p45 reads ὁ οὐράνιος. This adjective is found seven times in Matthew, never in Luke, and in the parallel passage (7:11) is a variant reading for the more widely attested ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς. The reading of p45 here is unlikely to be a case of direct harmonization :

more probably, it has arisen out of the subvariant ὁ ἐξ οὐρανοῦ influenced by the more familiar Matthaean phrase.

At 10.21 p75 attests an addition of τῷ ἁγίῳ post π̅ν̅ι̅. There is a tendency in the tradition of Luke to add ἅγιον to πνευμα as variants at 3:16 and 12:10 show : the text of p45 (a Byzantine reading) is original. At 11:13 however, πνεῦμα ἅγιον, the reading of p75 is likely to be original. The reading of p45 (πνεῦμα ἀγαθὸν) is cognate with the various intrusions of Matthaean or quasi-Matthaean forms (e.g. ἀγαθὸν δόμα, δόματα ἀγαθὰ cp. Matt. 7:11 ἀγαθὰ).

At 11:12 p45 substitutes ἄρτον for ᾠόν : there is no doubt that p75 here preserves the original text (with B sys sah). For the form of text in p45 there is no other attestation, and while there is much corruption in the tradition of the verse, it is hard to see how the reading of the papyrus arose other than by carelessness from a ( ?longer) text into which the wording of Matt. 7:9 had intruded.

At 13:22 for the text attested in p75 rel, (καὶ πορείαν ποιούενος) p45 reads τὴν πορείαν ποιούμενος. As a singular reading this cannot be accepted, but its origins are hard to determine. It creates asyndeton and thus might be a stylistic correction.[32] An alternative possibility is the misreading of a cursive abbreviation :[33] This however depends on the undemonstrated practice of writing Christian scriptures in cursive at an early period. (The adaptation of the codex form would provide a parallel adoption of a trade format for the Christian writings). The existence of such evidence as the Rylands fragment of John written in bookhand in the early part of the second century probably dismisses the suggestion of a cursive ancestor of the third-century p45.

Stylistic change meets us in both papyri elsewhere. At 9:27 p75 S B L Ξ 1 1582 read the rather rare αὐτοῦ : p45 gives ὧδε in company with the rest of the witness. This may be harmonization with the other synoptics :[34] it is also interesting to note that the locative αὐτοῦ is glossed in the Lexicon of Hesychius,[35] although the interpretation is not ὧδε. The possibility of an intrusive gloss is thus an alternative. At 14:31, p45 reads οὐ where p75 has οὐχὶ. This is singular to p45 although D has its own singular reading οὐκ εὐθέως. The reading of p45 looks like an attempt to dismiss the double interrogation. On the other hand, p45 can give an acceptable reading. At 12:56 p45 D read πλὴν τὸν καιρὸν where p75 rel have τον καιρὸν δὲ. This seems like a correction of the popular πλην[36] in the sense of "but", which is a Lukan usage (e.g. 6:24, 6:32, 10:11). At 10:31 the uncommon word συγκυρίαν (written συνκυρειαν) is retained in p45, but the corrector of p75 has the gloss συντυχίαν,[37] with which we may compare κατὰ τύχα of D. At 11:39 p75 reads τε for δε, in a context where this particle would be adversative: even Martini rejects it on the grounds that τε (found in Acts) is there always associative in use.[38]

The variants we have reviewed are not the total number of contrasts between our two oldest extensive witnesses. A lengthy list of changes of word order has been left undiscussed: there is no study yet of word order in the Greek of the New Testament period to help us find applicable criteria. Nor have we entered into the readings of 9:50, 9:61 or 11:40 where major differences reveal themselves. What we have reviewed however, we consider to provide us with some objective factors in the assessment of these papyri. It has to be said at the outset that in total the discussion highlights the relative trustworthiness of p75 and the tradition of which it is our oldest example. This is rather surprizing to a member of a generation taught by Kilpatrick among others to doubt the relative excellence of the Alexandrian or "Neutral" text. Yet here we find that in orthography p75 is clearly an instance of a careful transmission, not influenced by Atticizing tendency in this respect. In most cases of change of case, number and gender, it has the better record. At 12:24 and 10:19, p45 may be preferable in matter of the article: but generally is not. In tense changes of the verb it is p45 which has a number of purist changes (regimen Atticum, future passive) while the same situation appertains in the use of the pronoun. Changes of words, when examined, show that p45 is inclined to careless error to a much higher degree than p75, which however is not without faults of this kind. Stylistic changes are generally in p45 rather than in p75. The latter is a relatively careful exemplar of a sound and faithful philological tradition[39].

This does not take us any further forward however in the solution of some historical problems about the transmission of the New Testament text. What was this sound and faithful philological tradition? Where did its practitioners work? From whence did they obtain their texts and their methods? Why did they occasionally lapse in their judgement? (Perhaps when a degree of unanimity is reached about the acceptability of readings, an analysis of those Alexandrian readings which should be rejected, might give us a picture of their principles when pushed beyond reasonable limits). But the other traditions are still more puzzling. How did there come about texts (such as p45 and D, or p66 in the Johannine tradition) in which some good old material was preserved, but where generally there was found change on stylistic grounds, banal simplifications, mingled with mistakes, and handed down in traditions where scribal carelessness is frequently evident? The geographical explanation was dismissed long ago: both types of textual transmission have their oldest instances preserved in Egypt. The enigma remains unsolved. While every new discovery, every fresh look at earlier acquisitions, is welcome to the scholar, we have to conclude, grudging though our admission is, that in respect of the gospels and their transmission, the Bodmer collection has done no more than underline these two great unresolved problems of the history of early Christian philological practice, while providing us with a very good early manuscript.

Dear David & Elizabeth,

Thank you for your recent card.

We are happy to report that Katherine got good A-levels ("B" in Biology, "C" in Maths & Chemistry): and so, her place at St Andrews is approved.

Irene seems to improve. During my German trip (which was very enjoyable & productive) her mother visited, and last weekend (Aug 15) we took her back to Carmarthen, and afterwards, had about four days touring the Wye Valley & the Forest of Dean, which lie by the Severn on the English/Welsh border.

Irene has an appointment for us to see a consultant on Sept 2. Thus we shall not be able to be at ~~Heath~~ Ipswich to say goodbye. But we'll then keep in mind.

Yours ever,

Neville & Irene.

Dear Elizabeth, Dave and all: 1976

Thanks very much for your newsletter and note. We are slow as usual with cards, etc., but are nearing the end with the W's! It was interesting to hear of your sojourn in England and brings back memories of our visits there, which we also enjoyed very much. We had a car there in '52 for about three weeks. We must get up to the Twin Cities sometime to see you and other friends, not to mention relatives (Dora's niece and family). And/or why not pay us a visit in the summer (or anytime) and relax here for a few days. Just let us know and we shall send directions.

I know Neville quite well of course. He has been doing the final editing on the text of Luke plus critical apparatus which we have been working on for many years. He probably explained all this to you.

We have stayed close to home this year except for a week in Princeton (RSV Comm.) and a visit to a son in Belleville, Ill., which enabled me to attend some sessions of SBL-ASOR-AAR at St. Louis (ca 10 miles away).

Merry Christmas to all of you! Allen (+ Dora) W.

Dear Irene and Neville:

We didn't get around to writing to you before Christmas, but we thought you'd like to see this letter anyway. We are so far behind because of our summer trip that I don't think we'll ever get caught up!

Although we would love to have seen you at the airport in September, we enjoyed your note, Neville, and were glad to hear that Irene was improving. We do hope she is much better now and look forward to hearing.

We are delighted with these pictures and hope you like them, too. I'm sorry it has taken so long to send them, but that is one thing that had to wait.

The same with this paper. I had to present it to a small clergy group in September and kept hoping I could expand it but never got the time. So I finally had it mimeographed in this form.

We had a lovely Christmas note from Allen and Dora Wikgren and he spoke appreciatively of you and your work, Neville.

Thanks again, Irene, for your information about Cannon and Beddington Row including the old postcards. We're so glad we got there before Beddington Row was torn down.

All our love,
Dan + Elizabeth

Dear David & Elizabeth,

Neville has a habit of putting things in 'safe' places and forgetting them. This is my excuse for replying to your letter post-dated Jan 1977, but it happens to be true! Thank you for so kindly sending me snaps of the family you visited. I enjoy looking at them as they are all cousins I grew up with until our teens when we all went our various ways. I am happy for you that your visit to Britain gave you so much pleasure. To be able to combine business with pleasure & especially to meet in the flesh the many relatives who had previously been names on a family tree must have given a great deal of satisfaction.

Our youngest daughter Katherine was married in June of this year. She married the youngest son of our vicar (who conducted the marriage of Alison) and now lives in Edinburgh having graduated from St. Andrews also in June. Our elder daughter Alison gave birth to a daughter in the Spring. They are now leaving us for N. Zealand, flying out on January 16th. We shall be sad to see them go but of course would not wish otherwise. They now have two children who we take a great pleasure in as you might imagine. Our two sons are well, working hard at their own careers, one a 1st Officer now in the Merchant Navy (the real sailors we are told) and Richard our elder son ~~is~~ a computer engineer, he own careers, one a 1st Officer now in the Merchant Navy (the real Sailors we are told) and Richard our elder son a computer engineer, he designs & builds computers. They would both like to settle down but seem to have difficulty in meeting young ladies who wish to be married. I trust that you are both keeping in good health & that your sons also are well & happy.

It gave me great pleasure to have you in my home even for such a brief time. I am sorry I was not a 'fit' hostess

May 9, 1980

Dear Irene and Neville,

We greatly enjoyed your December letter with all the news of your family. I can certainly understand your taking so long to answer my previous letter, because I have been so far behind myself with my correspondence. Now that I have retired, I am gradually getting caught up, at least to a degree.

From our Christmas letter you are aware that we are planning another trip to Britain this year. For various reasons we are not coming until late in the summer. We now have plane reservations to leave here on August 2nd and return on October 2nd. I have recently made a first draft of a possible itinerary for our trip. It will be a little simpler because I won't be doing any ecumenical study, but we do hope to combine sight-seeing with genealogical research and visiting relatives and friends. We'll hire a car for seven weeks as we did in 1976.

Among the things we absolutely must do again is to see all of you in the Birmingham area. That visit was one of our special joys last time. According to the schedule I have laid out, we would be there from Tuesday afternoon, September 2nd, to Thursday afternoon, September 4th. We would probably go first to Pearline's, but whether we would spend one of the nights with you, we'll leave up to you and her.

Pearline Argust (b.1925)

While there, we want to see Jean Argust and all the children of the three families who are able to see us. It sounds as though all your children have moved away, except perhaps Richard, who may be working in Birmingham.

We also want to visit a Bessie Witheridge and her brother Dick, who live not too far from you at Hertford Hill near Warwick. I have written to her a few times, and I think they are distantly related to us, but I'm not sure yet just how.

By the way, I've had very good success tracing our Witheridge ancestry (and related family lines) back into Devon. My Witheridge record goes back through Combe Martin to Berrynarbor as early as 1666. I'll show this to all of you when we come.

We'll be anxious to know whether the dates I've suggested will be satisfactory for you. I'm sure you'll want to check with Pearline and Jean. If these dates are not convenient, we'll have to make some adjustments in our itinerary. In fact, we may have to suggest a change ourselves, if some of the others can't see us on the dates proposed.

Please let us know soon whether or not these plans will fit your schedule.

All our love,

Dear Irene and Neville:

We were so happy to be able to have lunch with you and a good long chat as we were passing through Birmingham in September. You were very kind to us, and we thank you very much.

These have been very busy days since we arrived home October 3rd. There are always so many things to do to unwind after a two-month trip. And then there were things left undone before and during our stay in Britain, not to mention all the preparations necessary for winter, especially in our climate.

Recently we got the prints back we were having made from some of our slides, and here is one we thought you would like a copy of. We like it very much, and we hope you will, too.

Our whole trip in Britain was very enjoyable, and we learned a great deal about both Elizabeth's ancestry and mine. After two long stays we feel quite at home there now!

We're looking forward to seeing both of you in Minneapolis one of these days. We'd love to have you as guests in our home, and we'd love to show you around Minneapolis and the surrounding area.

The other day I was surprised to have a telephone call from Allan Wikgren, who was visiting briefly in Minneapolis. They live about 150 miles from here in Northern Wisconsin. He was interested to hear of our visit with you last summer. He mentioned having attended some national professional meeting recently.

Best wishes to you both for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year!

All our love,

David + Elizabeth

Dear Elizabeth & David,

How nice to hear from you in the form of a Christmas letter and with such good news too of Tom's forthcoming marriage. I realise how happy this will make you both. Neville & I are very well, surprisingly, as we have had rather a hectic time during the past six months, not all of it being 'good' so to speak. We went to Australia & New Zealand during the months of July, Aug & Sept. Neville did some lecturing at Perth, Sydney & Brisbane. It was all very successful & we thoroughly enjoyed visiting these Australian cities & university centres. We then went on to N.Z. first visiting the South Island. We managed between Dunedin & Canterbury lectures to go sight seeing at Queenstown & Mt. Cook, both were extremely cold & breath takingly beautiful. We then flew north to Wellington where our daughter Alison lives with Paul & their two lovely children aged 2½ & 4 yrs. We had a lovely holiday, enjoying our grand children naturally, but this was marred by the news that our oldest son Richard had been involved in a very terrible & tragic car crash in which he has since been the sole survivor. Sadly the four occupants of the other car were American servicemen, probably young men as were the occupants of the car in which Richard was a passenger. Christian friends the length & breadth of Britain & across the world have been praying for his recovery since the accident on August 8th. The prognosis was that he would be discharged in March. He was in fact home for Christmas. He is now on crutches & becoming gradually mobile. His left arm is paralysed through damage to the nerves when his collar bone was broken. However this is improving slowly & I am sure given time (2 yrs we are told) he will one day be fit & strong again. We rejoice that we still have a son, he however finds it much more difficult to come to terms with his condition. The rest of our family are well & happy with the spouses of their choice. You may have heard of the appalling Winter Snows & low temperatures we have suffered during December. Now the thaw has set in & we have floods everywhere. It sounds like your Nov. freak storm preceded ours with similar chaos. Neville went to a conference in San Francisco Dec 14-22nd. Yes we would love to visit you one day! Trust you had a happy Christmas. Best Wishes for 1982 from Irene & Neville

Dear Irene + Neville,

We were glad to hear from you in January and to hear about your enjoyable trip to Australia and New Zealand. But we were greatly distressed to hear about Richard's accident and injuries. We know you have been going through a very difficult time, and we hope that Richard has been improving more rapidly than the doctors anticipated. We shall be praying for all of you as the days go by.

We both got through the winter with only an occasional cold, and now spring is at hand. We always get some snow in March, and just the other day we got about 2", which brought our total for the season to 89.5". This broke the former record of 88.6", set the year we arrived in Minneapolis – 1951. We still have about 5" of snow on the ground, but that is melting fast.

June 5th will soon be here. That is the date set for Tom and Virginia's wedding in Chicago, and we are all looking forward to a delightful time there. They are both very busy in their studies and at work.

Later in the summer Elizabeth and I will be taking a trip to the east coast – especially Pennsylvania, Maryland, and New England.

Sometimes we go through Ontario going or coming, and I've wondered whether we could go through Kincardine and meet your brother John and his family. I have his address as 400 Adelaide St., Kincardine, Ontario. If that is no longer correct, please let us know.

I'm still working on genealogy, and this week I think I traced our Ley ancestry back to a Walter Ley in Combe Martin in 1510. (Rebecca Ley married William Witheridge in 1723.)

With love & best wishes,

Dear David and Elizabeth,

I am going to be participating in a conference at the University of Notre Dame, Indiana, in April 1988, specifically on the dates 15 to 17 April.

I am in the process of arranging some lectures in other institutions both in the Mid-West and in the East. The dates are not at all fixed yet, and so I am not sure whether I shall start East and come West, or go in the other direction, with Notre Dame as focal point in either case. But I shall be around during April.

In this very generalized framework, I hope I might be able to visit you. Will you be at home in April, if I could arrange to come? Perhaps you can let me know.

I do not know where we are in respect of information about each other You will see that we moved house once more. The house with address in Selly Oak, proved too small and had the added disadvantage that we could not easily worship in our former parish church, as we gave the car up some years ago. So we moved back very near to the old Shutlock Lane address and are able to participate again in our church. This is a very great blessing, as we have a new young visionary priest, and a parish which looked moribund is beginning to flourish.

This is a nice house, built in the thirties, but we have had a great deal of rebuilding and renovation done since we moved almost a year ago. We have added a new kitchen, and many shelves for my library. I took early retirement in September 1986, and most of the books formerly at the University are now here.

I am writing this in the early morning, having had one of my fairly sleepless nights. Irene is still safely asleep but will certainly in my greeting to you.

Ever yours,

Neville

August 11th 1987.

Dear Elizabeth & David,

By now you will have concluded that I am the world's worst correspondent! Thank you for all your letters and cards over the past years which I read over each time I come across them.

As you will see we have made another move which astonishes most of our friends since moving house is an expensive business and only done if absolutely necessary. We found our very modern house attractive & easy to run but not really 'us'. This home is very much us and is just around the corner from our home in Shutlock Lane. We favour walking to church on Sundays and this we are able to do as we continue in membership at the Church of the Ascension where Katherine was married. We have a new parish priest who is conducting a wonderful ministry for which Neville & I have longed. Our church is growing week by week and we are richly blessed by the experience. A week ago I went to Leamington Spa to meet up with Bessie Witheridge. We had lunch together & a good time sitting in the sunshine admiring the flower beds in the beautiful park there. She has not be so well in the past year, but at the age of 70. is most resilient, bright and strident of voice. We have 'hit it off' as individual people and enjoy meeting. Thank you David for the introduction. I hope you are both keeping in good health.

Now you will gather from Neville that he is invited to attend a conference (or something like it) next year in April. I will not travel around with him but may I visit you so we could spend some time together in the States?

If this could be arranged then I could plan some kind of itinerary around it. Neville is an excellent preacher should you wish to make use of him on our visit. In my retirement I write and tell short stories mainly for Senior Citizen clubs. I am still a novice but I enjoy it tremendously. I haven't your last newsy letter just by me so am wondering how things are with your sons and if you are now proud grandparents. With love from Irene.

Dear Irene & Neville,

Your two letters brought very exciting news. April should be a wonderful time for you to visit here, and we look forward to your being our guests as long as you can stay. We can assure you, Irene, that we can show you a good time while Neville is away at his speaking engagements. This can be your home away from home for both of you.

We are glad you both have retired, and it sounds as though you are both in good health. We know how you must feel about the older, more comfortable house you are now in. Our house is about 75 years old, and we love it.

We hope neither one of you is allergic to dogs. We have a most wonderful Norwegian Elkhound named Rokk — friendly, beautiful, and easy to live with. I mention him because a few years ago one of our former ministers and his wife came back to visit, but when they found we have a dog, they couldn't even have a meal here, because the husband is allergic to dogs.

It's good to know that you and Cassie Witheridge have become such good friends. We loved getting to know her when we were there. Give her our love when you see her or talk to her.

Our own health has been reasonably good this year. We keep busy with church and home and garden. I work on genealogy quite a bit, and during the school year Elizabeth gives talks to school children on her experiences writing books. Our son Jim is not married, and he lives just a few blocks from us in Minneapolis, so we see him rather frequently. He works for an organization that provides residences for persons suffering from AIDS, and he feels he is performing a greatly needed service. Our son Tom and his wife Virginia live in Chicago and both work for Thresholds, a psychiatric rehabilitation center. They both got their Ph.D's from Northwestern last winter. A year ago they had a very premature baby, who lived only 18 days, but we all have faith that another child will be coming along one of these days.

Now I must close and send this off with a warm invitation for you both to visit us next April.

Dear David and Elizabeth,

I do not know if Irene has written to you since your so kind letter of 22 August. I know that I have not, and this is because I wished to wait until the prggramme had become clearer. We are grateful for your expression of welcome and look forward to the part of our tour when we are with you.

May this please, be over Easter, arriving at some point during Holy Week and stayingat least over the festival?

My programme has the following fixed points up to the moment.

April 11 & 12 University of Michigan, Ann Arbor
April 15 to 17 University of Notre Dame, Indiana.
April 29 to May 1 Dumbarton Oaks, Washington DC.

Tentative proposals have been made to the College of Biblical Studies. Abilene Christian University, Texas. I have proposed March 20 as the beginning of the week during which we shall fly to the USA, and start the trip in Texas. We might then go to Nashville, if I get an invitation to Vanderbilt, where a colleague works in the field of the Georgian language, and then to Lexington, Kentucky, where we have some friends, who gave us an open invitation. Nearer, relatively, to you, ~~one~~ is the University of Iowa.

Anyway, things are beginning to form themselves into some patterns, which is an important first step.

Irene is away at present. She and Frank have had a little tour of Dyfed (West Wales), and she has now gone on to Devon to look after Jonathan and Rosemary's children while they have a trip to Brittany (ie. J & R).

All our love,

November 2, 1987

Dear Irene + Neville,

We were pleased to receive Neville's letter with more specific information on your trip next spring. The period before and after Easter will suit us just fine, and we want you to stay as long as you can. Of course, our springs are slower arriving here than they are in England, so we can't guarantee the weather, and the flowers won't be as far along as yours. But we have a very beautiful city with 14 lakes within the city limits and a lovely park system.

Irene, you may want to spend some additional time with us while Neville is involved in conferences and speeches. When your plans have been developed, please let us know. Of course, we'll meet the two of you at the airport and get you back there as required by your schedules.

Now a word about our own plans for next year. For some time we have been wondering when we could return to Britain for a visit. It now looks as though we'll be able to do that from about May 15th to June 15th next year. We haven't started yet on working out an itinerary, but we surely want to visit you and the others in the Birmingham area. We'll try to develop our plans before you start your trip next March.

We look forward to hearing further from you.

Love,

David + Elizabeth

Dear Irene & Neville, February 25, 1988

Our plans are nearly complete now for our trip to Britain, and I want to check with you about the date we hope to come to Birmingham. We expect to arrive in London on Saturday, May 14. After about a week in the London area, we'll be hiring a car for three weeks and driving through England, Wales, and Scotland.

First, we'll go to Essex for about three days, where Elizabeth has her Plumb roots. Then we'll be in Devon about four days, making a few other stops on our way there. After that we'll spend about three days in Wales and in Birkenhead, near Liverpool. On Thursday, June 2, we plan to drive to Penarth to stay overnight with Pearline and Sidney, hoping to see others in their family, too.

Pearline Argust (b. 1925)

The next day, Friday, June 3, we'd like to come to your place for lunch, if that would work out for you. I assume we'd get there by 11:30 a.m. and would want to leave by 3:30, in order to drive to Nuneaton to spend the night with Philip and Caenwen Hookway. You may remember that they are distant Witheridge relatives. On the following day we have to drive to Virginia Water, near London, for a Witheridge family gathering. As you can see, this is a very tight schedule, but we have many places to go and people to see in a very short time. Fortunately, you'll be with us at Easter time, and we'll have plenty of time to talk then.

Our schedule is so tight that we won't be able to stop at Bessie Witheridge's until we are on our way back from Scotland on Thursday, June 9. We fly back to Minneapolis on Monday, June 13.

We're looking forward to receiving more specific information on when you will be in Minneapolis, including arrival and departure flights and times. We hope your schedule of engagements has worked out the way you had hoped, Neville. And we hope we can give you some beautiful spring weather.

Please let us know soon if Friday, June 3, will be satisfactory for you. If not, we'll have to see if we can adjust our itinerary in some way.

All our love,

David + Elizabeth

P.S. Please give us directions on how to reach your house, and perhaps a rough sketch or map.

Dear Elizabeth & David,

I hope I'm forgiven for my neglect in writing all these months. We have not had a hard winter - in fact it has been very mild. As a result there has been a great deal of illness in the way of chest infection, sore throats and so on, of which we too have had our share. It continues to be mild weather and Spring flowers are making a show already. However the forecast is "cold weather on the way after today."

Our Christmas was extremely busy as we wanted to entertain so many friends who had not been to visit us at 259. Entertaining thus kept us busy for a period of about four weeks. Katherine lives just 20 miles away so she was able to join us with her David & two little boys. The rest of our family we didn't see but we keep in touch by 'phone of course. I hope your family Christmas was good too.

We are both looking forward to our visit to Minneapolis. A place I remember well from my school-girl Geography lessons in the 1940's. We have looked up temperatures for the month of April as we want to be adequately clothed. I imagine that it will be much like our Spring weather with a touch of Winter coolness in the air because your winter is very much colder than ours is normally. Any suggestions to guide us will be helpful. We shall be in Dallas before visiting you where we expect the temperature to be quite high., hurray!

Dear David and Elizabeth,

We have not written again since your reply of 2 November 1987. It seemed to me fruitless to do so until all arrangements were made for my little tour.

Things are now as follows: we shall leave Birmingham on 23 March to fly to Dallas, Texas, on 24 March. Early in the next week, I am lecturing at Abilene Christian University. We shall leave Dallas, as things are planned, and if it suits your convenience, on Wednesday 30 March or Thursday 31 March, and fly to Minneapolis.

the times I have been given are Abilene - Dallas 0915 hrs arr. 10.10 hrs. Dallas - Minneapolis (North Western Airlines) 11.15 hrs arr. 13.25 hrs. 1.25 p.m.

I propose to leave for Detroit (to make my way to Ann Arbor, where I am lecturing on 11 & 12 April) on 10 April. I have an early time from Minneapolis viz. 0845 hrs., but this was in relation to some other plans, and I shall probably take a later plane, if there are several, as I presume there must be.

Irene will leave you on 11 April to return to England. She does not wish to stay away longer, as Beryl and Cyril will probably come up to occupy our house while we are away, and we cannot impose longer. She will fly from Minneapolis to New York (JFK) 13.40 hrs arr. 17.00 hrs, Parkin and will connect with a British Caledonian flight at 18.25 hrs.

After University of Michigan, I am at a conference at Notre Dame, South Bend, Indiana, and later in April at Dumbarton Oaks, Washington, DC. I then fly home on 2 May. I have yet to fill in my schedule between Notre Dame and D.O., but have several plans in mind.

I hope we are not inviting ourselves for too long. We shall look forward to seeing you. Would you please confirm our suggestions by return if you can, so that all will be tied up safely.

Ever yours,

Neville

Dear Irene & Neville, March 2, 1988

Thank you for your letters of February 22 with information about your trip. We are looking forward to your visit, and we are pleased that you will be able to stay about eleven days. We'll be able to show you many things, and we'll plan some interesting things to do.

Wednesday, March 30, will suit us just fine, and we'll plan to meet you at the airport for the Northwest flight arriving from Dallas at 1:25 p.m. If you find you have to change this to Thursday, March 31, let us know.

Of course, we'll take Neville to his plane on April 10 and Irene to hers on April 11. I'm interested that you're going to Ann Arbor, Neville. Did you know I graduated from the University of Michigan in mechanical engineering and worked with my father four years as a heating and ventilating engineer before entering the ministry?

Since I wrote February 25, we've had a slight change of plans. Our friends in Birkenhead will be away through June 1, so we've had to delay our visit there until the afternoon of Thursday, June 2. That means we want to stay overnight with the Hookways in Nuneaton on Wednesday, June 1. Since they are both away during the day, (both are teachers), we'd like to come to your house from about 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. on Thursday before we drive to Birkenhead. We hope this change of one day will work out all right for you. Please drop us a note and let us know, instead of waiting to tell us when you get here, as I'd have to do some other adjusting if Thursday, June 2, won't fit your schedule. I assume that you both have retired and would be free to see us in the middle of the day.

Just a word about weather and clothes, Irene. I see by a chart just published in the paper on the weather throughout March that the average high and low on March 31 are 46°F and 28°F. However, the highest we ever had on that day was 82°F in 1986, and the lowest was −1°F in 1969. You have to be prepared for chilly weather, sometimes even snow. Elizabeth says to bring one or two warm things, like a wool skirt and a sweater. You should have a light-weight coat, perhaps one that is water-repellant in case of rain, with a sweater to wear under it in case there's a cold spell. Neville will have to figure it out for himself!

Love and best wishes,
David + Elizabeth

Dear Elizabeth & David,

It is now a week since you took me to the airport for my journey home. If you had not been there to negotiate for me David, I think I might have been there still! However no harm has been done to me, I hope that you were both soon recovered after such an experience.

I went to my grandson's birthday the day after my arrival home. It was a beautiful warm day made the more so on account of their back yard being walled and therefore sheltered. I played party games with the boys (5) ranging from age 1½ yrs to 6½ yrs. We had a lot of fun as you may imagine.

Yesterday I phoned Bessie so we are meeting for lunch on Friday to catch up on our news. I will have a lot to talk about won't I? I was walking through the park yesterday when a young duck, startled by a dog, dropped an egg a few feet away from me. I picked it up, it was still warm, and brought it home. I am keeping it in a warm place for the time being, but I cannot possibly hatch it successfully so, as I post your letter, I intend taking it to the Nature Reserve where they will put it under a broody hen and hope for the best!

The nicest thing about arriving in England and leaving the airport was the sight of all the green fields and the wonderful display of daffodils in full bloom 'dancing in the breeze'. It was a most welcome sight and I perhaps experienced something of what visitors from the States experience on first sighting England.

I potted the little cuttings Elizabeth, as soon as I arrived home. They travelled well but they don't seem very happy just now! Perhaps the changes of temperature

April 30, 1988

Dear Irene & Neville,

We enjoyed your phone call, Irene, and also your lovely letter with news of all the interesting things you have been doing. Every so often we remember how delightful it was to have you with us, and many people who met you have expressed their pleasure in getting to know you. We passed on the York address to Mary and Harry, and they were very grateful.

Just two weeks from today we'll be arriving in England, and it seems like such a short time in which to do everything that needs to be done. We're still having correspondence back and forth about our itinerary, and guess what! You are now going to have the extreme pleasure of our staying overnight with you on Thursday, June 2!

We've just heard that our friends in Birkenhead, Eric and Joan Allen, will not be able to get home from their trip to Sicily until June 4, so we won't be able to be with them on June 2 as we had planned. Although we'll miss not seeing them, it will really be more relaxing just being with you until we go to Pauline's & Sid's the next day. We'll assume this will work out all right for you unless we hear to the contrary.

If you want to write us, you should probably do so in care of Mrs. Kim Cook, 18 Hawkhurst Way, West Wickham, Kent BR4 9PF; Ph. 01-777 6072. No doubt we told you that Kim and Ray will be picking us up at the airport and returning us there later. We'll be staying with them a couple of days at the beginning and at the end of our stay, and they will always know where we are in case you need to reach us while we're in Britain.

Because of some of our discussions while you were here, we thought you'd enjoy the enclosed clippings from our paper. Now I must close and get back to the many things I have to do before we leave.

Much love,
David & Elizabeth

Dear David & Elizabeth,

It was truly a very great joy to see you in Birmingham once more. We are just sorry that the stay was so short. Perhaps next time it will be for longer and we can show you some of the pleasure of England's 2nd City.

We have thought of you as you have journeyed South & then north. We hope that all your visits, contacts and enquiries have been pleasurable and fruitful, but above all we hope you have kept well, warm & dry.

Neville is in the throes of a bad cold on his chest which must have been gathering momentum towards the end of last week. I do hope that neither of you have taken it too!

Enclosed please find one pen left on the bedside table.

I close in haste to post this while the rain has abated. What a disappointingly wet vacation you have had.

With love from us both.
Neville & Irene.

Wishing you a safe journey as you return home to your home, family & not forgetting Rokk, give him a big hug from me!

Dear Irene + Neville,

It hardly seems possible that over two months have gone by since we arrived home. We both had severe colds that lasted several weeks, probably from the cold, damp weather we were not used to at that time of the year. In addition, we found they were in the midst of a dreadful drought and heat wave here that is only now coming to an end. All this meant that our energy level has been very low, and we haven't yet finished all the things needing to be done after our trip, including writing many letters!

We did have a most wonderful trip, and we accomplished almost everything we had planned. We had absolutely no car trouble in our 3,000-mile drive through England, Wales, and Scotland, though occasionally we were temporarily lost.

Thank you very much for the lovely time we had with you. You went out of your way to be such gracious hosts, and we felt very much at home and closer to you because of your being with us earlier in the year.

We hope you enjoy the enclosed pictures, two of which, as you see, were taken here in April. We're sending two prints of the picture of Katherine and her darling boys, so you can give her one.

Thank you for sending Elizabeth's pen to us. It seems as though we kept forgetting things here and there as we traveled, but fortunately nothing serious. Our coats were waiting for us in London, as well as an umbrella which we had left in another place!

Now I must close, as I still have many more letters to write.

All our love,
David + Elizabeth

August 25th 1988.

Dear David & Elizabeth,

I had just settled down to some letter writing when the postman dropped yours in the hall. I am anxious to write as a postmen's strike is being threatened any day now.

Thank you for your letter and the enclosed pictures which are really good. I have been anxious about you both as your month in England was so very wet and cold. It was most disappointing for you. However you have written of your time here as being a wonderful trip. I am so glad for you that the memory of your visit is such a happy one.

We have followed the news both of the drought in the U.S.A. and also of the election campaigns though I cannot claim to fully understand them (campaigns). They are executed very differently from ours.

Thank you again for the pictures and for your kindness on our visit. We both wish you a speedy return to your former levels of energy & enthusiasm.

With much love

Irene & Neville.

30th September 1989.

Dear David and Elizabeth,

It has been my intention to write all through our long warm sunny and often hot dry summer. Now that the days are shortening, autumn is settling in 'though the days continue to be bright and sunny, I feel if I don't settle down to my correspondence this morning in earnest I shall find myself dealing with 'Christmas Cards' before I can look round!

We are enjoying our new life in the town of Darlington. It has quite historical beginnings being the town when Stevenson developed his first steam train and built the Darlington to Stockton Railway line, which was the very first passenger line about 12 miles long. Neville's great grandfather must have come to Darlington to work during that period. He was a builder by trade. We can see the place where Neville's grandmother was born (not necessarily the same house) and the road is a small cobbled street called Post House Wynd. ('A narrow lane' is the definition of 'Wynd.') We attend for worship the church where Neville's grand parents were married. We are once again deeply involved in church affairs being sidemen, teamakers and readers of the lesson for the day. All these on a rota of course. I am on the church Council for the Parish and have joined several other meetings. So we are set for yet another busy period in our lives. Market days are Saturdays + Mondays. A few minutes out of town + we are in the lovely Yorkshire Dale country.

So! How is the little grand daughter, who by now has had a first birthday. I do hope you are managing to see a little of her as the early years are so charming and wonder-making. I note

Dear Elizabeth & David, 22.10.90.

I have in front of me your letter of August 18th 1988, written on your return home from your trip to the U.K. That would have been just about the time that we were visiting Mary in Darlington, thought it a good place to retire to, sold our Birmingham house & moved here on December 10th! I ~~may~~ must say that we haven't regretted the move one little bit, except that I am rather far off for visiting my grandsons, seeing Bessie while I am over there and also my closest friend is in Birmingham too, of course. However life in Darlington has a slower pace, we are very close to the town centre and therefore are able to walk along to the shops as needed. The doctors' surgery is opposite us as the houses are very large in this road and are often now made into flats (appartments to you) or consulting rooms in the case of the medical centre opposite. The church we attend is just 5 minutes away, across a small park, not a big one as we had in Shutlock & Moorgreen Lanes, but still a leafy pleasant area where the elderly sit in the sun on their afternoon walks. I keep rather busier than I ever imagined I could be when not in full time employment. Each Sunday I have some duty to perform either as a sidesman, reading the lesson, leading intercessions, making & serving tea or coffee after the service or accompanying the curate taking communion to a residential home opposite the church. My weekdays are equally busy with regular weekly, monthly and quarterly meetings. I find myself on consultative committees planning programmes for 5-10yr olds in Sunday School and preparation classes for 15+ yrs old who are to be confirmed and entering in full church membership next June. I'll not continue to describe my full & busy ~~life~~ life it would be sounding boastful, but I am enjoying all that I do and am glad to be able to use the ability I have. Glad to say that we both keep well, walk a great deal more than we did in B'ham, but we enjoy it all. Neville has been glad too of the time he has gained through taking early retirement. This was our fourth trip

Dear Irene and Neville,

I was greatly distressed to get Neville's letter about your brain tumour, Irene, and I was certainly glad they were able to operate and institute a course of treatment. It will be long and stressful, but you seem to be getting the best possible care, and I trust it will be successful. You have always been an optimistic person, and I know that will help in your recovery.

I shall miss seeing both of you at Tiverton*, and I know you looked forward to being there, but you have other priorities now. The whole gathering will be thinking of you and praying for you during those days.

anyway ~~Please~~ let me know later how things are going, as I shall ~~be~~ and thinking of you often with great concern.

Lovingly,

I trust that our family and friends will excuse a pro forma account of the crisis which has beset us in respect of Irene's health.

On March 5, Irene was taken to hospital in Darlington, with a suspected stroke. The main symptom was inability to speak. She was treated and discharged on medication. On March 19, she had an identical attack, with more serious speech loss, and further investigation revealed a brain tumour.

She was immediately transferred to Middlesbrough General Hospital where Mr. Philip Kane removed the tumour on March 26. On April 1, he was able to tell us that he had succeeded in removing most of the tumour (which at an earlier stage of diagnosis elsewhere had been considered inoperable). The biopsy however revealed that it was malignant.

She will therefore need an intensive course of radiotherapy. We saw the consultant oncologist, Dr.Charla, on April 7. Treatment will start in about two weeks at South Cleveland Hospital (Ward 3), Marton Road, Middlesbrough.

She will return home, ~~probably~~ * certainly on Friday April 11 at the end of this week, and later return to Middlesbrough for her treatment.The course will be of about twenty-five days, five days each week for five weeks. As foreseen, she will be at home at weekends.

I intend to see her each day, so that cards and letters sent here will reach her on the day of arrival. If parcels or flowers are to be sent, it will, I think, be best to check her current address with me. As of today, she is at West Lane Hospital, Mbro.

Both neuro-surgeon and oncologist emphasise to us that this type of tumour can recur, and statistics reveal no regular pattern of the interval which might be expected. She will be kept under regular surveillance by the oncologist. I imagine that this remaining threat thus covers everything from sudden relapse to an intimation of our common mortality. The family has felt shock and grief. I now feel, however, confident that she will have very good care, and that every effort for as good a result as possible is being, and will be, made.

She is very brave, and appears to have lost most of her fear and apprehension. She makes a steadfast witness, and ministers to her fellow patients.

We are grateful for all the messages and floral gifts, and especially for the prayer which is being made for us and our family. We are manifestly upheld by it and ask that it may continue. We are encouraged by many words of scripture. Romans 14.8, "whether we live or die, we are the Lord's" is often in my mind.

Ever yours,
J.Neville Birdsall

INTRODUCTION

Hymn:

Art thou weary, art thou languid,
Art thou sore distrest?
'Come to me', saith One, 'and coming
Be at rest!'

Hath he marks to lead me to him,
If he be my guide?
'In his feet and hands are wound-prints,
And his side.'

Hath he diadem as Monarch
That his brow adorns?
'Yea, a crown, in very surety,
But of thorns.'

If I find him, if I follow,
What his guerdon here?
'Many a sorrow, many a labour,
Many a tear.'

If I still hold closely to him,
What hath he at last?
'Sorrow vanquished, labour ended,
Jordan past.'

If I ask him to receive me,
Will he say me nay?
'Not till earth, and not till heaven,
Pass away.'

Finding, following, keeping, struggling,
Is he sure to bless?
'Angels, martyrs, prophets, virgins,
Answer, Yes!'

President: The Lord be with you
People And also with you

All: Almighty God, to whom all hearts are open,
all desires known,
and from whom no secrets are hidden:
cleanse the thoughts of our hearts
by the inspiration of your Holy Spirit, that we may perfectly love you,
and worthily magnify your holy name;
through Christ our Lord. Amen.

The President invites the people to confess their sins.

All: Almighty God, our heavenly Father, we have sinned against you and against our fellow men,
in thought and word and deed,
through negligence, through weakness,
through our own deliberate fault.
We are truly sorry and repent of all our sins.
For the sake of your Son Jesus Christ, who died for us, forgive us all that is past;
and grant that we may serve you in newness of life to the glory of your name. Amen.

The Bishop of Jarrow absolves.

All: Lord have mercy
Christ have mercy
Lord have mercy

NEW TESTAMENT READING
Romans 8: 28-39

PSALM 121

All: I lift up my eyes to the hills: but where shall I find help?
My help comes from the Lord: who has made heaven and earth.

He will not suffer your foot to stumble: and he who watches over you will not sleep.
Be sure he who has charge of Israel; will neither slumber nor sleep.

---

The Lord himself is your keeper: the Lord is your defence upon your right hand.
The sun shall not strike you by day nor shall the moon by night.

The Lord will defend you from all evil: it is he who will guard your life.
The Lord will defend your going out and your coming in: from this time forward for evermore.

Glory to the Father and to the Son: and to the Holy Spirit;
as it was in the beginning is now: and shall be for ever. Amen.

Stand

Hymn:

Through all the changing scenes of life,
In trouble and in joy,
The praises of my God shall still
My heart and tongue employ.

O magnify the Lord with me,
With me exalt his name;
When in distress to him I called,
He to my rescue came.

The hosts of God encamp around
The dwellings of the just;
Deliverance he affords to all
Who on his succour trust.

O make but trial of his love:
Experience will decide
How blest are they, and only they,
Who in his truth confide.

Fear him, ye saints, and you will then
Have nothing else to fear;
Make you his service your delight,
Your wants shall be his care.

THE PEACE

Hymn:

Soul of my Saviour, sanctify my breast,
Body of Christ, be thou my saving guest,
Blood of my Saviour, bathe me in thy tide,
Wash me with water flowing from thy side.

Strength and protection may thy passion be,
O blessed Jesu, hear and answer me;
Deep in thy wounds, Lord, hide and shelter me,
So shall I never, never part from thee.

Guard and defend me from the foe malign,
In death's dread moment make me only thine;
Call me and bid me come to thee on high,
Where I may praise thee with thy saints for ay.

THE EUCHARISTIC PRAYER

President: The Lord be with you
All: And also with you

President: Lift up your hearts
All: We lift them to the Lord

President: Let us give thanks to the Lord our God
All: It is right to give him thanks and praise

President: It is indeed right ...
... for ever praising you and singing,

All: Holy, holy, holy Lord, God of power and might,
heaven and earth are full of your glory.
Hosanna in the highest.
Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord.
Hosanna in the highest.

Kneel

President: Hear us, heavenly Father ...
... Do this, as often as you drink it, in remembrance of me.

All: Christ has died.
Christ is risen.
Christ will come again.

President: Therefore, Lord and heavenly Father ...
... now and for ever.

All: Amen.

THE LORD'S PRAYER and BREAKING OF BREAD

President: As our Saviour taught us, so we pray.

All: Our Father who art in heaven,
Hallowed be Thy name.
Thy kingdom come,
Thy will be done
On earth as it is in heaven.
Give us this day our daily bread
And forgive us our trespasses
As we forgive them that trespass against us,
And lead us not into temptation
But deliver us from evil
For thine is the kingdom,
The power and the glory
For ever and ever. Amen.

President: We break this bread to share in the body of Christ.

All: Though we are many, we are one body, because we all share in one bread.

All: Lamb of God, you take away the sins of the world:
Have mercy on us.

Lamb of God, you take away the sins of the world:
Have mercy on us.

Lamb of God, you take away the sins of the world:
Grant us peace.

President: Draw near with faith.
Receive the body of our Lord Jesus Christ which he gave for you, and his blood which he shed for you.
Eat and drink in remembrance that he died for you, and feed on him in your hearts by faith with thanksgiving.

HOLY COMMUNION

Members of the congregation who take communion in their own churches are invited to receive communion in this service.

Others present who wish to receive a blessing are invited to go forward. Will these please carry their order of service.

Hymn: Here, O my Lord, I see thee face to face;
Here faith would touch and handle things unseen;
Here grasp with firmer hand the eternal grace,
And all my weariness upon thee lean.

Here would I feed upon the Bread of God;
Here drink with thee the royal Wine of heaven;
Here would I lay aside each earthly load;
Here taste afresh the calm of sin forgiven.

I have no help but thine; nor do I need
Another arm save thine to lean upon:
It is enough, my Lord, enough indeed;
My strength is in thy might, thy might alone.

Mine is the sin, but thine the righteousness;
Mine is the guilt, but thine the cleansing Blood;
Here is my robe, my refuge, and my peace,
Thy Blood, thy righteousness, O Lord my God.

Feast after feast thus comes and passes by,
Yet passing, points to the glad feast above,
Giving sweet foretaste of the festal joy,
The Lamb's great bridal feast of bliss and love.

President: Jesus said, I am the resurrection and I am the life: whoever lives and believes in me will never die.
John 11. 25,26.

All: Father of all, we give you thanks and praise, that when we were still far off
you met us in your Son and brought us home.
Dying and living, he declared your love,
gave us grace, and opened the gate of glory.
May we who share Christ's body live his risen life;
we who drink his cup bring life to others;
we whom the Spirit lights give light to the world.
Keep us firm in the hope you have set before us, so we and all your children shall be free,
and the whole earth live to praise your name,
through Christ our Lord.

All: Amen.

Stand

The Bishop of Jarrow Commends Irene to God and blesses the congregation.

Hymn: During which the funeral procession will leave the church.

To God be the glory! Great things He hath done!
So loved He the world that He gave us His Son;
Who yielded His life an atonement for sin,
And opened the life gate that all may go in.

Praise the Lord! Praise the Lord! Let the earth hear His voice!
Praise the Lord! Praise the Lord! Let the people rejoice!
O come to the Father, through Jesus the Son;
And give Him the glory! Great things He hath done!

O perfect redemption, the purchase of blood!
To every believer the promise of God;
The vilest offender who truly believes,
That moment from Jesus a pardon receives.

Great things He hath taught us, great things He hath done,
And great our rejoicing through Jesus the Son;
But purer, and higher, and greater will be
Our wonder, our rapture, when Jesus we see.

The opening and closing hymns and the reading from the epistle to the Romans were chosen by Irene for this service, early in her illness. After accompanying the coffin to the crematorium, members of the mourning party will return to Walkington House to meet their other friends there. Please wait if you can.

Outline of the life of Irene Birdsall

Irene was the fourth child of seven of William and Gladwyn Adams, in the mining village of Cwmaman, Glamorgan. She was educated at the village primary school, and won a scholarship to Aberdare Girls' Grammar School. She trained for the teaching profession at Hull Municipal Training College, qualifying in 1946. Before her marriage and until the birth of her first child, she taught successively in Birmingham, Suffolk, Glamorgan and Essex.

She "learnt Christ" in the Anglican tradition. While still a child, hearing an address by a Welsh Anglican missionary in Persia (Iran), she was moved by the thought of the service of God in the spreading of the gospel of Jesus Christ. This remained her goal throughout her life. (She later met the missionary again, by then a bishop of the Church in Wales, to the great surprize and pleasure of them both !).

Her spiritual experience was deepened by encounter with the Baptist tradition at Hull in her student days. She identified herself with that tradition, finding her needs met by its warmth of fellowship and clarity of Bible exposition. She made the first steps of volunteering for service overseas, and it was thus that in 1947 she met her future husband Neville, himself likewise a volunteer. In the case of each of them, personal circumstances ruled out "overseas" service and their Christian life together was to be lived mainly in this country.

They married in 1951. Until 1956, Neville's calling took him to Baptist pastorates in Essex, Hertford and Lincolnshire, while continuing further studies. During that time, three of their four children were born. In 1956, they moved to Leeds, to his first academic appointment. There Irene's fourth child was born. In 1961 they moved again, to Birmingham, where they were to stay until 1988. In all these places, Irene was busy in the work of the church, especially in children's work such as the Sunday School and in the uniformed organizations for girls, Girls' Life Brigade and Guides. She also led worship and preached throughout the whole Baptist period of her life.

After the move to Birmingham, Irene returned to full time school teaching. Before 1965, she occupied as her second appointment the post of Reception Class teacher in the school of the local Jewish community, the first non-Jewish person to be so appointed. In this she showed not only her professional skills which were great in this area, but also bore a Christian witness simply by the quality of her life and character. We both enjoyed our contacts in the Jewish community in Birmingham as we had in Leeds. This was also the period of commonwealth immigration. We played a personal part in helping West Indian Christians to find houses, while there was still no legislation to protect them against discrimination, and integrated a number of married couples and their families into the Baptist church to which we belonged.

In 1965 to 1966 we lived in Los Angeles, where we had many multi-racial contacts. The most signal Christian event was our moving into the Anglican stream of Christian witness, rather for liturgical than for theological motives. On our return we retained this new ecclesiastical position. Irene continued there as before, in Sunday School work and in uniformed organizations. Later, she was happy that the way opened for her to be trained as a server, a role which gave her great spiritual joy and fulfilment.

The Birmingham years also saw further success in her promotions, first to Deputy Head of an Infant school, and then to Headship of what was probably the largest Nursery School in the Birmingham Inner Ring. A far-sighted plan of Warwick University also allowed her to take the degree of Bachelor of Education, specializing in Primary Education. These were great achievements for a wife and mother of four, who never neglected husband or children.

After Neville's retirement, we moved to Darlington. She was invited to join a small women's oecumenical group for prayer and Bible study. This she took with great seriousness, and applied herself solidly to the understanding of scripture. In this way, she had a firm basis for exposition when a new avenue of service within the Anglican communion opened. This was her accreditation as a speaker within the Mothers' Union in the diocese. It is, I believe, true to say that as a speaker, she was heard "with great acceptance" wherever she went. She also helped locally at parish and deanery level. She derived especial joy and gave much service at diocesan level as a committee member, guiding prayer life and organizing retreats.

She was given to hospitality. Several members of her family lived with us for periods in our earliest married years. At Birmingham we had student lodgers from overseas in our home, and fostered for somewhat over a year the baby daughter of a West Indian nurse. Irene could and would often lay a meal for unexpected guests, for instance, university colleagues from overseas arriving late in the day at the beginning of conferences. We entertained regularly both her colleagues and Neville's at evening parties. Throughout our marriage, she supported Neville's academic work and career, alongside her own busy life.

She became ill with a brain tumour in March 1997. Despite surgery and radio-therapy, and a period of improved health, renewed activity of the tumour led to her death on Easter Tuesday 1998. She bore her illness with great calm and courage, in which her faith in God and her love for others was always evident.

In her final illness, especially in its last stages, she was incredibly brave, and never complained. To the end, she still did all she could to make contact and to comfort those who visited. This reveals a quality which characterizes the whole of her life, the overflowing love which went out to others. This informed her work with children, adding a dimension to her great talent as an educator. It was in her encounters with those around her, from new acquaintance to those most dear. It coloured her contacts with those of other racial stock and religious belief. After only a short visit by us to Nigeria, she has been loved and prayed for in a town of that country by Muslim and Christian alike. She devoted herself to the care of her mother, widowed as a relatively young woman, and did all she could to support and encourage her sister and her five brothers.This was without any diminution of her care of children or husband. She was a wonderful Christian. As wife and lifelong helpmeet, and as a mother, she was beyond compare .

Dear Rev. Witheridge,

I have been attempting to do some genealogy on the Witheridge family for some time. My grandmother (born 1880 in Ontario) was a Witheridge who eventually married and relocated to Saskatchewan in approx 1905.

Recently I was advised of a "Witheridge event" in Minneapolis in June/96.

Would you please be able to forward me information regarding this activity as I may be able to accommodate it in my holiday schedule.

If it is more convenient for you to fax information, my fax number is 306-445-6414.

Thank you for your attention to this.

Sincerely,
(Mrs.) Sharon Brydges

Dear David,

Thanks again for your phone call of last evening - it really took me totally by surprise! I have photocopied some of Kathy Witheridge's material to forward to you to perhaps provide you with some interesting reading with regards to our "branch of the Witheridge tree."

My mother, Vivian Hanson (Ayre) presently resides in Edam, Saskatchewan which is approx. 40 miles from North Battleford. Edam is a small rural town of approx. 400 people consisting mainly of retired farmers. Mum is 77 years old, in good health, drives, is active in church work (United), and is the caregiver for my 80 year old father that has Parkinsons, Alzheimer, kidney /heart problems. We have Home Care staff coming in 3 times a day and I try to go there most weekends to do whatever I can. Our Health Care system in Sask. has been undergoing major cutbacks/reform in the past three years and although it needed some changes it seems as if the new philosophy is too drastic! The pioneers who worked so hard to implement adequate/affordable health care over the years now are seeing the care being eroded when they are starting to need it. My parents are fortunate that finances are not an issue however money cannot buy you something that is not available!

My Uncle Clarence Ayre (85 years) is a real character as I'm sure Paul & Kathy will tell you! He is in marvellous health, drives (just bought another new car,) plays the stock market VERY successfully, rides a bicycle around Edam, bought a computer when he was 78 and does the spread sheets etc., has been widowed twice and keeps his own house as if his wife was doing the housework. Also plants a garden every year and does some of his own canning. He is constantly reading and is always up on the latest news/financial issues. Also he is never at a loss for words and is somewhat the centre of attention at family gatherings - the teenagers in our group are even in awe of his knowledge/activities and sometimes that can be a real feat in itself!!

Mum's other brother Elmer (80 years) also is a retired farmer living in Edam. but his health is not so good - has had a knee replacement, has only one kidney, has lung problems and also arithritus that restricts his activities. He still is capable of driving, maintaining their yard/house however has alot of pain.

Now about me - I have a B.Ed degree however after several years decided that was not for me with the everchanging shift in educational philosophy so 12 years ago I went to work as a rehab. counsellor for social service recipients. About 4 years ago I was promoted to the Director's position for North Battleford and area. N. B'ford has a population of approx. 15,000, is basically an agricultural centre, is near several lakes and really has year round leisure facilities including good down-hill skiing which I really enjoy if it is not too cold!! I also taught piano for 21 years and forgot to mention that my Uncle Clarence has his ARTC in piano - has a very expensive organ which he plays daily and derives alot of enjoyment from. I really like to travel and last year we went to Europe for a month (9 countries) and enjoyed every minute of it. We were on a bus trip with 44 other people from all over the world and we thoroughly enjoyed every one of them - there wasn't anyone that complained, was late, abused alcohol or was rowdy. It was rather sad when everyone had to say their farewells and depart for home! My husband was a Supt. for Commercial Construction for over 20 years however due to severe arithritus the past several years has been somewhat restricted in his activities. My parents still have their farm which is rented out however we have 2 horses there and Ted likes the farm life so he spends quite a bit of time there plus helping Mum keep up the house in Edam. It seems that there is always something that needs to be fixed even though it is a relatively new house!

Enough about us - now about June 8/96! We would love to come to meet everyone however there are several complications for us as I mentioned on the phone. Also I must attend a federal meeting for the province of Sask. on June 10/96 which really crowds our travelling time - I am a 10 hour drive from N. B'ford to Winnipeg and then it is about 11 hours more to Minneapolis which doesn't hardly leave us enough time. However we will see what we can possibly arrange. If we are able to come we will book a hotel room, we certainly don't want to inconvenience anyone but thanks for your concern anyway.

I have been a member of our local genealogy society for about 5 years but I find that I don't have the time that it takes to really delve into the past. This will be one of my retirement projects!! I have so many things that I want to do WHEN I retire that I don't know how I'll work them all in!!

We are going to phone Stella Oyos in Devil's Lake, North Dakota tonight and get her son Lynwood's number and address in the event that they may want to chat with some other Witheridge's.

I'm sure you'll enjoy Kathy & Paul - she is like a walking, talking history book on the Witheridge clan!!

I must close and get this in today's mail - thanks again for your wonderful phone call and will keep in touch with you.

Dear Sharon,

I had a letter all ready to send to you which I must now revise after receiving your letter today. It was wonderful to get all the information about you and your family. I haven't yet had time to digest all the family history material, but I have skimmed through it.

I can see what you mean about having a tight schedule to get back to your meeting on June 10th. I don't know what time your meeting is, but you'd obviously have to leave Saturday afternoon in order to make it. If you could get here by Thursday evening, you'd at least have some time on Friday to be with many of the group, in addition to Saturday morning and noon.

I don't know if I told you that Kim and Ray and I will be spending four days, June 3-6, on a trip up the North Shore of Lake Superior as far as Thunder Bay, Ontario. But we'll be back by late Thursday afternoon, June 6th, in case you arrive Thursday evening.

I'm enclosing a map to show you how to find our house from I 94 from the northwest, which is probably the way you'd be coming. Stay on I-94 until you get to the Lyndale exit. Keep going on Lyndale past the Walker Art Center on the right and the Episcopal Cathedral on the left. At that point Hennepin Avenue angles off to the right. Go to 25th St. and turn right a few blocks to Irving. Turn right and go to the middle of the block – 2425 on the right side. Of course, you may go to a motel first, which might alter these directions somewhat.

Besides Kim and Roy from England and Kathy and Paul from Sarnia, we'll have my son Tom, his wife Virginia, and their seven-year-old daughter Rebecca, who live in one of our suburbs; and my son Jim, who is gay, and his partner, David Tortorg, who live in Minneapolis. Then from Detroit we'll have my niece, Jennifer Burke, and from Saginaw, Michigan, we'll have my sister-in-law, Janice Witheridge, and her son Jay. My brother John had a heart attack and surgery, so he probably won't be coming.

From Arkansas we'll have my second cousin, Jean Tomlinson. She has a son Dennis and a daughter Pat Johnson living in the Twin Cities, and they will also be at the Saturday lunch. From Geneva, Illinois, we'll have Tony Witheridge. He was born in Australia, so it will almost be a world-wide event!

I've also invited my niece and nephew Virginia Anne Sorensen and Bill Witheridge, from Bay City, Michigan; and my nephew and his wife, Jamie and Penny Mark, from Sackville, New Brunswick, but I haven't heard yet whether they can make it. In addition, there will be a half dozen friends from Minneapolis who are not Witheridge descendants.

We'll gather at the Minnesota Historical Society building at 345 Kellogg Blvd. in St Paul at 11:00 a.m. to give us a chance to get acquainted before the complimentary luncheon is served about 12:00. Then about 2:00, those who want to go through the wonderful Society's museum may do so, after which we're hoping people will come to our house in Minneapolis to talk further and have a bit of tea and cookies. Of course, you could leave any time you had to after 2:00.

If you need to talk to someone about your plans while Kim and Roy and I are away June 3-6, you can call either Tom or Virginia at (612) 332-4784, or Jim or David at (612) 825-7444.

I hope you can work things out so you and Ed can come, but if that's impossible, we'll understand.

Yours sincerely,
David Witheridge

June 25/96

Dear David,

First of all I want to thank you for your letter with the detailed instructions on how to find your home - I have filed it carefully away in hopes that I can utilize it at some time. It was just impossible to make arrangements to attend the Witheridge event in June and my sincere apologies in not getting ahold of you by telephone prior to the occasion however I had spoken to Kathy Witheridge and she had indicated that she would be calling you and would advise you of our not being able to attend. My father ended up in the hospital the end of May and we were basically going day to day with him and then one of my girlfriends passed away very unexpectedly. All of that combined with my work obligations just made trying to do anything extra virtually impossible. However we would love to meet you at some time when things are not so rushed.

When I contacted Lynwood Oyos regarding the June 8/96 plans he had indicated that Paul Freed was now living in Minneapolis and may be interested in meeting other Witheridge's! I understand that Paul did attend and as a result phoned my mother last evening indicating that he would like to come to Sask. to meet everyone! My mother was very excited (and pleased) as she has never met any of his family members and as an added bonus he is bringing his aunt (Stella Oyos) with him. She is 1 of Mum's 2 living first cousins! They are expecting to arrive on June 28/96 so needless to say we are all excited about being able to meet face to face. I find genealogy very intriguing however it is even better when you can locate some living relatives as opposed to history records!!

I trust that June 8/96 will always be a day for you to remember and many others will also have fond memories. If there was any newspaper coverage of the day I would really appreciate a copy for my geneolgy files if possible.

I must tell you that when I received your letter my first thought when looking at the handwriting was that it was from My Uncle Clarence.! I could not believe the similarity in the handwriting (he is 85) - is that a Witheridge gene that has been common to many branches of the Witheridge Tree?!

My apologies for being so tardy in responding to your letter - have had good intentions for quite some time but seemed as far as I ever got! If you ever feel inclined to venture to Saskatchewan you are more than welcome to spend some time with us at your convenience. Next time I write I will try and include some photos for you (even though I dislike having my picture taken!!)

Must close for now - will try to keep in touch - perhaps Paul Freed will update you when he returns.

Best Wishes,

Sharon Brydges

The Ayre Story can be seen a little further along in the book, which was written by Clarence R. Ayre, eldest son of Thomas and Sarah Ayre.

Sarah Maud Witheridge was the ninth child of John and Miriam Witheridge, and was born in Darlington Township on September 4, 1880.

On August 30, 1905, Sarah Maud Witheridge married Thomas Henry Ayre at Maple Grove, Ontario. The wedding announcement can be seen in the following pages which gives an excellent account of the wedding.

Immediately after the wedding Sarah Maud along with her new husband, Thomas Henry Ayre, moved West.

Thomas Henry Ayre was involved in a farming accident October 6, 1942, and was killed instantly. Sarah Maud Ayre lived a further 30 years and died August 1, 1972. Both are buried at Edam Cemetery, Edam, Saskatchewan.

John Witheridge was the eldest child of George and Mary Witheridge, he was born in Cleverdon, Bradworthy, Devon, England, on December 22, 1839, and baptized at Bradworthy Parish Church on January 5, 1840. John, along with his parents emigrated to Canada on or about the year 1841.

He appeared in the 1861 census, for Darlington Township, at that time he was 21 years old and listed as a labourer.

On May 24, 1862, when he was 22 years old, he married Miriam Moore. Miriam was 19 years old at the time and the daughter of James and Mary Moore. They were married in Darlington Township. Miriam was born in Bradworthy, Devon, England, on September 27, 1842, and emigrated to Canada on or about the year 1853.

John next appeared in the 1871 census for Darlington Township, at that time he was 31 years old, his wife, Miriam, was 28 years old, and had four children at that time.

Their first child, Ida Mary Witheridge who was born on January 20, 1864, having died on February 18, 1864. It would appear that all the children were born in the Darlington Township area, in Ontario.

In the 1881 census they resided in East Whitby Township, Division 2, and had an additional four children.

On August 28, 1884, at East Whitby, Ontario, another son, Herman Claude was born, but died on September 8, 1864. On May 10, 1886, Leslie Eugene was born in Pickering, Ontario, but died on the same day.

Upon the death of John's father, George Witheridge, on April 18, 1884, John Witheridge was left one half of his father's farm, being the north one half of Lot 21, in the First Concession, for the Township of Darlington, in the County of Durham, and being approximately, 93 acres. John and his brother, William Thomas Witheridge, sold the said lands on January 6th 1905 by instrument number 8921, to Walter Foley, Farmer, for the sum of $2,700.00, Walter Foley also assumed an existing mortgage in favour of Richard Witheridge, in the amount of $1,000.00 with interest at the rate of 5% per annum, which the said Walter Foley covenanted to pay.
On or about 1919, it is believed that John and Miriam moved to North Dakota, U.S.A. and took with them their daughter Annie Louisa Miriam Witheridge, who was mentally handicapped. They moved in with their daughter Florence Mabel and her husband, Thomas Bramwell Wood. Shortly after their arrival they all moved to Edam, Saskatchewan, Canada. They settled on fairly poor land and after about five years, the Wood family moved to Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, U.S.A., and John and Miriam moved in with another daughter Sarah Maud and her husband Thomas Henry Ayre, at their farm in Edam, Saskatchewan.

Miriam had suffered a stroke in 1921 and was bedridden for three years, until her death, at the age of 81 years, on May 22, 1924. John died, at the age of 90 years, on November 26, 1929. Both are buried in Edam Cemetery, Saskatchewan.

[1] Recorded in the family Bible.

Eleven children were born to the marriage, Ida Estella being the third of this impressive number of offspring. John and Miriam eventually moved to the wheat fields of northwest Saskatchewan where they lived out the remainder of their lives. Miriam died on May 22, 1924, and John on November 26, 1929. Both were interred in a cemetery at Edam, Saskatchewan.

Marwood was twenty-nine when he married Ida Estella, age 28, in 1895. Witnesses to the marriage were Ida Estella's brother, Irvin George Witheridge, and her sister, Florence Mable Witheridge. The 5"-4", 140 pound "Mir" found employment as a laborer in Bowmanville, either in a piano factory or an iron foundry. It was in this southern-Ontario community that all six of their children were born. They were:

Greta Miriam Lorene Oke - February 12, 1896
John Wilfred Ross Oke - August 2, 1897
Frederick William Oke - February 15, 1899
Nettie Irene Oke - February 9, 1901
Marjorie Maude Patricia Oke - March 27, 1903
Estella Mary Oke - February 13, 1905.

[Note by Sharon Brydges]

Stella Oyos is presently living in Devils Lake, N.Dak. (in good health.)

Finding economic circumstances difficult, the family left Bowmanville in 1909. Ida's brother, Irvin George Witheridge, invited Marwood and his family to come to the Sarles' area, in northeastern North Dakota, to farm. The family traveled by train from Bowmanville, via Winnipeg, to Crystal City, Manitoba, arriving there on March 6, 1909. They were met at the depot by Irv Witheridge and traveled by horse and buggy to the Sarles' area. Living in a vacant house near Uncle Irv's farm, Marwood Oke worked for Irv Witheridge for several years. There followed a sucession of moves to rental properties. Initially, "Mir" rented a farm from Bill Dillabough and then the family moved to a site four miles east and one mile south of Sarles, owned by the Minneapolis Trust Company. The soil of these two quarters of land was poor, production was limited, and grain prices were low. Despite the adversity, this strict Methodist continued to work the land, and the family moved to a farm in the area between Hannah and Wales.

Neither of Mir and Ida's two sons, Ross and Fred, served in the military during World War I. They were about to be drafted in 1918 when they were afflicted with the Spanish Influenza. Many people died of this respiratory ailment that was accompanied by a high fever. Because of the extraordinary fever, Fred Oke lost his hair. By 1925, Ross had moved to Washington state, and following his marriage to Winifred Day he resided in Everett. Fred was very mobile during his younger years. After marrying Agnes Moen on February 22, 1929, he lived at Starkweather, North Dakota, and then moved to Crary in 1940. From Crary, he travelled to Everett, Washington, where he worked in the shipyards until 1944 when he returned to Crary. Fred worked on a section crew for the Great Northern Railroad until his retirement in 1964.

Greta, the oldest of the Oke children, met Clarence Purcell, an itinerant farm hand when he was working in the Sarles area. Following their marriage at Sarles, they moved to southern Kansas. Nettie, the second daughter, also left North Dakota for Washington in the late 1920s. A nurse, she took up residence in Everett where she was to meet and marry John Dalton.

In 1929, "Mir," the inveterate pipe smoker, ill with cancer of the throat, moved to Everett, Washington. Expectations of a positive treatment for the disease at a Seattle clinic did not materialize, and Marwood died in Everett on May 12, 1934. His wife, Ida Estella, lived at Nettie's home in Marysville until she passed away on April 10, 1962, six months short of her ninety-sixth birthday.

During the 1920s, the two youngest daughters, Marjorie and Estella Mary, completed their high school education in the Sarles Public School. Estella Mary (Stella) the youngest member of the family, was four years old when the family moved from Canada to Sarles, North Dakota. Growing up on a farm involved a mix of play and work. She and her sister Marjorie cut illustrations of furniture and people from catalogs and played house with them. She shared a bed with Marjorie (Midge) and there were times when they clashed. On one occasion, Stella was confined to bed with a severe case of the red measles, and Midge tried to annoy her by pulling her hair. This was one of the few times when their mother, Ida, had to separate them.

Saturdays were always anticipated because a trip into Sarles followed a bath in the home's round tub. "Mir" conveyed the family into town by horse and buggy. Cream was sold at the local collection point, and the week's groceries were purchased. The children spent time walking the streets of Sarles, and their dad usually treated them to an ice cream cone.

The Bible Christian ethic of Bradworthy persisted on the North Dakota prairie and Marwood, the strict Methodist, enforced certain Sabbath rules. He would not permit the picking up of scissors or the stirring up of a cake on Sunday. The children attended Sunday School at Calvin, and their father would give them a nickel or dime for the collection plate. Stella admitted that there were times when the money went for candy.

When physically able, Stella helped in the fields, shocking barley, one of the lightest of the grain crops. She also took lunch to the men working in the fields. One such instance led to a lifelong scar as she was cut severely while crawling under a barbed-wire fence. She appeared prone to this type of injury as she cut her arm on a sharp stone while playing in the school yard, leaving another permanent scar.

Washing dishes and gathering eggs were other childhood assignments. Because there was no refrigeration, cream, milk, and butter were put in a bucket tied to a rope and lowered into a well to be kept cool. Minor rebellions occurred, and her even-tempered mother was forced to spank Stella when she refused to bring in kindling.. Their home was heated by two stoves, a large pot-bellied stove in living room, that also provided heat for the upstairs via openings or registers in the downstairs ceiling, and a kitchen range. Both coal and wood were used for fuel.

The girls had to offer assistance at threshing time when the threshing crew, composed primarily of neighbors, came to the Oke farm to complete harvesting of the crop. Ida needed the help of her daughters in feeding the hungry bundle haulers and machine-men. Stella never learned to milk cows because her father feared she would not do it right and "dry-up" the cows. She also never drove horses.

Estella Mary attended Woodbridge Grade School through the eighth grade; Mrs. Ernest Stein was her teacher. As noted earlier, she attended high school in Sarles, graduating in 1923. Her class was made up of 6-8 students. She received her best grades in mathematics, algebra and geometry, and spelling. Her poorest performance was in civics and history. The principal, a Mr. Pierson, was short, fat, and strict. Stella took music lessons, her only extracurricular activity, from Mrs. Pierson. Herfavorite teacher. J. R. Norgaard went on to become superintendent of several North Dakota schools, including Lakota. "Hud," Stella's high school nickname, received some very practical training while attending Sarles High. She appreciated the cooking and sewing instruction that she received in her home economics classes. During her high school days, Stella also learned how to drive a car.

She worked as a teller in Sam Mowry's bank in Sarles before attending Valley City State Teachers College. Stella and Midge enrolled in a three-month summer session to secure teaching certificates. Her goal was to make a little money. And little it was, as she received $75.00 per month at her first and last teaching position.

She was employed for two years at the Billings School, District No. 3, in Billings Township, Cavalier County, 1924-1925 and 1925-1926. District No. 3 was known as the "Berggren School" because it was located a mile and one-half from the Ernest Berggren farm. She stayed at the Berggren home and if the weather was nice she walked to and from school. If the weather was very cold, Mr. Berggren provided transportation via a buggy or sleigh pulled by horses. Included among her ten students was Arvid Berggren, the son of the Ernest Berggrens.

Stella taught all eight grades at the "Berggren School." Teaching rural school during the 1920s included janitorial work. Thus, she had to fire the pot-bellied stove with coal and wood, hoping that the coals would burn through the night so that she would not have to start a new fire in the morning. The teacher swept the floor and accompanied the students out-of-doors at recess time. Included among the simple games of the decade was "fox and geese," if there was adequate snow. Stella carried a lunch basket to school each day. There was a well on the school grounds for drinking water.

Her older sister, Marjorie, went on to teach for five years. While Stella was teaching in Billings Township, Marjorie had taken a position at Nekoma, approximately six and one-half miles to the east. When Stella went to spend a weekend with her sister, she met Oscar Oyos, her future husband.

Oscar Oyos, born at Union, North Dakota, on June 14, 1898, was an infant when he moved with his parents, Ole and Anne Halvorsen Oyos, and sister, Gyda, to East Billings Township

AYRE STORY

(Written by C. R. Ayre)

Mr. Thomas H. Ayre and his wife, Maud Witheridge were not the first settlers in the district but were among some of the earliest. They were both born and raised in Ontario in the Bowmanville - Oshawa area. The parents of each of them had emigrated from Devon, England.

Mr. and Mrs. Ayre were married in Ontario in 1905. There must have been some misgivings among their families when they decided to move out West to what seemed to them a wild, untamed, far away country, populated by unfriendly Indians. Of course, that might have been true twenty to thirty years before.

After their marriage, they first went to North Dakota to work on farms of Mrs. Ayre's relatives in order to gather some money and equipment with the intention of moving to Saskatchewan later.

The move to Saskatchewan took place in June, 1907, after Mr. Ayre had first been out to locate a homestead quarter. To locate land, he came to North Battleford by rail and then there were those who made a living taking future homesteaders out by team and democrat to where there was still available land. Where they ended up was more or less according to where they were taken.

The location chosen was the N.E. section 6-50-18 W3rd. They were more fortunate than some, in that they were able to bring some horses with them and thus escaped the trials of using oxen as many had to. The first house was a very small lumber shack with tarpaper on the outside, then another larger addition of logs was added with a sod roof. Neighbors were few and far between until later, when all the homesteads were taken up.

The land had been surveyed into townships of 36 sections and certain numbered sections were for settlers (4 to a section), certain sections were C.P.R. land grants, some Hudson Bay land grants, the rest crown lands for school purposes and some set aside for Indian reservations.

Mr. Ayre, having horses, was soon able to get jobs breaking land for other settlers, sometimes quite a few miles away, which meant leaving Mrs. Ayre alone for several days at a time with no neighbors. She recalled being at home alone one time when a band of Indians consisting of some thirty or more wagons, many horseback riders, hounds, etc. went by close to her house. It must have been rather frightening after having heard all sorts of stories in Ontario. However, all she could do was tie the door shut and watch as the horseback riders circled the house several times and went on their way. The house was located near a trail the Indians used to go between Thunderchild Reserve and Moosiman Reserve at Jackfish, and their overnight camp was on Blackfoot Creek, this area is now part of the Ayre farm.

Mr. T. H. Ayre driving Rock and Jerry, just home with a load of logs for fuel.

All was well for some time until Mr. Ayre took quite ill (1910). No doctor was closer than Battleford so he was taken by team and democrat to Battleford. The diagnosis was a ruptured appendix, internally. Good health soon returned without surgery.

Later, when each of the homesteads was taken up, neighbors were plentiful, much more so than today (1978). Of course, not all were to stay, some just stayed the necessary time to get title to the land and moved, while many stayed on and made the communities what they are today.

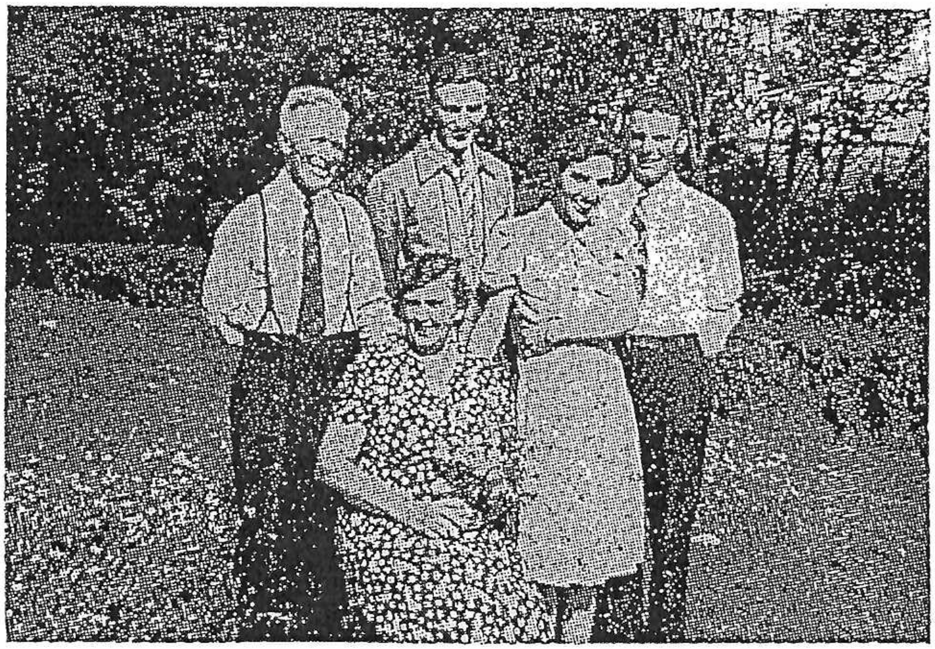
Mr. and Mrs. Ayre moved a few rods south to S.E. 6-50-18, having bought this place from Mr. Ed Bell. This quarter had a two storey house on it and a better water supply. With several additions to it, this house is still there today and their family was all born and raised there, with the exception of their first son, Clarence. He was born at Flander's farm, eight miles north of North Battleford - to be near a doctor. Clarence was reported to be the first white baby in this district. George Bower was only two weeks or so later.

Like all new mothers, Mrs. Ayre was proud of her son, and she was teased by her neighbors when one day she forgot him on the counter top in Jepson's store - started home alone - in a few minutes was back for the baby.

The Ayre family consisted of two boys, Clarence and Elmer, and one girl, Vivian. Clarence was of a very quiet nature when a very small boy. When he and his parents went to visit neighbors, he was quite content to sit on a chair the whole time. Later, when a little older, one of his chores was to bring home the cows for the evening milking. In those days (early 1920's), there was open range and the cows could be in any direction for several miles around. Many an evening a tearful Clarence would arrive home, unable to find the cows.

Elmer was very active when a small boy, and it seemed paint pails, oil and grease containers had a very great attraction for him. When a little older and able to help mother, one day he was operating the barrel churn. These churns were operated by a hand lever and a foot treadle, causing the barrel to rotate vertically. Fast was not good enough, faster was better; so when he really had it rolling, he said, "Look, Mother, look!" Right about then the drain plug flew out. The result was the contents were scattered the length of the room on floor and ceiling.

Elmer, Mr. Ayre and Vivian.



Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Ayre on their 37th Wedding Anniversary August 30, 1942 with their family, Clarence, Elmer and Vivian.

Clarence married a nurse, Ethel Benson, who worked at Edam Hospital. Elmer married a teacher who taught at Blackfoot school. Her name was Jean Huff and she was from Wilkie. Ethel's home was on a farm at Kerrobert. Vivian married a local boy, Clarence Hanson, and they farm in the district. They have two daughters, both married and away from home.

Elmer and Jean have four daughters, all married. Elmer lives on the home place. Clarence and Ethel farmed and lived one-half mile south of the home place for thirty years. They still farm, but now live in Edam. They have no family.

Mrs, Ayre, Sr. had no musical training, but could sing very well and loved to take part in that way, at any community gathering. She had taught herself to play the piano a little. Mr. Ayre was not really musical but liked music, and got a kick out of telling neighbors who called that he could now play the piano, and going in another room and playing the player piano, before he told them he had this instrument. He also liked to get on the drums of Mr. Albert Greening at some of the dances.

Mrs. Ayre saw to it that her family had some music training, piano, wind instruments and singing. Mr. Ayre served as director of the rural telephone company (phone were installed about 1917), served on the school board (school was held for a few months in their first log house), and on church boards. In the earlier days church was held in private homes. The minister often stopped overnight at the Ayre place, even if it meant sleeping under the table because that would be the only dry place in a rainy season.

Mr. Ayre died in a farm accident in 1942, aged 62 years, an indirect casualty of the Second World War, as he would not have been working in the field during threshing time had there not been a shortage of men. After his death, Mrs. Ayre lived with her daughter until the last few years. She passed away in a nursing home in 1972, aged 92 years.

One of the earlier cars in the district was the Ayres' Maxwell (1918). It seemed to be as unreliable as Jack Benny's Maxwell on his radio show of the 1930's. Many a time it was pushed home. An early radio in the district was their Atwater Kent with its large and many tubes and dials and a large speaker horn. This would be in the middle twenties. During the early years, people relied on each other more than now and visited often. Another pioneer family, the Hoods, used to visit back and forth with Ayres and during the Christmas season when King George V began to broadcast Christmas messages to the Commonwealth, the Hoods would come up to Ayres and play Lost Heir (card game) until broadcast was to commence; possibly 4 or 5 a.m., then the children would be awakened, having fallen asleep or been put to bed before, and all would gather around the radio to hear the speech. Alas, usually the result would be nothing but squacks, squeels, static and other assorted noises, but everybody had fun anyway.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer J. H. Ayre on their 35th Wedding Anniversary with daughters, Myrna Aschenbrenner, Beverley Meikle, Carol Alexander, and Elaine Windo.

The Ayre family have taken part in community affairs over the years, Vivian has shared her talent in singing, is active in church and other organizations; Elmer has served on church and school boards and was a leader in the 4H club for a long time. Clarence has been on church, school and hospital boards, municipal council, wheat pool committee and Edam Donors Choice Committee, also Credit Union.

Dear Mrs. Lawrence:

Thank you for your interesting letter of April 23rd about our common interest in Cornish family history. I especially appreciate the information you gave about members of the Harris and Richards families who married into the Carkeek family.

My great grandmother was Christiana Richards, who was baptized in Gwennap on Feb. 16, 1820, and was married to William Allen in Gwennap on Jan. 19, 1843.

Christiana's father was John Richards, who was baptized in Gwennap on Aug. 3, 1774, the son of John Richards and Hannah Tregunna. Her mother, Elizabeth Harris, the daughter of George and Mary Harris, was baptized in Gwennap on May 27, 1775. George was the son of George and Ellenor Harris and was baptized Jan 1, 1746, also in Gwennap.

So far I have failed to find a connection between your Harris and Richards relatives and mine. We have a Latter Day Saints (Mormon) branch library in Minneapolis, and I went there to check the names you sent in their microfische International Genealogical Index. I did find a record of the marriages you listed, as follows:

CARKEEK, William m. Mary Ann HARRIS, 12 Oct. 1835, Redruth
CARGEEGE (That's the way they had it), William m. Jane RICHARDS,
12 Oct. 1841, Madron
CARKEEK, John m. Jane RICHARDS, 17 Jan. 1778, Redruth
CARKEEK, John m. Mary RICHARDS, 25 Dec. 1821, Redruth
CARKEEK, Stephen m. Alice RICHARDS, 30 June 1804, Redruth

However, I was unable to identify the baptismal records, and thus the parents, of these individuals. In each case there was more than one possibility, so I couldn't select the right one.

I'm hoping you have more information on the family relationships of these Harris and Richards relatives of yours. If you will send me all you have about them, I'll try to continue the search for a connection with my family.

It would be very interesting to find that I have some relatives in Australia, so I hope to hear from you again.

Yours sincerely,

David E. Witheridge

Dear Rev, Witheridge,

Thank you for your letter. I have enclosed my family tree as far as I have gone & the only information I have so far as regards the Richards etc is.

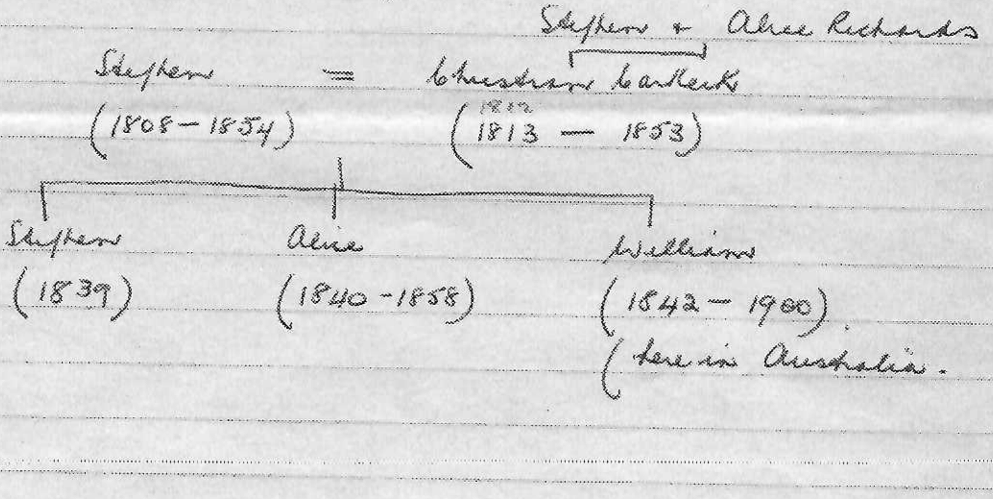
John m Jane Richards in 1778
(1759)
Johns parents were Zacharias & Mary Noble (① on family tree)

John m Either Mary Richards in 1821 (② on family tree).
(1800) or Charity Hocking in 1821
Johns parents were John & Rosamond Brown.

Stephen m Alice Richards in 1804 (Could be ③ on family tree).
(1786)

I am still working on this one. I do know Stephen & Alice had a daughter Christian who married a Stephen Carkeek in 1838. (his second wife). She & Stephen are buried (1853 & 1854) in churchyard at Gwinear. Their son William came to Australia in 1858 with John (his stepbrother)

Their tree is



Stephen & Alice Richards
Stephen (1808-1854)
=
Christian Carkeek (1812 1813 — 1853)
Stephen (1839)
Alice (1840-1858)
William (1842-1900). (here in Australia.

Another bit of information

Stephen = Alice Richards in 1804 in Redruth.

Stephen 1805 (Redruth)
Mary 1806 "
Mary Jane 1808 "
John 1811 (Gwennap)
Christian 1812 " = m Stephen Carkeek in 1858 (1808)
Elizabeth 1814 (Redruth)
Alice 1816 (Gwennap)
Eliza 1819 "
William 1823 " .

Thats all I have at present, I am waiting on information from England (wills etc) so if I obtain any information pertaining to your family I will forward it to you.

Yours sincerely

Noela Lawrence.

Dear Mrs. Chivers:

Let me introduce myself. If my information is correct, your husband's mother, Elizabeth Witheridge Chivers, was my grandfather's sister. My father was William Allen Witheridge, and he was the son of William Witheridge, who married Mary Jane Allen.

When my father died last year, I suddenly realized that we knew very little about his family and ancestry. So I began collecting all the bits of information we had and organizing them into a family record.

In the process I had a very interesting talk with George Chivers in Auburn, Michigan, and he is the one who gave me your address. I hope it is still correct. So far, I have not established contact with any of our relatives in England, and I am hoping you can help me by providing some addresses.

My Aunt Clara Mae (Mrs. Alan E. Marquis) in California gave me an address for a cousin of my father, George Adams. I guess he would also be a cousin of your husband. However, the address was wrong, for my letter to him came back undelivered.

Perhaps you would know the address of Mr. Adams, if he is still living, or of some member of his family.

If you could give me the addresses of any other relatives who are descendents of the Witheridge family, I'd be very grateful to you. It seems strange that we have lost contact with all our relatives there.

Now a word about myself. I am a Baptist minister. After a number of years as a pastor in and near Chicago, I came to Minneapolis to be the executive secretary of the local council of churches. My wife Elizabeth and I both grew up in Saginaw, Michigan, and we have two sons in high school, James and Thomas.

I hope your health is good. Please tell me a little about yourself and your family when you write.

Yours sincerely,

David E. Witheridge

Dear Friends

Just a line in answer to your letter of the 14th of March, sorry I have not answered before as I have'nt been very well anyway I have sent your letter to your cousin Edgar Adams as he will be able to give you the information you need better than I can. I hope so. I knew Aunt Susy & Uncle John Adams and some of their children. I know Will Adams & George their children have passed on many years ago. They had two daughters one called Clara and one Susanah. I dont know if they are still alive but Edgar remembers me at Christmas time. He was the only cousin on my husband John Chivers side who could come to see us when John was so sick and one cousin on John's Fathers side. As you know the nearest relatives are over there. John and I came over to U.S.A.

twice so we knew your Grandparents. We had a lovely time over there. We also knew your father and your Uncle & Aunt Clara.

I lost my dear John 8½ years ago. He was a semi invalid for 12 years after a stroke and how I have missed him. We lived a very happy life. I have no children.

I am living in my own house and I let two rooms to an old lady so I have company in the house. I have a lot to be thankful for, I have a sister & brother and their children living quite near.

George Chivers writes to me regularly Elizabeth & Ed Chivers sometimes. I am not too good at writing now, not so easy to concentrate. I am in my 80th year so please forgive the imperfection. I hope by now you have heard from Edgar Adams and that he has been able to give you what you require. We are having cold weather for the time of year, but we had a very mild winter. I hope you & family are well. I am not too bad except for old age pains. Now I must conclude. With love & best wishes & God bless you & all

Yours sincerely

Dear Mrs. Chivers:

I did enjoy your letter very much, and I know I would enjoy talking with you. I'm interested in the fact that you visited in America and knew my father and other relatives.

For two months I have been looking forward to receiving a letter from Edgar Adams. I was waiting to write you until I heard from him, but so far he has not writen. So I finally decided to write and ask you for his address. Then I'll be able to write directly to him.

I'm glad you have your own house to live in and that you have a pleasant companion living with you. It sounds as though you are in fairly good health, for which I am thankful.

We are all well and very busy. My wife just finished writing a children's book and sending it to the publisher. She has already had four books published, two on Bible themes, one about a boy in Pennsylvania over a hundred years ago, and one about a girl on a farm in Michigan early in this century.

Our older boy Jim is about to graduate from high school, and he expects to go to the University of Minnesota next fall. Our younger boy Tom has one more year in high school. He is 6'-3" tall and still growing!

Since you knew my grandparents and also Cutie and John Adams, I wonder if you knew your husband's other uncles and aunts. According to my information, there was Ned Witheridge who married a girl named Elizabeth, and also a Clara Witheridge and a John Witheridge who would have been brothers and sister of your husband's mother. Do you know anything about them?

Please write as soon as possible and give me Edgar Adams' address, as I am very anxious to correspond with him.

Yours sincerely,

David M. Witheridge

Editor's Note

The document on the next three pages is a set of notes made by my Aunt Janice (Janice Witheridge [q.v.]) on poor quality note paper that hasn't held up well. You will notice that over the years (since about 1963 or '64) it "bled" a brownish stain onto the page following it in my dad's files. Fortunately, most of these notes are still more or less readable.

I'm glad, because they represent some of Dad's very earliest efforts to make contact with his Witheridge relatives still living in Britain.

The document on the next four pages is a set of notes made by my dad. You will notice that over the years (since about 1963 or '64) a page from the preceding set of notes "bled" a brownish stain onto the first page of these notes. Fortunately, most of the pages are still readable.

Editor's Note

The document on the next page (CM41) summarizes DEW's ancestry in the North Devon seaside village of Combe Martin. He wrote this letter to Daphne Challacombe, one of the invited guests at a gathering organized by Una Parsons (q,v.) and others during my parents' final trip (of three) to Britain in 1988. Apparently Daphne never replied.

The letter is useful because it briefly encapsulates more than three centuries of Dad's ancestral "presence" in the area, of which he says, "I have a sttrong feeling that that [area] is home."

The specific family names he mentioned to Daphne were Blackmore, Ley, Peake, Reed, and Witheridge, but he also enclosed a copy of 19 North Devon lines from which he was descended (although he used the number 20 in this letter); see documents B46 and B47 in folder 1.12c.

Dear Daphne,

I'm sure you have wondered from time to time whether you would ever hear from me after our interesting get-together at Combe Martin last year. I won't go into all the reasons for my delay in writing, but I am glad to be able to write to you at this time. As you see, I am enclosing one of the pictures I took on that occasion, and I hope it will serve as a pleasant reminder of that evening.

Una told me that your mother was a Ley from Berrynarbor and that you are greatly interested in local history and were writing a chapter for the history of Combe Martin. On the attendance list that evening you also indicated that you have Peake ancestry and are related to other family lines in my background. I'm enclosing a copy of the list of twenty North Devon family lines that I am descended from. My ancestors lived in the Berrynarbor-Combe Martin area over 300 years, so I have a strong feeling that that is "home." I'll be interested in seeing the history of Combe Martin when it is finished.

You are no doubt some kind of distant cousin of mine. I'll tell you about my own Ley and Peake connections, and if you have much information on those families, you may be able to tell how we are related. My 5-gr.-grandfather, William Witheridge, married Rebecca Ley in Combe Martin on July 20, 1723. She was the daughter of William and Joan Ley and was baptized in Combe Martin on July 2, 1696.

My 3-gr.-grandfather, Robert Blackmore, married Catherine Peake in Combe Martin on June 10, 1780. She was the daughter of David Peake and Joan Reed and was baptized on May 21, 1758. I also have another Peake ancestor. My 4-gr.-grandfather, Edward Northcott, married Margaret Peake in Combe Martin on Dec. 26, 1765. She was the daughter of Anthony and Margaret Peake and was baptized in Combe Martin on Oct. 31, 1741.

Do any of these connections tie into any family information you have? Do you know any persons who have more information on the Ley or Peake families than you have? If so, I'd be glad to correspond with them.

I'd greatly appreciate hearing from you and learning about your own Ley and Peake ancestry. I may be able to tie that into other records I have. I'd also like to know if you descend from any other of my ancestral lines, and if so, how.

I hope you will write when you are able.

Yours sincerely,

David E. Witheridge

Kim Cook documents

Editor's Note

On the next page is the first of many unnumbered documents in this section pertaining to Kim Cook (q.v.) and her family. As you will see, this initial item starts with a bang — Kim's apology for taking so long to respond to Dad's previous letters, which weren't in the file and so far haven't turned up elsewhere. One of the subjects addressed by Dad in those letters was Mom and Dad's planned trip to Britain (their first of three) later in the year.

In fact, many of the documents in this section have more to do with friendship (between the Cooks and the Witheridges) than with genealogy per se, even though the latter topic is why they met in the first place.

Dad met Kim quite by accident. She was caught in his "dragnet" of British phone books (see the index entry, Telephone directory strategy [DEW's]). He wrote to Dorothy Witheridge, one of his "finds," and Dorothy turned his correspondence over to her niece, Kim, who was very interested in genealogy. What luck!

Dear David and Elizabeth,

I hope you haven't been too disappointed at having to wait so long for a reply to your letters, for I really had intended to get down towriting much sooner. But you know the old saying about the best laid plans of mice and men ....and women! It was really a combination of events that conspired to delay me - partly Roy's job and partly health factors.

When Roy started his new job last summer he was promised a full training course, in stages, totalling six weeks in all. This should have come about pretty quickly, but unfortunately the company's headquarters and training centre near Winchester suffered a severe fire which destroyed one whole wing and rendered much of the rest of the building unsafe, so that all training programmes had to be postponed while they made ready an alternative training centre in Derby. Roy got his first training call in early

Personal information
redacted

Fortunately the week immediately before Christmas found us all together again and in reasonably good health, but having missed all the posting dates for greetings and presents to our many friends overseas. (2 families in Australia, one in New Zealand, one in Rhodesia and one in France, as well as yourselves and Dick and Jenni were all without our Christmas wishes this year).

We had both the mothers with us for Christmas, which was marvellous for the boys, but not quite so for me, as their two grandmas don't really get on, and I was alittle on edge throughout the holiday. In the event all went smoothly, but I did find it something of a strain.

My new year resolution to finish off the project I had started for you (of which more later) was unfortunately thwarted by the severe weather conditions of gales and floods which swept the country. Fortunately the damaged we suffered was slight compared with many others, and of course in our location we weren't flooded, but we did lose a couple of windows, some slates from the roof, and a strip of corrugated polythene roofing which covers the passage from the kitchen to the boiler house. And of course the garden was a total mess, which we still haven't fully restored yet.

Last week Roy was called away again for the final two weeks of his training, and just before he left Jason was taken ill with a flu' virus that combines fever with violent sickness. Needless to say Adam caught it too, so I had the two of them home sick for the whole week. Roy came home for the weekend, but returned for his last week in Derby this morning. Adam is still not well, but Jason was fit enough to go back to school again for the first time this morning. It seems that in Jason's school alone 150 children out of a total of 320 have been ill with this virus infection, and it seems to be sweeping through all the schools and playgroups like wildfire.

So here we are in February and this is the first chance I've had, despite all my good intentions, to sit down and write you a real letter.

Firstly I must say again how thrilled we all are to think that you will be with us this summer, and we really are looking forward to having you stay with us - and please make it for as long as you like. We haven't yet made any plans for holidays or anything, as we wanted to wait until we knew for certain when you would be here, so that we can be on hand to show you around as much as possible. There's so much of interest for you to see within a short distance of here - places like Hampton Court, Kingston (the old capital where the Saxon kings were crowned - hence Kings-stone), Guildford, the Royal Horticultural Society's gardens at Wisley and the famous Botanic Gardens at Kew, Windsor Castle, and the many olde-worlde Surrey villages, to say nothing of all the sights of London. And of course, with all the travelling you've planned to other parts of the country, there are bound to be days between when you'd just like to sit back and put your feet up in an English home, so we'd like to be sure that we'll be here whenever that happens.

When you mentioned High Leigh I hadn't a clue where it was, but our minister says he feels sure it is the conference centre near Hoddesdon in Hertfordshire, which is quite a journey from here. Certainly it wouldn't be practicable to travel daily from here, but if accommodation for both of you at Hoddesdon should prove a problem, we could always look after Elizabeth here, if she hasn't any other special plans for that time. Of course if you'd rather use hotels we could always get any information for you, but hotels in the London area tend to be pretty exorbitant - at least we think so! I understand that anything from £6 upward per day for bed and breakfast is considered reasonable, but personally, I think it anything but!

But please don't hesitate to let us know if there are any plans we can put into action for you, or any facts or items of information, brochures etc we can get for you to help you plan your stay to the best possible effect. I was thinking particularly in terms of things like British Rail and London Transport special season tickets etc.

One thing we're not quite sure on is where your other interests lie - other than in things ecumenical and historical. We know you're both keen gardeners, but how about sports, music, theatre, and things like vintage cars, old steam trains, brass rubbings? Do write and tell us if you've gotany special hobby-horses so that we can look up some appropriate trips for you.

One thing that I've been meaning to do for you, and which I know will be a great help to you in planning your time with us, as well as giving you an idea of where we live and what it's like, is to send you a good map of the area. This has been a bit of a problem for two reasons - firstly because the more detailed street maps are always just in black and white, without any of the more helpful colour indications, and secondly becuase where we live happens to be almost on the dividing line of two recognised map boundaries! However, I've finally overcome these two problems by embarking on the project I mentioned at the beginning of this letter. I've bought two large scale street maps which cover all of south London and quite a bit of Surrey, ranging from Kew and Chiswick to Lambeth and Camberwell in the north, to Epsom, Banstead and Coulsdon in the south, and taking in Kingston, Sutton, Morden Croydon, Fulham (where my mother lives) and Stockwell (where Roy's mother lives). To combat the colour problem, I have coloured them myself (though not very expertly) with waterproof oil pastels. All the parks and open spaces (and there are an incredible number of them!) are in green; streams and rivers are blue; major bus routes that we use (but not all, as that would be too confusing) are in yellow; places directly concerned with us are marked with a red spot; and main shopping centres with pink. Also, I'll enclose with this letter a brief key to the two maps. That way you'll have a chance to study the area and get an idea of what it's like, and at the same time, if you bring them with you on your travels, they should help you find your way around. The maps I'm sending under separate cover along with some booklets about the area, our usual calendar (belated!) which I bought way back in November, some photos of the Morris dancing we went to last summer, and press cuttings and other things. By sending them unsealed and without any of my typing in them, I can send them airmail printed paper rate - quick without being too expensive as it's quite a bulky package! But the whole package should combine to give you a fairly good idea of what living in this part of the world in like.

One thing I expect will strike you straight away - the lack of space here compared with the wide open expanses of USA. To give you some idea, the frontage of the fairly average type of terraced house in outer London and the suburbs is somewhere about 15-18 feet; front gardens are about 10-12 ft, house depths about 25 feet and back gardens about 50-60 ft, giving a total plot area of about 1500-1600 sq ft. Larger semi-detacheds such as ours usually have a plot area of about 3800-4000, while the four bedroom detached houses are rather fewer and far between, except in pockets of what are called 'executive housing developments'. Judging from the photos of your house I would say that ours is about half the size of yours, and yet ours isn't considered small by any means. We are lucker than most, too, in the amount of open spaces we have around us, particularly with Morden Park, Nonsuch Park, Wimbledon Common and Richmond Park all within such easy reach. In fact visitors from other parts have always been surprised by the amount of green open spaces and stately old trees we have, though sadly we have lost many of the trees through Dutch elm disease. Still we manage to enjoy a pretty good variety of wild-life as well, with squirrels, hedgehogs, field mice, and plenty of butterflies and moths in our gardens, and deer, sheep, horses and foxes in the surrounding parks. At present we are also enjoying the sight of plenty of birds feeding at the bird table and hanging nuts in the garden. Currently we have sparrows, dunnocks, blue tits, chaffinches, greenfinches (or green linnets), a wren, two magpies, blackbirds, starlings, thrushes and a very friendly robin feeding regularly in our garden. The boys have become quite avid birdwatchers, and even Adam is pretty good at identifying the different species. It really is quite a good selection, especially as we are only about 120 yards from the main A 24 London - Epsom - Worthing trunk road!

But that's enough about our environment for now - I just hope we have given you some idea of what to expect when you get here!

One piece of news which I mustn't forget to give you concerns Jason. As I believe Dick and Jenni mentioned after their visit, J has always been pretty forward academically, especially with his reading, and as a result was one of the few from his school to be chosen to read a lesson in the school's carol service, held in our church. In fact there had to be two services to accommodate all the parents who wanted to attend. Our minister was of course present, introducing both the services, and was so impressed with Jason's reading that he asked if he could read one of the lessons at the parish service of lessons and carols on the following Sunday evening. His text was the Isaiah prophecy which we feel belongs to our church, as it incorporates our church's name, Emmanuel 'that is, God is with us'. We were very proud of him as he stood in the front of the church, reading loud and clear, though I must confess I was more nervous about the whole thing than he was! The father of one of Jason's schoolmates took some photos of the school's service, including one of J in the pulpit, so we have asked for a print of it to send you. Quite apart from the aptness of the photo for you, it also shows the style of the church's interior quite well.

At this point I must introduce my usual apology for bad typing - rather worse than usual I'm afraid. I don't know which is more in need of a good overhaul - me or the typewriter! I've had this little portable since I was 19, with never a service needed, so I rather think one is overdue. And as for me, the one thing that is overdue is sleep. With the boys ill last week I didn't manage one unbroken night, late visitors on Friday kept us up till 2 am, and I didn't even get a lie in on Sunday as I was teaching in Sunday school. So I suppose it's hardly surprising that tiredness has set in for the evening. For the time being, I'll call a halt, and hope to resume tomorrow.

Well, they say that tomorrow never comes, and this 'tomorrow' has certainly taken far too long - about ten weeks in all! I think ~~ha~~ I shall have to make a resolution that when I have to stop in mid-letter at any time, to make a hurried close and post the bit I've done, even if it isn't completed. At least that way, even if the information is incomplete you will at least know that all is well, and not have to resort to transatlantic phone calls. I still feel very guilty about that, though it was really great to hear your voices and to be able to talk to you both. It was such a grand surprise when the operator came through saying she had a call for me from America. I could hardly believe it.

The day you called was Mothering Sunday here, and my mother was with us at the time, and as I said over the phone, we were all fit and well. At least, I had had a slight couch just that day, but didn't think anything of it. However, by the next day my voice had gone, and the dreaded bronchitis was back agin. This time it took much longer than ususal to get over it, and for two weeks I had to do all my office work at home. I couldn't let up, as March 31 was the end of the company's financial year, and April 4is the end of the government tax year. This,coupled with the dreaded quarterly VAT returns and the closing of our subsidiary branch in S E London (both fell on March 31) meant a very considerable build up of work, which I have only just cleared.

However, I did take time off at Easter (as a matter of principle I wouldn't work - or shop - on Good Friday, although many businesses particularly department stores and supermarkets carry on business as usual) and at the invitation of friends, spent the day near Haslemere, on the Surrey/Sussex/Hampshire border. The countryside thereabouts is beautiful, and we spent part of the afternoon at Benbow Lakes, a beauty spot on the Cowdray estate. The boys greatly enjoyed feeding the ducks and watching flocks of chaffinches feeding on the banks.

On Holy Saturday my mother came for the day, and on Easter Sunday it was Roy's mother's turn to visit. Easter Monday we had my aunt Eva and cousin Joan with us for the day, and were able to show them the photos we had taken at Caroline's 21st party a few weeks before. The party was quite a gathering of the clans, with most of the Wither-idges in attendance. Of course Eva, Joan and Caroline were there, with Joan's brother Eric, his wife Celia and daughter Elizabeth.The Kent Witheridges included Auntie Dolly, Mary and her husband Michael, and Brenda and her husband Ron. My other aunt, Dorothy (to whom you wrote originally) was also at the party, and I think the only absentees were my mother, and my aunt Maisie on cousin Rodney. The latter was a great disappoihtment, as although they live not far from us, I have never ever met them!

But to return to your call, and your letter recently received (for which many thanks) perhaps I can answer some of your queries. As soon as we know the flight number and airport of arrival, we'll make the necessary arrangements to meet you so that you can spend those first few days with us. Should you not wish to take all your luggage with you to High Leigh, we can arrange to hold some here for you. I do hope that by now you have received the package we sent you - I can't think what has delayed it so, and only hope it is not completely lost. But in the hope that it has finally arrived, I hope you will be able to get a good idea of the lie of the land, and in fact see that we are quite near to the Students Club inSW5 so perhaps you will be able to spend a little more time visiting with us, and perhaps we can help you plan your sightseeing and drive you around at the weekends. I must admit that I hadn't heard of the centre before, but assume from its name that it is associated with Lee Abbey in Devon - a place I've heard a lot about but never actualy been to. By all accounts Lee Abbey itself is a truly remarkable place, and if the London centre has anything of the character and atmosphere of the Abbey it should be a great place. But should you find at any time that restriction offunds means a cutting of expenses, you could always spend that time with us, as we are very easy of access to central London as you will see (hopefully) from the maps I sent.

You don't say how much Avis quote for car rental. I have made enquiries of another reputable firm with a nationwide coverage, called Budget Rent-a-car. Their rates are £29.95 plus VAT (8%) per week, with unlimited mileage. Petrol costs about 75p per gallon, depending on grade. Probably some local firms would be cheaper, but I'm not sure that you'd get the same efficient service if you were hundreds of miles from their headquarters in the event of an emergency. Had you considered the possibility of rail travel between the maincentres, with local car hire or coach trips? I'm making enquiries of British Rail regarding their Rail Rover tickets four touring - I believe these give unlimited mileage over a given period (say one month) at quite reasonable cost, but we've never had occasion to make use ofthem ourselves. As soon as I get further information on this I'll let you have it.

I'm sure you'll just love your time in Devon. There's something about the county that gives those connected with it, however remotely, a great sense of homecoming. It's certainly a feeling I'd experienced, long before I even knew that my family were originally Devonshire folk.

The only slight snag I can see in your programme ( which I'm sure we can turn to advantage) is that your final Monday and Tuesday planned for London coincide with our August Bank holiday. Things should be back to normal on Tuesday, but everywhere will be shut on the Monday. and if you're travelling at all that weekend, the roads will be pretty well packed. So being greedy, our reaction is to say 'come to us'.

American Revolution Bicentennial celebration

One other point I mustn't forgetto mention, is something of a coincidence. Some months ago, our parish decided that this year our annual garden party should be cancelled this year. By way of compensation, a group of us planned a social evening at the church hall and picked as our theme for the evening 'America' - mainly because we knew that in this bicentennial year the neccessary material would be available. So we are arranging to have a half-hour travelogue film, some American folk songs, a quiz on America, and for refreshment we felt that coffee and coke, hamburgers and popcorn (if we can get the genuine article) would be pretty representative for a mid evening snack. The coincidence comes in the date that we have been allocated the hall to hold this event - Saturday 19th June, when you will be with us, so we do hope you will add the final perfect touch to our American evening and be our guests of honour for the occasion. It'll be a very informal evening - nothing grand at all - and we do hope you'll be sufficiently recovered from your flight and the changes of time zones to join us.

Well, now I must close, as I'm babysitting for friends and I'm expecting them home shortly and I really do want to get this into the post first thing in the morning. I've just got to provide you with the promised key to the maps, which I noted in scribbled long hand at the time and haven't yet typed out. Please do let us know whether the packet has arrived, as I'm really rather worried about it. I can't remember the exact date I posted it, but it must have been about February 14th, so it really shouldn't have taken this long to reach you. And do let us know if you've any more queries, or if there's anything really special you want to see or do in you visit, and we'll do our best to arrange it for you. YOu've no idea how much we are looking forward to meeting you and having you with us, and we want to do everything we can to make your stay everything you hope it will be.

Love to you all, and our best wishes to the boys (! men!) in their studies and decisions,

Roy, Kim,
Jason & Adam

P.S. Boys very excited when I told them of your phone call - A thought it meant you'd be arriving next day! All is now explained, & they have made us promise to bring them to the airport, whatever time of day or night you arrive! Our third copy of N.G. Wld has just arrived & J has already read it from cover to cover & was fascinated by the albino pics. A is still overawed by the terrific volcano pics in the previous issue, & Roy & I have found them all very interesting & informative - altogether a really super present that reminds us again of you each month as it arrives. K

Dear Kim, Roy, Jason, and Adam:

It was just wonderful to talk with Kim on Sunday and to know that there is no serious reason why we haven't had a letter from you--just a lot of time-consuming problems. That we can understand, because there are many times when my own letters are long overdue.

Now we are anxiously awaiting the package you say is in the mail. I know the things in it will be of great interest and help for our trip. There are certainly a great many things to do to prepare for such a trip, and they all have to be fitted into my busy schedule of regular activities. I'll give you a rundown of our plans as they have developed so far.

We were able to locate a 11½-week charter flight at an excellent reduction in fare. This was somewhat of an achievement, because most charter flights are for not over four or five weeks. We leave Chicago on June 17, which probably means we arrive in London on June 18, though they haven't told us the time of day or the airport.

We really do want to spend the next few days with you to get acquainted and get our bearings and get any general advice you may have. Then, as you know, we are scheduled to be at the Conference of Ecumenical Officers at High Leigh from June 21st to the 24th. I just checked my letter from Rev. John Nicholson of the British Council of Churches, and he does say, "I have booked you and your wife. . ." So that's all set.

After that we have made a reservation at the Lee Abbey International Students' Club, 27 Courtfield Gardens, London SW5 0PQ. We'll be there from June 24 to July 8, during which time we'll be visiting the British Council of Churches, the Catholic Central Library, the University of London, as well as Somerset House and the Public Records Office.

From July 8 to August 6 we'll be traveling through England, Scotland, and Wales visiting local Councils of Churches and hunting up distant relatives and, hopefully, genealogical information. We hope to be doing this by rented automobile, and maybe you could be of some help in this regard. All I have investigated so far is Avis, and I'm hoping maybe there is a cheaper way!

By August 6 we expect to arrive in Devon, and we hope to spend the first few days in the northern part near Combe Martin. I guess I've told you I have a distant cousin, Mr. John Witheridge, living on a farm at Middle Stoodleigh, West Buckland, Barnstaple, Devon. Jenni and Dick visited them when they were in England. I hope we can stay with them, as they are only about ten miles from Combe Martin.

3/31/76

Then for two weeks (from August 8 to 21) we have reserved a small student flat at the University of Exeter. I have two objectives there. One is to continue my reading about the church situation in Britain by means of materials in the University Library. The other is genealogical research in the collections of the Devon and Cornwall Record Society in the Exeter Central Library, as well as in the Exeter Cathedral Library and any other materials I have time to infestigate. Naturally, we'll also drive around Devon and Cornwall as we are able during those two weeks.

From there we go to the University of Cambridge, where we have also reserved a room for a week--from August 22 to 28. Here, again, we hope to combine ecumenical and genealogical study.

That will leave us several days before our return flight home on September 3. I'm hoping we can spend a couple of days (Monday and Tuesday) in London, so we can return to Somerset House or the Public Records Office to follow up on leads we may get on our travels around the country. Then back for a couple more days (Wednesday and Thursday) with you to tell you all about our experiences in Britain before we depart.

This will have to be all for now. I'll write again, of course, after we get the letter you said you were in the process of writing. Elizabeth and I just loved hearing your voice, Kim, and now we can hardly wait to see all of you. We do hope your health is reasonably good.

Love to all,

David & Elizabeth

May 22, 1976

Dear Kim, Roy, Jason, and Adam:

I must get a letter off to you right away, because we have a slight change in the date of our arrival--we'll be there two days earlier. I'll have to write again in a couple of weeks, because I can't tell you the exact hour of arrival until then.

The problem was that the June 17 charter flight we were all confirmed on was canceled, because they didn't have at least 80% of the seats sold. That really put us in a tail spin, since what they call "long duration" charter flights are rather scarce, and regular fare would be at least twice as much.

After some frantic hunting, we finally discovered a flight going non-stop from Minneapolis to London on June 15 and returning on September 2. This is perfect from our point of view, as we leave directly from here, rather than having to go to Chicago. (For a while we were on standby and were actually accepted on a flight from New York to London on June 21 and returning on August 29, which would have gotten us to the High Leigh Conference late and wouldn't have given us any time with you at the beginning.)

At any rate, it's all set now, and we'll be arriving at Gatwick Airport on June 16, though I haven't the slightest idea what time of day. As I said, I'll write again when they tell us. We're just as excited as Jason and Adam, and we're delighted they want to meet us at the airport. We just hope it won't be too difficult for you to have us arrive two days earlier. We can find things to do in London during those days.

"We hope by now all is forgiven."

Your church's American Bicentennial party on Saturday, June 19, sounds terrific! We can't think of anything more enjoyable to begin our summer in Britain. We've been quite impressed by the interest shown there in our Bicentennial. It would seem more natural for the British to be upset with us for breaking away 200 years ago! We hope by now all is forgiven.

Now back to you and your miserable fall and winter--Roy's being away, Kim's flare-up of bronchitis, the severe weather, the boys' spell of the flu, and many other distracting events. Someone has said that the British have an amazing ability to stand any amount of disaster and still come through, and I'm beginning to believe it. You should pretty well have your troubles behind you for this year, so it should be a pretty good summer. Let's hope so!

You asked about our special needs and interests. I guess the most crucial right now is the rental of a car. We feel that for our purposes renting a car will be better than going by train between cities and then renting cars or using public transportation for local travel. A BritRail Pass for four weeks costs $145, which would be $290 for two people, not counting the cost of getting around in the towns and countryside. A Budget Rent-a-Car rental would be about $60 a week or $240 for four weeks. Of course, the petrol is extra, but the convenience of having one car throughout our trip means a lot to us. That's the way we do all our traveling around this country.

It's hard for us to be sure of the comparative prices and provisions, but it looks as though the Budget Rent-a-Car price you quoted (£29.95) is definitely better than either Avis (£41.00) or Godfrey Davis ($84.00) or Europe-by-Car ($70.40), which are the ones I could reserve over here. If you have any way of checking prices over there, you might do so. But if it still looks as though Budget Rent-a-Car is best, please reserve a car for us beginning July 7 for about 7½ weeks. Let us know right away what we need to send as a deposit.

Regarding other interests, we aren't interested in brass rubbings or vintage cars or old steam trains, but we are interested in music and in a Shakespeare play either in London or Stratford-on-Avon. Of course, we want to see all the main tourist attractions in the Surrey and London area.

Norwegian Elkhounds

One thing in particular you would never think of is this. We'd like to visit one of the top-notch Norwegian Elkhound kennels in England. We've probably told you about our beloved Elkhound, Trygg. He's our second one. Jarle (Trygg's great uncle) lived to the ripe old age of fifteen.

We have a book about Elkhounds that tells about some of the English breeders, and we find that one of the finest was in Surrey when the book was written in 1970. "The world famous affix 'of the Holm,' which has been prominent for the last quarter of a century, belongs to W. F. Holms, Hampton Wick." These kennels "have been known world-wide since 1924, and they are still the largest kennel of the breed in England today, standing in eight acres of ground with very large runs and ideal conditions for rearing Elkhounds."

Another one of "the largest kennels of Elkhounds is Fourwents, owned by Mrs. Winter, formerly Miss F. Joyce Esdaile, Holmwood, Surrey." Perhaps that kennel is still there, too.

If you have any way of checking on these kennels and the possibility of visitors from America seeing them, we'd be very grateful. By the way, Elizabeth has just sent the manuscript of her latest book--which is about an Elkhound--to her publisher.

I guess I haven't said yet that we did get your package with the maps, the calendar, and all the other interesting items, and we do thank you very sincerely. You did a beautiful job with the maps, Kim, and I know they are going to make our stay more enjoyable and meaningful. I was surprised at how close you live to your church and to where you used to live.

Rev. Allen

Did I tell you we were going to have a visitor from England staying with us? He was Rev. Eric Allen, head of the Leeds Metropolitan Council of Churches and a United Reformed minister. He was here in early April as the recipient of the American Memorial Chapel Travel Grant of the English-Speaking Union. We did enjoy him so much, and we'll be staying with them when we go to Leeds in July. He is the one who showed us on your map that Hampton Wick is near you. I gave him your address and telephone number, and I think he will be writing or calling you.

Birds

You mention all the birds at your feeders and in your garden. This is another of our interests, and we hope you have a bird book that shows the British species.

The gathering of relatives you described at Caroline's birthday party sounded like a delightful occasion and one we would have enjoyed attending. It would be great to be able to meet your mother, Kim, and at least some of your aunts, uncles, and cousins while we're there. I don't know yet how you are all related to me, but maybe tenth cousin or something like that! Some day we'll figure it out.

Now I must close and get this off to you. Drop us a short note soon. We'll write again as soon as we know our exact schedule.

Love to all,

David + Elizabeth

June 4 1976

Dear David & Elizabeth

We were thrilled to receive your letter announcing your earlier arrival - it will be lovely to have you here for that much longer to give us a chance to get really well acquainted. From the information you gave me, I was able to get in touch with Gatwick airport and have your flight number and ETA checked out, as Roy needs to book the time off in advance. You'll be amazed to know that they never normally have flights from Minneapolis to Gatwick (which is our local airport!) and in fact the flight arriving on June 16 is the only one known! They tell me that the airline is Overseas National, the flight number is 6051 and the ETA is 10.30 (British Summer Time) a.m. As Roy works on Saturday mornings, he gets a half-day off in the week, so he has booked it for the Wednesday morning that week. I shall be seeing Jason's teacher on Monday morning (they're on half-term holiday this week) to arrange for him to have the day off school, and my boss has given me the day off, so we shall be there as a whole family to welcome you. I expect you'll be rather weary after the night flight, and losing hours on the time change too, so although there are lots of people longing to meet you, we thought you'd rather keep the next 24 hrs clear. However, my cousin Brenda has suggested that we might all visit them (and her mother, Mrs Dorothy Witheridge, and sister Mary & respective husbands) on either the evening of Thursday or Friday. It's only about a 40 minute drive from here, so if you think you'd like that, I'll confirm with Brenda whichever day you prefer. She has also offered to try and get hold of some tickets for the Wimbledon tennis through her tennis club, if you would be interested..

Now on to car rental, I think you'll find that Budget are the cheapest. The £29.95 plus VAT is for their smallest car, the 2-door Mini 1000 cc saloon. Rather larger and more comfortable is the Allegro 1300 4-door saloon at £37.75 + VAT for a single week, but which, for periods of longer than 4 weeks, reduces to £33.75 + VAT per week. Bigger still are the Allegro automatics, 1500's, estates, and Dolomite models at £44.75 + VAT per week, or £38.00 + VAT for hiring for more than 4 wks. There is no long term reduction on the Mini hire. Booking should be two weeks in advance, and the booking deposit is £10. Roof racks are available if required, & there is a pick-up point about a couple of miles from us.

Roof racks are available if required, there is a pick-up point about a couple of miles from us.

I have also contacted Mr Holmes of Hampton, but he is no longer breeding Elkhounds. He is now at the ripe old age of 95 and has retired! Mrs Winter we have been unable to trace, but the Kennel club have given us an address in Worcestershire which could be helpful. We'll follow it up and see what we can find for you.

I was really relieved that the maps and books turned up at last, as I'd begun to think they were well and truly lost. I'm not sure if Courtfield Gdns is on the Wandsworth map, but it certainly can't be far off. It's betwen Old Brompton Rd and Cromwell Rd about $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles due north of my mother's home! So you won't be far away, and we hope you'll manage to join us a few evenings if you're not fully booked, and at weekends too. Like most large city centres, central London is not the best place to be on a hot weekend, but if we could take you to to places like Kew and Hampton Court, I'm sure you'd enjoy it. But don't let us railroad you into doing anything you'd rather not. After all, this is a once-a-lifetime trip and you'll want to make the very most of it.

arrange for him to have the day off school, and my boss has given me the day off, so we shall be there as a

Plans for the American evening are going ahead, and we are also aiming to include a small show of objects of 'Americana' About the only thing I've not yet laid my hands on is a Stars and Stripes!

Before I forget, I must check on something that occurred to me last week, regarding your asthma, Elizabeth. Do feather pillows or cushions affect you adversely, and if so, do you find foam or acrylic fillings more comfortable? And is there anything else that could be troublesome that way? Do let us know, so that we can have everything just right for you.

We haven't yet heard from Eric Allen, but now we know he has our address, we'll look forward with pleasure to hearing from him. We have contacts with clergy in a number of different places, but none in the Leeds area.

Must close - running our of space, but hope I've answered all your queries. If you get a moment to drop us a line before departure, please do -Roll on June 16th! Longing to see you & love to all, Loy, Kim, Jason & Adam.

June 5, 1976

Dear Kim, Roy, Jason, and Adam:

Well, it's all set now! We leave Minneapolis at 7:00 p.m. on Tuesday, June 15, and arrive in London (Gatwick) at 10:30 a.m. on Wednesday, June 16. If that's a bad time for you to meet us, you'll have to leave a message for us some place at the airport, and we'll either have to wait or come some place by cab.

Just for the record, they tell us our return flight on September 2 leaves London at 1:30 p.m. and arrives in Minneapolis at 6:00 p.m. on the same day. We'll have to be at Gatwick two hours before it leaves.

We'll be traveling both ways on Overseas National airways DC-8S planes. The flight on June 15 is #M6051, and the one on September 2 is #M6051. If you have any questions on the flight, or if you want to call to be sure of the exact time of arrival, you might call International Travel Arrangers, Tara Hotel, Wrights Lane, Kensington, London W85SR; Phone: 01-937-7211. They could tell you how to leave a message, too, if you can't meet us when the plane arrives.

These last ten days are going to be hectic, I know. We have purchased most of the main or difficult things we need, but there are still a lot of little things ~~undndedt,~~ minute details to take care of. Fortunately, Jim will be staying at home, so we won't have to worry about taking care of the house and yard or wonder what to do with Trygg.

I hope you've been able to figure out what to do about our car rental. I was sorry to dump that onto your shoulders, but I didn't know anything else to do.

Now we'll say good-bye until we see you on the 16th.

Love to all,

David & Elizabeth

Dear Kim, Roy, Jason, and Adam:

Thanks for your wonderful letter. I'll try to answer a few main points briefly, and we'll take it right down to the Post Office so it might get there before we do.

It will be great to have a family gathering at Brenda's, and we'll go either evening the two of you decide is easier, as we have absolutely nothing scheduled (except your American evening) before we to to High Leigh. The idea of tickets for Wimbledon tennis sounds terrific!

Elizabeth says to tell you that a few years ago she did find feather pillows bad for her asthma, so she has avoided them ever since. She finds acrylic fillings more comfortable than foam. If you find a pillow we could take with us on our tour around Britain, we'd be most grateful. We always take one on our travels here--in and out of motels and friends' houses. There is really nothing else that bothers her that we can think of.

The car rental information sounds good, but since we only have to book one two weeks in advance, we think we should wait until we get there and can consult with you and perhaps see them. Making the deposit will be easier right there anyway.

We had already purchased a couple of small "Betsy Ross" type flags for Jason and Adam, but we'll try to bring a regular 50-star flag, too, for your Americana display.

We'll be seeing you at 10:30 on June 16, or as soon thereafter as we can clear through customs (or whatever). Having you all there will be a special treat.

Love,

Dave + Elizabeth

Dear David & Elizabeth

Many thanks for the lovely card and your kind wishes - I've put the card on display alongside my other birthday cards, where it has received many compliments. We were very pleased, too, to hear that your trip has been going well. I'm not quite sure where you are right now - somewhere between Leeds and Scotland - but I'll address this to Dunblane as the next preferred address. I'm also enclosing a letter which came this morning from Poole - presumably R A E W!

And on the 'Witheridge front' I've got some very interesting news indeed. On Friday my friend Linda looked after Adam for me so that I could get up to the PRO to check the 1851 census for Plymouth. I found quite a few interesting entries, mainly relating to descendents of the Ermington branch, but the very last Witheridge entry I found, after 3 hours of searching, read as follows:

1 Woolster Street, Sutton-on-Plym

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Joseph | Witheridge, | Head, | Widr, | 60, | Coal Porter |
| Thomas | " | Son | Marr | 30 | Bargeman |
| Maryann | " | D in L | " | 30 | |
| Thomas B | " | Gr.s. | U | 3 | Scholar |
| Edmund | " | " | " | 1 | |
| Samuel John | " | " | " | 3 mths. | |

The three children were born in Plymouth, Mary Ann in Exeter, Thomas in Devonport and Joseph in Holsworthy! Which just goes to show how wrong even the most logical of deductions can be! So now I have to start on a whole new avenue of detection so far not attempted, and we may even prove that elusive relationship yet! Holsworthy is only 18 miles from Bideford.

← Holsworthy

The other interesting point is the mention of the grandson Thomas E, aged 3. There seems to have been no Thomas Witheridge recorded in the GRO births for that year (1847/8) and Thomas senior and Mary Ann weren't married till August 1848. Either he's the son of another son of Joseph (or possibly daughter), or he's the son of Thomas and Mary Ann and being born before the marriage was originally registered as a Garry (her maiden name). At least, they're the two most likely explanations that spring to mind, but obviously more detective work is called for. Of the W children born in Plymouth between 1848-53 the only two unplaced were Samuel John 1851 and Mahala 1852. With one now resolved, perhaps the 1861 census will throw light on the other. Certainly Friday's visit was very worthwhile!

Tomorrow we have a pretty busy day ahead. After Sunday school we go to the Parish Church for the Sunday school commemoration service, and Jason has been chosen to represent the Ridge children and place a posy on the memorial to the minister who founded the Morden Sunday schools. Directly after the service we travel to Kent, to have lunch and tea with Mary and Michael, as it was Mary's birthday on Tuesday, and we always have a get-together about this time.

I almost forgot to mention that last Monday evening our Young Wives group went on a history walkabout in Cheam village and learnt a great deal that you would find fascinating. I also found out how to gain access to the famous Lumley chapel, which includes an enormous memorial to the first Lord Lumley giving his entire pedigree (alleged!) All in Latin, but nevertheless quite fascinating - and now believed by some to be wishful thinking too!

Roy and the boys are all very well. Adam had his introductory session in school last Wednesday afternoon, and was most reluctant to leave the classroom and come home. He keeps asking me how many days it will be before he can wear his school uniform! Jason continues to do well in his work, and is of course looking forward to his little task at St Lawrence's tomorrow. Roy was delighted today when our greengrocer gave hime nearly four lbs of bruised and damaged peaches - not fit to eat as they were, but ideal for wine making. So we now have another brew on the go, and the greengrocer has been promised a bottle when it's ready!

Well, it's time I closed now, as the time is getting late and I still have a few jobs to do before bedtime. Hoping that your travels continue to be happy and fruitfull, and looking forward to seeing you again next month,
With love from us all,

Roy, Kim, Jason + Adam.

University of Exeter
August 15, 1976

Dear Kim, Roy, Jason, + Adam:

Here we are at Exeter enjoying our stay in one place for a couple of weeks. I'm beginning to get my ideas together on my ecumenical study, and doing a little genealogical research.

See Kim Cook's July 17, 1976, letter (above)

The other day at the Devon Record Office I went through the Bishops Transcripts for Holsworthy from 1780 to 1800, but no Joseph Wetheridge turned up. The only Witheridge during that time was an Elizabeth Wetheridge, who married Emmanuel Jewel. I did record their children, but otherwise my search was in vain.

Tomorrow we're going to Cornwall, staying overnight and returning Tuesday evening. We've booked a room in a hotel in Truro to be sure of a place. We'll do a little work on my Allen ancestors there, as well as on Elizabeth's Gilbert line.

Our first roll of film turned out beautifully. I've ordered a lot of reprints from Kodak in London, and I asked them to mail them to you. I think I sent enough money so there'll be a slight refund, which I asked them to make out to you, too.

Please open the package right away, because practically all the prints are for you and the other family members in them. The only ones that aren't are two of Kim and Roy and two of Jason and Adam I want for Janice and Lance, and of course two of the Twiggs for them. We are absolutely enthralled with the pictures of the farm of yours and hope you like them, too.

We've decided that it won't be possible to come to Sutton on the way to Cambridge. We'll stop briefly in Poole, then head for Oxfordshire to look for Witheridge Hill and to Bedford where Elizabeth wants to investigate Dunstable and

Dear Doris & Elizabeth

Just a very brief note to say how pleased we were to hear that you arrived home safely & without any further delays. I guess you & Jim had quite a reunion, even though it was in the early hours of the morning!

Since your departure I've been frantically busy on two counts — preparing a special surprise for you which I hope to be able to post in a few weeks (keep guessing!) & also with assimilating all the information we've aquired this Summer between us. The card index is growing rapidly & when I finally get up to date it should have about 400 cards in it! I've now got the necessary letters of reference to the Society of Genealogists & have sent everything off, so will write more fully when I get into those hallowed halls!

I'm enclosing a letter which arrived about a week after your departure, & also the photos which finally turned up at the same time! Not up to the standard of yours I'm afraid, but hope you like them nevertheless.

Well, the drought has ended at last & we seem to have had all the Summer's rain in the last ten days. Unfortunately it was too late to save some of the fruit crops, but oh, how green the grass is again!

The boys have both settled well in school now, & have just had their school photos taken. If they're good we'll send you a copy.
Ron is keeping busy at work & we are all keeping well, but the house seems empty without you! We all miss you & send our love & the boys asked me to send you a specially big hug & kiss each.

Our love & best wishes also to Jim & Tom – we feel we know them so well now!

Will write more fully when I've got my genealogical work sorted out – my hand is aching dreadfully from writing scores of filing cards – sample enclosed. So I'll close now & get back to work, but meanwhile, take care of yourselves,

Love from us all.

Ron, Kim, Jason & Adam.

P.S. Hope all your talks & reports go well & also that your garden was looking good for your return. K

October 10, 1976

Dear Kim, Roy, Jason + Adam:

It's hard to believe that it's over a month since we ended our wonderful visit to Britain and returned to Minneapolis. We've been very, very busy and still aren't completely caught up from being away all summer.

I did complete a 15-page paper on "The British Ecumenical Scene from an American perspective," which I gave to my clergy group, the Saturday Dinner Club, on September 25. We have also spent a lot of time going over our hundreds of slides trying to select the best ones to use at our church this Wednesday.

We think of you every day, remembering fondly the lovely times we spent with you - both in your home and in other places you took us. We still consider 81 Ash Road our home in England and you our family there.

Getting together all these pictures has also been quite an operation. Some of these are copies you wanted, but most of them are prints from slides. I think you will recognize all of these, though you may be a little uncertain about the John Witheridge children and grandchildren in Devon. Please accept these as our gift with love.

We're sitting here in our living room listening to a Young People's Concert by the New York Philharmonic on TV, having just seen our Minnesota Viking professional football team "squeak through" with a 20-19 victory over the Chicago Bears, also on TV.

The last of the five packages we mailed just before leaving England arrived a couple of days ago. All were in good condition, so no harm was done because they wouldn't let us insure the two big ones!

Now I'll close and turn this over to Elizabeth for a few paragraphs.

Love, David

Dear Ann, all four of you,

We're having afternoon tea now, still sitting in the living room. It's 4:30 here, beautiful and sunny – just the time to have tea. It's an English habit I have certainly carried home with me. Even days that I'm alone I usually make tea in our darling fat little teapot from Honiton Potteries and nestle it in its lovely gold and brown cozy. And it's a rare day that I have tea without my thoughts winging across the wide Atlantic to you. Too bad it's so far!

Now about the newspaper clippings. Weeks ago I started collecting things from our papers that I thought would interest all of you. Then one day when I went to our Byerly food store I found the new edition of their news sheet was devoted mainly to wine-making so I picked one up for Roy, thinking he would have fun reading it.

I almost forgot to tell you that I have made three "batches" of Rock Buns since we came home, and friends and family think they're wonderfully good.

Rock Buns

We're planning a trip to Chicago the weekend of October 27 to see Tom, so we will take him his game then.

Dear David & Elizabeth, Tom & Jim,

Just a brief line in the middle of frantic preparations for Christmas to let you know that we are still in the land of the living & haven't forgotten you! A parcel is on it's way to you separately with a little gift we hope you will enjoy & which will remind you of a Surrey summer, even in mid-winter Minnesota!

My first visit to the Society of Genealogists was very interesting. The building itself was fascinating & was obviously once a private house of some substance. The once lofty & airy rooms that must have been very gracious are now crammed from floor to ceiling with old books & the rooms themselves have been divided into sections by very tall bookshelves. Unfortunately I t yet found Joseph W. in the Holsworthy area, I've eliminated nearly a dozen parishes & found o individual mentions of other Witheridges, but ing to indicate where the family home was. Still, are plenty more parishes to check, though not all in the S o G library unfortunately.

d I mention in my last letter that I am back work? My present job is for 30 hrs a week, rather re than I would have wished, but there wasn't really f choice. Part time jobs are like gold dust, & there e over 80 applicants for this one, so I was lucky get it. I do wages & personnel records & some stings for a building firm not far from here.
Although I enjoy the work, it doesn't seem to leave nough hours in the day for all the other things that are to be done. I still haven't finished typing & sorting my S.o.G work, but as the firm closes r nearly 2 weeks holiday over Christmas & the New

Year, I should be able to catch up a bit then.
Life has also been complicated by a series of small mishaps to the children, the last of which was rather worrying. Adam dashed out of school one day, not looking where he was going (as ever!) & ran smack into the iron railings & split his forehead open. It really was a ghastly sight, with blood pumping everywhere. The school caretaker rushed us up to St Helier Hospital where the wound was cleaned & stitched, & my boss let me work at home for a bit until we knew that no serious damage was done. The wound has healed marvellously, the stitches came out on Saturday & on Sunday Adam was able to wear his shepherd's head-dress in the Nativity Play with no discomfort!

The whole Sunday School concert went very well. I wrote a very simple script for the little ones (3-6 yrs) to act to, while the over-7's read the words. Jason was chosen to read the John Betjeman poem on Christmas & I chose as the Bible reading Isaiah $7^{14}$ which we at Emmanuel regard as our special favourite.

Jason has also been successful in his chess club & was chosen for the school team for the Sutton Junior Chess Congress. It was an all-day affair, with 6 games each on the Swiss Pairing System, & J. won two of his games. At the end of the day he emerged top in his age group & won a chess set & roll-up vinyl board. He also goes automatically into the finals of the "Evening Standard" Junior Chess Tournament, which takes place on 27 & 28 December, in London.

Roy is rushed off his feet with work & not getting any time off in the race to get all repairs completed before Christmas. So we are all looking forward to the holiday. On Christmas Day we shall be at home with both the mums, but on Christmas Sunday we are going round to Graham + Sue's now that they are at long last in their new home.

How did all your talks go, David? I'm sure with all the material + photos you had you were much in demand for talks on every possible aspect of your trip. And I can't believe that you won't have started thinking about a new book based on something English, Elizabeth. My own guess was that you would work something out around the story of Ryan — or am I way off the mark?

Will Tom be able to be with you for Christmas this year? And are you staying home? I'm sure if Jim has anything to do with it, you'll all be home together! How is the job situation for Jim – has he decided yet in which direction his future lies? We do hope he has been able to resolve his dilemma successfully.

Well, now I must close + run to catch the post. Hoping you all have a really joyous Christmas + a truly happy year ahead. With lots of love from us all, Ron, Kim, Jason + Adam

Dear Kim, Roy, Jason, and Adam:

This is the first Sunday afternoon in a long time that I've been able to sit down and do just what I want to do with no urgent jobs or pressures. Not that I'm all caught up on everything! But there doesn't seem to be a deadline of tomorrow or the next day. And what I really want to do most is to write to you, our dearest family in Britain.

I don't think we'll ever forget our summer in Britain. It was one of the most enjoyable and enriching experiences of our lives. All that we do and think is now set in a broader perspective that extends beyond our own country to yours. The British people now are frequently in our thoughts, and we hope maybe the American people are often in yours because of our having been there.

During the past week we have been blanketed with about ten inches of beautiful, white snow. We always love it when the drab, dirty landscape gets covered up with new snow. This time it was especially welcome, even though it was more than we like to have at one time, because we have still been in the drought that began last summer. This is the most precipitation we've had at one time since last July. Many of the fields have been bare and dry, and the level of our lakes and rivers is way below normal. Now we have hopes that this may now be changing.

What has kept me so busy since last September, of course, is my work with the Greater Minneapolis Council of Churches. Much had been neglected in my absence, and the period from the first of December through Holy Week is always my busiest period, anyway. The lack of funds in recent years, due primarily to inflation, has meant that I have had to pick up the responsibilities formerly carried by staff members who have left from time to time without being replaced.

Elizabeth and I went to a meeting of the Minnesota Genealogical Society about a week ago. It was mainly an open meeting for questions and answers on any genealogical subject. We didn't learn a great deal that we didn't already know, but I did get a good suggestion to work through the Wisconsin Genealogical Society (the state next to us) on my ancestry in Germany, because Wisconsin is so heavily German.

We did enjoy hearing about your experiences at the Society of Genealogists, Kim. We're so glad you have made a good start there, and we hope you have been able to return a few times for additional research. You mentioned that some of the parish records you want are not at the S.O.G. library. Have you studied the information I left you about the Devon Record Office in Exeter? It seems to me they are glad to answer one or two questions at a time without charge. Pe Perhaps they would search for Witheridges over a time span of a few years in one particular parish near Holsworthy from time to time.

Kim, we were so thrilled to get your beautiful painting of the roses for Christmas. Nothing could have delighted us more. We have it sitting on top of the bookshelves in my study, where it brings a touch of summer all through the winter! You have so many talents!

Last Friday, March 5th, was the World Day of Prayer, and we wondered if you were celebrating it in Sutton (or Morden), too. Because they wanted me to take some pictures, I attended three services--one at a Lutheran church in the morning, another in a downtown Catholic church at noon, and an evening dinner meeting at a Greek Orthodox church. Elizabeth was also at the evening one, as we always go together to the evening observance on the World Day of Prayer. Church Women United (one of the departments of the G.M.C.C.) holds 25 neighborhood services in Greater Minneapolis, plus the noon and evening services, and this year they took the services to 85 nursing homes, where they were greatly appreciated.

How are all of your remodeling projects going around the house, Roy? We hope the rush of your job has eased off a bit, so you can find time for some of your own projects. We were quite impressed with your expertise along so many lines. We imagine, too, your garden has already begun to show its new spring growth, which we don't get for another month or two here. You should see our rose bushes all covered up. Did we tell you how we put a styrofoam cone over each bush? Right now after that recent snow, they look like big marshmallows sticking up above the rest of the snow.

We're glad you're back at work, Kim, even though it's more hours than you like to work each week. In these days the extra income is so essential!

Please say "Hello" to Graham and Sue. We're happy to know they are now in their new house, and we wish we were there to see it. We did so enjoy being with them several times.

Now I guess I'll close my part of the letter and turn it over to Elizabeth for a few more remarks.

Love,

Dave

Having been married to me for thirty-six years I suspect that David is pretty sure that I'll never be satisfied with "a few more remarks" so he has prudently provided me with an extra sheet of paper! For some unaccountable reason I've been feeling "homesick" for England and you beloved people the last few days so when I re-read your last letter this afternoon it made me all the more lonely for all four of you! It's so sad that our two countries are separated by the vast Atlantic.

We're happy (so far, at least) with our new President Jimmy Carter. Yesterday he held telephone conversations with people who called in to the White House and we were wondering if you saw and heard any part of it on your BBC. Our PBS which is somewhat comparable to BBC showed a good bit of it to us last evening in a taped replay. We heard it live on radio in the afternoon.

I just stopped for a minute to make David a cup of tea and give him a "British" rock bun." I make them all the time and you'd never believe what tea drinkers we've become, Roy!

COPY

We began with buying a very useful little electric "Hot Pot" in lieu of your electric tea kettle, not made in our country. I use it for boiling water quickly, and usually make tea in our darling Honiton teapot and keep it warm nestled in its matching cozy. By the way, Kim, I'd love it if you'd send me the "recipe" for knitting cozies sometime when you find it and have time.

✓ Before I forget it I must tell you that we have mailed a package to the boys and it should arrive in a few weeks. We sent it "surface" because it's so much cheaper and there wasn't any hurry about it, but it does take a long time. We hope Adam will find his useful and Jason will have fun with his.

It was so good to hear about both of the boys. We were very sorry to know that Adam had such a bad bump, but glad that it healed well. He is so young that it isn't apt to leave much of a scar, hopefully! And were delighted to hear about Jason's chess victories and are anxious to know what has happened since.

Would that I were ready to write something new, and indeed I would love to do something laid in England, but I'm afraid the Plague Village might be too sad a theme for my young readers.
Right now I'm still revising my dog book. I hope to have it back in New York by Easter. I'd be farther along with it now but was delayed by our wildly busy holidays. My dearest friend from home in Michigan came Dec. 20 and stayed until New Year's. Tom couldn't come for Christmas but arrived a day before Grace went home & stayed about 3 days.

The 8th of January we drove to Chicago, stayed with Tom, and were with Grace for the marriage which David performed. It is her first and they are divinely happy - she is ten years older than Dave!
We never again expect to have such an exciting holiday season. Jim & Tom are both fine.

I've been cooking a pot roast & now I must go and put in the vegetables. Wish you were here to eat it with us. It smells good. Much love, Elizabeth Jim sends greetings.

30 March 1977

Dear David & Elizabeth

It was lovely to receive your letter and hear all your latest news. In fact it was quite an American week for mail in the Cook household, as a couple of days later the March issue of World arrived, and at the end of the week the boys were thrilled to receive their parcel from you. Both were delighted with their gifts, and will be adding their own thank-yous to the end of this letter. And talking of the boys, I'd better apologise right now for the typing - I have Adam as an assistant! He insists that he can type just as well as I can, though not so fast, because he's left handed like me and will therefore type left-handed like me! My efforts to persuade him otherwise have so far been unsuccessful. But his favourite children's programmes start on TV soon, so once he settles down to watch those, and with Jason out at his chess coaching course, I should have a more peaceful time of it!

I was very relieved to hear that the painting has arrived safely, after the terrible time I had with postal regulations etc. at this end! I wasn't even allowed to knot the string, as I'm told that the union rules of the Customs men say they don't have to undo knots, so all the fastenings had to be single bows! The customs declaration presented some problems too, until someone came up with the phrase 'no commercial value' in the rule book. I hope you didn't have any problems with it your end.

We would have written sooner after Christmas, but we got so many reports of the terrible blizzards in the northern USA, with all the tremendous difficulties involved for the public services, that we felt it best to delay writing until your weather conditions were better. One evening in our main news bulletins on television they even had a clip of firemen fighting a tower block fire in Minneapolis, and the water from the hoses was freezing into cascading icicles as soon as it touched the building. On film it looked very picturesque - almost like a Disneyland fairy castle, but it can't have been any pleasure to those poor firemen. In fact for three or four weeks the freak Arctic weather conditions throughout the northern US were a regular feature of our TV newscasts, but from your letter it seems that you didn't get too much of the snow.

We had really thought our spring was here to stay, and last week our clocks went forward for the summer daylight saving time, and the cold weather promptly returned! The masses of glorious golden daffodils in our gardens have been bent to the ground each morning under the severe night frosts, but they do struggle up again if the sun thaws them out in the day. Snowdrop and crocus time is long gone, daffodils and hyacinths, forsythia and almond trees are at their height, and soon it will be the turn of the tulips and flowering cherries and early apple blossom. We do so love it when the colour comes back to the garden, especially at blossom time.

We too celebrated Women's World Day of Prayer with special services at many of the local churches. Unfortunately my own contribution had to be a private one here at home, as the two services nearest here were both at impossible times. The afternoon one co-incided with the children coming out of school, and the evening one started before Roy finished work, Friday being his late night. But it must have been fascinating for you to see so many different denominations celebrating each in their own way - surely what WWDP is all about.

Yesterday was also a special prayer day for our church Young Wives group, as it was our annual 'Quiet Day'. Each year, on one day in Lent, we remove ourselves from our usual surroundings and devote the best part of the day to talks, prayer and discussion. In the past we have travelled out to the country somewhere, but the journey has reduced our useful meeting time and also posed problems for mums with children at half-day playgroups. Last year the local Baptist church very kindly let us use one of their church meeting rooms, nicely equipped with carpet, sofa, armchairs and small tables, and much more like a large homely sitting room that our more formal meeting rooms. We also had the use of another room as a creche for the children, and of the kitchen for coffee and soup etc. It was such a success that we repeated the arrangement yesterday, and welcomed Freda Franks, a lovely lady from Crawley (not far from Gatwick Airport) to lead our discussion on 'Prayer - does it bounce off the ceiling, or raise the roof!' Freda was one of a team which first came to Emmanuel on an outreach mission in 1972, and with whom we have kept in touch ever since. She is such a sweet soul, and very practical as well as spiritual, and we all gained a great deal from our 'Quiet Day'.

I was certainly very glad of the quiet after a very busy time, in recent weeks. Unfortunately my new job didn't last very long, and I was again made redundant at the end of February. I hadn't realised until I stopped work just how tired I had become, and in the following weeks seemed to catch every germ going. Also, our Craft Club held a coffee morning which I had to organise, and which raised £27. Jason had enrolled in an 8 week chess coaching course in Sutton for 1½ hours each Wednesday afternoon, which finishes today. He has also been on the waiting list to join the Cub Scout pack at the Baptist Church and at the beginning of the month they had two vacancies and were able to take both Jason and his friend Kevin who has been going to chess with him. After four weeks as a tenderfoot he has learned his law and promise and fitted in nicely with the rest of the pack, so was enrolled as a full member last night, complete with full uniform. Adam has been referred by the school doctor toa speech therapy clinic as they are concerned that he still can't manage to sound 's', so we have been travelling to Cheam and back for weekly sessions. Then on the 18th we went to a charity barn dance organised by Graham and Sue for the Horder rehabilitation unit for arthritics - a very enjoyable evening out. On Thursday and Friday last Roy had two days off to knock down the walls of the old larder cupboard in the kitchen. As all the main fuse boxes etc for the whole house were attached to that wall everything had to be re-routed. Then just after Roy had booked his two days' holiday we had a phone call from one of his neices in Lowestoft (on the east coast) to ask if she and her husband could come and stay for the weekend! Of course, Roy had to go ahead with the demolition as planned, or we'd never have got it done, so I spent all Friday frantically trying to remove the omnipresent brick-dust, and make the place reasonably presentable for their arrival at 6.30 that night. It was the first time we had seen Jackie & Tony for 18 months, and as they expect their first baby in July it was a very happy reunion. (Roy and I will be great-aunt and great-uncle for the fifth time, which makes us seem very ancient!) Jackie and Tony spent all day Saturday in London, visiting the Ideal Home Exhibition, having a meal out, and then going to a show, and Roy collected them from Morden station at about 12.30 am! That left us free on Saturday afternoon to go and pay a farewell visit to Wendy and Geoff who leave for their new home in Bradford tomorrow. They are none of them very happy, about going but they have no alternative. Geoff's firm has moved up there and the employment situation generally is so bad that it has been impossible for him to get another job anywhere in the south. We shall be as sorry to see them go as they will be to go, and I am just praying that they will both be able to make the necessary adjustments involved without too much difficulty. However, as Wendy has recently been in hospital and is still suffering from post-operative depression there will be considerable problems all round. But we hope to go up for a visit in the summer holidays, and meanwhile have taken the liberty of giving them Eric Allen's address, as Leeds is only nine miles from Bradford and they will need good friends. So our visit with Wendy and Geoff on Saturday was a rather sad one, and we were glad of Jackie's and Tony's company over the rest of the week-end. They finally drove home in flurries of snow and sleet on Monday afternoon, leaving us with an invitation to visit them in early June.

So you can see life has been fairly busy, but on the whole enjoyable. And what a real pleasure it must have been for you to go to Chicago and have two such enjoyable visits - to see Tom and to be with Grace for her Wedding. And it must be lovely to have the ceremony performed by someone you know. The minister who officiated at our wedding was a complete stranger to both of us!

And I was really amazed by your reference to pot-roast Elizabeth. You see, we hadn't had a pot-roast for ages, and then they had some special offers on beef in our local freezer centre. I bought two nice pieces of brisket and put them in the little freezer I bought with my earnings just before Christmas. On the Sunday before your letter arrived we had had a delicious pot-roast, and when I checked the dates I found it was the same day that you had written of your pot roast and said you wished we could share it! Quite a coincidence!

Now I must tell you the news on the genealogy front. A visit to St Catherine's house turned up some useful information for me, and I was able to check out quite a few facts. I have transcribed the marriage entries I copied and a copy is enclosed. I'm hoping I'll get a chance to type out the death register transcripts this evening and include them with this letter, but if not I'll include them next time. Concerning my own family tree, I have had to make a fresh neat copy because of all the information that has come to light since I made the original one about three years ago. Unfortunately I still haven't found the birthplace of Joseph in 1791 in the Holsworthy area, but there are still many parishes to check. Also I am beginning to wonder if the census enumerator might have made a small mistake and written Holsworthy in error for Galsworthy, which would sound very similar in broad Devonshire brogue. It's another possibility to follow up anyway, and if the worst comes to the worst, I can always advertise in the Genealogists magazine, as they have many such adverts, Viz: 4738 Kennerley. Wanted: Parentage, birthplace and date of William Kennerley, born c 1787 in North Kent or London. Married in Bexley. (F C Kennerley, 32 Eastbrook Road, London SE3). There are 24 such similar requests in the March issue of the magazine, which I have just received (more of which later). But I did discover that the mystery grandson of Joseph, recorded in the1851 census as Thomas Henry Witheridge but not registered in that name at the GRO, was the son of Thomas and Mary Ann, born about 18 months before their marriage and therefore registered as Thomas Henry Garry (his mother's name). He was therefore the elder brother of my great-grandfather Edmund, though as yet I haven't been able to discover what became of him, as I shall have to search under both names in future. However, I did discover that their younger brother Samuel John (3mths old at the time of the 1851 census) survived into adult life and married at Portsea, Portsmouth in 1878. Of the three so-far unattached Plymouth Witheridges who could belong to the same family, Nahala (b 1852) married in Plymouth in 1871, Elizabeth Jane (b 1855) married in Plymouth in 1877 and William James (B 1856) married in Plymouth in 1874. As I have been unable to find any of their baptism records, (and also unable to find any of my family's baptism records, which makes me think that they may all come from the same register that I have not yet been able to see), I may be able to trace the relevant marriage entries more easily and thus determine the parentage of the elusive three. I also wonder whether Samuel John was in the Navy, as Plymouth and Portsmouth were, and still are, the two major naval bases in this country. I also recorded the death in Plymouth in 1857 of Thomas, possibly their father. I shall certainly have to bear the possibility in mind on my next visit to the PRO to check the 1861 census again, and I may also try and do some work on the 1871 census which hadn't been released when I first wanted to check it.

Now back to the magazine of the SoG, the first copy of which, together with the index to last year's vélume, arrived last week. I have typed a very brief resume of its contents, with a bit more detail from the American article which I thought you might find useful. I also picked out three other items of particular interest, and felt that it might be very useful to make contact with the Devon Family History Society. And the advertisement about the Gilbert index might be of some use in tracing Gervis and his whereabouts. If you'd like me to follow it up, perhaps you could let me have all the relevant details and dates back to him, and I could see if any of their references tallied with any of yours.

I'm hoping to manage another visit to London one day next week, but haven't decided which would be the most beneficial course to follow. There are four places I need to visit - St Catherines, the PRO Census Room, the Society of Genealogists and County Hall, home of the Greater London Council Records Room which houses copies of most of the parish registers ofthe Greater London area. I think I might try the Census Room, especially as my PRO reader's ticket has expired and I must renew it. I have found County Hall useful in starting work on Roy's family, although working with more common names (Cook, Anderson and Lawrence) in an area of very dense population involves much more slogging and much slower results than my previous Witheridge work. Also, I am hoping that I may be able to turn up something in County Hall on my grandmother's family (Marks) My aunt Elsie also married a Marks who was vaguely believed to be a distant relation, and his family carries a rather picturesque legend (though I doubt whether there is a great deal of accuracy in it) that the family was originally French, and that the name was originally de Marquis(e). The tale has it that following escape from France during the time of the French revolution, the family fled to England and anglicised their name to Marks. Time will tell how much truth (if any) there is in the story.

Also on the genealogy side, I have been able to do some work on the photo copies you gave me of the Salt Lake City records. While some of the information does tally with what I already have, and much of it is quite new to me, I was disturbed to find some quite blatant errors which have apparently not been corrected or even queried, and which must therefore give rise to concern about the standards of accuracy generally. The most notable case is that of John Witheridge of Barnstaple (b circa 1541) and his wife Elizabeth. The record quite confidently states that they had ten children, the last three being Thomas (B 31.8.1578), Simon (B 4.10.1580), and Mary (B 15.1.1585). Yet the document also states that their mother Elizabeth was buried on 4.9.1578! As the baptisms of all ten children were at regular intervals, it is reasonable to assume that they were baptised fairly soon after birth (unlike some families who had their children baptised in batches!) Elizabeth's burial date would tie in with a post-natal infection or something similar following the arrival of Thomas. But even allowing a two year delay in the baptism, which might just explain Simon, we are still left with the puzzle of Mary. And there is nowhere on the document any query, or any suggestion of a second wife for John. What do you make of it? Also I couldn't help noticing one or two Christian names that seemed chronologically wrong. Oliver as a Christian name is the 16th centmry would have been rare, except among those of the nobility descended from the Norman French perhaps. But the Mormon records show an Oliver born in 1569 in Barnstaple. Of course it may be quite right, but instinct tells me it feels wrong. Likewise with Susan B1631 in Ilfracombe. I haven't found this name in common use much before the 18th or 19th centuries. I have entered them all in my card index, but with the appropriate queries pencilled in for future checking as and when the opportunity arises. Incidentally my card index is now nudging the 400 mark of Witheridges by birth, and with wives, and the children of Witheridge women, the actual figure must run to nearer 600! And I've still got some of the odd references from my last two research trips to transcribe. But I'd be lost without it, as it really is the most organised and best classified and concise section of my records. Classification and filing of documents gets a bit more involved, especially with families that spread about a bit, The only deficiency in my card system at the moment is that I don't have separate cards for the Witheridge wives, but this I shall have to remedy before much longer.

Incidentally, I have some notes in my genealogy note book that have nothing whatever to do with genealogy. We were watching TV one night about a week ago when I spotted that ITV had a long programme about Michigan, which I thought would be inresting to watch to get some idea of what your original home state was like. But the programme wasn't quite what I expected - it was a horrifying report of 'The Poisoning of Michigan' following the Firemaster debâcle. The research had been very thorough, and I can't remember when I saw a more disconcerting piece of journalism in any medium. I think in its way the cover-ups in this case have been even worse that the Watergate ones, because people's health and possibly even their lives could be at stake. I don't know whether this particular programme, or anything similar, has been shown on your TV networks, but I grabbed my notebook and wrote down as much as I could at the time, because I knew I'd never remember half the facts quoted. And it was heartbreaking to watch farmers having to destroy herds that had probably been built up over generations of careful buying and breeding, and tosee some of the appallingly grotesque deformities in calves of the third 'post-Firemaster' generation. Prior to this programme we heard brief reports which gave the impression of minor poisoning in two or three herds, brief details of which had been in the press at intervals during the past three years, but at no time had we imagined anything on such a scale. I'll see if I can find the relevant newspaper reports on the programme and include them, so that you can let us know how it looks to you.

On television we also saw some of the Jimmy Carter phone-in and he came over quite well. In fact, one of the things that impressed many people was strangely when he had to admit he had no idea of the answer to one woman's question. 'At least he's honest' seems to have been the general comment!

We were very touched to read your comments about feeling homesick for England, and often wish you could be back with us too. I still feel that there is so much more we could have seen and done had you been able to stay longer, but perhaps you'll manage another visit someday. We were pleased to hear Jim and Tom are both keeping well - do give them our love, as we quite feel they are like members of the family, even though we've never met them -yet! Maybe they too, will in turn be able to make the Atlantic crossing in due course!

Graham and Sue are both very well, although Sue has had a couple of very severe colds this winter. Did I tell you that they now have a gorgeous pedigree Airedale dog. He is a real character, and at only seven months old weighs 3½ stone! His pet name is Norman, and the boys call him 'Nutty Norman' because he's sometimes quite barmy! We call him Norman the Foreman, because no matter what Graham and Sue may say to the contrary, it's quite obvious who's the boss in their house! As he has a pedigree showing five generations of champions, they also had to choose a suitable kennel name to register him at the Kennel Club. Most of his ancesters had the forename Bengal, as the breeder had spent much of his early life in India. I was quite sure in advance that Norman's character was such that he would be a Sahib, and one of his grandparents had Sahib in his name. Finally Sue hit on the brilliant invention of Sugra (from their own Christian names), so he was registered with the grand title of Bengal Sugra Sahib - much more dignified than it's owner, who looks like one of those pups you sometimes see pictured on toffee tins!

Well, now I really must close, as its nearly bed-time and I must lay out all the clean clothes for everyone for tomorrow. Jason is going on a school outing to the Fairfield Halls concert complex in Croydon tomorrow to take part in a recording for the BBC of the end of term concert of the schools' music programme.

I'll leave a space for the boys to add their messages tomorrow, because they've both said they'd like to write their own little bit. Adam is very proud of his new-found ability to read and write, and his teacher is very pleased with his progress. Jason's teacher too is very pleased with his work - he is doing excellently at mathematics, very well in history and geography and general subjects, and I was delighted to see that his facility for creative writing has suddenly blossomed and he is showing great promise there too.

But now I'll sign off, and wish you all a very happy Easter season.

With much love from us all,

Ron, Kim, Jason & Adam

Dear Uncle David and Auntie Elizabeth

Thank you very much for my marker pens. I can make lovely bright pictures with them. I have joined the Cubs and am looking forward to taking tests to win some badges. I think there is a badge for art, so my pens will come in useful. Thank you.

Lots of love

Jason

Thank you for my lefty scissors

Lots of love

Adam

P.S. Almost forgot to mention - we've booked a cottage to share with Graham & Sue (& Norman!) for a week at the end of August. It's near Kingsbridge, so I may get another chance to check those Plymouth archives! Kim

Dear David and Elisabeth

Many thanks for your leter received many weeks ago, and apologies for not having answered sooner - we have been going through yet another of our periodic 'chaos phases' as you will soon realise!

I can't remember if I mentioned in my last letter that I had been made redundant yet again. Part time jobs are like gold-dust, and the few there are are always the first to be discarded when a company is forced into making economies. I began to think that maybe I wasn't meant to work after all! But at Easter I spotted a rare advertisement in our local paper for a publisher's reader for a local company with offices near Sutton station. Originally the job was for a freelance working from home, but when their directors saw from my application form that my past experience included scheduling they asked me to take on that as well. So I go into the office for 15 or 16 hours a week, at times to suit myself, and have now completed most of the major job of scheduling the work through, and then once the schedules are organised it need only take an hour or so a day to keep them updated and the reading I can bring home, which will be ideal in the school holidays. We set books for other publishers, using mainly IBM computerised composing machines, and also do technical drawings, artwork etc, and provide either camera ready copy or negatives as required. One of our biggest customers is the American firm of Prentice-Hall of New Jersey - we do a lot of college text books for them.

Jason and Adam are keeping busy too. Jason is now a Cub (with all the additional social life that that gives rise to!) and is learning to swim. Adam has been having a course of speech therapy classes one afternoon a week, to help with his 's' sounds, and it now seems possible that he may have a minor defect in the frequency range of his hearing, so we are waiting for an appointment at a special audiometric clinic. The boys have both been going through a phase of mutual dislike, rubbing each other up the wrong way, so we have separated their beds and put Adam in the little room. It seems to be an improvement!

As well as moving the bedrooms about, Roy and I have been busily working on the dining room, painting and papering, and it is nearly finished at last. We are delighted with the result, and as soon as we have completed the finishing touches we'll photograph the result and send it to you. We've also been busy in the kitchen - that awful old doorless larder has gone and in its place is a tall wall cupboard, not nearly so deep, with laminated doors in a pine finish. We have put cork tiles on the wall underneath to make a notice board (much needed for all the school, Church and Cub notes), and have put a matching single cupboard on the wall over the draining board. We have also just bought a new stainless steel sink unit to match the new cupboards, but are waiting for new flooring to put down before we fix the new floor unit arrangement.

However, we haven't been able to do much in the last few weeks. For the Jubilee holiday we took ourselves off to Suffolk, planning to stay for ten days. We had a really enjoyable visit, seeing all the family and friends we had planned to, but unfortunately had to come home early when I caught a heavy cold which rapidly turned into bronchitis. When we came home I had a week off work, and had only been back in circulation for two days when we were all in a minor car accident. We were stationary at traffic lights and the car behind us just didn't stop. Fortunately Roy and the boys came to no harm, but I suffered a whiplash injury to my neck muscles and have been in a soft surgical collar for nearly four weeks. Fortunately it is on the mend now, but we are still going through all the inevitable insurance and legal hassles.'

One side effect of that is that I had planned to have my typewriter serviced (at long last) last month, but haven't dared be without it in view of all the legal and insurance correspondence we've had to deal with.

But now all the family news is told, I can start on the genealogy news. I went to the Society of Genealogists' one day conference in June, which was extremely beneficial, not only for what I came to know, but also for who I came to know. One of my new contacts is Don Steel, by profession an Education Officer with the BBC in Bristol, but also a very experienced author and lecturer in the genealogy field, and the youngest person ever to be elected as a Fellow of the SoG. He has just left England for a 5-week lecture tour of the USA, but before he went he managed to convene a meeting of interested parties to organise an East Surrey Family History Society. I was nominated on to the steering committee, with special responsibility for publicity and for editing and producing a printed magazine. Fortunately the firm I work for was able to provide an acceptable quote for setting, and I got a reasonable quote from a printer in Wallington to produce the finished copies, so all I have to do now is to conjure up 32 pages of material and 3 pages of adverts and have the whle thing ready for sale at the inaugural meeting in September! Sutton Central Library (a new building, only open about 18 months) is now specialising in Genealogy and Heraldry as their pet subjects, so they have welcomed us with open arms and will provide excellent meeting facilites at a reduced rate. Diplomatically we have elected the senior librarian there as our President, and have also chosen as Treasurer the wife of a bank manager! We have already uncovered hitherto unsuspected sources of copies of records for what might be called 'historical Surrey' - extending in to London as far as Southwark - which should help me a great deal in my hunt for Roy's antecedents. Also, it could lead to the arrangement of exchange facilities with other Family History Societies, and hopefully the one in Devon, which could prove extremely useful.

On the more personal side of genealogy I have dug up a few more

(not literally of course!)

Witheridges in various parishes around Holsworthy, but as yet have found no trace of my 3xgreat grandfather Joseph. I now have a good parish map of Devon (purchased at the SoG conference) which gives me a much more accurate idea of where to search. Unfortunately all the parishes in the next phase of my hunt are ones which are neither with the SoG nor the Devon Records Office, so I shall have to have a session with the Crockfords Clerical Directory in the library and start writing to the incumbents of the parishes concerned.

But I have got some very interesting news on other fronts. Firstly I sent off for copies of the only two remaining Witheridge wills from the DRO. The most interesting is that of Richard Witheridge of Tavistock, and the phrasing is so beautiful that I feel I must type it out in full for you, just as it comes:

The last Will and Testament of me Richard Witheridge of Hogbear in the parish of Tavistock in the County of Devon Yeoman being now of sound and disposing mind and memory thanks be given to Almighty God for the same and calling to mind the mortality of my body and knowing there is an appointed time once for all to die do make and ordain this to be my last Will and Testament Principally and first of all I recomment my Soul into the hands of Almighty God who gave it and my body I commit to the earth to be decently interred at the discretion of my Executrix hereafter named and touching such worldly goods as God in his Mercy has been pleased to bestow upon me I give devise and dispose of the same in the following manner First I desire that all my just debts be paid together with my funeral expenses and the expense of proving this my last Will Secondly I give and bequeath to my Youngest son Richard my silver watch silver shoe buckles and silver knee buckles Thirdly all the rest residue and remainer of my estate and effects wheresoever and whatsoever and of what kind and quality soever the same may be I give and bequeath unto my beloved wife Mary Witheridge and I do make ordain constitute and appoint the said Mary Witheridge to be sole Executrix of this my last Will and Testament to be by her held occupied and enjoyed during her life after which should there be any of the said property left I should wish the same to be equally divided amongst all my children at the discretion of my beloved Wife Mary Witheridge these presents I publish as my last Will and Testament whereunto I subscribe my name this fifth day of July One thousand eight hundred and thirty four //. Rd Witheridge.

But the really interesting part is the affirmation by the witnesses who sign themselves: Roger Percy, John Percy, Roger Crossman's mark. As the parishes of Tavistock and Lamerton share a lengthy common boundary, and as the wife of John Phillips Witheridge was a Jane Percy, I can't help feeling that there's a connection. It could even be that Richard senior was John Phillips' father and the two Percys father and/or brothers/uncles to Jane; certainly the dates would be about right, However as neither the Tavistock nor Lamerton records are available in London, it will have to be another Devonshire job. (Richard died 9 July 1834, effects sworn under £600.)

One further item that may be relevant to your own family David, is an entry in the BT of the registers of Bulkworthy (about halfway between Holsworthy and Bideford). It shows a marriage on 27 October 1608 between Thomas Saunders and Wilmot Witheridge - no futher details given, but that name Wilmot does seem to be peculiar to the Combmartin Witheridges. Does it tie in with the dates of any of the Wilmots you have records of?

Ans

Did I mention in my last letter that on a visit to St Catherine's House I had found the marriage index entries for three of the Plymouth 'mystery' Witheridges that I feel may belong to my family? The three concerned are Mahala (b 1852, m 1871), Elizabeth Jane (b 1855, m1877) and William James (b 1856, m 1874). As I cannot trace their baptismal records, I'm hoping that the marriage entries will be easier to find, and Mr Chell the Plymouth City Archivist has agreed to have a quick search for me. That should give me some more information to work on before we go down to Kingsbridge in the summer holidays.

19 July

Five whole days gone, and this is the first chance I've had to sit down at the typewriter again. Roy has been poorly with a nasty tummy bug, and I've had a severe migraine, but fortunately we're now both fit again. I'm beginning to think we really need that holiday.

Luckily we were both well enough to get to our last Young Wives meeting of the session - a barbecue to which husbands were also invited. There were about 36 of us all told, in the very large garden of our friends Cedric and Margaret, and we finished the evening with a sing-song to guitar and tambourine accompaniment. It was a really good evening of fellowship.

Looking back I see that I forgot to mention the second Witheridge will - that of Susannah Witheridge of Kingsbridge. Unfortunately although it mentions many other members of her family, it doesn't mention any other Witheridges. As she died aged 93 (according to the monumental inscription in Kingsbridge, as recorded at SoG) her husband probably pre-deceased her by many years, and as the only child mentioned is a widowed daughter, that particular Witheridge line would seem to end there.It would seem that her maiden name was Bentley, and she mentions her 'late brother' Samuel Bentley. Her daughter is named as Susanna Shillabeer, and three grandchildren Samuel Bentley Shillabeer,Eliza Jane Shillabeer, and Henry Shillabeer.

I've just been speaking on the phone to an Australian genealogist now living in London who has kindly written an article on his convict ancestors for our new magazine. He's just told me that the Mormons have just opened a microfiche branch of their genealogy library in Exhibition Road, South Kensington - it's only been open a few weeks - and he's volunteered to look for Joseph Witheridge for me! He expects to be going there tomorrow, so with a bit of luck we may have an answer to that particular mystery before much longer.

Another piece of information that caught my eye came from an entirely different and completely unexpected source - the manuscript of a book I was reading at work. It's a book called 'Year's Work in English Studies' - a review of all major publications in English Literature which came out in 1975. One chapter mentioned, in passing, a five-day seminar on James Joyce at the University of Hawaii in 1974 and a talk on 'Ulysses' given by James Penny Smith. Seeing those two names together I couldn't help wondering if he might be another descendent of your James Penn(e)y.

Well, I guess I ought to close now - it's time I sould be in bed, and if I leave this unfinished it could be another five days before I get down to typing some more, and at that rate you'd never receive this! Do write soon with all your news and let us know how you are all keeping, how work and research are going for you David, and how Elizabeth's book in getting along, and also how the job situation is working out for Jim and whether Tom is still in Chicago. And if you should visit the Mark family and/or the Burkes, do give them our greetings and best wishes.

With love from us all,

Roy, Kim, Jason & Adam.

P.S. Have a book project of my own under way, but still in very early stages. Will tell you more about it next time! K

P.P.S. Have made contact with the Charles Witheridges, but have not yet come up with anything further on that line. Our 'Princess Elizabeth' is now a riot of bloom & a constant reminder of you, Elizabeth. Even the boys now refer to it as "Auntie Elizabeth's rose"!

Dear David & Elizabeth

Just a few quick lines, hoping all is well with you and the family. It seems ages since we last heard from you and are just hoping that no news is good news. I expect you have been pretty busy - hopefully happy-busy!

Did you get my last letter, and the will transcript etc? I hope it reached you safely, as I was very naughty and didn't take carbons, although of course I do have all the documentary originals. By coincidence my aunt Dorothy has just had a letter from G Keith Witheridge - it seems the genealogy bug has bitten him too! The letter has been passed to me, so I have just written a quick letter telling him a little of what I know and mentioning the Richard Witheridge will and the Percy witnesses.

We had a glorious week in Devon, and I did manage to get a few hours in the Plymouth record office - though a few weeks would have been better! In the time available I didn't have much success, except in tracking down the elusive marriage of my great-grandparents. I have been very lucky too, in that my aunt Dorothy has been turning out some old photos, documents etc, and has given me photos of my grand parents and both sets of great-grand parents! One excellent photo showns my grandmother with all her brothers and sisters and their parents - at a guess I would date it about 1888. There are also a few pictures of my great-grandfather Witheridge at his home on Kingston Hill - all in all a real treasure trove for the family historian.

East Surrey
Family History
Society

Would you believe that yet another honorary 'job' has landed in my lap. At the Society of Genealogists' AGM in June, the formation of a Family History Society in this part of the world was raised, and all those interested were asked to attend a hastily convened extra meeting. Half an hour later I found myself on the committee of the East Surrey Family History Society, with the job of writing and producing a journal and handling all the publicity for the group as well. What a job! But it has been very rewarding - the first journal was published in September, in time for the first meeting, which was attended by 130 people, of whom 90 enrolled on the spot. Our second meeting last night was also well attended - at a guess about 80 - with membership now on the 130 mark. We need about 300 members to be totally self supporting financially doing all the things we want to, but it's not bad for a start. I am sending a copy of the journal under separate cover - you have a mention in it!

Private information redacted

However, we have had one bit of hassle we could have done without. In June a travelling rep ran hard into the back of our dear old car, doing quite a bit of damage, and causing me a whiplash neck injury. I had to wear a surgical collar for a month, and am still having trouble, so have an appointment at the hospital for next Tuesday. Our solicitors say that I should get some financial compensation for it, but it will take some time. More immediately, the car will have to be written of. She still runs beautifully, and did the journey to Devon and back almost non-stop, but the damage to the bodywork exceeds the value of the car, so the insurance company are bound to write it off. As the road tax for it has just expired we felt it was pointless to re-tax it in the circumstances so have taken the plunge and (with the help of our friendly bank manager!) have bought another vehicle. It is very similar to the other, another Triumph estate, but only 9 years old instead of 16! It has a slightly larger engine, with a bit more power, but the structure is the same, so we have been able to salvage the seat covers, special steering wheel and other goodies from the old one. This one, which is white, also has a radio, sun roof and heated rear screen, which is nice. We are delighted with it (although Roy is having to treat a few small rust spots before they prove troublesome) and, in very timely fashion we each had a pay rise, which will cover the cost of repayments - a real answer to prayer that was!

How are Jim & Tom? We do hope Jim has found the 'right' job, & that all is well with all of you. Oops - end of paper - love to all! Roy, Kim, Jason & Adam xxxx

FIRST FOLD HERE

October 29, 1977

Dear Kim, Roy, Jason + Adam:

You would never know how often we think and talk about you by the frequency of our letters! We've decided to send a couple of pages now and a couple of pages later – and so on – rather than trying to do it all at once, which we never have time for. Elizabeth will write some family news, so I'll concentrate on genealogical matters.

After our summer vacation trip east, I decided I simply had to get back to all the family data we compiled last year in Britain, that's right — much of it had just been sitting all that time because of my being so busy! So for several weeks I had books and papers spread out on a card table in the living room. Elizabeth was very tolerant and patient.

I was working mainly on Witheridge records from Devon and Allen and Richards records from Cornwall. Later I got into Elizabeth's Amos line and my Narnity line.

What happened was that in August we took two long weekends (I had some extra vacation days coming) and made trips into two parts of Iowa (the state just south of us). The first was to Dubuque where a distant cousin of Elizabeth lives. She is the author of a book on her branch of the Amos family, and she has a lot of information we had never seen before. We spent two full days there and had a marvelous time. Then, of course, I had a lot of work to do on this material when we got home.

The other trip to Iowa was to meet some "long lost" cousins of mine. For years I had known that my grandfather Narnity had a brother who settled on a farm in Iowa, but we had lost all contact with that part of the family. A couple of years ago I learned on our trip out west, where

I met some other cousins for the first time, that the town where they lived in Iowa was Charter Oak. Then a little later we were in Des Moines, the capital of Iowa, and went to the State Archives Building, where we found the Telephone directory of Charter Oak. We copied the page with several Nemitz entries and wrote to one of the families.

The information they sent confirmed that we are related, but I couldn't tell exactly how, because there seemed to be some discrepancies. We determined to visit them sometime, but due to our trip to England, we weren't able to go until this summer.

We spent a little over two days there and had a most interesting time meeting many new relatives and digging information out of the church register and out of the scrap-books and memories of several relatives. When we came home, I was able to reconstruct practically all the descendants of my grandfather's brother Ernst — 40 of my "our Family Record" sheets. It was an amazing accomplishment for one weekend.

I guess I'm telling you all this just to explain why I haven't had time to correlate and comment on the genealogical information in your letter of several months ago. All my work has been on things begun when we were in Britain or before that.

The only thing I will mention from your letter, Kim, is your very astute comment about the Mormon records. Those archive record sheets were compiled by individuals with varied abilities and are filed just as submitted with apparently no expert checking. So they can be used only as clues or secondary information. I have a book written by one of the Mormon experts, and he says: "Information on file in the Church Records Archives is not always genealogically correct nor complete. Its value is directly related to the competency and efforts of the compiler of the record."

That's all for now. More next time.

Love, Dave

Tuesday, November 1, 197

Dearest Family,
I think it was a small miracle that your letter arrived this morning while I was ironing and thinking about the letter I planned to write to you this afternoon! I was so pleased that I hadn't done it before because there they would have crossed and that's so frustrating, isn't it? David got your two (unanswered letters, oh dear!) out of his desk the other day and we both read them over and loved them and he wrote his part immediately and I procrastinated. This time it was lucky that I did I called the office and told him your letter had come and reassured him that all was well with you but he hasn't had the joy of reading it yet.

How wonderful that Jason is off the out-patient list at last! We're sorry that your whiplash is still troubling you but I understand they are slow mending. Wish you had our doctor to consult about it. He is a most marvelous osteopath and so good at treating things like that. So often other doctors don't quite know the best way to approach joint and muscular and nerve injuries. I've been having a bout with sciatica this fall, but thanks to Dr. Zettel it is almost 100% over now.

Speaking of fall, ours has been lovely. Now, member! we still have roses budding and blooming in our garden because we here in the city have not as yet had a killing frost. I just put a lovely, radiant Miss All-American Beauty in a bud vase on the chest in the living room. We think each one may be the last now. On Saturday we bought the two little Christmas tree tops that we put in hanging baskets at the front door in winter.

October 8, 1978

Dearest Kim, Roy, Jason, + Adam:

The first three issues of Kim's Journal have just arrived, and we are inspired to write immediately and tell you how pleased we are.

I can't even remember when we last wrote to you, and my desk is piled so high with so many things that I don't want to take the time to figure it out.

Just let this be a short note to thank you and to tell you a little about what's going on. Of course, I haven't read all three issues of the Journal, just part of the first one. I'm fascinated, and I congratulate you and the others, Kim. I was even pleased to be mentioned.

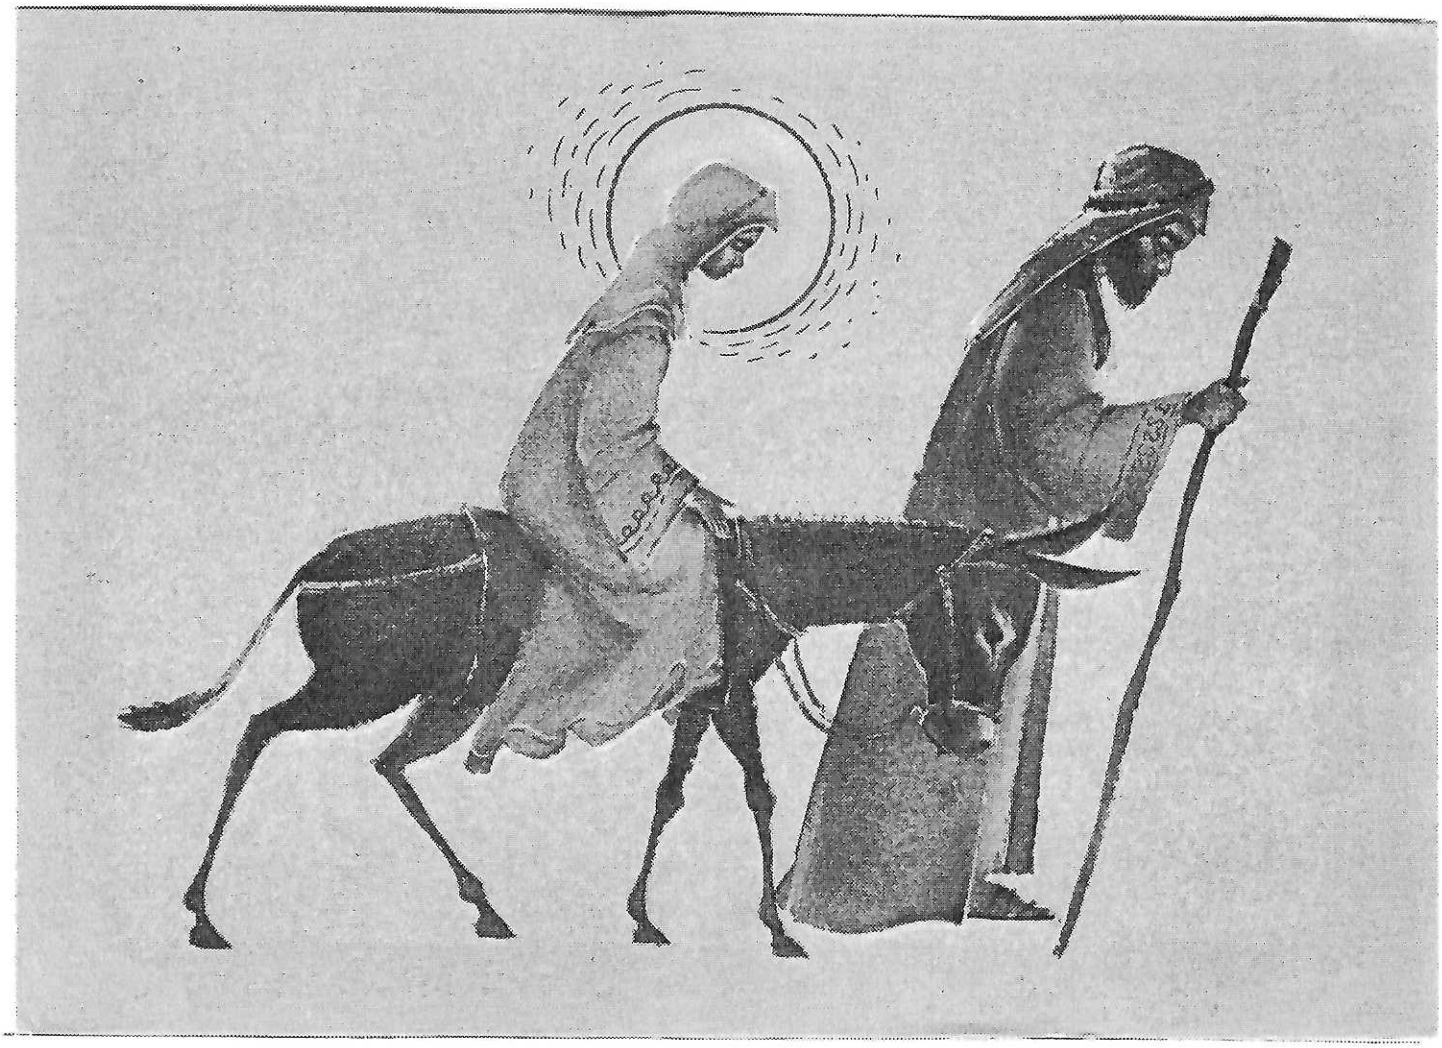
I'm not going to get into genealogy. I'm going to let Elizabeth finish this. – Love, David

We think of you all so often and would give so much to walk into your house again and hear Jason and Adam call, "Elizabeth and David are here!" Both of you boys must have grown so tall during the two years and more since we have seen you.

All the things you have told us about your house "renewal" sound wonderful and we'd love to see it. We need some renewal of our own. We certainly thought we would have our bedroom done this summer, but somehow we were too busy after we returned from our part-conference, part-vacation trip to New Mexico and Texas. We do have new front steps and porch floor, however. Our roses are still blooming, but every night brings threat of frost now.

Love from us all,

Elizabeth



To David & Elizabeth,
Jim & Tom

May the Blessings of Christmas be with you

With love from us all,
Roy, Kim,
Jason & Adam

15 December 1978

Dear David and Elizabeth,

Just a few briefly written lines to let you know that we haven't really fogotten you! In fact, if we wrote to you as often as we thought and spoke of you, you'd get a letter just about every day! But in spite of the fact that I have given up a couple of my jobs for the church, there still don't seem to be enough hours in the day to spread between all the things I want to do!

I did a little more genealogy this summer, particularly during our Devon holiday - of which more later - but since I helped to found the East Surrey Family History Society last year, it seems that most of my efforts have been directed at helping other people work out their family histories! Mind you, in the process I have learned a tremendous amount for myself - all I now lack is the time to put that new learning into practice! However, I think that my next big task will be to cmplete the GRO listings of all births, marriages and deaths up to the present day, and also to list all the PPR wills for Witheridges indexed at Somerset House. A solid week in London might do the trick, but that just doesn't seem a possibility right now.

Hoping to move to Devon

One thing that does seem more than just a possibility is the great news that we have a chance of moving to Devon in the new year! Roy's firm is desperately short of engineers at the present time, and Exeter is at present bottom of the company's league tables for job efficiency and productivity. While the London area don't want to lose Roy, the company would rather transfer an engineer that lose him, and Roy has been told, unofficially, that it is extremely unlikely that a transfer request to the Exeter area would be turned down. And we are both getting rather fed up with the rat race which has really extended to this part of suburbia now. Customers are so agressive and rude, wanting everything done yesterday, and yet lacking even the most basic of common courtesy, that we would all rather live where the pace of life is still slow enough to give time for the essential courtesies of life. While on hoiday in the beautiful moorland village of Lustleigh, we fell in love with the small town of Bovey Tracey (scene of a historic battle of the Civil War , and home of the church built by Sir Gilbert de Tracey as penance for his part in the murder of Becket at Canterbury - plenty of writing material there!) and also with its people, who made us so welcome. We went back to Bovey again at half term, and have found a lovely house, and are now just waiting to sell ours. We thought we had a buyer for ours a couple of weeks ago, but that has now all fallen through, so we will have to start again after Christmas.

While on holiday we went into Newton Abbot, where I visited the showrooms of the publishers David & Charles, the largest non-fiction-only publishers in Europe. In the course of browsing, I asked one of the staff about job possiblilites, an interview was arranged on the spot, and I was offered as much freelance work as I like, on the same terms as I work now! So our income shouldn't be adversely affected by the move, and in addition we have found an excellent primary school, with a Christian head-master, for the boys to go to. We have already made many friends, and the members of the local Baptist church welcomed us with open arms when we attended their service. At half- term some of them even put us up, and we were also invited to a Christian book sale in aid of Tear Fund at the home of the head-master and his wife, where we discovered that their daughter, at teacher training college in Wimbledon, goes to the same monthly Christian meetings in Wimbledon as I do, and we had unwittingly met earlier! Small world, isn't it?

But I wish it were even smaller, so that we could see more of you. The years seem to have rushed by, and the boys have grown up tremendously since you last saw them. Jason is inthe top class at school, although he won't be able to go to secondary school until 1980 as he's too young. (Another reason why the move will come at a good time is that it avoids Jason being the only one of his group staying behind in school, as moving to a new area he will go into the class appropriate to his age.) He is captain of the school chess team, sings in the school choir, and has just earned a place in the school football team. Adam is in his final year of infant classes, and will transfer to the junior section in September. Both here and in Devon the change does not mean a change of school buildings, just an extra lesson at the end of the day and a later home-going time. Both boys are showing real interest in natural history and wild life, and have also just discovered the joys of horse riding. They had their first lesson on Dartmoor in August and loved it. Unfortunately, we haven't been able to follow it up here, as the cost of lessons inthis part of the world is nearly three times as much as in Devon, but needless to say, they are longing to go riding when we eventually move.

I am glad you received the family history magazines safely, and hope you liked them when you were able to read them right through. You will no doubt have gathered that the FHS and the journal editing have been extremely time-consuming, but I have promised myself that I will not get involved at that level with the Devon FHS! I must admit it will be a relief to shed many of the jobs I have somehow acquired here, particularly as I still suffer from migraines and neck and shoulder pains following the whiplash injury last summer. And to make matters worse, we are still waiting for settlement of the insurance claim. The other driver's insurers have now paid for the car, but are still haggling over the injury. I have just had my fourth specialist medical check ( and my second in Harley Street!) and as the law only requires a maximum of three such checks, I don't see that they have any excuse for dallying any longer.

But that is enough about us - how are you all keeping? Are you having a hard winter, or is it being mild for you? And how is you asthma, Elizabeth? Does it still bother you? I hope not. And how is the writing coming along? Have you yet decided to write something set in England? I do hope you will. But do write soon (that's abit of a cheek I know!) and tell us all your news. And how are your boys - or rather, men! Do you still have Jim with you at home, and Tom in Chicago, or have things changed in recent months? And how is the work of your Council of Churches developing? We are very much enjoying the greater ecumenical movement here, with the real lowering of barriers between the denominations. At a recent diocesan renewal service, the worship was led jointly by an Anglican, a Baptist, a United Reformed and a Catholic minister! Of course, sharing with Catholics makes the Eucharist impossible, but it was good to feel there were still many things we could share.

And how I wish there was more time to share more things with you all right now, but the hour is late, and I have to be up early in the morning! But I will enclose a couple of photos of the boys - the official school ones, and not exactly brilliant, but they're the only ones we have at present, and there are none of the four of us I'm afraid. But we do still have some in the camera, and when we've finished the film, if we can get a good one of all of us together, we'll send it to you. Meanwhile, I've sent under separate cover a couple of weeks ago, a West Country calendar (genuinely produced in the West Country, and bought on holiday!). And between the pages I've slipped a couple of rather nice old prints of Devon. One is of Combe Martin, and the other of the Valley of the Rocks, between Lynton and Lynmouth, just a few miles along the coast. I should imagine that they both look in those pictures much as they must have done when your ancestors lived there David. I realise they don't look their best unframed. but it seemed safer and less complicated to send them that way, and hope that you would be able to find some suitable frame for them. I have tried to find out something about the date of the pictures and the artist, but so far without success. But if he were a local man, you may even come across the name (which I've forgotten at present) in your research!

And so now I really must close, albeit reluctantly, and wish you all a very, very happy Christmas, and every blessing in 1979.

With lots of love from us all,

Roy, Kim, Jason + Adam

PS Once again the usual apologies for the typing, if anything even worse than usual! But my fingers keep tripping over themselves in eagerness to tell you all the news!

P.P.S. Am also trying to get hold of a special book (Devonshire of course) to send you after the Christmas rush!

Dearest Family:

I'm sitting here looking at the two lovely pictures you sent of Jason and Adam. They've grown so much since we were there, that we're delighted to have this way of keeping in touch. Such good looking boys and such good pictures!

We're wondering most of all just where your moving possibility stands. It would be exciting to move to Devon and especially to the Exeter area. Naturally, we looked up Bovey Tracey, Lustleigh, and Newton Abbot on our large scale maps, and we are sure that would be an interesting and pleasant place to live.

When you wrote in December, Kim, you hadn't yet experienced the severe winter weather that arrived at the end of the year. Enclosed is one of the stories in our paper about your storms. We hope it wasn't too disastrous for you. It sounds as though the weather was much worse in Devon and Cornwall than it was in the London area, though the article does mention Kent, which is east of you.

You might be interested in reading the article about our weather at about that same time. We did set some records for cold temperature, and the cold weather (but not that cold!) stayed through most of January. Even this morning the temperature went down again to 15 below zero (F.), but the sun is shining beautifully, and it doesn't seem that cold. They say it might be 20 below tonight.

I think we pointed out how large a state Minnesota is, so when they say it's 30 below in Virginia, Minnesota, you must realize that's 190 miles north of here. We never have as much snow or as low a temperature as they do.

At any rate, we're used to our weather and seem to be able to get along with it. We've already had 45 inches of snow this winter, which is more than average, but not a record. We have about 20" on the ground now, but the piles go up several feet in many places. However, they keep the streets plowed, and even the alleys, so we have been able to get around reasonably well.

Chicago, where Tom is, has really been a disaster area, as you may have heard. They've had more snow than we have, sometimes 20" in one day, and they are not as well equipped to handle it. Their main airport, O'Hare Field, has been shut down several times. Hardly any of their side streets are ever plowed, so they were practically immobilized for weeks. We were worried about Tom and talked with him several times by phone.

One thing you'll be interested in is that I'll be retiring at the end of this year. Actually, I'll retire officially at the end of August when I'll be 65, but I'll continue as a part-time consultant to the end of December. As a matter of fact, starting February 1st I began working only two-thirds time, or about four days a week. In other words, instead of working full-time for 2/3 of the year, I'm working 2/3 of the time for a full year. This works out the same financially for both the council of churches and me, but it spreads my time out over the full year so the council won't have to employ a new executive until January and can thus save enough money to pay such extra costs as bringing candidates here to be interviewed and moving the new executive here.

I look upon it as partial retirement early, and I hope to have a little more time this year for genealogy, work around the house, occasional short trips, and other kinds of relaxation.

This afternoon I went to a meeting of the Minnesota Genealogical Society at the University of Minnesota Library. They told us about many resources there that we can make use of. You have to be a student or faculty member to take books and other materials out, but anyone can use the items there at the library or have them Xeroxed.

We were especially shown their extensive map collection. For example, they told us about the excellent gazeteers and large-scale maps they have of most countries. So I looked up two maps of North Devon and had them Xeroxed in sections (total cost 30¢). One is the old Ordnance Survey in the 1969 David and Charles Edition, and the other is called the Ordnance Survey of Great Britain, One Inch to One Mile Map (Seventh Series).

I was especially fascinated to see that the Publisher of the 1969 Edition was the company you might be working for, Kim, if you move to Devon. You would probably have access to many useful things if you were there.

A recent interesting development in my Witheridge line was a letter sent to me by my Aunt Clara Mae Marquis, one of my father's sisters. My great grandfather, John Witheridge, married Clara Blackmore. (There were a great many Blackmores in North Devon.)

Before she married my great grandfather, Clara Blackmore "married" George Curtis, though there is no record of the marriage in the parish register, and the twin sons she had, George and John, are listed in the baptismal record as the "Illegit. sons" of Clara Blackmore. (I haven't told this to any of my Witheridge relatives.)

John seems to have died early, but George and his descendants used the family name of Curtis. George Curtis (Clara Blackmore's son) came to America with his family; and one of his sons, John, wrote the enclosed letter to my Aunt Clara Mae about 1944. There are several things I'd like to investigate further in this letter:

1. "Grandfather Curtis sailed with the Marines for Mexico." Would there be some naval records that might turn up information about George Curtis?

2. "Grandmother Witheridge (Clara Blackmore) had 3 farms before she married J. Witheridge." Perhaps there are some proberty records of that period that would confirm this. Some distinguishing features are the name of the farm (Ham) and the name of the hotel across the road (King's Arms). Apparently the hotel was owned by "our people" (Blackmore relatives).

3. He speaks of "Mighty Atom," written by Marie Corelli, as being about the Combe Martin Church, but I don't know anything about this author or her work. Do you?

4. Regarding Lorna Doone, I hope to pursue that connection, including R. D. Blackmore's background, when I have time.

If you have any suggestions on any of these matters, Kim, please let me know. It sounds as though you have been so busy with the East Surrey Family History Society and other matters that you haven't had much time to spend on your own genealogical research. You said you had learned a lot, but didn't have time to put your learning into practice. That's about my situation now, but I'm looking ahead for more time to pursue my numerous ideas.

That's all I have time for now, but I know Elizabeth also wants to add a few lines.

Love to all, David

Dear Dave and Elizabeth,

Once again I must start by apologising for such a long delay in writing - it seems amazing to realise that seven months have passed, for it has flown by like seven weeks.

But never the less it has been a very eventful seven months, in many ways. Early in January I managed to get a little more genealogical research done, and at long last proved that my 3 x great-grandfather Joseph, and the Joseph Witheridge born in Wembury in 1788 were in fact one and the same! This link takes me back now to about 1570. I'm sending under separate cover copies of the two latest issues of our Journal, one of which includes the story of my research, complete with family tree. Now I've confirmed the Wembury link I want to get hold of the copies of the Manorial Rolls for the three manors covering the area - Langdon, Down Thomas and Wembury. I know that the Mormons have recently microfilmed some of the rolls, and hope in fact that they have all been filmed. Some of the originals are at Exeter - too far for me to take the necessary time to study them, but if I could obtain copies from Salt Lake City, I could study them at home in my own time and hopefully discover more about the family.

However, although January started with good news, it ended on a very sad note, for on 29 January, Eva died. She had been unwell for a fortnight, and had spent some time staying here with us. Although a hospital check-up just after Christmas had shown her to be in excellent health, she apparently developed diabetes, and went into a diabetic coma before the condition could be stabilised. It was a great shock, for although she was in her 84th year, she had always been strong and healthy. It was also a great loss, for (as I have probably told you) Eva cared for me and brought me up for nearly ten years. Since February we have been helping Joan to sort and dispose of Eva's effects, and I think we have just about finished the task.

Our winter was bleak weather-wise too - frequent snowfalls, and just as one thaw was almost complete, a fresh fall ofsnow set us back to square one. However, we did have one reasonably clear week in February, which coincided with half term, and we went to Devon hoping to further our move. By Easter we were finally set to go, and were only three days short ofsigning contracts on the sale of our house, when Roy's firm withdrew their offer of a transfer - leaving us to foot the legal bills! We are still hoping to move, whether with a transfer from Roy's firm or (as seems more likely) with a change of job for Roy. Although Roy really enjoys his work, the company's administration is so inefficient, it makes the job very frustrating for him. We have even been considering setting up a servicing and repairs business of our own, but feel that this is not the most favourable economic climate forsuch a venture. For the time being, move to

Glitch

we are keeping an open mind on all our options, and have booked our holiday for two weeks in Ashburton, starting 18 August. Then if there should be any suitable property on the market we shall be on the spot to take action.

Another surprise in the Spring was the discovery of the family of my mother's half-brother David - in New Zealand! As you know, I had often thought of searching for David, but I knew it could be a long and difficult task, and would depend on being able to trace the reported re-marriage of my grandfather's second wife. But all that proved unnecessary, for a copy of the ESFHS Journal, listing my interests of Witheridge and Barry happened tofall into the hands of a lady in New Zealand who had known a David Barry Witheridge and wrote to me, wondering if there might be any connection. From the details she gave me, it was immediately obvious that he was 'our' David. Unfortunately, David himself had died shortly after Christmas, leaving a wife, two sons and a daughter. His widow, Eve, came to England in March to join her parents for their Golden Wedding anniversary, and was able to make contact and come and spend a day with us. I was able to show her photos of members ofthe family and of the house in which David was born. I have had many of my old family photos re-photographed, mainly because many of the originals are rapidly deteriorating. Having modern negatives means that even should the originals fade beyond recognition, the pictures will not be lost, and of course there is the added advantage of being able to have extra prints made. I'm having a set of the appropriate ones made for Eve, which I can send to New Zealand, so that she can show her children.

May saw Jason in Paris for a week, as part of a school exchange with Sutton's twin town, Gagny. We hadn't planned forhim to go, thinking that we would be in Devon by then, but at the last minute one of the boys dropped out and Jason was offered the place. Normally such a trip would have been beyond us financially at such short notice, but as we had just received the insurance compensation for my injuries in our 1977 car accident, the money was there to pay for the trip. All the children had a really good time, and the trip has marked a major step in Jason's growing up - he has matured considerably.

Just three days after Jason's return, we had another upset, for Adam was attacked by the Jack Russell terrier of our neighbours opposite. He was quite badly bitten about the face and had to be taken to the hospital. In spite of the hospital treatment, the wound became infected and the situation was made worse when, just as the wound finally started to heal nicely, Adam went down with chickenpox. Needless to say, the first and heaviest crop of blisters came all round the wound, and sadly Adam's face is now scarred. Whether the scars are permanent or will eventually fade, only time will tell. Once Adam had returned to school it was Jason's turn for chickenpox, and in the meantime I had had an operation. What had seemed to be a large mole on my chest had started to play up and be very painful. My doctor was so concerned that he sent me to the hospital with a letter the very day I went to him, and I was booked in for surgery within ten days. Under examination they found a second 'mole' which they felt could give similar concern, so both were removed at once. We had quite a tense week afterwards waiting for the biopsy results, but fortunately all was clear.

Shortly after that the French boy with whom Jason stayed in Gagny came for the return visit. Sadly it was not a success. Christophe was very spoiled and self-willed, and I guess he had resented the attention his family had given Jason. The first three days here he cried nearly all the time and wouldn't eat (at least, not until he thought I wasn't looking). When that gambit was exhausted, we then caught him making lengthy phone calls to Paris, without permission. This was followed by choosing presents for his family when we went shopping, and then walking out and leaving me to pay the bill for them! Throughout the whole week we faced absolute refusal to take a bath, wash hair or change clothes. By the end of the week we were all quite shattered, to the extent that on the day Christophe went home, Roy went down with tonsillitis and was off work for a week!

But the following Saturday was some compensation, for I was an official steward at the Society of Genealogists Conference at Baden-Powell House in London. The conference was organised by Alan Reed, one of my fellow co-founders of ESFHS, who is now of the Committee of the Society of Genealogists . As a steward, I was able to lunch in the room set aside for organisers, staff and speakers, and the contacts made there were in many ways more useful than the rest of the conference put together! As a result of some of the contacts made, I am seriously considering starting a Witheridge one-name Society.

However, that will take a little more time than I have at present, for I am in the throes of my annual stint of work on 'Year's Work in English Studies', a volume published annually by John Murray for the English Association, which I copy-edit, proof-read and generally organise for them. It is always the biggest job of my working year, and this year, because some chapters were held up in a mail strike, the book is well behind schedule. But as today is Sunday, and everyone is fit and well, and we're not due anywhere or expecting visitors, I have actually been able to snatch a couple of hours to write.

My work on YWES has meant quite a few trips to John Murray's offices just off Piccadilly, and this year I have been able toput the trips to a dual purpose. My cousin Eric (Eva's son) had to retire some years ago while still in his fifties, because his heart was rapidly weakening. In recent years he has had to lead a very quiet life, and there were times when his family felt that there were not many days left to him. But he had grown a little stronger in himself this year, sufficiently so for his doctors to consider surgery. He is now in St George's Hospital, Hyde Park Corner, having had open-heart surgery, in which four veins were taken from his legs and inserted in his heart, the leg veins being replaced by plastic ones. The operation has so far been more successful that we had dared hope, and I have been able to combine my business trips to London with visits to Eric in hospital, visits which would otherwise have been rather difficult to arrange.

At the end of this month our church will once again be sharing in the organisation and running of a holiday club for children in Morden Park. The club, which lasts for one week, caters for children from the ages of three to fourteen, and includes sing-songs, Bible teaching and sports. This is the fourth year we have run the club, and in previous years the total attendance of children has been about six-hundred - although the most we get in any one session is about half that. It is usually a very rewarding exercise, but always quite exhausting!

Mealtime finally caught up with my last writing session, and the days that followed provided more surprises - and more busy times! - with the result that this is the first chance I have had since then to continue writing.

The biggest surprise of all was the news that Caroline (Joan's daughter and Eva's grand-daughter) is getting married. She and Nigel have been engaged on and off (literally) for about three years now. Originally they had said that they wouldn't be getting married this year, but suddenly they were offered a flat in Tonbridge, Kent (where Nigel works), and almost simultaneously a vacancy arose for a nursing sister on the children's ward of the local hospital - Caroline is qualified in both general and children's nursing, but has always specialised in child nursing. Choosing a place for the wedding was a problem. Caroline hasn't lived at home for six years, having had to be resident at the hospitals where she worked, and in any case, Joan's flat is not really a suitable place from which to organise a wedding. Nigel's home in Tonbridge was too far away for Joan to be able to organise things down there, so we offered our home. At the time we didn't realise just how quickly they wanted the ceremony, and just ten days before we went on holiday, they asked if they could get married from here on September 22!

In those ten days I booked the church, the reception, the photographer, the cars, the flowers, the hair-do's, we bought the invitations, and I went to London with Joan and Caroline and the two bridesmaids to help choose their dresses, head-dresses etc. The night before we went on holiday Joan and Caroline came over to help me pack - packing had rather gone by the board in the circumstances! - and while they were here we went to the caterer and planned the menu. By the time we returned from holiday, most of the replies were in, and the final details of seating plans etc were completed. I managed to get a beautiful dress in a sale, but still have to get gloves and bag - hopefully on Saturday.

The wedding service will be in our old Parish Church of St Lawrence, where Roy and I were married 15 years ago, when Caroline was our bridesmaid. By coincidence, the place were are having the reception is the very room where Roy took me on our first date, so it will be a doubly sentimental occasion for us. After the reception, those who wish will be coming back here, together with Caroline's hospital colleagues who will have been on duty and unable to get to the church. As you can imagine, it is a tremendous amount of work, especially as I am still working on the book for the English Association, and doing at least six hours a day on that. But I have told my boss that I am having three clear days before the wedding when I shall not be working, to get the final arrangements complete.

But rather than spendlots of time describing all the details, I will send you some of the photos as soon as we get them - we are just praying that it will be a dry sunny day, so that we can all get plenty of good pictures.

Our holiday in Ashburton went very well, and we came back fit and well and very tanned. The boys had riding lessons, had great fun playing with their inflatable boat in the lake which remained on the beach when the tide receded, explored the countryside, and generally had a whale of a time. We had one day in Plymouth, when Roy took Jason and Adam around the harbour and on a boat trip, while I spent the day in the record office and the local history library. During that time I added eight new names to my family tree, all from the 17th century, on the female lines. The result is that the birth-brief chart for my 6xgreat grandfather is now nearer completion than my own grandfather's. Grandfather's chart has 11 of the 31 names, while the ch art for Thomas Witheridge (Born 1695)has 16 names! The reference library too came up trumps with a number of old photos and sketches of the streets in Plymouth where the family lived in the 19th century. I also purchased prints of two lovely old maps - one of the streets of Plymouth in 1861, and one of the area surrounding Plymouth, showing 'the Fortifications thereof, with the workes and approaches of the Enemy at the Last Seige; AD 1643', each for the amazing sum of 5p! I also managed to get some good photos of Wembury Church to add to my collection of illustrations for the family history.

One other point of interest I unearthed recently from an old book concerns the origin of the name Witheridge. Like everybody else I had always assumed that it originated solely from the town of Witheridge in mid-Devon. Certainly the surname seems tohave no links with the only other place of that name, in the Reading area. But I have just discovered that there was once a manor called Witheridge, in the Plympton Hundred, which was mentioned in the Domesday Book in 1086. The snag is that, according to the old book I found the reference in, no-one seems to know just where the manor was exactly. Needless to say my palaeography isn't up to checking the original reference in Domesday, but the publishers, Phillimore's, are due to issue the volume concerning Devon in their series of Domesday translations, later this year. So as soon as I can get a copy of the Phillimore edition I hope to try and correlate that with old maps and the modern Ordnance Survey and try to locate the missing manor. Then it's a case of finding which of the places was established first, and whether the surname came from one or the other or both? It's a tall order I know, and I may never come up with a conclusive answer, but it should be fun trying.

September 24

Once again events caught up with me - notably wedding events! Saturday went beautifully -the sunshine appeared to order, the bride looked absolutely gorgeous, the flowers and the food were all just perfect, and the ceremony went without a hitch. Afterwards about 55 people came on here after the reception, and I was run off my feet keeping everbody fed and watered, but it was worth every minute. Now I could just about sleep for a week!

But I won't get the chance - the boys have just come in from school, and I must go and get them something to eat and drink. So I'll close this letter now, having finally got up to date with our news, and look forward to hearing all yours. I've been wondering whether any wedding bells have been ringing in your family this year, and how the semi-retirement is working out. It certainly seems a very sensible way of winding-down from the pressures of full time work to the joy of 'doing your own thing' in retirement. Are you working on another book at the moment, Elizabeth? Or are you going to retire as well? We're longing to hear how you are all keeping, and how Tom and Jim are getting on.

Meanwhile, I'll sort out some photos for you and put them in the post next week. Unitl then, I'll say goodbye for now,

With love from us all,

Roy, Kim, Jason & Adam

[Plans for 1980 trip to Britain]

2425 Irving Ave. S.
Minneapolis, Minn. 55405
April 23, 1980

Dear Kim, Roy, Jason, and Adam:

Since we haven't heard to the contrary, we're assuming that you are still in Sutton and very busy as usual. We should have answered your long and welcome letter of last September long ere this, though we did send you our Christmas letter with a few words of personal news and greeting on the back, as I remember.

You'd think that since I'm retired, I'd have all the time in the world for everything. It seems, however, that I'm as busy as ever--just at different things. I tell people that I'm as far behind as I ever was, but now I don't have a guilty conscience about it.

The fall months through December were especially taken up with trying to do on part-time at the Council office what I had always spent full-time doing! We did secure an excellent young man to take my place as executive director of the Greater Minneapolis Council of Churches on January 1st, and Elizabeth and I spent many days in the fall months helping him and his family find a suitable home to move into.

You got the news in our Christmas letter that we plan to come to Great Britain again this summer. One of our happy surprises at the various events in honor of my retirement was a monetary gift from many co-workers and friends of the Council, including a number of churches. This was more than we could imagine, and it was enough to pay for a large part of the cost of our projected trip.

For several reasons we decided that this time we should make our trip later in the year. We plan to leave here on August 2nd and return on October 2nd. In this way we'll at least have part of our stay--the month of September --at a time when there will be fewer tourists in Britain. I don't know if that will make much difference in crowded situations or in expenses, but we shall see.

That is also a good time to be away from our rose garden of 32 bushes. The early part of the blooming season will be over, and I won't have to begin putting the roses to bed for the winter until the middle of October.

I also wanted some extra time to prepare for the trip after all the rush of closing up my job and settling into a new mode of life. I needed time not only to make the travel arrangements, but also to do some preliminary work on genealogical matters in order to take the best advantage of our stay in Britain.

That's the way it's working out, and we're glad we're not coming until August. It's especially advantageous in terms of the flight plans. Northwest Airlines has just received approval of a new non-stop service from Minneapolis to London, and we have made reservations to leave at 5:30 p.m. on Saturday August 2nd, and arrive at Gatwick Airport at 7:00 a.m. Sunday, August 3rd.

Now we have a two-month stay to plan, and we're just beginning to do that. The only definite dates we have set so far are two weeks at the University of Exeter from August 12 to 26. We had such an enjoyable time in the Lafrowda Flats last time that we wrote and asked if we could stay there again. They replied that all they had available was a small self-catering flat a little off campus in a house called End Cottage, so we have definitely booked that for those two weeks.

Of course, we won't know how to fit our visit or visits with you into our schedule until we know whether you will be in Devon by the first of August or whether you will still be in Sutton. Please let us know how it looks at this time, so we can adjust our plans. You have no idea how we have longed to see you all again during these four years. You are the first ones we think of whenever we read or hear anything about Britain. I hope you have been getting our vibrations across the ocean by mental telepathy, even though we haven't corresponded very frequently.

I've had two big excuses for not writing this letter--which I knew would be a long one--during the past five weeks. The first was my annual task of income tax preparation, which was finally sent in last week. The second was our acquiring a darling new Norwegian Elkhound puppy five weeks ago. You may remember that Trygg died almost two years ago, and we have been all this time waiting for a new puppy we could have confidence in.

Our previous breeder was down to one female, and she just didn't produce. She had what is called a mixed litter and then two false pregnancies. So we decided not to wait for another attempt, and we bought an 8-week-old puppy from another breeder that our breeder has perfect confidence in--one we have also known several years.

We call him Rokk after one of his ancestors, who was also an ancestor of Trygg and was, in fact, the father of our first Elkhound, Jarle, twenty-six years ago. Rokk is everything we could ask for--intelligent, loving, beautifully formed and marked. However, starting out a young puppy is almost a full-time job. I don't know how Elizabeth could have managed if I hadn't been retired! Rokk is now practically housebroken and is becoming well civilized and socialized. Wish you could see him!

Another big job after my retirement was moving my study from a room on the first (ground) floor to a room on the second floor that used to be Tom's bedroom. I also brought two bookcases and two file cabinets up from the basement. Then, of course, there were boxes and boxes of books and other things I brought home from the office. All this is still far from being organized and settled, as you can imagine.

Finally, I was so far behind in my genealogical research, that I found I still had information from our 1976 trip I had never copied into my records. I've made a start at this, but there is still more to be done. As an outcome of some of my recent work, I have written to parish rectors or vicars in Cornwall and Devon and to the Devon Record Office and even to the Society of Genealogists. I've had a few replies, but these things take time, which is the reason I felt our trip should begin a little later in the summer.

Now back to some of the news in your September letter. We were very disappointed to learn that Roy's anticipated job transfer failed to materialize, especially since Kim had received an offer from David and Charles for free-lance work, and you had such a good possibility of a buyer for your house in Sutton. We hope something else will develop to your satisfaction.

We were sorry, of course, to hear that Eva had died. We did so much enjoy being with her. She was such a wonderful person, and we know how close you felt to her, Kim.

The other big family event--Caroline's wedding--sounds as though you must have been run ragged for several weeks. I just don't see how you can do so much, Kim. At my age I certainly can't, and that's probably why I retired!

Jason's trip to Paris must have been a delightful experience and a tremendous opportunity, but that was too bad about the way his French host behaved when he got to your place. It's hard to believe he wouldn't have been better screened in advance.

And then Adam's attack by the neighbor's dog! We hope the wound is nicely healed and the chickenpox scars have pretty well disappeared. We're not familiar with Jack Russell Terriers, but they can't be as friendly with children as Norwegian Elkhounds.

How fortunate that the moles they removed from your chest, Kim, were not malignant. You must have excellent health and stamina to keep going the way you do all the time.

It sounds as though you continue to make good progress on the genealogical front. What a great feeling to confirm your conviction that the Joseph Witheridge born in Wembury in 1788 was your 3x great-grandfather! I've been looking around in some of my disorganised things for the issue of your Journal that describes your research and results; but if you sent it, I can't seem to find it.
